Summary

The story is presented in both a spoken and a sung version. A son of a king went out hunting one day with some servants. After three days, they started to return home. On the way he encountered a group of people lamenting the death of somebody. The boy was shocked, since he had never witnessed death before. On returning home, he told his father that he had no desire to live a worldly life if men are mortal, but wished to seek to enter the heavenly kingdom. He left home and met a monk, who took him to a monastery. In the monastery the boy made a living through weaving baskets and mats. One day in the market he was accosted by the wife of a king, who asked him to weave a basket for her. When the boy delivered the basket to her, she attempted to seduce him. He refused her advances and castigated her. After the intervention of an angel, he managed to run away.

Sung Introduction

(1) Listen, brothers. I am going to tell you a tale about a prince, a child of power who sat on a kingdom's throne.

Spoken Story

- (2) So, this king had a son. He had a son. His son was an only son, he only had one son. He was a king and all the income of the world was his.
- (3) So, his son grew up. Indeed, his son was intelligent, clever. Also the king himself was intelligent. His son was very clever.
- (4) He went out. He said one day to his father, he said, 'If you provide me with servants, we shall go into the countryside in order for us to hunt, to the mountains, to the countryside.' In the old days, people would go hunting.
- (5) He (the king) provided him with servants and they went off. They hunted for three days. They on a hunt (Kurdish $r\bar{a}w$). We say on a hunt (Neo-Aramaic sayda), which is our suret language. They were on a hunt.
- (6) They had stayed there three days. After three days, while they were returning back home, they became aware of a noise in a house, with everybody gathering around.
- (7) What has happened? What has happened? That child was the son of a king. He had never known in his life what death was. He had not seen what a human was. He had not seen poverty. He had never seen anything. He had never seen anything. He only had seen pleasure, jollity, merriment and entertainment. He was the only son. Whatever he wanted, they would do for him.

- (8) They said, 'What's that?' They said, 'This is a dead man.' He said, 'But what is a dead man?' They said, 'What do you mean "What is a dead man?" This is a man who is like that, who is dead.'
- (9) 'What will they do to him?' He said, 'What will they do to him?' 'Now they will cover him there, they will dig a grave for him to put him under the ground.'
- (10) He said, 'How is that?' He said, 'I mean, how is that?' He said, 'Why did he die?' He (a servant) said, 'Not only this one, not only this one dies. All people will die. Every person whom God has created must die.'
- (11) He said, 'How is this possible? It did not use to be so.' They said, 'Yes, it is so.' The boy was seized by fear. He was seized by trembling. They returned home.
- (12) The moment he entered through the door, his father came to meet him. He was coming back from hunting. He said, 'Father, you consider yourself to be a wise person.' He (the king) said, 'What are you wondering about?'
- (13) He said, 'Since all the human race is mortal, this world has no longer any taste. There is no life in it.' He (the king) said, 'My son, why has this [feeling] come over you? Has he gone mad? Or what?'
- (14) 'My son,' he said, 'sit and look here. I shall give my throne to you. I shall make you a king in my place. I shall do such and such things for you.'
- (15) He said, 'These things are all without benefit. They are no use.' He (the king) said, 'I shall bring you a woman and a future. You will have children. You will have joy in your children. You will have pleasure in a family.'

- (16) He said, 'All these things are of no benefit. I just want you to show me one path, since you know that there is a [heavenly] kingdom and hell, since there is this world and another world. I want to go to the [heavenly] kingdom. I disdain all this world,' he said.
- (17) The father was very upset. He said, 'How is this possible?' Whatever he did and whatever he tried, the father could not convince the son. The son was not convinced. He said, 'That's fine, but what are you going to do?'
- (18) He said, 'Father,' he said, 'I am going to leave you and go away. I want to seek where the path of the [heavenly] kingdom is.'
- (19) It is said that the son left the house. He said, 'I have no father, mother, brother, sister, cousin or uncle. I have no such relatives.' He said, 'I am going.' He (the king) said, 'Look, all these people are yours.' He said, 'Nobody is mine. Since somebody is mortal, he is not mine.'
- (20) He went off, on and on and on and on and on and on. The old folk said [he went] to Baghdad. But it was not Baghdad. He went to a place, a monastery. Where were monasteries? In mountains, in deserted places. The people who lived in such places were monks.
- (21) It is said he went on and on. He did not know where, he himself did not know where he was going. He just wanted to keep going until somebody caught up with him to show him a path of faith.

- (22) It is said he kept going. He sat on top of a spring and drank water, he drank. It is said that he saw a monk who came there. It is said that he greeted him. He accepted his greeting.
- (23) It is said that he (the monk) said, 'Why are you wandering?' It is said that he said, 'Believe me, I have left my homeland. I do not want to go back to my homeland. I want to go to live in a place where people only worship God.'
- (24) He (the monk) said, 'Come with us.' But [the prince] said, 'You are saying I was the son of the king and I was such and such.' [The prince] said, 'I shall leave all these things behind. I don't want it for a piece of iron.'
- (25) He (the monk) went off. What did he do? He took him to his own house. He went to the monastery. Who lived in the monastery? That monk. In the past monks did not live, for example, in monasteries. Each person lived by himself in a hut, in such and such a thing. That is how they used to live.
- (26) 'What shall I do for him?' It is said that he worked with baskets, large baskets made of straw matting. These priests and so forth would make them, they would go and bring from open fields, priests and I don't know what. They would bring from the fields straw and would weave.
- (27) They would weave mats. They would weave baskets. They would weave small baskets. They would weave large baskets. He would get up at daybreak. He would get up in the early morning. He would take them to the market to sell them.

- (28) With the price of those baskets, he would buy food for himself and bring it home. In the evenings, they would sit, sing, pray and worship. He (the boy) liked the way of life a lot.
- (29) It is said that one day he went off carrying a load on his back. He went at dawn to sell his baskets. It is said that a king's wife saw him.
- (30) She saw him and said, 'How can this [be happening]? Why is he wandering about? How come he is selling baskets?' She said to her servants 'Summon him.'
- (31) He came. She said, 'What are you selling?' He said, 'Baskets.' The time was not right [for her to buy one]. She said to him, she said, 'Tomorrow, I would like you to bring and sell me a special basket for me. I shall give you whatever price you want.'
- (32) He was gullible and went off. The next day—that night he did not sleep, but wove a very beautiful basket. He brought it. He came to the door of the woman. He brought it.
- (33) As soon as he entered through the door, she said to her servant, she said, 'Shut the doors.' She shut the doors on him. He said, 'Why have you gone mad and [done this]? What are you doing? What are you doing?'
- (34) She said, 'You are not allowed to go out. You (servant), do not let him leave the house.' Then he pleaded with her. But however much he pleaded, it was useless. She did not let him leave.
- (35) Then she said to him, she said, 'What will you do, poor fellow? Why are you dwelling in those mountains, exhausted and groaning? You eat grass like animals. Come and have a good time on these sofas.

- (37) She kept saying all these things to him. She kept saying [them]. He said, 'Oh woman, oh crazy woman, are you not ashamed to commit a sin?' Yes, he said, 'This is the work of the devil. You do not fear God.'
- (38) She said, she said, she said, 'Why are you going?' Now, when she knew that whatever she did work with him, the lady put a necklace on her neck and decorated her hands with silver, she put on lipstick and makeup, and I don't know what else she did. She put on all the world's ornaments so that the heart of the monk would soften.
- (39) She said to the servant 'Do not open the door.' Whatever he did he could not get out. At that point, he felt very stressed.
- (40) She said, 'Oh comely poor monk, it is time the yoke came. Whatever you do, poor man, I will disgrace you in front of old and young people.' She said, 'I mean if you don't do for me the thing I say, I will do this to you.'
- (41) At that point, his heart became very troubled. It is said that an angel sent support to his side. He said, 'Do not be afraid of this arrow. It's the devil who is her friend.
- (42) Do not be afraid of this trial, nor of this woman who is standing [before you]. I have now come to your aid so that you will have a saviour.' It is said that then he escaped from her hands and got out. He ran and ran.

Sung Version of Story

- (43) Listen, oh brothers. I am going to tell you a story about a prince, a child of power, seated on the throne of a kingdom.
- (44) One day he set off from home. He summoned slaves and servants to go out into the countryside, to hunt animals.
- (45) He hunted for two days. After that, he returned home. On the way, he came across a dead person. His body shivered out of fear.
- (46) When he returned home, he stood before his father, the ruler. He said, 'Oh wise father, your glory will vanish like smoke.'
- (47) 'Oh son, what happened to you? Go and have all the pleasure there is in your life. Afterwards, I shall fetch you a wife so that you [may] enjoy your life.'
- (48) 'Oh father, I do not want a wife. I disdain all glory and wealth. I do not want to have joy, because I am going to the heavenly kingdom.'
- (49) 'Oh son, sit on this throne. Rule over my possessions and wealth.'
- (50) 'Oh father, listen to me. I have no father, mother, brother or cousin, nor a profession to earn a living. I am a monk and will leave the world.'
- (51) Then he left the house and bid farewell to his father. He went to a faraway land and came across some monks. He asked them to house him, to teach him the path to the Lord and to show him the path towards the heavenly kingdom so that they [may] abandon this world.

- (54) 'Oh monk, comely and courteous, I have fallen in love with you with all my heart. I cannot separate myself form you. I cannot separate myself from you.'
- (55) 'Oh woman, oh high-ranking lady, shameless and brazen, why do you want me to commit this sin and anger our Lord of creation?'
- (56) 'What's wrong with you that you are lost in the mountains and eat grass like animals? Come on have fun on these sofas and do not miss out on these moments.
- (57) Oh, monk, young and comely, sit at my side as an honourable man. Put on a garment of woven gold. And take the prince's wife for yourself.'
- (58) 'Oh woman, oh high-ranking lady, shameless and brazen, I cannot commit this sin and anger our Lord of creation.'
- (59) Then the lady became filled with evil. In a moment she summoned her servant and winked at him. She shut the door in his face.
- (60) Then, the lady put on a silk dress and put a necklace on her neck. She decorated her hands with silver. She got closer to the monk and grabbed his hand.

Summary

A son of a king went out hunting one day with some servants. After three days they set off back home. On the way he found a dead man lying on the ground. The boy was very saddened by this and, on his return, told his father that he had no desire to live a worldly life but wished to go away and become a monk. He went away and met a hermit in a cave who was weaving baskets. The boy stayed with him and made his living through weaving baskets and the like. One day he was accosted by the wife of a king, who asked him to weave a basket for her. When the boy delivered the basket to her, she attempted to seduce him and tempt him by sumptuous gifts. He refused her advances and castigated her. She threatened to tell the prince that he had assaulted her. He prayed to God and, through God's intervention, somebody came to the door and the boy ran away.

- (1) Zambilfrosh, yes, is in [the form of] a story. But they also sing it and add to it in the song. I mean they tell it with melody, thus. But this is how the story was:
- (2) It is said that there was a king in the village. He had a son who was very wise and clever. One day he (the son) gathered the servants and went out hunting. In the old days it was like that. Nothing was the way it is now.
- (3) They went hunting. It is said that they remained in the mountain for three days. Then they returned home. On the way back, he came across a dead man who was lying there on the ground.
- (4) He became very sad. He said, 'Is this what happens to a man? By God, I shall leave home and go about living like a hermit, since this is what happens to a man.'
- (5) It is said that he lost interest in everything.¹ He returned home. He went up to his father and said to him, 'Father, I am not going to stay at home. I am going to leave. I am going off by myself to live like the hermits who live in caves.'
- (6) He (his father) said, 'Why, what has happened to you? Have you gone mad? What has happened to you, my son, what has happened to you? Why are you doing this?'
- (7) He said, 'Father, since we die at the end and this is what happens to us, I do not want this kingdom, I do not want this luxury living.'²

- (9) No matter how hard his father tried to persuade him, he refused. He went out and entreated his father to pardon him. He bade him farewell and left. He set off from home.
- (10) He went and came across a hermit in a cave. The hermit was sitting by himself weaving baskets and similar things, which he sold to make a living.
- (11) He said, 'I am going to stay with you.' He (the hermit) said, 'But how can you live a life like this?' He said, 'I shall live the way you live. Don't worry about me. If I am unable to live, then...'
- (12) He stayed with him. He used to go out and bring wooden canes, which he cut, and fashioned, and wove into baskets and such things as cages and the like. He used to weave things like these. He used to go to the market and sell them, and then buy food and bring it home.
- (13) One day, as he was doing this, the wife of a king saw him. He was so handsome that she immediately fell in love with him. She desired him in her heart at once. Glory to God³—Satan often tempts man to do evil things.⁴
- (14) She said to him, 'Poor man, what do you want?' He said, 'I want nothing.' He said, 'I only bring these, sell them and get my money.' She said, 'Where do you live?' He said, 'I live somewhere in a cave.'

Summary

This story fuses the Quranic narrative of Joseph the Egyptian with the Kurdistani tale of the wandering basket-seller who resists seduction, Zambilfrosh. The protagonist was the son of a king who was wondering through the world and was imprisoned in a foreign country. One day, he was able to explain the king's dream, after which the king made him his advisor. The king's wife tried to seduce him and tempted him with great wealth. Zambilfrosh, however, resisted, claiming that he was a simple basket-seller who did not deserve any royal privileges or a royal wife.

One day, the protagonist's brothers came for grain. Zambilfrosh tricked them by accusing them of theft, but then revealed his identity to them. The brothers were reconciled and Zambilfrosh became their leader.

- (3) [The next day, Joseph told those in prison about his dream.] He said, 'I know what it is [about], but I won't tell.' They said, 'What is it? Tell us what it is!' 'I won't tell, I am not comfortable telling,' he said. 'It is about me and my brothers. A day will come when my brothers will kneel down before me, but they have expelled me.'
- (4) They said, 'He will be able to interpret the king's dream, let's take him [to the king].' He went to him. He said, 'What is the story, poor fellow? What is the story of six skinny cows devouring fat ones?' He said, 'You will have six years of famine, a rise of prices, something astonishing.
- (5) Therefore, believe [me], you need to gather wheat and fill your sacks, your storehouses with wheat and corn, because a strong famine will come, I mean. There will be a terrible famine for six years.' [The king] began to store wheat, more and more.
- (6) [Meanwhile,] his (the king's) wife began to look at him with desire. She would follow him and say, 'Come, eat and drink.' She did this: she told him, 'I'll give you the king's crown.'

² 'Basket-seller' is said in Kurdish. In the Aramaic versions of the story, 'Zambilfroš' is either 'basket-seller' or the protagonist's name, or sometimes even both at once.

- (7) He said, 'But I am a basket-seller. I weave baskets for which I earn one lira, and then I leave. This is my profession. I will not become a king. I will not be a king.' This was his job. The king liked him and helped him, and he in turn helped [the king].
- (8) A time came when his brothers were in distress, they heard that in such-and-such a country, there was wheat for sale. They all went to him, one by one. What did he (Zambilfroš) do?
- (9) It was he who measured the grain and put it in their sacks. He took out a golden cup which he had—they used golden cups for measuring out [the grain]—and he put it in the sack of one of them. [As] they went back to their [home] city, an army went pursuing them.
- (10) [Zambilfroš] said, he told the king, 'This is what I am going to do. I'm telling you—they have stolen your cup.' They were his own brothers. They chased them until outside their city, I mean, [they were] outside when they captured them and brought them [back].
- (11) They said 'But why? What have we done? Nothing, we have done [nothing].' 'You have stolen the gold cup.' 'How [could it be?] Why would we steal it?! The wheat would have barely reached our city and our people would have died of hunger before we could bring [it] to the city!' He said, 'Open your sacks.' He himself opened the sack. He told them to empty it here—and the golden cup appeared.
- (12) So what did they do? They took away their brother. I mean, they recognised him. [Then] they took him with them, the brother who was with the king.
- (13) They went away with their grain. There was no objection to anything he did. They would kneel before him for six years, they worshipped him. And until they all grew up and got married, that brother was their chief. This is what I am telling you.

7. ZANBILFIROSH—THE BASKET-SELLER¹

Summary

The son of the prince of Mosul lived a lavish lifestyle and was oblivious of death and afterlife. When he experienced the loss of one of his relatives, he was transformed and chose to become pious. To avoid living off his cruel father, he started to make a living by selling baskets and was, therefore, called Zanbilfirosh, i.e. basket-seller. Once, while strolling streets to sell his baskets, the daughter of the ruler of the city caught sight of him and tried to charm him. However, the pious basket-seller did not consent. The daughter accused him of assault. The guards kept chasing the basket-seller. The basket-seller threw himself down from one of the towers of the citadel and was later buried on a public road. The narrator elaborates on different versions of Zanbilfirosh across Kurdistan.

¹ I am grateful to Slava Sheikmous and Rewan Hussein, native speakers of Kurmanji, for their help with interpreting language in a few passages.

- (1) My name [is] Ahmad Abubakir Sileman. I come from the village of Khizava, [from] the Guli tribe. I was born in 1968, but in reality ... my date [of birth] is wrong. I was born in 1962.
- (2) The basket-seller—there are two tombs of [associated with] the basket-seller in Kurdish regions: one in northern Kurdistan, one in southern Kurdistan. The one in northern Kurdistan is located in Farqin in the Siliva county, Diyarbakir province.
- (3) But, as for the one in southern Kurdistan, the tomb is located on the road between Batifa and Zakho. It is on the road next to the Sirkotki village. It [is located] approximately less than five kilometres west of the Batifa region.
- (4) As for the basket-seller, —the way his adventure has been told [and] from what our ancestors have passed on to each other—his story comes from the citadel of Shabani, this citadel of Shabani.
- (5) He (the basket-seller) was called Mir Muhsin in our region. [He is] the son of Mir Avdulaziz, the prince of Mosul, [at] this citadel of Mosul. Mir Muhsin (the basket-seller) was the son of Avdulaziz, the prince of Mosul. Evidently, his story was like this: the basket-seller was the prince's son.
- (6) He was a handsome young man. He would wander around with other youths. He had a lot of money at his disposal. It is said that a member of the prince's family once passed away.

- (7) 'When he died, the people of the region obviously gathered around him, took [him] to the cemetery, dug a grave, put [him] in it, and buried [him].' He (Muhsin) said, 'Is he going to rest in this grave forever?' They (the people at the funeral) said, 'Yes, he will stay here until the resurrection.'
- (8) 'When is the resurrection?', he said. [They said to him], 'No religion knows for sure about [when] the resurrection [happens], no religion!' Fear took hold of him (Muhsin). He said, 'Is he going to get out from under the soil [at the resurrection]?' 'Yes, day and night,' they said. 'He will stay here day and night continually. It is finished [for the dead].'
- (9) [Upon seeing this scene] something came to his mind.² A mullah came to talk to him for one, two, three, four days. Every day, he would say, 'Mullah! Come [and] talk to me [about religion].' He (Muhsin) had Islamic faith. [The Mullah] showed him the principles of Islam.'
- (10) [The mullah said] 'Religion is like this. There is the Christian religion. There is the Islamic religion. Each religion has a set of liturgies and customs.' The Mullah showed him the principles of Islam.
- (11) Things remained [like this] for a couple of months. He (Muhsin) said, 'What shall I do to be relieved of this thing, [to be relieved] of this dark narrow grave?'

² Lit. A thing fell on his head.

- (13) [Muhsin said], 'Isn't it so that my father does [injustice]! I'm living off him.' He (the Mullah) said, 'By God, if your father does injustice [and you live off him], your prayers will not be accepted.' [Muhsin said], 'What shall I do to be relieved of the injustice caused by my father?'
- (14) He talked so much to his father. [But] his father did not agree to abandon this thing. The Mullah³ said, 'If you do a job with your own hands, take care of yourself and manage to live by your own means,⁴ then your prayers will be accepted.'
- (15) He rose [and] left [the house]. He had a wife and two babies. He said to his wife, 'I will go and make a living⁵ for us.'
- (16) He rose, came [and] started making baskets. Our people use the Kurdish baskets for fruit. They are made of sticks. He came to the river and made baskets. We said that back then people would live in citadels. He (i.e. Muhsin) kept coming⁶ until he arrived at the gate of the Shabani citadel.

- (17) He arrived.⁷ When the [lock of the] gate of the citadel flew open, the guards asked, 'Where are you going?' He (the basket-seller) said—well, he had baskets on his shoulders—, 'I'm going to sell baskets.' He strolled from street to street in the city.
- (18) It is said that the prince's daughter saw the handsome man, i.e. the basket-seller, who was selling baskets, through the windows of the palace. He was selling baskets. He was the prince's son. He was a handsome young man.
- (19) Immediately, she (the prince's daughter) was filled with love for the boy.⁸ She said to her maidservant, 'Go and ask the basket-seller to come here.' She (the maidservant) went and said to him (the basket-seller), 'Come here. We would like to buy baskets from you.'
- (20) He went upstairs. Of course, things were said [at their meeting]. It is known how they would talk to each other. The poets turned it [their conversation] into poetry:
- (21) Oh Basket-seller, son of ...

Oh Basket-seller, son of Dervish

Please come forward!

Tell (me) how much the price of the baskets is?

- (22) Anyway, it was like that. She (the prince's daughter) wanted to lure the basket-seller with her charm and show him her love. The basket-seller, who was overwhelmed by the fear of God, did not accept that.
- (23) The basket-seller turned around and left the palace, [saying to himself], 'These [actions] are wrong.' The basket-seller went down from the stairs [and ran away]. The girl called the guards, [and] said 'Guards!' 'Yes,' they replied. She said, 'Grab the basket-seller.'
- (24) They chased him. He fled. They went [and] closed the gates of the citadel to him and said, 'Where is he heading to?' The citadel of Shabani was in principle impregnable. They closed the gates of the citadel to him and kept chasing him until he arrived at the top of one of the towers⁹ of the citadel.
- (25) He said to the guards, 'By God, I will throw myself down into it [i.e. into the pointed rocks at the bottom of the castle].' They (the guards) kept going further up [...]. Anyway, he threw himself into it [i.e. into the pointed rocks]. He fell down. In this situation, during the time when this accident happened, the girl's father came [to the scene].
- (26) [The father said], 'What is this?' Out of fear, she (the daughter) turned the story to her favour. She said, 'It was the prince's son (the basket-seller) who lusted after me!' The prince said to the head of guards, 'Go and bring him.' He (the head of the guards) came down from the citadel and saw that he (the basket-seller) was shouting in pain and was wounded.

- (27) Well, the prince of the Shabani citadel looked at him (the basket-seller) and saw that he was a handsome man. He (the prince) was not willing¹⁰ to kill him (the basket-seller) [himself]. He said [to the guards], 'Go and kill him on the slope of the citadel.' The head of the guards knew that he (the basket-seller) had been bullied.
- (28) While he (the guard) was taking him (the basket-seller) to the slope, he said to him, 'I will take you to a physician. I will cure you.' After a few moments, when they were on their way to the slope of the citadel, he (the basket-seller) said, 'Put me down here, I'm dying. You cannot save me'.
- (29) [The basket-seller continued], 'But I have to testify to you: if it's possible for you, please bury me next to a public road, so that people who pass by pray for me. I will need that.' 'All right,' he (the head of the guards) said.
- (30) He (the guard) came. The road was a public road. It went from this region to Amadiya, Barzan [Choli] and from this village up to Cizre Bohtan. He (the guard) buried him (the basket-seller) next to that road.
- (31) The tale of the basket-seller in southern Kurdistan is like this. Some of our people say the real name of the basket-seller was Muhammad Amin. But most would say his name was Mir Muhsin, son of Mir Avdulaziz, the prince of Mosul.

¹⁰ Lit. His heart would not go.

- (32) But in northern Kurdistan it is said that the basket-seller was called Mir Sa^cid, son of Mir Hasan, the prince of Diyarbakir. The story of the basket-seller is told the same way in the north, the same as I told you. The story of the basket-seller in Varqin in northern Kurdistan is the same.
- (33) However, [note that] the citadel of Farqin is man-made. ¹¹ It is totally man-made. You should really ponder whether it is [the same castle as in the basket-seller story]. Let's listen to the verse, which goes as follows:
- (34) The castle of the emir is modern.

 Its height is the size of one thousand and seven spears.

 At the bottom of it there are pointed rocks and a blockade.

 I shall throw myself down from the castle,

 He (the basket-seller) said,

 Lest I become humiliated in front of God, [but] let me mortify the lady.

- (35) hafram hizār=a means that the citadel was the length of 1007 spears placed on top of each other. - (36) They (in northern Kurdistan) say he (the basket-seller) jumped down from a window. In addition, according to them (in northern Kurdistan) it was the prince's wife [that lusted after the basket-seller]. If you read their books, it is written that it was the prince's wife who fell in love with the basket-seller. However, in our region it is said that it was the prince's daughter [who fell in love with the basket-seller].
- (37) We can infer that the woman in question was the prince's daughter. Because the first person this event (the story of the basket-seller) happened in AD 994. From that time onward until the time of Faqi Tayran [the Kurdish poet, the first who wrote down the story of the basket-seller]—he was born in 1549. He passed away in 1631. During his lifetime he devoted himself to writing.
- (38) Approximately for a period of 500 years, the story was narrated by storytellers, minstrels, and artists. Faqi Tayran turned the tale into prose, and it was [accordingly] put into the archive. Until now, there have been some sixty people who have written down the story of the basket-seller.
- (39) But let me tell you this. Back then, Faqi Tayran said, 'Love overtook the girl.

She disclosed her story to her maid:

"The boy broke12 my heart

I cannot sleep because of [his] love."

(40) If you listen to these couplets, he (Faqi Teyran) himself says that it was the prince's daughter who fell in love with him (the basket-seller). Anyway, they (in northern Kurdistan) tell it (the tale) like that. This was, as they say, a short account of the basket-seller's life and the two graves [associated with him]. And there are two tombs associated with him in Kurdistan.

Summary

The arch of the bridge in Zakho could not be completed. An agha had seven water-mills, seven daughters-in-law and seven horses. An angel told him in a dream that he must stop one mill and kill one daughter-in-law and one horse so that the bridge could be completed. He stopped one mill and killed one horse. He sent his youngest daughter-in-law, Dalale, to take food to the workers on the bridge. It was said that the first soul to come onto the bridge would be killed. She came with a dog, but the dog was distracted by the scent of carrion. As a result Dalale was the first to come to the bridge and she was killed. They put her in the bridge and the arch of the bridge was completed. The story finishes with a song lamenting the death of Dalale.

- (1) In Zakho, they were building a bridge. We call the bridge the bridge of Dalale. [This was] in the time of the Abbasids. However much they built the bridge in order for its arch to be completed, its arch was not completed, it was not put together.
- (2) One day, the chief, the agha, saw in his dream that he was rich and powerful. He had seven water mills. He had seven daughters-in-law. He had seven horses. An angel said to him (in the dream), 'You must get rid of one of each of these. You should kill one of your daughters-in-law. You should kill one of your horses. You should stop one of your water-mills.'
- (3) The angel told him to do these things, so that the bridge would come together and its arch would be completed. Indeed, they had started building the bridge (and had been working on it) for years and years in order for it to come together, but it could not (be completed).
- (4) He went and stopped a water-mill and killed one of his horses. Now, Dalale—his youngest daughter-in-law was called Dalale—he sent food with Dalale for her to take to the workers who were working on the bridge of Dalale.
- (5) They said to her, 'Any soul that comes onto the bridge of Dalale—that soul will be slaughtered, killed.' She had a dog with her. If the dog had gone first, they would have killed the dog and not killed Dalale. But the dog picked up the scent of carrion. Do you know what a carrion (kallaš) is? It is a dead sheep.

- (6) zille kalba rəš dὲ kalləš. Þayya Dalale pišla qamὲθa. Żilla, mṭela l-gəšra, qəm-dawqìla, qəm-parmìla. Mattila gu gə̀šra, gəšra qṭìrre. Mattila gu gə̀šra, gəšra qṭìrre.

- (6) The dog went to the carrion. So, Dalale became the first one. She reached the bridge and they seized her and slaughtered her. They put her on the bridge and the arch of the bridge was completed, it came together. So, they say:
- (7) Dalal, Dalal, Dalale,The high bridge of ZakhoThe river under it is blue (with grief).Dalle (= Dalale) has been seized by her father-in-law.
- (8) The narrow bridge of Zakho,The river under it is narrow.Dalle (= Dalale) has been seized by her father-in-law.
- (9) On account of that dog which was treacherous, which went down and stood over carrion, The father-in-law of Dalle wept.

Summary

A builder tried to build a bridge in Zakho, but the structure continued collapsing. One day, he heard a voice saying that in order for the bridge to stand, he must sacrifice a member of his own family. He considered his three daughters-in-law (and apparently no other family member), eventually picking the one who was called Dalale. He reasoned that since she was a foreigner, his reputation in the community would suffer the least damage. When Dalale approached the bridge unsuspecting, he killed her and put her inside the construction. The bridge was completed successfully. The story ends with a sung ballad which laments poor Dalale and curses the murderous builder.

¹ The idiolect of this speaker differs in (at least) one feature from that of the other Christian Aramaic speaker from Duhok. Here, M. P. Nagara realises the transitive perfective past preverb qam-, the other speaker gəm- (see e.g. ChA. Duhok, A Man and A Lion, 13 & 15).

- (1) My name is Madelene, the daughter of Pattu Nagara. I am Pattu Nagara. My father's name is, I mean, Pattu Hurmez. I am 84 years old. I'll now tell all these things. Listen to them all of you.
- (2) The one who pulled Dalale, he wanted to connect the two ends of the bridge-arch but they would not connect. Then he heard a voice. He had three sons and three daughters-in-law. 'What shall I do?' he said. Whatever [material] he puts [to connect the two ends of the bridge], it falls down.
- (3) Then he heard a voice telling him, 'You must put a member of your family into the bridge otherwise it will not be possible to connect [the two ends of the arch], I mean it will not succeed, it will not stand.' He started to think, 'Who shall I put [into it]?
- (4) 'If I put [into it] my daughter-in-law Hane,

- (7) If I put [into it] my daughter-in-law Hane,

- (11) She had a [baby] son, yes, she had a son and the son ... The daughter-in-law began making bread. Dalale prepared the dough to make bread. She was making bread. As she was making bread, she saw that her son started crying. She covered the dough. Her son cried. She went, she went to breastfeed him. As she was breastfeeding him, her father-in-law called her.
- (12) 'Dalle, Dalle,' he said. 'What is it?' she said. She could not disobey him. 'What do you want, father?' she said. 'Come, I am going to the bridge—of Dalale.' She did not understand the matter. She got up and followed him, whatever he said to her. In the past, people were obedient, not like now.
- (13) So he got up and went as well, they went. He had a dog, if you excuse me, a big, wise dog. The three set off and the dog went ahead of them. Her father-in-law laughed. She asked 'Why did you laugh?' He said, 'Why is the dog going ahead of us? You should go first.'
- (14) She took the lead. She had no idea. When she arrived at the bridge of Dalale, her father-in-law upped and killed her, then seized her. When he had seized her... Earlier, he had prepared a place like a chamber, a chamber for her. He had prepared the chamber for anyone who... I mean, who would finish the bridge of Dalale, I mean, who would cover it, I mean would close it.
- (15) So, he seized Dalale and put her there, she was placed there. Thus he completed [the bridge] and put a window inside it. He left her there [in the window] and thus completed his building. What did he do for Dalale? He would bring her bread and water every day. They say:

- (16) 'Dalle₌w Dălàle²

² Paragraphs 16-22 are a sung ballad.

³ šar=u šapàle is a phrase borrowed from Kurdish, most likely directly from the Kurdish version of this ballad. Its meaning is not entirely clear. In the context, it is best taken as an expression of pity for Dalale, or perhaps her bravery. Ergin Öpengin (personal communication) has suggested that šar is related to Northern Kurdish šur/šir 'exhausted, pale', while šapàle is related to the verb šapilyan 'to get confused'. The (resultative) adjective špila 'lazy, tired' used in ChA. Duhok is probably from the same Kurdish verb.

- (16) Dalle, Dalale,
- (17) How miserable (brave?) you are.
- (18) You have left behind your children's cradle.
- (19) Your half-fed baby
- (20) and your half-baked dough.
- (21) Dalle, Dalle, was captured by her father-in-law. My father-in-law is a black dog.
- (22) May the sun not rise over him.
- (23) Dalle was captured by her father-in-law.
- (24) He put her there, in the Bridge of Dalale. So the Bridge of Dalale was completed. Dalale became... she died and her story ended. Yes.

Summary

A builder called Toma was commissioned to construct a bridge in Samana. After he had completed it successfully, the local ruler cut off his right hand, so that the builder could not repeat such a project for another city. The builder took revenge by causing it to collapse. Toma fled the city and arrived in Zakho, where he was commissioned again to build a bridge. He could not, however, prevent the bridge from collapsing. In a night vision, he was told by an angel that he must put a 'living soul' into the bridge. In the morning, Toma's daughter-in-law, Dalale, reached the bridge first, so she was the one to be sacrificed. Dalale agreed to be put in the bridge to save Toma and his family. After this, the bridge was completed successfully. Dalale was put in the bridge alive, but died there after some days.

- (3) So, there was water, a river between him and—perhaps—Europe or Asia. So, he wanted to build a bridge, a connection. A bridge so that [they could] reach each other, something that creates passage, [so that] he could take across his merchandise, perhaps take across spices, agricultural produce, industrial products, merchandise or whatever, because he was a prince. [Those who] are princes and kings always want their trade to work according to schedule.
- (4) So, the prince of the region, the Samana region... Of course, if we look at the name Samana, there certainly is not anything like that. There is, however, a family who lived in the Harbole region called the Samanu family, not Samana, Samanu. So this person [perhaps] came from this region.
- (5) Their prince made a request [saying], 'I want to build a bridge.' So, at that time, he collected... Of course, there were not engineers back then. But there were what we called craftsmen. Those who work with such things were called craftsmen. One of those came and said, 'I want to build you such a bridge.'
- (6) What was the name of that craftsman? His name was Toma. Some people said that his name was not Toma. His name was Abbas. The reason? They said it was because at the time every Toma had the synonym Abbas, the same way as we say Muḥammad is called Abu Jasim. Aḥmad is called Abu Shab.

¹ As this paragraph makes apparent, the two indicative (i.e. realis) preverbal particles k- and y- co-exist in this dialect. Cf. y-amrile 'they call him' in the previous sentence and k-amri 'they say' in this one.

- (7) That's to say that everybody has his own associated name. So, Toma's associated name was Abbas, and therefore some also call it the Abbasi Bridge. Some others say, 'No. This bridge was built by a Syriac-Christian architect called Toma. Is it true? Whether it is a myth or reality, this is how the story is told.
- (8) So, the prince said to Toma, 'Build the bridge. See how much money, gold and such you would like. Most importantly, I want you to build the bridge for the transportation of my goods from one town to another.'
- (9) So, Toma began building the bridge. He made it with seven arches, with seven arches he built it. He made seven arches. Of course, there is nothing that says he built it in a day, a year or ten years. We do not know how much time. The most significant thing is that he built the bridge because the bridge [had] seven arches.
- (10) What is the meaning of seven arches? It is because the river was large because [those] seven arches have to carry [the trade for an entire] region, that is for that region. It is possible that the area of the river was larger than Khabur, our own river now in Zakho. It is possible that it was as large as the Tigris. Well, he built the bridge. He finished the bridge, the first of a kind in history, in their time. In their time, in that period.
- (11) So, what about our prince today? When the bridge was finished, he was very happy, because he had done something which history would talk about. [Someone] will say, 'This bridge was built in the time of prince so-and-so.'

- (12) 'okey, 'ónnuhu b-zale=w ati=w šula palxi b-rəš jòsr, fa mà wədle 'ămir? ḥatta 'ónnuhu 'awədwa xa hădiya rabta ṭa 'awwa mu-hàndəs, Tòma, mkarèmwale, mà wədle biyu?

- (12) So then people were coming and going, working on the bridge. What did the prince do? Instead of giving this architect Toma a huge gift in order to honour him, what did he do?
- (13) He summoned him to his side and cut off his right hand. They said, 'Why would you cut off his right hand?' He said, 'So that he does not make the same bridge as this one. He has made only this bridge that he built for me. This one will remain so that my name will remain throughout history, that [people might say that] this bridge was built at the time of prince so-and-so.
- (14) So, craftsman Toma, or, shall we say 'architect', we shall not say 'architect'. He was called a craftsman, builder Toma, he was greatly upset. His hand was cut off. He was one of the craftsmen, the builders of that region, he was one of their own. He was very upset.
- (15) He told his family, he said 'I made this for the prince and he rewarded me by cutting off my hand. Well then, I no longer have a place in this region. I must emigrate, move away.'
- (16) The prince heard that Toma would move out of the town. He said, 'Summon Toma for me.' He went to him. He said to him, 'You are going anyway, and you have built a bridge for me. But what? What would you do for the bridge, that the bridge would last throughout time?'
- (17) Toma was very clever. He said to him, 'Get seven of—what we call—waterskins. They are called qurrād in Arabic. The skins of rams, black rams. Fill them with the milk of black rams. By rams I mean sheep, not goats. Seven hides of black rams. Pour them on the bridge. Your bridge will last forever. It will never fall down.'

- (18) This one said, 'Okey, no problem.' The next day, or the day after, Toma took his family, children and belongings and migrated from Turkey. He came to Zakho.
- (19) And what did the prince do? What did the prince do? He said, 'I shall carry out the instruction that Toma gave me. I shall carry it out.' What did he do? He brought seven skins of milk of black sheep, black rams. He poured them onto the bridge at night.
- (20) The next day, he woke up. The bridge had all fallen down because [the milk] had caused a chemical reaction. As if this milk was poured on something, plaster, soil, whatever it was at the time. The bridge, all of the bridge, had fallen down! He said after the bridge had fallen down. Of course, now we see what Toma accomplished after all.
- (21) Meanwhile, Toma left the town of Samana. In a day or two, a week or so, he arrived in Zakho. When he arrived in Zakho, the prince of the region of Bahdinan, who would [later] be in Amedia, was in Zakho at that time.
- (22) He heard that a craftsman had arrived. This craftsman is a good one. He has built such a bridge. A great bridge in the region called so-and-so, and so on. What did the prince of Zakho say?
- (23) He said, 'The best thing is that this man builds a bridge for us inside the town of Zakho, because there was no connection between the two sides, that is, a land [connection]. So he will build a passage for us,' let's call [it] a 'bridge'.

- (24) So, he summoned Toma. He said to him, 'Come, Toma. I want you to build me such a thing.' He said to him, 'Fine.' So, Toma began constructing. Our forefathers have said that Toma began constructing the bridge. Our ancestors said that he began building the bridge. We do not know for how long he was building—a day, a week, a month, a year or so. He built the bridge in three attempts.
- (25) In the end, he got to the last arch. He made Dalale Bridge with five arches, not seven, [though] Samana bridge he had built with seven. But he built this one with five arches, he made five [arches] for the bridge. He constructed Dalale Bridge inside Zakho. It is said that Toma reached the point of connecting the bridge three times, but [every time] the bridge fell down.
- (26) Someone of [the entourage of] the prince of Zakho had given [a warning] that he, [that is,] the prince of Bahdinan would kill him if he does not build the bridge. He said, 'That one had cut off my hand; and this one will cut off my head, But what shall I do?'
- (27) During the night, he pleaded with God and prayed. He said, 'Oh, God, I ask you for some solution, what I should do? I am with one hand, I am working with my left hand.'
- (28) [Toma was] with the workers and even slept there. That is, he was near his construction site to watch over his building [to protect against] thieves and passers-by, to look after his work. That was also because—it was said—Toma was very devoted to his work. On the third day, [the bridge] collapsed. What could he do now?

An angel came and said to him, 'Toma, if this bridge is to stand and remain, you must put a living soul inside it, either of a human being or an animal. But the important thing is that you put a living soul inside it while still living so that the bridge will stand firm.' So, Toma prayed and slept.
- (30) He rose in the morning. He said, 'Oh, God.' In the morning... He had a daughter-in-law. Some of the stories, that is, the versions that they used to tell, say that it was his daughter. Some say she was his daughter-in-law. Each one used to say something different, it depends. I have heard that she was his daughter-in-law. Her name was Dalle, not Dalale. Her name was Dalle.
- (31) Dalle, daughter-in-law of our uncle Toma, the builder of the bridge, brought him breakfast daily in the morning, that is, breakfast, for her father-in-law. And they had with them... he had a dog at home, excuse me. A dog, and it was black. It was black. She would bring it along with her and go back. Maybe even the whole way. The dog would come with her. It got used to Dalale, or shall we say, Dalle.
- (32) He saw in the morning... At that time, at that time, Zakho was always called, I mean, the bridge was called the Great Passage, the Great Bridge, the Great Bridge. Why did they say [that]?
- (33) [Because]—they say—when you enter Zakho, the Dalale Bridge is visible, as this bridge is high while the territory of Zakho is flat. Because Zakho is famous for the Sendi Plain. The Sendi Plain and Zakho are flat. So, from wherever [people] leave [the city] and look, they have to see the Dalale Bridge.

- (34) Our uncle Toma sat down in front of the bridge, searching to see... Now, his daughter-in-law would come to bring him breakfast. He saw his daughter-in-law come carrying food, the dog with her. The story says that when Dalale was ahead of the dog, that is, close [to the bridge], he would weep and say 'Oh, my God, may it not be my daughter-in-law, because I shall have to put her inside the bridge.'
- (35) And when the dog would pass [in front of her], he would be happy and say, 'Good, it is the dog, and not my daughter-in-law, I shall put the dog inside the bridge.' The story says that before they arrived at the bridge, the dog saw a bone or something, which distracted it. Dalale passed [the dog] and reached her father-in-law.
- (36) He said to her, 'My daughter, what shall I say to you? I have pleaded with the Lord and with my God and I have to put the first living soul that reaches me into the bridge. You [i.e. your memory] will remain forever and your name will always remain. But I have to place in it a living soul, one soul, for this bridge to stand and to remain standing.
- (37) So, if it pleases you, sacrifice yourself now for your people and for me because the prince will kill me, and for me and for our family. So, either I put you in the bridge or the prince will kill me. What do you say?' She said, 'No, I must be in your stead.'
- (38) So he took his daughter-in-law and put her at the end of the bridge. It is true. He made a window for her, got her face out and a place for the hands of the girl, Dalal, [sticking] out of the bridge. Thus he connected the bridge. The girl remained in the bridge. He connected the bridge. He completed our bridge.

- (39) People would come, bring food and lower it down to her. Dalle would take the food and eat. Of course, after a week, two or three, the girl died, because she had been put inside the bridge. Thus, our girl died inside the bridge.
- (40) That is how Dalale Bridge remained [standing] and was named the Dalle and Dalale Bridge. That is why you see that in the town of Zakho, the majority of the girls, [whether of] Muslims, Christians, Yezidis or Jews, have the name Dalal. They are proud of Dalal who sacrificed herself for her people. Up till now, this bridge exists.
- (41) Certainly, wherever we are, [people] say, 'Where are you from?' We say, 'From Zakho.' They say, Oh, you have the Dalale Bridge.' That is because Zakho is well-known for the Dalale Bridge, which is a historical legend, a historical symbol for, let's say, Zakho's architecture. The Dalale Bridge [still] stands.
- (42) This is our story, the one we have heard now, the way I heard it from my grandfather. There are other, different sources. There are some other people who tell it in a different way.
- (43) But this is how I heard it. Long live everyone who listened, long live everyone who did not listen, too. Thank you.

11. THE BRIDGE OF DALAL

Summary

A builder was commissioned to build a bridge in Cizre Bohtan. The emir cut off his right hand lest he build a similar bridge elsewhere. To take revenge against the emir, the builder fled to Zakho and accepted to build a bridge there. The arch of the bridge kept collapsing. A fortune-teller advised the builder to sacrifice the first 'living soul' who would come onto the bridge the next day and put it inside the bridge in order for the arch to hold together. The next morning, the builder's daughter-in-law, Dalal, brought the workers food. She came with a dog. The dog was distracted by a mouse at the edge of the bridge. Dalal was the first to stand on the bridge. She was put into the bridge alive and the arch was completed successfully. The next day, her husband tried to take her out of the bridge. Dalal made him stop, saying that she would be happy to be a sacrifice for Zakho.

- (2) Now, I will talk about the myth of 'the bridge of Dalal'. I have written¹ five, six books on Zakho, in Kurdish and in Arabic, on its heritage, myths, history, and general information.
- (3) The myth of the bridge of Dalal—why is it (i.e., the bridge) called the bridge of Dalal? The old inhabitants² of Zakho, the ones who built Zakho, were Jewish. This myth belongs to the Jews.
- (4) We have heard it [the myth] from the Jews. We have heard it from our parents in the manner I am going to tell you about.
- (5) It is said that another bridge like this (i.e. the bridge of Dalal) had been built in Cizre Bohtan, called the bridge of Bafit.
- (6) When the construction of the bridge was finished, the emir of Cizre Bohtan summoned the builder³ [and] said, 'I will give you a gift.'⁴
- (7) [The emir] cut off his right hand [and] said to him, 'Lest you make another bridge [like] this anywhere else! I [take] pride in this bridge.'

 2 The speaker uses the word $\bar{a}k\partial nj\bar{i}$, which is apparently a modified form of Turkish word ekinci 'sower'.

THEME III ANIMALS AND HUMANS

12. A 'PIOUS' FOX

Summary

There was a cunning fox called Mām Telona 'Uncle Fox'. One year there was famine in the land and many of the animals died. As a result the fox could not find animals to prey on and he went hungry. He grew his beard and sought atonement from God by praying with a rosary and setting off on holy pilgrimage. He met a rooster, who at first did not believe his sincerity, but subsequently joined him on the pilgrimage. They met a sparrow, who did not trust the fox, but eventually joined them. They spent the night in a house and the fox said that he needed to rest and that he would eat anybody who made a sound. At dawn the rooster crowed and the fox seized him. The sparrow, however, escaped.

- (1) My name is Seran Adday Sher. My mother's name is Hane Awdo Surino. I was born in Shaqlawa in 1965. I have a story to tell about Uncle Fox.
- (2) Once upon a time there was an Uncle Fox (mām telona). This Uncle Fox, as we all know, is scheming and mischievous. He makes tricks on small animals in order to eat them, he gets people into problems so that he may gain.
- (3) In one year there was famine in the area. There was famine and animals died of hunger. There was no food. Therefore, Uncle Fox became very hungry. He searched for food but could not find it. I mean the ones¹ that used to be around had left. He ate some of them and left.
- (4) What should he do? Months passed by. Two or three months went by and Uncle Fox became very thin. Only skin and bones remained on him. He said 'I shall go and see what there is in this orchard.'
- (5) It was nearly autumn and there was nothing. There was no food. We know when it is autumn, there are no fruits and all animals enter into their holes, as we approach winter.
- (6) He went off and found a bunch of grapes hanging (from a tree). Twice he thrust his hands towards it, he thrust them towards it thus, but could not reach it.

- (7) He said 'Oh bunch of grapes, it is clear that you are very sour. If you were not sour, I would have eaten you.' What should he do? In his stomach he felt pangs of hunger.² He said:
- (8) (Song in Kurdish)[Living in] the world does not require that much[in the way that] thousands get trapped in it.The world comes and goes.It is better for me to turn to God
- (9) He said this. People say this as a proverb when someone becomes depressed about life, so that they repent and ask for atonement and return to God's path. Enough with what he has done in the past days, he leaves them (i.e. the bad deeds) all and takes the path of God.
- (10) So, he (Uncle Fox) let his beard grow long. He put a rosary around his neck. He started moving up and down and spinning his head, and uttering the sounds hayhut hayhut like those made by Sunni clerics on their way to the pilgrimage.
- (11) He began moving his head this way, moving it that way. He held a tambourine in his hands. People gazed and were astonished. 'Is it really Uncle Fox?!' What could it be?!
- (12) The rooster could not contain himself. He said, 'What have you done to yourself, Uncle Fox?'

² Lit. His stomach was seizing him due to hunger.

³ Lit. Is it Uncle Fox, is it not Uncle Fox?

- (13) He said, 'Don't you know?' He said 'It is over for me. I am now leading a life of repentance and atonement. I shall not eat anybody, nor shall I play tricks and cunning pranks on anyone.
- (14) From now on, I am preparing myself (to seek) repentance and atonement. I shall go on pilgrimage. Can't you see how I have grown my beard, and [I have] this rosary?'
- (15) He wound the rosary around his hand, walking up and down, and turning the rosary saying, 'O God, O God.'
- (16) He said, 'But I don't believe you.' 'Well,' he (the fox) said 'it is up to you to believe or not to believe.' He said 'I'm telling you the truth.⁵ Don't you see this beard? Otherwise, why would I grow this beard. Why would I have this rosary in my hands?'
- (17) He (the rooster) said, 'To be honest', he said, 'Uncle Fox, I do not believe what you are saying, but any way, let's go down your way.' It is said 'Go down the road of the liar until we see where he will lead you.' So it is said.
- (18) The rooster went one step forwards and one step backwards (i.e. he was hesitant). What could he do, since he did not trust him. Eventually the rooster⁶ said, 'Let's go and see where you will lead us.'
- (19) They went along for a little. A sparrow saw them. She said, 'Come (and see) Uncle Fox and a rooster!' She said 'Since when have you become friends? Where are you going?'

- (21) He (the rooster) said, 'Believe me, Uncle Fox is performing repentance and penitence. He is going on the pilgrimage and I am going with him.' She (the sparrow) said, 'So you are telling me that you yourself have listened to Uncle Fox and are going with him!?'
- (22) He (the rooster) said, 'No, no. Don't you see his beard. He has grown his beard. It stands to reason that he would not have grown his beard for nothing. Can't you see the rosary in his hands? See how he is beating the tambourine! He is buying the road to heaven for us.'
- (23) She said, 'What?! Do you believe what he says?' 'Believe me' he (the rooster) said, 'I am going on the road with him. Why don't you come with us now?' She said 'No, I shall not come with you.'
- (24) He said, 'Go away! For sure, you are not better than me.' She said, 'I shall only fly. I shall not walk with you on the ground.' He said 'As you please.'
- (25) They went on and on. They kept walking. He (the rooster) said, 'Have we not arrived at the [place of] pilgrmage yet?' 'Look man,' he said, '[the place] of pilgrimage is not here nearby, with respect.⁷ The [place of] pilgrimage is a long way away. Do you think you will reach it at once?'

We shall spend the night there. Then in the morning, early in the morning, we shall set off.' He (the rooster) said, 'All right.'
- (27) They entered the house. He (the fox) said, 'Let each one have his own place, let each one find a place for himself and sleep sleep there, whatever places are available. But' he said 'I have a condition.' The rooster said, 'What is this condition! Do you still make conditions on us?'
- (28) He (the fox) said 'No, my condition is this. I am tired, don't you know? I have been on my feet since the morning. So, I need to rest. It is not allowed for anyone to disturb me with any noise, so that I may be able to walk in the morning, because it is I who is showing the way for you.
- (29) You do not know the way, do you? I know the way very well and therefore; I need to be alert and sleep very well.' They said 'All right, but what is your condition?' He said 'We shall eat anyone who makes a noise.'
- (30) The sparrow looked at the rooster. She said, 'Are you happy with this agreement? But who is going to make noise?' (The rooster said,) 'So, we have agreed to it'. He did not know then that it was he who would rise early in the morning. 'Yes' he said, 'That is all right.'

- (32) Dawn began to break.¹⁰ Of course, we know the habit of a rooster. As soon as day begins to break,¹¹ it makes a noise, it crows. He started to crow once, twice, three times.
- (33) Dawn had broken and the rooster started to crow. Uncle Fox was waiting for him to crow. He was not asleep (but awaited) the opportunity to seize him and eat him.
- (34) He (the fox) looked at him and said, 'Rooster, what is this?! What have we agreed on?' He said 'But don't you know that I rise early in the morning and crow and that I cannot help it?'¹²
- (35) So, he seized him. The sparrow cried, 'Chirp chirp. Didn't you say you have started a life of repentance and penitence?' He (the fox) said 'What was our agreement? Did we not say that nobody should make a noise?'
- (36) He stretched a hand towards the sparrow. The sparrow said, 'What community do you belong to? Did not we said we are going on pilgrimage and the like?'

13. A 'PIOUS' FOX

Summary

A cunning fox was starving and went into a village full of chickens pretending to be a pious Muslim. He told the rooster deceptively that the Islamic era had begun and no injustice remained in the world, so he was on pilgrimage to Mecca. The rooster fell for his deception and decided to accompany the fox on his pilgrimage to Mecca. Later, the dove joined them as well.

In the evening, the fox took both of them to his den to rest. He deceived them into a deal: anyone who would make a noise during the night would be eaten. Using this trick, the fox killed the rooster and ate it.

When daylight came, the dove also started to make a noise. The fox was about to eat her too, but the dove asked him about his religion. If he told her what his religion was, she would let him eat her. As soon as the fox opened his mouth and answered he was a follower of Muhammad, the dove flew away. The fox said, 'I wish I had said I believed in Christianity; I would have eaten her by now!'

- (1) Well, my name is Hawsar Najat Bapir Rahman Surchi. I am from Shaqlawa. My mother is called Jamila. I was born on 2 December, 1988.
- (2) This time the story I am going to tell concerns [a] fox, [a] rooster, and [a] dove. It is said that there was and there was not, [but] once there was no one greater than God. There was a very, very cunning and crafty fox.
- (3) There was and there was not, [but] there was no one greater than God. There was a very cunning and crafty fox. Once, the fox wanted to relieve himself from the bad state (i.e. hunger) that he was in. He devised a scheme¹ [and] set off to a village.
- (4) He observed that many chickens and hens were busy roosting² [and] eating seeds. The rooster was crowing among them. The fox thought,³ '[What a chance] God has granted [me]!' [It is] said [that] he approached them. The hens ran away. They fled.
- (5) [It is] told [that] the rooster kept his distance from him. He (the fox) said, 'Brother! Why are you keeping your distance from me? Don't you know that we're currently in the Islamic era?⁴ No injustice is left. Justice has spread all over the world. I have become pious and have repented, ⁵ I want to go on pilgrimage [to Mecca].'

- (7) They saw that a dove was in the tree. He was cooing. He saw that the fox and rooster were together. He thought,⁶ 'What a surprise! Does it make sense for the fox and rooster to be together? The world has gone wrong.' The dove pondered over this. He looked at the rooster [and] said, 'Hey rooster! What's up?⁷ [You are] with the fox!'
- (8) He said, 'Dear brother! How come? Haven't you heard? Now we're in the Islamic era. There is no more injustice and tyranny. We have repented. Even the fox has repented. [And] now, we intend to set off on pilgrimage [to Mecca].' The dove said, 'That's a good idea. I too will come with you on pilgrimage.'
- (9) [It was] said that they set off. The cunning fox was leading them, exhibiting piousness at his best! As if he had never ever committed any sins! They had set off on pilgrimage. The fox tricked them both and took them to his den, the fox's den. He shut the door on them.

- (11) They said, 'Go ahead Mr. Fox, you tell us! You're the leader.' The fox said, 'Anyone who makes a noise and disrupts our sleep¹⁰ shall be eaten!' The rooster [and dove] said, 'We are all in agreement. As long as we live in a period of justice in which tyranny has no place, none of us is going to eat someone else.'
- (12) They fell for the fox's story.¹¹ [It is] said [that] the early morning before sunrise came. The rooster could not control himself and crowed a lot. It is said that the fox said, 'Didn't we make a deal that you wouldn't make any noise nor wake us up [since] we've got a long way ahead of us?'
- (13) [The fox continued,] 'Now that this is the situation, it's time [for us] to perform the rule that we established.' They killed the rooster and he (i.e. the fox) ate its meat. When the sun rose, the dove started cooing and making noise. The fox attempted to eat the dove too by any means [possible].

- (15) He said, 'Why are you asking [this question]?' She said, 'I just want to know. Then you [can] eat me.' He said, 'I am a follower of the prophet Muhammad's tribe.' As the fox opened his mouth, the dove flew away. The fox said, 'I wish I had said that I was a Christian, and a follower of the Jardzəsī tribe.¹² Then I would have eaten the dove.'

It is finished. As for me, I came back [from the events of the tale] and nothing was allocated to me [by the characters in the tale].

14. A MAN AND A LION

Summary

A poor man felt desperate, unable to feed his children. He decided to bring some wood from the forest to try to make some money. He knew that this was dangerous because the mountain was ruled by a lion. In the forest, he met the lion and was able to strike a deal with him: he was to bring him food and in return, the lion would let him take wood back with him. After some time, the man invited the lion for dinner to express his gratitude to him. He, however, also asked his wife to serve him separately from the lion. The lion took offence. The next day, the lion was angry and told the man to strike him with his axe on his head. Some days later the lion showed him that the wound on his head had healed. He, however, still felt scarred by the man's proud words and devoured the man as a punishment. The moral of the tale is that 'the impact of a sword heals, but that of words does not.'

- (1) I am Yawsep Elisha Ishaq, from Duhok. My mother is from Mar Yaqo, her name is Miryam Toma Jubrail. I would like to tell you [something], it is a tale, about a lion and a man.
- (2) There was a lion who controlled a mountain. He did not allow any humans to enter the mountain to cut wood or to do anything [else]. If someone went there, he would come down on them and eat them. He did not allow anyone to go there.
- (3) There was a poor man. He had to go get wood to sell it in order to make a living. He was not able to see [his] little child dying of hunger in front of him, having nothing to feed them.
- (4) 'I shall sacrifice [myself] by going to the mountain where the lion is and he will eat me. I shall be spared [the burden of] this life. It is better than seeing [my] little children dying of hunger.'
- (5) So he took his donkey and his equipment, his ropes, and went to get wood before going back. Whether or not [the lion] would come, he would find relief. Believe me, he went and climbed the mountain, got out his chopper and his axe to cut wood. He started cutting, crack, crack, and a wolf... I mean lion heard the sound and came to him.
- (6) 'Hey, human, have you not heard of me? How dare you come here to cut whatever you like and so on? Have you not heard that this mountain is mine?' He said, 'Indeed, I have heard and that is why I have come up here.' 'What do you mean that this is the reason you have come?'

- (7) He said, 'Believe me, I thought [that if] you eat me, at least I shall not see my little children dying of hunger in front of my eyes. Even if you eat me, it is better than seeing them. I would die in front of my little children if they were to die of hunger with me seeing them. Now, I am at your mercy, I am under your protection. If you want, I am yours, [but] even if you want to, I have come out of the need to feed my children.'
- (8) He said, 'If that is the case, then it is good for me and good for you.' 'How?' He said, 'You will cut wood and take it [to town], and I shall give you your living. You will go come to me and when you come here, you will bring me food so that I too can eat.' 'Yes,' he says, 'that is very good.'
- (9) He goes to cut wood every day, makes a bundle of this thing, a load of wood, and carries [it]. He brings wood while no one else does, so he sells the wood at a high price. You know, taking advantage of the market. Believe me, he comes every day, transports and sells wood, people can see this. Others do not dare go [to the mountain].
- (10) One day... of course, when he brought food, they would eat together. He and the lion ate together there. So the poor man's food was also on his expense. Yes, the lion gave to him [saying], 'For you and for me.' One day, he realized what a tremendous favour the lion was doing to him.
- (11) He said, 'Brother, come over one day to our home, honour us [in this way]. I would like to invite you to our home, eat with us.' He said, 'Fine, I shall come.' Whom does a lion fear? He fears no one.

- (12) Believe me, they did so, they went and arrived at [the man's] home. He said to his wife, 'Woman, when you serve food for the lion, serve him separately from me.' He said, 'because when his drool runs down, it goes drips on the food. I lose my appetite.' So, she went and came back, brought food. She served the lion separately and [the man] separately. They started eating.
- (13) The lion ate his food up and came back to the mountain. Next day, the poor man went [to the mountain]. He [the lion] said, 'Hey, poor man, you ate with me here everyday. Did my drool never run down into food? When I went to your home and you invited me, you served me separately and yourself separately.
- (14) You find my [drool] revolting? Is this [how you pay back] my favour? When you used to eat with me at my expense, [then] my drool was not dripping on the food. When I came over to your home and my drool ran down into the food, you became proud.'
- (15) He said to him, 'Listen to what I say. Bring your axe and hit me with it on the head.' 'What do you mean I should I hit you with it on the head?!' 'If you do not hit me with it on the head, I shall devour you right now. You must hit me with it on the head.' He hit him on his head and the lion went away to his own [place]. The poor man came, cut the wood and went back home.
- (16) The poor man went [to] another [place] while the lion had nothing to do with him, until one day, the lion's head recovered. His head recovered. He came and saw—the poor man had come to the mountain, cutting wood. He got to where the poor man was. He said, 'Hello, poor man! Welcome, how are you?' I mean, he welcomed him.

- (18) He said, 'Look, poor man, my head has recovered. But [the impact of] your words [when] you said that my drool was dripping into the food has not yet recovered. Since my head had recovered and [the wound] of your word has not recovered, it is my full right to devour you.' He devoured him immediately.
- (19) Therefore, the impact of a sword heals, but the impact of words does not heal. Words can be very evil, yes.

Summary

A poor man used to go into the wild to cut wood. He would play his flute (zurna) and a snake would appear and dance for him. In the end, the snake would always give the man two coins from its hidden treasure. After some time, the man became greedy and decided to kill the snake in order to get all of its money at once. He tried to kill the snake with a rock, but could not. Instead, the snake attacked the man, killing him on the spot with his venom as a punishment for his betrayal.

- (1) I am Yawsep Elisha Ishaq, from Duhok. My mother is from Mar Yaqo, her name is Miryam Toma Jubrail. I have a tale to tell to you, about trust between a man and a snake.
- (2) They say that one day, a poor man went to cut wood. After he had finished, he would sit on top of his load of wood, would take his flute out, his zurna, and play.
- (3) A snake would come out and would dance for him. He would dance for him until he finished playing the flute. [The snake would then] go into its hole, get two coins for him, for the man with the flute, the poor man.
- (4) Many days passed. [The poor man] would go every day, it became his job. He would come and, after finishing his woodcutting, he would come, sit on top of his wood and play the flute. The snake would come out and dance for him. After finishing, the snake would go in, bring two coins out and give them to [the man].
- (5) One day, that poor man thought, 'No, [this is what] I shall do. The snake brings me [only] two coins every day. This is not right. I shall take the entire treasure! I... why should he give me two coins every day? As soon as I kill him, it is all mine.'
- (6) So that man went and got ready. He prepared a flat rock for himself and put his bundle on, yes. After [the snake] finished dancing, he went to get the coins. The man seized the rock and hit him with it. He hit him with it, but did not kill him. Immediately, the snake went and bit [the man]. He bit him and the man fell dead on the spot.

(7) In the end, see what man's greed is like. This is to say, he gives you two coins every day and [even] lets you take some wood. Indeed, [this is] greed: he wanted to take the whole treasure. That is, it is their own greed that kills [people], as they say. This is the tale of the man and the snake.

16. A MAN AND A WOLF

Summary

There was a poor man who tried to make his living by cutting wood and selling it in the market. One day, he met a wolf in the forest. When the wolf learnt about the man's hardship, he promised to give him a golden coin to bolster his income each time the man came to cut wood. The man was very happy. After some time, the man invited the wolf to dinner to express his gratitude to him. After the feast, the wolf overheard the man's wife saying that she detested the smell of his mouth. The wolf took offence. The next day, the wolf commanded the man to strike him with his axe on his head and told him to come back in forty days. When the man returned, the wolf showed him that the wound on his head had healed. He still, however, felt scarred by the what the words of the man's wife.He said 'a wound caused by a blow man may forget, but a wound caused by words is never forgotten.' He told the man never to return to the forest.

- (1) There was a household which used to live on... whose father used to make his living by woodcutting. He used to go to the mountain and cut wood. He would bring it and place it on his donkey.
- (2) He would bind it in a bundle. He would put it [as] a bundle on his donkey's back. He would take it to the market and sell them. Then, he would come back home and bring food for his children. When he came, they would eat and live on this, on the money from the selling of wood.
- (3) One day he went to the mountain to cut trees and he saw a wolf. This wolf said to him, 'Why have you come?' He said, 'I want to... I make my living by woodcutting. I sell it in the market and provide for my children. In this way I make my living.'
- (4) He replied, 'Every day, I will give you one golden coin. Go and spend it on your children.' He said, 'It is God's favour, God's favour!' They said it in Kurmanji.
- (5) He took his golden coin from the wolf and came to the market, and bought food for himself, and clothes for his children. He was pleased and told his wife, 'I met a friend on the mountain, but he is a wolf.
- (6) "Every day"— [the wolf] said—"I will give you one golden coin." He has given me today a golden coin.' So every day, [the man] goes to the mountain, cuts wood and the wolf comes and gives him a coin.
- (7) One month went by, then two, three, one year. His wife said, 'Indeed, what a kind man! He is good. I want to make some dishes for him, I shall treat him, we shall invite him for a feast at our house. We shall prepare good food for him, he will enjoy himself at our house, and we will feast together.'

- (9) So he went and told [the wolf], but he replied, 'I cannot come. I am a wolf. I eat people. If I come to town, everyone will be alarmed.'
- (10) So the man went and told his wife'This is what the wolf said.' So she said, 'Let him come at night, [in] darkness.' At that time, there were no lights. There were not, for instance, lamps. There was no electricity. It was dark. When it got dark, the whole city would be dark.¹
- (11) She said, 'Let him come after it gets dark. Our house is on the outskirts of the town. He will come straight to our house and go back. No one will see him.' So he told the wolf, 'My wife will make a great banquet for you.' He replied to him, 'I shall come.' He said, 'I shall come.' The wolf said, 'Well then, I shall come.'
- (12) He came, his wife offered him hospitality and made a feast for him. He spent the evening at their home. He ate, drank and they chatted. It got late, [so] he says, 'I shall go [back] to the mountain.' He got up... the father of the house also went and showed him the way, and he (the wolf) went out.
- (13) [While] that one (the man) entered, the wolf waited at the door. The wolf waited at the door to hear what they were going to say after he had left. His wife says, 'Indeed, a good, good friend you have. A good friend he is, that wolf.'

⁵ This two-part proverb occurs also in the Christian Aramaic version of the story, likewise from Duhok (A Man and a Lion, 19).

 $^{^6}$ Compare with $dre\ b\bar{a}l$ in other (Christian) varieties. Here, the imperative dər appears in its original Arabic form, unadapted morphologically.

- (24) A wound [caused by] words is not forgotten.
- (25) A wound [caused by] a blow a man [does] forget.
- (26) [But] a wound [caused by] words—a man does not forget it until [the day of his] death.
- (27) A man should know how to speak. Be careful not to enter the mountain from today onwards.'

17. A WOMAN AND A LEOPARD

Summary

A couple was living in a remote mountainous area. The husband divorced his wife and asked her to leave the house. The woman set off to her parents' house, the way to which was through a dangerous wild forest. On the way, she came across a leopard, which on hearing her story, accompanied her all the way to her parents' house. The woman told her parents that a gentleman protected her against wild animals. She then talked badly of his odour and said that his mouth had a terrible smell.

The leopard overheard these words and felt heartbroken. A few weeks later, the woman went into the wild forest to collect some firewood. She came across the leopard again. The leopard asked her to stab him in the shoulders with her dagger. The woman did accordingly and returned home. A few weeks later, the woman went back to the wild forest and met the leopard again. After greeting her, the leopard wept aloud and said, 'The trace of grief caused by daggers will go away, but the grief caused by words will not go away!'

It is full of bears; it is full of wolves, leopards, and carnivorous animals, the ones which attack [humans]! What am I supposed to do? How can I manage?'
- (6) The woman slowly climbed down [the mountain] until it was dark.⁷ She felt scared. She was very tired. She was very hungry. She said to herself, 'I shall go off the path next to this tree. I shall eat some food. And then I set off to go home.'
- (7) She had decided to go to her parents' home. She said, 'I will get to [my] father's house by any road, by any means [possible]. I will tell them everything. I will stay in my father's house. It's better than being castigated by a husband who is continually angry with me and beats me.'
- (8) The woman opened her sack to take out her bread. She had not completely cut the bread into pieces yet⁸ when a very big shadow appeared from behind, [so big] that the moonlight [reflected] on the bread disappeared. With a sense of rising panic and shuddering, the woman turned around.
- (9) She saw a big leopard, one with sharp teeth. Its eyes were glimmering in the moonlight, and it seemed frightening. It appeared [next] to her.

Where are you coming from and where are you going? Don't you know that you're transpassing on our (i.e. wild animals') territory?'9
- (11) The woman said, 'Yes indeed! However, the story is as follows: my husband divorced me and sent me away to my parents' home. I'm on the road to my father's house. Now, if you intend to eat me or do any harm to me, then go ahead eat me! Relieve me of this miserable life!'
- (12) The leopard said to her, 'No, I won't do you any harm! I know you're helpless. I will follow you on your way lest anyone hurts you. And I shall protect you from the assaults of all animals.'
- (13) The woman did not trust the leopard at the beginning. However, she said [to herself], 'It doesn't make any difference whether I believe him or not since I'm at their (i.e. wild animals') mercy.¹⁰ So let me just say to him, "Yes!"; either he eats me or helps me reach [my father's house].'

I won't feel at peace¹¹ until you get home. My thoughts are with you;¹² You go home. I will leave this place afterwards.'
- (15) The woman went to the house. Her mother asked, 'Where are you coming from in this darkness!? No one is accompanying you! How could you come from that mountain all the way here? How could you cross those wild forests?'
- (16) The woman said, 'Let us go inside the room, I will tell you the whole story from the beginning to the end. The situation is as follows. This is what has been going on. I will tell you everything. Let us just go inside.'

- (18) The father said, 'It's good [that this has happened]. It was our wish from long ago that you wouldn't live with him, since we knew that he was not suitable for you.'

- (21) The woman could not say, 'A leopard guarded me, he helped me reach the doors of the house. He protected me until I crossed the whole wild forest', since her parents would not believe it.
- (22) That is why she said, 'A very virtuous and honest man came with me. He guarded me the whole way and looked after me and protected me from all the wild animals without telling me an offensive word or an inappropriate word, or trying to assault [me].'
- (23) The parents were pleased. They said, 'Indeed, men like him are very nice.' The woman wanted to say a strange thing. She said, 'It is true that he was very nice. However, whenever he opened his mouth, his mouth smelt so bad that you would say that this man eats animal carcasses, and that he eats the hair and skin of dead animals. His mouth had such a foul smell.'
- (24) The leopard heard these words from behind the tree in a cage. ¹⁴ The leopard became very, very upset. His heart was filled with pain. ¹⁵ He ran fast through the forest and disappeared. He ran away. He remembered those words. How could she (the woman) forget his favour ¹⁶ and said [to her parents] that his mouth had a terrible smell and that he ate the corpse of dead [animals]!

- (27) The woman turned around with grace and smiled [at the leopard]. She said to him, 'How is it possible for me to forget you! You have done me a great favour.'
- (28) The leopard said to her, 'I have a¹⁹ request from you: you should take out your dagger and stab me in the shoulders.'
- (29) The woman said, 'I will never do such [a thing]. You're a very kind leopard. You did me a favour. I will never stab you in the shoulders.'
- (30) The leopard bared his teeth [and] frowned. He said to her, 'If you don't stab me in the shoulders with your dagger, rest assured that I will tear you to pieces.'

18. A DOG, A EWE AND A WOLF

Summary

A ewe who was living together with a dog asked the dog to take her out to graze on the pasture. While grazing, the dog briefly left the ewe to get some food for himself. As soon as he left, a wolf appeared, accusing the ewe for trespassing on his land. The ewe said that he needed a witness to prove that the land was indeed his, and the wolf left to bring a fox to testify for him. In the meantime, the dog had returned and swore to protect the ewe from the wolf. A fox came with the wolf and was going to swear falsely that the pasture belonged to the wolf. At that moment, however, the dog appeared and killed both the wolf and the lying fox. The dog and his ewe lived in peace.

- (1) I am Yawsep Elisha Ishaq, from Dohok. My mother is from Mar Yaqo, her name is Miryam Toma Jibrail. I want to tell you a story, in fact, about the loyalty of a dog and a ewe.
- (2) Once upon a time, there was a dog and a ewe. That is to say, they lived together. One day the ewe said to the dog, 'Brother, look, I am just stuck at home while you are going, wandering around everywhere, eating and drinking. And I [am] here, you have never taken me out to see the pasture, to graze. So let me be like you for once, let me go out to town or the pasture. I will be glad for that.'
- (3) 'Oh, sister,' he said, 'when was it that you asked me and I did not come, with you?' Believe me, they went out. He took her out to the pasture. They went to a place, a pasture, the ewe started grazing there.
- (4) The dog was just sitting, nothing... Indeed, a dog does not eat grass. He does not eat it. He was stuck. He also got hungry and thirsty. He said, 'Sister, I have become hungry and thirsty. I shall go home for a little while to find something to eat and come back. And you, stay [here] till I come.'
- (5) 'Oh,' she said, 'brother, when you go, the wolf, [he] will come from the mountain and eat me. So how [can] I [stay here]?' He said, 'You just occupy him for a while and do not worry.' He said, 'I shall not tarry.' She said, 'As you wish, go then.'

- (6) 'awa zèlle, là fətle, là msukere m-qămaya d-awànta, dèwa θele mən ṭura. xzele kalba lèθ tama. θèle 'u mən tama bəqyàma lawanta. 'dằxi 'at 'aθyat gawət koza diyi ṛà'yat? 'u ati mà ḥaq 'əttax? 'u ana dà b-axlənnax. ma zầl 'ati θelax u bəṛa'ya gu koza diyi.'
- (7) 'yaba, 'ay koza diyan-ile. 'u 'ati dăxi wət bəmara diyan-ile koza? ma 'əttux məstanda b-yăðət koza diyux? əttux xa sahaða dile koza diyux? màθi xa sahaða d-ile koza diyux, ana ḥalàlta ṭalux. k-imər, ba, ən ṭ-ila hadax b-zali maθax sahaða d-ile koza diyi.
- (9) θèle, muθele tela dìyeḥ. 'e, 'aw-ž m-raḥùqa, 'a, 'è! 'ay kozət 'ànna-yle, 'ay koza dət dèhwa-yle. 'u 'ati dàxi k-əθat rà'yat biye? 'ay koza dìyeḥ-ile.'
- (10) 'àma, k-əmrən 'ay gət àθay, gărag b-yàmay ţ-ila diyeḥ. 'aθay yàmay, maxe 'iðe 'əl 'ay kèpa. 'si mxi 'iðux l-'awa kepa ṭlaθà naqle, "maxe 'əlli=w l-yàli 'ən gə-mdàglən 'ay koza d-dèhwa=yle." 'u làtlax šula.'

- (6) He went away and before he even disappeared from the ewe's sight, the wolf appeared from the mountain. He saw that there was no dog there. He came and started scolding the ewe. 'How [dare] you come to my pasture and graze? What right do you have? I am going to eat you now, since you have not stopped coming, grazing on my pasture.'
- (7) 'My dear, this pasture is ours. How can you say "It is our pasture?" What evidence do you have to know it is your pasture? Do you have a witness that the pasture is yours? If you get a witness [to say] that this is your pasture, I am guilty before you.' He said, 'In that case, I will get a witness [to testify] that the pasture is mine.'
- (8) He went away to get his fox, to get a fox to testify for him. The dog came. 'Oh, sister, has anything happened?' She said, 'Believe me, this is what happened. The wolf came down on me to eat me. I told him, "If you get a witness to testify the pasture is yours, I will be yours. Surely you would not eat me illegally?" He said, 'Is that so?' She said, 'Yes.' He said, 'Then I am going [to hide] under that rock. When he comes down, I will [confront] him.'
- (9) [The wolf] came and brought his fox with him. He, too, said from afar, 'Oh, yes, this is the wolf's pasture. Now, how [dare] you come to graze on it? This is the wolf's pasture.'
- (10) Earlier, I should have said that when they come, they make an oath that it is his. When they come, they make an oath by tapping their hand on this rock. 'Go and tap your hand on that rock three times, and [say,] "May this rock fall on me and my children if I am lying that this is the wolf's pasture." You've got nothing to worry about then.'

That rock, if the pasture is yours, let the rock shall be my assurance. Tap your hand on it three times and say, "May it fall on me and my children if I am lying that this is the wolf's pasture."
- (12) So he went to tap the rock with his hand, and look, he saw the dog's eyes glinting under the rock. He ran away and left. The dog came and attacked them. He tore them both to pieces and killed them. The ewe came to him and stayed there. He kept guard of her till evening as she stayed [there] grazing. When she finished, they came back home. Blessings to all who listened.

19. A EWE AND A WOLF

Summary

Once upon a time a ewe and her lamb lost their flock. They arrived at a meadow and stayed there a whole year. One winter day, a cunning wolf passed by the ewe's hut and claimed that the ewe dwelled in his territory, and that he had a witness. The ewe knew of the wolf's intention to eat her lamb. The next day the ewe saw the wolf wandering around with a fox.

The ewe took refuge in a dog's home. The dog reminded the ewe of the importance of taking an oath on one's elders among the members of the dog family. He advised the ewe to ask the wolf's witness to take an oath on the truth of the wolf's claim, while at the same time the dog hid himself behind a tree to attack them if they took a false oath.

The wolf came along with the fox as his witness. As the fox was taking an oath, he caught sight of the dog behind the tree. The fox was scared and went away. The wolf took the oath himself and was attacked by the dog. The wolf withdrew his claim and went away.

- (1) Well, my name is Hawsar. I am from Shaqlawa. My full name is Hawsar Najat Bapir Rahman Surchi. We are famous for this [name]. My mother is called Jamila. I was born on the 2nd December 1988.
- (2) Well, Shaqlawa is very pleasant. It has a lot of cultural traditions. There are also a lot of people living in Shaqlawa who have extensively discussed the tales and the history of Shaqlawa. The most conspicuous [cultural traditions] are some tales which have been narrated in earlier times, but have remained through the course of time.
- (3) It happens that these tales have been passed on to you (lit. remained) from your mother, grandmother, or father. It would happen often that we would make mischief. My grandmother or an elder would come to tell us a tale so that we would be wise, and additionally learn lessons from them [the tales]. We would plead with them to constantly tell those tales.
- (4) I'm being reminded continually that in my childhood my grandmother or an old lady would tell us a tale so that we would be wise, and learn a lesson. It was not like now, when there is an iPad, cell-phone, or [other] technology.
- (5) Why is it that in the past tales were common in the Kurdish culture, or among you [the Chaldeans], or elsewhere, [and] especially in Shaqlawa? The reason is that there was neither electricity nor television. Likewise, radio and the like did not exist.

- (6) Back then, people would sit together. The nights were long. They would sit together specially during summer nights until 10 p.m., 11 p.m. People would come back home from their daily work. It was the custom that vegetables and fruit, such as dried apricot, apricot, and such would be put [in front of the guests] while they would narrate the tales until they would leave the party.
- (7) It was the custom that at some point they would end the story [in the middle, in order to continue later]. Some tales were such that they would take six months to be fully narrated, for instance, the tale of Rostam the son of Zal, and such. Likewise, during winter nights people would gather in a place after evening prayers. They would switch on a lamp. [Many things would be served] like raisins and many other things. That is, this tradition existed in the Kurdish regions.
- (8) What I am going to discuss now is a set of tales which are good. That is, they carry a nice argument, and include jokes in some parts. Yes.
- (9) The tale is called 'a ewe and a goat', or 'the separation of a ewe'. It is said that there was [and] there was not, [but] there was no one greater than God. In this vast world, there was a shepherd. He had a flock of sheep which contained many ewes and goats. Once, late one autumn evening a ewe and her lamb lost¹ the flock.
- (10) She (the ewe) reached a place which was [full of] rocks and was a meadow. That is, it was a separate meadow and so forth. She stayed there for the night. She made the place her habitat. She stayed there the [coming] winter until the [next] summer.

Is it conceivable that a wolf had land and that I had not known about?'
- (12) She said [to herself], 'He had not come earlier [to this place]. However, now that I am here, he wants to eat us. That is why he is creating a trap for us.' She said [to the wolf], 'It is not so! This property belongs to God. This is neither your property nor my property!'
- (13) [The wolf said], 'How is it that you claim it is yours? He said, 'I have a witness [who can prove that] this property is mine and has been passed on to me from my elders.' The ewe said, 'Go and bring him! [As] the saying goes, 'Say the truth and be courageous!'
- (14) [Now] the ewe is right [but] the wolf is being cunning. He wants to eat her (the ewe's) lamb. He (the wolf) said, 'Tomorrow at noon or in the evening I will bring my witness [here]. I will come and prove that this is my property.'

She (the ewe) said, 'By God, I am in a bad situation! How am I supposed to get rid of them?' She went to ask the dog for help.
- (16) There was a dog in it [in the meadow], a respectful faithful dog. He would defend the ewe. She said [to the dog], 'The situation is like this, [please] come to my aid.' He (the dog) said, 'No worries! Something is customary among us [the members of the dog family], [and] that is the clan, that is, the clan of elders. All right?'
- (17) [The dog continued] 'Tell him [the wolf to come]! I will go and hide myself behind that tree. Whenever he [the fox] comes over and starts to take an oath on his clan or on anything else, I will tear him down right away. They will not dare to make a fake oath.' It is said that they (i.e. the ewe and the dog) made the same plan. The dog hid himself behind the tree. And the wolf and fox came to bear witness.
- (18) [The wolf] said, 'Here is my witness!' The fox started to speak⁸ comfortably [and] said, 'I testify that this land is the wolf's and that you have come [into this land and] usurped it without having any [legitimate] rights.'

- (20) The fox said, 'It is totally fine. Where is your clan for us to take an oath on?' She said, 'My clan is behind that tree!' On seeing a big dog behind the tree, the fox was frightened⁹ [and] said, 'By God, [and] by your clan's sanctity, your clan is very holy. I cannot take an oath on it.' The fox went away.
- (21) The wolf said, 'It does not count! The fox became scared, otherwise, he would never turn his back on me. He is the witness that this property is mine. When it was the time for the wolf to take an oath, he said, 'I will take an oath not only on your clan but also on anything else!'
- (22) When he (the wolf) saw that a dog was there [behind the tree], the dog jumped on the wolf and seized [him by] his neck.¹⁰ He (the wolf) said, 'Please, please! I am nothing! This property is yours!' It is said that the clan was so holy in Kurdish society that one took an oath on it. That is why we see that it has been referred to in Kurdish tales.

20. A FAMILY HORSE

Summary

A family had a horse which was very well-known in the region. People called it 'the family horse'. Nobody would mount it. Once a year, the horse would be taken out of the stable for people to see and praise it.

Once, someone stole the family horse. The owner of the family, who had witnessed the theft, mounted his 'normal' horse and chased after the thief. At some point, the owner of the family horse was able to reach the thief and stop him. However, he did not do so and instead let him go.

His sons criticized him, asking why he did not stop the thief. The father reasoned that he let the thief go to save face, since otherwise the reputation around the 'family horse' and their family would be ruined.

- (2) It is said that there was and there was not, [but] there was nobody greater than God, and no bigger liar than man. What did the people in this region do once? Each family had a young, reliable horse that was very, very strong.
- (3) It is said that this [particular] horse (i.e. the horse of a certain family) was known in every family. That is, people knew this horse as the 'family [horse]'. Nobody would mount this horse. Once a year, they (i.e. the family) would bring [the horse] out for people to see. And people would praise it (i.e. the horse) and compare their horses to those [family] horses.
- (4) [But] what was the family horse like? Its father, Pekhine, also belonged to this family. Its colt also stayed with the same family. Because of its value, nobody would mount the [family] horse. It was only brought out of the stable for people to see its grandeur, and then hidden again in the stable.
- (5) It is said that the horse of [a] family became so famous that everybody [said], 'Well, what is [so] special about this horse? What is it famous for?' A [certain] person came to steal the horse. He went into the stable and mounted the family horse.¹ He stole the horse.

He said to his sons, 'Get up, go and reach the thief, for we are disgraced.² Someone has taken our horse—the family horse.' [Both] the horse's father [and] the father of the family [said so].'
- (7) From the days of old³, from one generation to the other, the horse and the family had lived together. It is said that the owner of the family horse went and mounted his [other] horse. And his sons followed him. They went after the [family] horse, they went after it. They galloped on their horses towards the thief.
- (8) The sons [went] behind their father, and the father went after the thief. The thief was riding the family horse. The father was on his [other] horse. Similarly, his two sons followed each other. Even though it was [extremely] windy, they were riding their horses.
- (9) It is said that the father reached the thief. He stretched out his hand to grab the thief's scarf [but since] his hands did not reach it [the thief's scarf], he withdrew them. He (the father) pulled the reins of his horse and made it stop. The thief rode away.⁴

- (10) When his sons caught up with him, they said, 'Dad, why did you ruin our home?! A while ago you could have reached the thief! Why didn't you grab him?' The father said, 'Calm down⁵! I acted wisely.'
- (11) He (the father) said, 'When I approached the family horse—the one which we have been praising for so long and which we take around for people to see—do you know what I thought of?'
- (12) He (the father) said, 'When I saw that I could stretch out my arms and grab the scarf of the thief, [I thought that] people would figure out that a thief had come to steal our horse—the family horse—the one which has been famous and well-known for so many years.'
- (13) [The father continued] '[Later] people would say, "Someone stole your [family] horse. And you could reach the family horse with your riding horses." [So instead,] let the [family] horse be the thief's, but let the praise of the [family] horse remain with us!

⁵ Lit. Sit down!

⁶ Implying that this would have exposed the horse's lack of any special powers.

21. A MAN AND HIS DOG

Summary

This story is about a certain Uncle Gawro (K. Mām Gawro) and his dog. Once, Uncle Gawro's dog bit the daughter of Gawro's neighbour. The girl was taken to Erbil since it was feared that the dog had rabies. Uncle Gawro also was taken to Erbil along with his dog in order to have the dog examined. It turned out that the dog did not have rabies, and Mām Gawro was set free.

Since he was angry with the dog, Uncle Gawro beat his dog with a stick. Then he left his dog behind and went to the market in Erbil to buy some items for his supermarket in Shaqlawa. He came back home on a bus. On arriving home, he saw that his dog was already waiting there at his house, wagging its tail for him. Uncle Gawro was astonished that his dog could find his way all the way from Erbil to Shaqlawa. He was amazed by his dog's loyalty towards him and regretted beating him.

- (2) Mam Gawro had a neighbour who was a police officer. Needless to say, at that time, people used to live in villages.³ One day when the daughter of Uncle ... er... the police officer was going to school, Uncle Gawro's dog attacked her and bit her on the foot.
- (3) The dog bit her. She went to the hospital. They (i.e. people) said, 'It's likely that the dog has rabies: she should definitely be transferred to Erbil. Who is the owner of the dog?'
- (4) [People continued] 'We should catch [the owner] and take [him and] the dog to Erbil. Let's go to [Erbil] ... [it's possible that] she has been infected with a dog disease called *dal kal*⁴ or something like that.' Anyway, they came, arrested Uncle Gawro and his dog, put him into a police car, and headed towards Erbil.
- (5) Uncle Garo felt sad and at a loss. He started [cursing the dog]—earlier he had been surrounded by the police—he said, 'Damn you⁵, dog! I shall get rid of you⁶! [Look] what you've done to me!'

- (7) Uncle Gawro turned round and saw a big cudgel. The dog was still with him, since it knew Uncle Gawro. The dog knew Uncle Gawro. All of a sudden he beat the dog with the thick cudgel.
- (8) He hit the dog [with the stick and started cursing it], 'Damn you⁷! You have irritated me⁸.' He cursed the dog using unpleasant words. The dog fell [to the ground]. It fell, since the blow was very heavy.
- (9) Uncle Gawro said [to the dog], 'Come, come [after me], you filth! I'm going to the bazaar [of Erbil].' He had a shop, a shop. I remember that; I was a little boy [at that time]. He had a small shop [in Shaqlawa].
- (10) He went [to the bazaar and] said, 'I will buy some stuff, sugar and such things for the shop.' He spent approximately an hour in the bazaar until he finished shopping. Then he took a bus, a Thomas bus, and returned to Shaqlawa. Back then there were no cars, there were only buses.

¹⁰ Speech muffled.

(11) He returned to Shaqlawa and saw that his dog was in front of the door and was wagging its tail for him. 'Ah,' Uncle Gawro said, 'O man! How is it possible that the dog could travel from Erbil all the way to my house [in Shaqlawa]?' He saw the loyalty of his dog and said, 'It doesn't matter [what you did], I forgive you, stay [here]!' Yes.

22. A TALKING GOAT

Summary

A peddler named Uncle Jarda (K. Mām Jarda) went to Erbil with a caravan. He brought some goods such as grape syrup and dried cherries from Shaqlawa to trade them for other goods in Erbil. On his way back to Shaqlawa, Uncle Jarda came across a young goat abandoned in the countryside. As it was getting dark, Uncle Jarda put the goat on his shoulders and headed towards Shaqlawa.

The goat wanted Uncle Jarda to put it down. It did not want to speak to him, however, so as not to frighten him. Instead, the goat put more pressure on Uncle Jarda's shoulders to make him tired of carrying it, but Uncle Jarda did not realize this. Instead, he complained that the goat was being arrogant. Finally, the goat decided to speak, 'Hey Jarda! Hey Jarda! Hey Jarda! How much do my testicles weigh?' On hearing this, Uncle Jarda dropped the goat and returned to the village alone. He had lost his mind because of this incident with the talking goat.

- (2) It is said that once upon a time² there was [a man called] Uncle Jarda. He was from Shaqlawa. This story has really happened. It is linked to the history of Shaqlawa and the tales associated with Shaqlawa.
- (3) In the past there were caravansaries between cities and such, [for example] between Erbil and Shaqlawa, and between Shaqlawa and Ankawa, and so on. People would travel with caravans. The caravans were mostly on foot, but also with donkeys. Yes!
- (4) Once Uncle Jarda was coming back from Erbil a few days before a religious feast. It was a big festival: [it was before] Eid al-Adha, which is a big festival. He was coming back to Shaqlawa. He had brought back goods with him.
- (5) He would take things which were particular to Shaqlawa—for instance, grape syrup, and dried cherries—[to Erbil] to trade them for other goods that he needed. On his way back to Shaqlawa in the Kawanyan region, he saw that a young goat had fallen on the ground.

- (6) As it was getting dark,³ he put the goat on his shoulders and set off for Shaqlawa. It is said that he passed Simoni on his way and went in the direction of Zandor. As he got closer [to Zandor], he felt that the goat had become heavier than before.
- (7) The young goat wanted Uncle Jarda to put it on the ground, that is, to be heavy [on his shoulders] so that he would put it down, lest he be scared. Uncle Jarda continued on his way without noticing, and kept saying, 'What is wrong with this fat goat? When I [first] put it on my shoulders, it was light!'
- (8) As Uncle Jarda did not understand what was happening, the young goat started to talk to him.⁴ The goat said,

'Hey Jarda! Hey Jarda! Hey Jarda!

How much do my testicles weigh?'

- (9) Only then Uncle Jarda realised⁵ [the goat's intention]. He threw the goat aside and fled. He came to the village, among people.
- (10) He said, 'Come to my aid!⁶ I'm warm! I'm cold!' In other words, he lost his mind. This story really happened in Shaqlawa. This was another story.⁷

Summary

A girl was expelled by her brother from her house. Along with her horse, she got herself hired as a prince's servant, pretending to be a man. The prince began to suspect that she was a woman and tried to find out through various means. The girl's horse, however, always warned her and helped her find a solution to ensure that she was not found out. Meanwhile, the prince fell in love with her. In the end, she was found out and they married.

- (17) She went out early in the morning and picked the flowers and put them... He picked other flowers, she picked, she put them under her head and went to sleep, I mean she was dead to the world.²
- (18) He came back and brought the flowers to his mother. He brought the flowers to his mother and his mother said, 'Yes, son, what is it?' He said, 'Do you see how red and beautiful her flowers are?' [His mother said] 'This is a young man, not a girl. Let not your heart be misled.'
- (19) He said, 'Yes.' What else could he do? He said to her, he said, [after] one or two days, three days, he went, and the guy said, 'I still suspect that it is a girl,' [he said] to his mother. [His mother said] 'My son, what girl for God's sake?! My dear,³ what girl [are you talking about]?'
- (20) She said, 'Do you know what you should do?' He said, 'What should I do?' She said 'Go and swim together. Convince her to come so that we may go to swim, to swim. Then she will be recognised. If she is a girl, she will not come with you, she will not come with you.'

24. A WOMAN BUILDS HER HOME

Dorota Molin

Speaker: Madlen Patu Nagara (ChA. Duhok)

Recording: Lourd Hanna

Assistant: Aziz al-Zebari

Summary

A princess defied her father, claiming that a woman too is capable of providing for herself and her family, just like a man. In response, her father gave her to a poor boy, so that she could prove her claims. The girl told the boy that she was not going to marry him yet. Instead, she did embroidery and sent him to sell her work. While at work, the boy heard about an opportunity to become wealthy. The king had promised a reward for the person who would slay the wild beast that had blocked the local water sources. The princess sent the boy to fight the beast and the boy won. The boy and the princess became wealthy and built a palace. They invited the king—the girl's father—for a feast. When he came, the girl revealed her identity and the father recognized his mistake. The two young people were married amidst great festivities.

¹ The speaker says brāt 'daughter', but means 'son'.

- (1) My name is Madeline, the daughter of Pattu Nagara. His father's name is Hurmez. My mother's name is Layya. Her father's name is Hurmez too. I am eighty-four or eighty-five years old. I mean, I am elderly, I am not young, indeed.
- (2) There was a man who had three daughters. He was a king. He had three daughters. He married one of them to a king's son, the other to the minister's son. The youngest one remained. She started laughing, she laughed. Her father said, 'Let us see who you are going to marry.'
- (3) She said, 'Whoever happens to be my fortune.' He said, 'Why? Who is it that [can] do this? [Your sisters] have a home, they each have a [new] home and are well-off. Why? Who [is it that] builds a home, a woman or a man?' he said. 'The woman,' she said.
- (4) 'But how come it is a woman who builds a home? [Your sisters] have married two rich people. One of them is the son of a minister and the other the son of a judge. Since you said, they are poor and [that it is] the woman [who] builds a home, then I promise to marry you to a poor man,' he said.
- (5) She thought and said, 'My father is serious and he will do it,' she said. In the past, there was... people used to embroider. What did she do? She took some white fabric she had at home, some four or five metres and a few centimetres and some needles.
- (6) He said, 'I will send you out. You will only put on your abaya and leave empty-handed. Let us see how you build a home. I shall give you to a poor man.' She said nothing. He said, 'You shall go with only your clothes on.'

² Presumably meaning something like '[his] sorry state'.

- (7) Then, after some ten days, he said, to his servant, 'Servant!' He said, 'Yes?' 'Go to the market square and find a poor but a young man, not an old one. Find who is poor, that is, [someone who] transports wood.'
- (8) In the past, [people] used to transport wood. They would bring it [to town] to make a living from what they brought. They would go to [collect] wood and sell it.
- (9) He found a man with wood who was young, like this. He saw him and said, 'Come! The King is calling you.' He said, 'Oh goodness, what does the king want from me when I am only a poor man in ragged clothes, what does he want from me? I shall not come.'
- (10) He said, 'Come! If the king... I mean, can you say "no"?' 'No,' he said. 'He will behead you. It must be.' He brought the young man. [The king] saw him in his sorry state.
- (11) 'Come!' said, the king. 'Yes [your majesty]?' he said. [The king] said, 'This daughter of mine I have given to you [as your wife].' 'But how [when I am only] a poor man?' 'I told you, I have given you this daughter of mine.'
- (12) The daughter overheard [her father and started making preparations, but] her father did not know. She took her abaya and did thus (i.e. hid her possessions underneath).
- (13) He said, 'Go! Let us see if you can establish a good home.' All your sisters married rich men, [and you are telling me it is the] woman [who] builds [a home]. [But it is] the man [who] builds a home. Let us see [whether] you can build a home, [whether] you will build a home.'

However, you must say that I, that is, you are not going to marry me. You must promise me [that] you will do whatever I tell you to. [Then] I will marry you. I am not going to marry you now.'
- (15) He said, 'I promise, my lady.' I mean he understood, he understood. 'Whatever you say, I will do.' She said, 'All right.' Then she tidied up the shed, or whatever it was. She tidied it up. The next morning, she cut the white linen into shapes and started embroidering. She embroidered some of the pieces and said, 'Go and sell them.' He went and sold them.
- (16) She embroidered another piece [and told him], 'Sell it.' He sold [it]. 'Go and buy a needle.' She taught him everything. They made for themselves a house.
- (17) She said, 'Go!' She said, 'Look, whatever I tell you... that... this is what my father said.' 'I promise, whatever you say'—it is an Arab promise—he said, 'I shall do whatever you say.'
- (18) She said, 'There are a few prominent people, men of honour, who sit in a café. They discuss intellectual matters, they do not talk about immoral things that, I mean, that are not nice, [things of] said, by vagabonds and the like.'
- (19) [He went to visit those men.] One said, 'I am so-and-so', and one [of] these 'Who builds a home.' Another said, all [sorts of] things and another said, so and so—everything about happiness [lit. good in heart]. One said, [asking] 'Do you know when a man is happy?

- (21) As [the poor man] was listening, he slapped him hard on the face. He said, 'What? Is he listening [to us]?' He said, 'No, sir, this part of my body was itching'—he said—'[as] I passed in front of you.'
- (22) He told him this, in his face, and pulled his ear. He did this, he slapped him hard on his face. He slapped him so hard that his cheek reddened—excuse me—'What [is it that you are] listening?'
- (23) 'No, sir, it was just...' he said. 'Go away!' He went. He came home but said nothing. 'Tell me, did you go? If you went then... [she asked whether he had gone]. 'Yes, I was walking [past] and they were speaking to one another.' 'All right,' she said.
- (24) After a day, two or three he was walking around, looking for a job. People said, 'Oh! By the king, there is a wild beast [which] is blocking the water.' The beast holds up the water, the orchard water. A wild beast has blocked the water. It is like a dam, the water is blocked, it is not flowing to the orchards.
- (25) He said, 'How?' They had said, '[The water] is not flowing to the orchard. Anyone who goes and kills the animal, the king will give him a lot of gold coins. He will give him much money, gold coins.' They began shouting out and announcing this. He heard them.

³ Presumably meaning 'be cut off, go down'.

- (27) 'This is the decree of the king,' he said. 'But the problem is that it is a well, the well is deep, so the one who goes down has to be tied by the bottom, by the waist. If he dies, they would pull him out and if he is alive, they also pull him out. I mean, whatever might happen. I mean, this is the case. The king will give him a lot (of money).'
- (28) 'Go and call the man who told you about this,' she said. He went to call the man saying, 'Come, my lady is asking for you.' She said, 'He will come with you, my brother will come with you.' she said. That is, she called [him] 'my brother.' 'But, dead or alive, I want you to bring me back his body, did you hear me?' she said.
- (29) 'How so?' [he said]. 'You will now give the money, he is going to die, he may die, so the money that I take is for myself.' 'All right.' he said.
- (30) He went off. There were about twenty people there. 'Who will go down the well?' they said. 'I will go down,' he said. 'How?' they said. They held him, tied him and lowered him into the deep well. They threw him down the well—God forbid.⁴
- (31) There was a big village there [down the well], I do not know [what exactly]. Everywhere were kings' young children who—God forbid—were beheaded, their bodies placed there.
- (32) 'And look'—says the animal—'look, I shall tell you something,' said the animal. 'I was a human being but became like this, you can see.' God forbid this [from us]. He says, 'Tonight, this place will become yours. If you meet my conditions, I promise that you will win, otherwise, you [too] will be beheaded.'

- (35) He said, 'No.' He said, 'A man's heart [is pleased] at home.' 'How at home?' [said, the animal]. 'If you are happy at home [with] your wife and children, if you are happy, [then] a man is [truly] happy.' [The animal] said, 'What?' and swelled greatly. 'You are lying to me.
- (36) He said, 'A man is happy there, in his own home,' he said. He repeated this three times at which the animal—excuse me—burst into pieces. When the animal burst, water began to flow. Yes, the water flowed.
- (37) He had tied up the couple. They began to dig. He said, 'Fill [your clothes] for yourselves with money, as much as you desire.' He filled [his shirt] with money and gave [some] to others too. They could not pull him up. When they did, they went to the king and told him. They said, 'Your majesty!' 'What?' he said. 'The water is flowing. So-and-so has done it.' 'Bring him here!' said, the king.
- (38) They opened the gateway for the water to flow and left. He left too and gave the money to his fiancée. So, she wentwith him. He said, 'This wealth is for you.' 'Let's see who builds a home.'

- (40) So they built [the palace] and the young boy grew into a handsome young man day by day, but his fiancée said, 'I shall not marry you until my father—How shall I marry you?— knows who builds a home.
- (41) If a woman is wise, she can teach her husband. I do not mean that men are not wise, but if a woman is wise, she can lead her husband and there is understanding between them, their affairs go smoothly. Their home runs smoothly and there is mutual understanding. But if a woman does not build a home, the home is ruined. Isn't it true, my son?'
- (42) All right, she built the home and completed [it]. She said, 'Listen!' He said, 'What?' 'I am going to prepare food now. I am going to prepare food now, today and tomorrow I shall make food.
- (43) You shall go to the king. Let me tell you that my father's situation is such and such. Whatever you have said, I mean, it will be according to your wish.' He said, 'Yes.'

25. AS PRECIOUS AS SALT

Summary

A king asked his three daughters how much they loved him. The youngest replied that she loves him as much as salt in food, which he took as an insult. He was furious and expelled the princess from the palace. She went to the royal orchard, where she found a young man lying under a fig tree. This was a lazy boy who could not be persuaded to take up any work. She taught him how to make a living. He went to the market and found work as a wood-cutter. He found gold in the cave where he stored the wood. He and the princess became very rich and built a palace. The princess—disguised as a beggar woman—invited the king to a feast. The king came, but was served food without salt, which he found disgusting. The princess invited him for another dinner, in which she served delicious food seasoned with salt. The king complimented her and she revealed herself to him. The girl and the young man got married and lived happily ever after.

² From lewat 'you are not'. In JA. Zakho, glides are sometimes elided intervocalically; see also 'awae below, from 'awaye 'things'.

- (1) SZ: 'So there was one—call it—a fig tree. The young man of the fig tree, it seems that you have heard it? BA: No.
- (2) There was [once] a young man, he was very, very handsome. [He was] talented, good, handsome. Everybody else worked to support themselves, doing their work. [But] he said no, he did not want to.
- (3) His parents exhausted themselves discussing [this with him]. 'Please, darling, go to work so that you can marry, so that can you settle down.' Why should he stay at home? 'What is it with you?' 'I shall not work,' he said. He does not work, the lazy [one]! He does not work. BA: Lazy. SZ:Yes, [he is] lazy (H), lazy (A), he sleeps under a fig tree.
- (4) The king of that city had three daughters. He sat them down and said 'Come, my daughters, which [of you] loves me the most?'
- (5) The oldest said, 'My father, I love you like the king of the world, as much as I love him. As much as I love the light of the world, so I love you.' [The king said: 'Indeed] you love me.' The other one—[the king] said to her, 'My daughter, how much do you love me?' She said, 'Whatever my sister has said. Like the light of my eyes and my health I love you.' He said... [That was] the second one.
- (6) He brought the youngest one. 'My daughter, and you, how much do you love me?' She said, 'My father, I love you like the salt they put in cooked food, the way it makes [the food] delicious, so I love you.'
- (7) 'Oh! You love me only this much?!' He said, 'You are not [good] enough for me, take your bag and go [away]. I shall not give you anything. Those two are my daughters, you are not my daughter, you!'

- (9) She took her bag. Where could she go [now] if not to her father's vineyard? He had a large vineyard. She said [to herself], 'I want to stay there. I will make there a place for myself. I will wait there until I collect myself, [decide] what to do and what not to do.'
- (10) She goes off with her bag and sees a young man—a handsome, good-looking young man—lying under a fig tree. She strikes him with this [thing], kicks [him]. 'Get up! What are you... Why are you sleeping here? It does not suit you, a handsome, good-looking young man, why are you sitting under the fig tree?!'
- (11) He said, 'I cannot pick figs, one [fig] will fall into my mouth and I shall eat it.' 'Go away!' she tells him, 'Go away! A fig will fall into his mouth and he will eat it!' she tells him.
- (12) He said to her, 'But why are you yelling at me?' She said 'I will yell at you! Get up on [your] feet! Get up on [your] feet! Now! If not, then at this very moment I will take a branch of a pomegranate tree and come with it at you!' She went and broke off a branch of a pomegranate tree and crack! She hit his legs.
- (13) He got up and made a run for it. 'Oh dear woman,³ what do you want?' She said 'What do I want? I am a daughter of a king, [and I am] hungry. I want you to buy food for me, but [you must] work!
- (14) Make four piastres, make three piastres, buy with them a pitta for me, and whatever you earn, bring me food.' 'Dear woman, I do not have a job, I do not know [how] to buy, I do not know [how] to work.'

⁵ mal mirát is a Kurdish curse, literally 'May your house be abandoned', here translated as 'wretched creature'.

- (26) She woke him up at four o'clock and said, 'The pomegranate stick has arrived, get up, stand up on [your] legs.' There were [some] woodcutters on their way to [chop] wood. He ran after them. She came and said to them, she said, 'There is this young man, take him with you, it is a sin [not to help him], teach him. He is new [to the job].' They said, 'Okay.'
- (27) He learned [the skill] and went and brought a load [of wood], and sold it for one rupee. [After] one day, two or three, one day, he thought to himself, 'Should I come and cut wood every day?
- (28) Should I rise and cut? There is this what-do-you-call-it here, a cave. I shall cut [the wood] and fill this cave [with it], and afterwards I shall come and take it away. Every day I shall bring [wood] ten times, each time they will give me one golda'—we used to call it golda, ten shekels, fifty shekels—'I shall give those to her, we shall eat and drink.'
- (29) He placed [the wood in the cave], came [to town] and sold [it]. He went back and forth once or twice. That night he went to sleep. He rose the next day and went off, he carried his gear with him, went and filled [his bag with wood].
- (30) Then he sees: there were robbers, they came and slept in the cave. They came and saw it is full of wood. They lit a match and burnt all of it. BA: Oh dear.
- (31) SZ: [They used it] to sleep there, to hide, [because] they were robbers. What did this wretched creature (i.e. the robber) do? [He said,] 'Every night, we hide here in this cave.' And they burnt [all the wood].

- (32) [The boy] came the next day, wanted to come [inside the cave] and saw that all of it was burnt. Not a single twig remained. Then he goes around [the cave], walks around, goes deeper inside the cave—there is something shining.
- (33) He said, 'By God! [There is] a shining stone. I shall strike it with my hammer, take it out and put it on my back. I shall put it in this thing... I shall tie it to my back. I shall go, take it to the woman. She understands [such] matters.'
- (34) He brought it (the stone) to her, she says, 'Ah! How much money did you make?' He said, 'Dear woman, today I did not make money. They have burnt my logs. But I brought this rock, I do not know what it is. You take a look at it, you understand [such] matters. You are clever, I do not know what it is.'
- (35) She took it and washed it. 'It is gold! It is a gold bar! Is there any more?' He said 'Yes.' 'Go bring [it]!' He went and brought [more], there is one bar that turned out to be of gemstone, one... and ten other of gold.
- (36) She washed all of them, quickly built a booth, she built it without anyone knowing. She wrapped [the bars of gold] with leaves and [other] things and tucked them away.
- (37) While he went to bring [more gold], she put one bar under her abaya and went to the goldsmith. She said, 'Exchange it [for smaller, useable pieces].' He said, 'Even if I sold all my property and my house, I could not buy it.'
- (38) She said, 'Well then, you know what? Take it, give me ten thousand, then take it to [some] cities to sell. Half [of the profit will be] for you and half for me.' He said, 'Okay.' He became rich, and so [did] she.

- (39) Oh! She is a wise woman indeed! Two or three months went by, she acquired a lot of money. She went to [see some] building contractors. 'I want you to build a palace for me in this garden within three months, completed and radiant. How much money do you want?'
- (40) He said, 'Many thousands, because many workmen are needed. It is hard [to finish building] within three months. You must wait one year.' She said, 'No! Three months, twice the money. [If] you want one hundred thousand take two hundred thousand. [If] you want three hundred thousand, take five hundred thousand.'
- (41) He saw that she was going to give him a lot of money, so he said, 'Now I shall do it for you within three months.' He brough contractors. He brought them and he quickly built it in three months. She said, 'That door, the entrance door, [that is] the upper palace door—[make it] like that one [of the king's palace], set three stones at the back: one gemstone in the middle and gold on either side.'
- (42) They started... She got up and built it.⁷ He gave her the key and she gave him an astronomic sum of money. She said, 'Go and have a good time, enjoy the money, you and your contractors. There is a lot of money, do not worry.'
- (43) Then this [person]—the Mullah—rose, calling people to prayer. 'Allahu Akbar, Allahu Akbar, Allahu...' The gemstones dazzled him, so he repeated 'Allahu Akbar' fifteen times. Instead of saying [it] three times, he called it fifteen times. 'Allahu Akbar, Allahu Akbar, Allahu...' He felt dizzy. He looked at the stones and lost his mind.

26. DINDIK HINAR—A GIRL CALLED POMEGRANATE GRAIN

Masoud Mohammadirad

Speaker: Bizhan Khoshavi Ahmad (NK. Duhok)

Recording: Lourd Hanna

Audio: https://kurdic.ames.cam.ac.uk/audio/243/

Summary

An orphan girl called Hinar 'Pomegranate' had a hard time living with her evil stepmother. Hinar befriended a red cow among their livestock. The stepmother intended to kill the red cow. The Red Cow asked Hinar to collect three bones from its corpse, saying that she could ask them for help whenever she was in difficulty. After a while, rumour had it that the emir's son was sick. The stepmother knew about the bones and asked Hinar what the treatment for the emir's son was. Hinar gave her a wrong medicine, which led to the stepmother's imprisonment. Later, Hinar paid a visit to the emir's son as a doctor and healed him. The emir's son fell in love with her and they got married. Hinar had her stepmother released from prison, but she accused Hinar of espionage and plotting against the emir. In the end, the bones made sure that Hinar was released and the stepmother was killed.

- (1) My name is Bizhan Khoshavi Ahmad. I am Shukriya's son. I was born in 1996 in city of Duhok. I am going to tell you a story that I have heard from my grandmother, a story [which is] called Dindik Hinar [meaning] 'Pomegranate Grain.'
- (2) The tale of Dindik Hinar 'Pomegranate Grain' starts like this: Once there was, once there was not, there was no one greater than God, no bigger liar than man. Once upon a time¹ there was a very kind woman. The villagers were all pleased with her; her neighbours were pleased with her.
- (3) She went to the running water, [which was used] for washing wool. When she went there and became busy washing wool, the women [around her] were chatting at the bank of the river. One of them said, 'Hey so-and-so! Won't you have any children? Do you have a health problem? Do you have an illness? Are you already pregnant or something? You—why don't you have children?'
- (4) She became very distressed. She thought,³ 'I shall say I will have children.' She lied and said to them, 'I am pregnant.⁴' After lying and saying, 'I am pregnant'—the stream of water became very clean. A grain of pomegranate was floating in the stream.
- (5) The woman picked up the Pomegranate Grain, put it in her mouth, [and] ate it. While eating [it], she prayed from the heart [and] said, 'O God, I [wish] I could have a very beautiful girl; I will name her Hinar 'Pomegranate.'

- (7) After naming her Hinar ... she hugged the baby⁶ after delivering it. She hugged her and said [to the relatives], 'I hope you name her Hinar.' The mother passed away because of the pain she went through while delivering her, i.e., her child.
- (8) After some years had passed by, Hinar's father said, 'I shall take a wife⁷ to take care of my daughter,⁸ so that she will keep my daughter beautiful, clean, healthy, and raise her.'
- (9) However, mistakenly, he married a very unsuitable woman, called Sora Chavshin. Sora Chavshin was a very ugly woman. She was fat. The outer layer of her eyeballs was red. Her eyes were blue. She was constantly nervous and angry.
- (10) Sora Chavshin had two children from Hinar's father. She had two children; both were girls. When Dindik Hinar¹⁰ grew older, she had a feeling that Sora Chavshin¹¹ was not her real mother.

- (11) Without anyone telling her, Dindik Hinar sensed that she was not her real mother, since she treated her badly. She would hurt her a lot. Dindik Hinar would ask her father [and] say to him, 'Why is my mother mean to me?' He would not tell her [the truth].
- (12) One day, she (Hinar) was playing with her friends. One of her friends said to her, 'Why is the side of your dress torn? Why do you not sew it yourself? Why doesn't your mother sew [it] for you?' A[nother] friend of her said, 'No, she is not her [real] mother; she is her stepmother!'
- (13) That is why Dindik Hinar, or Hinar, became very upset. She went home. She said to her father, 'Is it true that something like this exists, that I am the daughter of another woman?' Her father became upset [and] said, 'Yes, it is true! But do you feel that [she is not your real mother]?'
- (14) Dindik Hinar said, 'Yes, I have a strong feeling [she is my stepmother], since she¹² treats me badly.' The father was angry with Sora Chavshin, who was Hinar's stepmother. He said to her, 'If you repeat the same behaviour [towards my daughter] ever again, I will be obliged to divorce you.'
- (15) When he said this to her, Sora Chavshin thought that Hinar had talked badly of her. However, Dindik Hinar had just said—she had just said the truth about her. She had said to him [her father], 'She treats me badly; she discriminates between us (me and my sisters).'

He said to the stepmother, [i.e.] he said to Sora Chavshin, 'Look after your children,¹⁴ especially Dindik Hinar, for she is an orphan and innocent. Take care of her.'
- (17) Sora Chavshin said, 'Don't worry! Haven't I honoured her [so far]? Haven't I taken care of her [so far]? She is like a daughter to me.¹⁵' It was all lies!
- (18) After the father went away with the caravan, the mother, or stepmother, harassed her a lot. Things went so far that she sent her to the sheep barn. She made her sleep among the sheep and cows.
- (19) During that time Dindik Hinar was left with no friends. She could not go out since her job was constantly cleaning the place, looking after the animals. She did not do anything else. The stepmother¹⁶ would not let her play, make herself up or go out¹⁷.
- (20) Dindik Hinar had reached the age of adolescence. She had turned fifteen or sixteen. She was fond of a certain cow. Among the flock of sheep and goats and all the animals they had in the barn, there was a particular cow that was red and very beautiful.

- (22) One day there was a big feast.¹⁸ It was time for recreation and joy.¹⁹ Dindik Hinar wanted very much to go out. But she (i.e. the stepmother) did not let her go out [and] said, 'You must guard the animals.'²⁰
- (23) Dindik Hinar did not bat an eyelid. ²¹ She was not troubled. She controlled herself [and] said, 'It's nothing! I will tolerate everything until my father comes back.' She simply played with the cow.
- (24) When the stepmother noticed that she (i.e. Hinar) was happy with the cow; that she would mount the cow's back, play around with it, and go to the river side, and they were happy together, she decided to butcher the cow.
- (25) She (Sora Chavshin) said, 'I will leave no joy for this girl! She is the reason my husband told me, "I will divorce you." I shall butcher this cow so that she will be without friends and companions.'

- (27) She (Sora Chavshin) brought a butcher and said, 'You must butcher the Red Cow.' When the Red Cow knew about this, it started mooing and calling Dindik Hinar. She went to it. The cow moved its head close to Dindik Hinar's head and spoke. The cow spoke.
- (28) It (the cow) said to Dindik Hinar, 'Do not worry!²³ After I am butchered, you will be left without a friend. But do not worry at all, because there are three bones in my back. Their colour is red.'
- (29) It (the cow) said, 'You should pick up those three [bones]. Whenever you are in big, big trouble, you should throw one of them in the water, and you should ask for what you wish.'

- (43) Then, Dindik Hinar heard a voice,³³ saying, 'I can find you the medication for the prince's son, but you will need to throw one of these [bones] into some deep water.' Dindik Hinar became so happy that she turned into a different person.³⁴
- (44) In that uneasy state she raised her voice and said, 'Truly, I shall be the person who cured the prince's son.' Sora Chavshin heard her and realized that Dindik Hinar was up to something.³⁵
- (45) She decided to hurt Dindik Hinar so much that Hinar would reveal what she wanted [to know]. She called her through the ceiling, 'Get up! Get up!' Hinar³⁶ said, 'Yes, stepmother!' She said, 'Come upstairs! Come upstairs, otherwise I will crumple your hair and bring you upstairs [myself]!'

- (46) So Dindik Hinar immediately threw away her milk pail, ran towards her, [and] said, 'Yes, stepmother!' Sora Chavshin said, 'What is that thing? What is that medication with you with which you will cure the prince's son?'
- (47) She said, 'What medication? I do not know any medication. I was playing around and said those words.' The stepmother said, 'No, I have often heard you speaking among people and saying, "I can cure the prince's son." Now, you must cure the prince's son.'
- (48) When Dindik Hinar realized that she would inflict something on her, she decided to play a trick on the stepmother so that she could not get what she wished. She (the stepmother) wanted so much to be the mother-in-law of the prince's son. She coveted being a close relative of the prince.
- (49) Dindik Hinar went to the bones and said, 'I have no option but to give you to my stepmother, so that she won't do me harm or hurt me.' The bones spoke and said, 'No, you can do something else.'
- (50) She said, 'What should I do?' They said, 'You shall squeeze three pieces of sheep's dung, make them round, and gave them to her. Then say to your stepmother that those are the medicine for the prince's son.' She was very pleased³⁷.

- (52) After taking those three clods from her, the stepmother immediately squeezed her hand with force, grabbed the clods from her, punched her in the eyes, bit her, and said, 'Go to your room downstairs.' To make her suffer more, she said to her, 'You should be careful not to break things in the palace!'
- (53) That is, the stepmother wanted to tell her, 'The barn you live in is like a palace for you.' The stepmother was very pleased that she had taken possession of the medication, which she thought was medicine.
- (54) She (i.e. the stepmother) went among people at the water spring of the village. The people were discussing the medication for the prince's son. She said to them, 'Haven't you already taken the medicine from Hinar?'
- (55) They said, 'No, we did not believe that the medicine was with Hinar.' She said, 'Yes, yes, the medicine was with Hinar. I took it from her. I will take it to the prince's son so that he may be healed.' The prince's son was very, very ill.

- (57) She (the stepmother) set off and took all the three pressed pieces of dung with her. She thought they were medicines. She went and gave them to her daughter. After she gave them to her daughter, she said, 'Go, take [this] to the prince's son', as if she was Dindik Hinar.
- (58) She (Hinar's sister) went [to the palace and] said to them, 'I have brought the treatment for the prince's son. Give him this medicine, he will be healed.' They (the prince's men) said, 'How should one use this medicine?' She remained [speechless]. She did not know what to say. [Eventually] she said, 'He should eat it.'
- (59) The prince's son really wished to be healed. The prince said, 'What happens if he eats it? We should give him the medication. However, since you have three medicines with you, it would be much better if you would try it on you, to see if it has an impact, a bad one, or not. I'm afraid I might lose my son. He is my only son.'

- (62) With much uneasiness she put the dung in her mouth. She was infected with the illness [caused by the medicine]. When she said to the prince that it was truly a medicine, that it was indeed very good, the prince⁴⁰ said, 'Then, I will give it to my son.'
- (63) When he gave the medicine to his son, the stepmother grabbed her daughter's hand [and] said, 'May your bones be broken! What have you done? Why did you do this to us? What is this medicine that you've brought?' She said [these words] to her real daughter. The daughter⁴¹ said, 'This is exactly the one that you took from Hinar.'
- (64) She (i.e. Sora Chavshin) said, 'No, this is not the one!' She (i.e. the daughter) said, 'Yes, believe me this is the one!' She (i.e. the daughter) said, 'What was that then?' —May it be far from you [the audience]— She (i.e. Sora Chavshin) said, 'It was animal's dirt.' She (i.e. the daughter) got very troubled. - (66) He intended to give the piece of pressed dung to his son. He brought it close to his son's nose. All of a sudden, he was startled⁴³ [and] said, 'O Dad, what is this medicine?' [The prince said] 'I haven't even given him the medicine yet and he is already healed.'
- (67) The prince's son said, 'Father, what are you doing?' He said, 'Son, this is medicine.' He said, 'Father, throw it away! It has a very unpleasant smell.' When he said, 'It has a very unpleasant smell', the father was obliged to smell the medicine.
- (68) After smelling the medicine, he gave it to his advisors, and said, 'Crumble this piece of pressed dung!' The advisor hit the dung with the bottom of his dagger. They saw that it [the medicine] was dirt and there were black worms in it.
- (69) When it became clear that it [the medicine] was dung, the prince decided to imprison them both, [that is] the mother and the daughter. They put the mother and daughter in prison and tortured them a lot.

- (72) She (the sister) said, 'It's all your fault!' She said, 'Why was it my fault? What have I done?' She said, 'The medicine that you gave my mother and sister turned out not to be a real medicine. It turned out to be an unpleasant thing. It turned out to be animals' dirt. They had planned to give it to the prince's son.
- (73) She (i.e. Hinar) said, 'Come on!⁴⁷' Hinar said, 'Are you really telling the truth?' She said, 'Yes, believe me!' She (Hinar) said, 'They had told me, "I will take the medicine from you lest people bully you." I did not realize that they would take the medicine to the prince.'
- (74) [Hinar continued,] 'I shall do something for them.' She said this on purpose so that she could deny responsibility⁴⁸ [over the imprisonment of her stepmother]. Dindik Hinar stayed still, contemplated, [and] said, 'What should I do? Shall I let them stay there [in the prison]? Shall I take them out?' She went back and forth.⁴⁹ She did not know what to do. - (77) It (the bone) said, 'All right! I agree. Throw me into the water!' She said, 'What will you do for me?' It said, 'I will take them out of the prison.' Again, Hinar was scared; she said, 'What should I do if I freed them from prison and they came [and] hurt me?'
- (78) She said to the other bone, 'If I throw you into the water, what will you do for me? It said, 'If you throw me into the water, I shall cause your father to come back from the trip tomorrow.'
- (79) Hinar agreed to this. She happily took the bone, went to the edge of a very deep water pond. With as much as force she had, she stretched herself back and forth and threw the bone. When the bone reached to the surface of the water, the news came to the village 'Our people in the caravan will be back in two, three days.'

- (80) When it was said that the caravan would be back in two or three days, Hinar said, 'It will be too late! I had told the bone that my father should be back by tomorrow.' Hinar went [towards her] home. She said, 'What's wrong?' They (i.e. the people) said, 'Our folks in the caravan will be back in two or three days.'
- (81) She said, 'How did you know that the caravan would arrive in two, three days?' They (the people) said, 'Well, your father came beforehand and told us.' Hinar was very pleased and said, 'To be honest, no one has done me as much good as the Red Cow. It (the bone) had told me that he would be back by tomorrow. He is back home today'
- (82) When the father came back home, he hugged Dindik Hinar and said to her, 'What happened to your beautiful clothes? What happened to your tresses and hair? What happened to your long sleeves? Why are you so untidy? Why are your clothes so dirty? Why is your face so dirty?'
- (83) She said, 'Father, my story is like this. It has been eight days that you've gone [and] all the [home] tasks have been a burden on my shoulders, [including] washing dishes, washing clothes, milking animals, cooking food, taking fodder to animals.'
- (84) The father said to her, 'Quick! Go and wash your face as soon as possible; [and] put on new clothes so that we can sit together. I do not want to see you like this. You're a very beautiful girl. You're a nice girl. You're the daughter of a very nice and beautiful woman.'
- (85) Whether she liked it or not, the heart-broken Dindik Hinar went and washed herself and her clothes, tidied her tresses and hair, tied her long sleeves, and came and sat with her father.

- (87) The daughter said, 'Ask her (Hinar)! Ask the one whom you said, "Go and tidy your tresses and hair!" He looked at her (Hinar) [and] said, 'What has happened Hinar? She (Hinar) said, 'Father, let her tell you!' She (her sister) said, 'No, no, you tell!'
- (88) She said, 'No, she should absolutely tell.' She (her sister) said, 'Say what the issue is!' She said, 'The story is like this. In short, Sora Chavshin wanted to take medicine to the prince's son, and the medicine turned out not to be real.'
- (89) The father became angry with Hinar and said, 'How could you do such a thing? Do you really make medicine? Do you know anything about medicine? Supposedly, you were my cute daughter! What's wrong with you? What has happened to you? I went away with a caravan for a short period, look how much you've changed, and so on.'
- (90) She (Hinar) said, 'Father, I can't tell you. Just let go of me⁵¹ [for a short while].' He said, 'What? Let go of you?' She said, '[Let go of me] until I do something.' He said, 'What are you going to do? She said, 'I will go to the prince's house [and] tell him what the real cause is.'

- (92) Hinar became very upset. She went downstairs. Only two bones were left. She said to the first bone, 'If I throw you [into the water], what are you going to do? The bone said, 'I shall do something that no one has ever done.' She remained still and said, 'I am not sure if I can throw it.'
- (93) 'What will you do?', She said to the other bone, 'What will you do?' It (the bone) said, 'If you throw me [into the water], I will set them free from prison.' She (Hinar) said, 'This can't be done! If I throw this bone, they will come out and say, "The story was such [i.e. they will turn the story to their advantage]" This can't be done.'
- (94) Hinar contemplated [and] said, 'It's better if I get them out of the prison. Let's see what happens. Even if I live till the end of my life in the barn, it is no issue for me. It is fine by me. I just do not want my father to be angry at me.'
- (95) [Hinar continued,] 'My life has been all suffering so far, let the rest be so too.' She went in the direction of the river to throw one of the bones. However, mistakenly, she threw the bone which said, 'I shall do something that no one has ever done.'
- (96) Hinar threw [the bone into the river] and came back home. She did not know which bone she had thrown into the water. She came back. She looked around: One day, two days, three days [passed by], they were not set free. She said, 'I shall go; I might have thrown the wrong bone into the river.'

- (97) She went [and] said to the bone, 'If I throw you now, what will you do for me?' It (the bone) said, 'I will set the family free from prison.' She (Hinar) said, 'Oh poor me!⁵² Indeed, I have thrown the other one [bone].' She had thrown the other [bone]. What will that bone do for Dindik Hinar? We're going to see now.
- (98) When she had thrown the bone into the water, one of the prince's advisors had said [to the prince], 'Pardon me your highness, what about the ones in prison? What should we do to them? Shall we set them free or not?'
- (99) He (the prince) said, 'Advisor, what are you talking about? Why should we set them free? I will kill them both! They wanted to dishonour my son. They wanted my son to be mocked by people. People would have said, "Indeed, his son has eaten dung." 'How could you say that we should set them free?'
- (100) The advisor said, 'Believe me your highness, there is something unresolved in this matter. We should find a solution for it.' He (the prince) said, 'What shall we do?' He said, 'We should go into that house [Hinar's house] and search it. We will look around to see with whom the medicine is to be found.'
- (101) [The advisor continued,] 'Because it is a household, the husband was not home, only the stepmother, a girl, and two daughters [were there]. One of them (the girls) is with us. The medicine should be with either of them [the other two]. Moreover, the husband came back a few days ago. Without doubt the medicine is with him.'53

⁵² Lit. May soil be on my head.

⁵³ Lit. Who would not say that the medicine was with him.

(102) He (the Prince) agreed that their house (i.e. Hinar's father's) should be searched. When they went [to Hinar's father's house] and searched the house, they approached her (i.e. Hinar). Dindik Hinar saw them. Dindik Hinar shuddered while they were still at a distance.⁵⁴ She knew that something was about to happen.

(103) They came [and] said, 'We will burn your house completely if you do not give us the medicine!' Dindik Hinar said, 'I beg [you] God!⁵⁵ God, from where should I bring the medicine?' There was only one [bone] left and that was supposed to bring them [my stepmother and stepsister] out. The other one [the other bone] has not remained with me.'

(104) But Dindik Hinar did not know that the bone which had said, 'I shall do what no one is able to do', would find a solution for the prince's son. The treatment for the prince['s son] lies only in Hinar's hands.

(105) Hinar stayed still [and] said, 'Believe me, I've got nothing on me!⁵⁶ I have no medicine. I only had one medicine, which I threw into the water.'

(106) They said, 'Did you really throw the medicine into the water?', 'Yes', [Hinar said]. The advisors said, 'In this case we will send some divers to go into the water. If there is no medicine, you shall tell us [about] the whereabouts of the medicine. In addition, you shall show us the exact place [in which you have hidden the medicine]. However, what if there is no medicine? Then what?'

⁵⁴ Lit. from afar.

(107) She said, '[If there is no medicine] then do what you want to do (to me)!' Hinar was sure that her cow, who had magical powers, would do something for her. When the advisor decided to send divers into the river, Dindik Hinar said, 'No, no, wait!'

(108) He (the advisor) said, 'What should we do? Why should we stop? What should we do then?' She (Hinar) said, 'I have the medicine for the prince['s son]. It is with me.' They said, 'What kind of medicine is it? We fear you may do⁵⁷ as your stepmother and her daughter did! [We fear] you too may do something similar!'

(109) She (Hinar) said, 'No, do not be worried about that.' She only said so to save face, and so that they would not lose the[ir] house⁵⁸.' Her father kept saying 'Daughter, sit down! You and medicine? Medicine and you? Let it go. God has already ruined our house, let it be ruined for real. Our house was [already] ruined, it was destroyed [because of misfortunes]. Let it be plundered as well.'

(110) Hinar said, 'Dad, take it easy!⁵⁹ I will go and examine the prince's son. I know what his treatment should be.' After she went to [the palace], she went to the prince's son. When [she went] to examine the prince's son, her stepmother and her sister saw her from the prison.

(111) From behind the bars (?) they heard Hinar's voice. She (the stepmother) said, 'This is good! Now, Hinar will be brought to the prison next to us. Because I know'—the stepmother said—'I know it is not her thing! She is not capable of making medicine.

⁵⁷ Lit. Lest you do.

- (113) Her hands were shaking. She said, 'Now that I'm going to see the prince's son, what should I tell him? Where is my medicine?' They said, 'What is your medicine? Give it to us! We will give it to him.' She (Hinar) said, 'No, certainly not! I shall visit him myself.'
- (114) She passed for a physician, a doctor, with so much grace, as if she had been doing the job for some years.' She said, 'No, I'm not supposed to give the medicine without visiting the patient and examining him. I shall visit the patient, make a diagnosis of him, open his mouth, examine his dry tongue, open his eyes, and smell his body.'
- (115) They agreed to it, and removed the curtain leading to the prince's son's bed. Hinar had made herself very attractive a few days earlier. Her attractiveness still remained. She said, 'I shall make my diagnosis of him.' She remained [still and said] 'What should I do? What shouldn't I do?'
- (116) She (Hinar) remembered that when somebody was ill, people would open his eyes to see what his illness was. She looked at him to see what illness he had. Hinar slowly opened the eyes of the prince's son. Catching sight of Hinar⁶⁰—who was beautiful and charming, and had beautiful long refined hair—the prince's son immediately smiled.

- (117) As he smiled the prince said, 'Oh!' He said, 'Oh! It seems to be a very, very good medicine.' Hinar could not believe it. She said, 'Wait, there's still a little work to do. I haven't given him the medicine yet. I shall have a look at his mouth too.'
- (118) While she was putting her index finger slowly on his lips in order to open his mouth, the prince's son kissed her index finger and said, 'Father, I've found my medicine!'
- (119) Then, Hinar did not know how to escape. She said, 'Your son's problem was love. He was in love with someone whom he had not met [before], and that person is me.' The prince's son said, 'How come?' That is, the prince said, 'How come?' She said, 'Indeed, the situation is like this!'
- (120) He said, 'All right! The important matter is that my son will be healed. It does not matter what happens now.' The son was healed. The prince decided to keep Dindik Hinar in his house and not send her [back] to her father and stepmother's house. Also, he decided not to set free either the stepmother or her daughter from the prison at all.
- (121) Some time passed on by. Hinar's father made a visit to the palace and said, 'I want to see Hinar.' They (the prince's guards) said, 'You will see Hinar at her wedding ceremony.' They had kept Hinar hostage.
- (122) They said, 'As soon as the son can get up properly [and] become agile and nimble again, we will marry Hinar to him.' [The reason was that] the prince's son had said, 'She is my medicine and my medicine should be with me.'

- (123) Then, Hinar, Hinar's father said, 'I beg you! I just want to see my daughter a little bit, just to be reassured.' The advisor said, 'No way! [You will see her] only on the wedding day!'
- (124) On the wedding day, when it was the wedding day, that is the day their wedding ceremony was to be held and they were to be married, Hinar realised that if she became the wife of the prince's [son], her father could not visit her, since she would be the wife of the prince's [son] and she would be staying in the palace. Moreover, her stepmother would not be released.
- (125) Now, all the three bones/one of the three bones had remained with her. It was the one for releasing the stepmother and her daughter. She (Hinar) rose, took the bone with her and said to the prince['s son], 'Before getting married, I must go to the river side.'
- (126) He (the prince's son) said, 'Why? If you want to go to the running water, the servants are here. They will fetch you water. What have you got on the edge of the running water?' She said, 'O prince, I shall go and throw this bone into the water.' He said, 'Why?' She said, 'You will see.'61
- (127) When she went to throw the bone into the river, the bone spoke. Hinar said, 'If I throw you, what will you do?' It said, 'I shall do what you want.' She stayed still, contemplated, [and] said, 'Aren't you supposed to release my stepmother and my sister?'

- (128) It said, 'No, I said this to you earlier. Now I'll do something else.' Hinar became very troubled and said, 'Indeed, they will stay in the prince's prison forever.' Dindik Hinar put the bone on her chest again.
- (129) She said, 'If I throw you into the water, what will you do for me? Could you not tell me what you will do?' It said, 'I shall do something no one has ever done. However, I won't set them free.' She said, 'All right! no problem! I may throw this [bone] too and see what happens.'
- (130) She really hoped that something good would happen. When Hinar went to throw that bone into the water, some guards and servants of the prince were with her. As she threw the bone into the water, the other two bones came up to the surface.
- (131) The other two bones came up [to the surface]. Hinar grabbed both bones, ⁶² brought them back, put them in her pocket, and went [to the palace]. The other bone did its job. When she went [back and] arrived at the palace, she saw that her father had come back again, asking to visit her.
- (132) When the father asked to visit Hinar, she (Hinar) said, 'Father, I missed you⁶³ so much! Do not think that I did not miss you. But you know that I can't go out often, since now I'm betrothed to the prince's son and it is difficult for me to move around.'

⁶² Lit. She gave her hands to both bones.

- (134) Dindik Hinar said, 'I promise you! When I really become his wife, I will have my own voice, and I will set them free.' They got married and became very happy together. But her stepmother and her sister were still there.
- (135) One night, the prince['s son] felt very healthy and fully recovered.⁶⁴ The prince said, 'I will go hunting.' The prince and his son went hunting game. Dindik Hinar talked with the bones.
- (136) She said, 'What will you do if I throw you into the water?' One of the bones said, 'I will disclose everything.' The other bone said, 'I will set your stepmother free.'
- (137) She said, 'All right, wait! I will set my stepmother free first. Then I will disclose everything. I do not know what will happen for the moment.' She could not understand. She did not know what the problem was. She said, 'All right!' She went and threw the bone into the water. Her stepmother and her sister were set free by the order of the prince's advisor.
- (138) By the order of the prince's advisor they were set free. They had begged a lot, 'Please set us free.' After being released, the stepmother went home. She went home. Two, three days, even less, passed by. The prince and his son were hunting.

- (139) The stepmother made a very good plan to bring back Dindik Hinar from that house. She went to the prince's advisor [and] said to him, 'I've been raising Dindik Hinar for a long time, and I know what she is like and what she isn't.'
- (140) [The stepmother continued,] 'Believe me! She is very crafty and very deceitful. She did all this to reach the prince's son,⁶⁵ only to reach the prince's son. Why is she going so much to the edge of the river?'
- (141) She said, 'Because, the enemy is on the other side of the river. She [Hinar] sends letters to the enemy, so that they would come, attack the palace, and kill the prince and his son.' After she said this, the prince's advisor notified the prince and his son [of her words].
- (142) He said, 'The situation is like this: your new bride wants to kill you!' By every means possible, the older prince persuaded his successor, the younger prince, to have Hinar killed. Or, if they would not kill her, they should imprison her forever.
- (143) They went to her and said, 'The situation is like this! We know about your trick. We know that you want to do so-and-so.' Hinar regretted so much that she had not thrown the first bone into the water first.
- (144) She said, 'All right! You can kill me provided that you throw me into the water.' They said, 'We shall just kill you. What's important is that you'll be dead. We'll kill you by whatever means possible.'

(146) The prince, his son, and his advisor, together with Sora Chavshin and Hinar's father went to the running water, which was deep, the same deep water, to punish Hinar. The father was very upset. Sora Chavshin pretended to be innocent, as if she was upset. Her sisters too pretended to be innocent, as if they were upset.

(147) However, the heart of the prince's son was completely with Hinar. The prince said, 'Throw her into the water immediately!' Before they threw her into the water, Hinar threw the third bone into the water. When she threw the third bone into the water, one of the prince's servants came [forward] quickly.'

(148) He (the servant) said, 'Your Highness,⁶⁷ please stop!' He (the prince) said, 'What's up? What's happened? Have our enemies attacked us?' He said, 'No, your Highness! It is a long story.' This means that the bone that Hinar had thrown [into the water] was the one that had said, 'I will reveal everything.'

(149) He (the servant) said, 'Your Highness! The situation is like this. I used to be a servant in that region. I would sleep right at the place where Hinar grew up. The place where I used to sleep was situated exactly behind Hinar's house. The point where I used to reside is still there. I know everything.'

- (150) He (the prince) said, 'Tell us what happened!' The servant said, 'The situation has been like this since Hinar's childhood. There was a cow. There were this and that. There were three bones. He narrated everything to the point where Sora Chavshin made the plan together with her daughters yesterday, a few days earlier on how to put Hinar in this situation.'
- (151) He (the prince) said, 'Arrest Sora Chavshin and her two daughters for me!' The prince's men caught them, brought them forward and put them on the ground.
- (152) He (the prince) said, 'Your punishment—you who wanted to kill a girl who is so innocent, helpless, and captive—shall be that I will throw you both into the well, into the river.'
- (153) As the three of them were brought forward and were thrown into the water, a bone came up from the river. As soon as a bone came up on the surface, Hinar went immediately, grabbed the bone and said, 'What are you here for? Should I throw you into the river?' It said, 'You shall not throw me into the water. You shall not throw me into the water. '
- (154) [The bone continued,] 'You shall go and give me to whichever cow you like [and] let it (the cow) eat me. She is going to have a calf. The calf inside her body will grow into me. That is, your Red Cow—I am that—will come back to you.'
- (155) Dindik Hinar was very pleased. Immediately, the stepmother and her daughters were punished. The father agreed to this since he realized that his only [orphan] daughter was without care, helpless, and subjected to injustice. Immediately, he agreed to it.

- (156) Hinar gave that bone to a cow. The cow gave birth to a small calf. The calf was red like the other one.
- (157) The cow remained with Dindik Hinar and her descendants for as long as they remained honest, did not harm others, and were kind towards animals.
- (158) Our tale has reached its end. As for me, I have come back [and] neither the prince nor his wife nor Hinar's father, have given me even a Pomegranate Grain.

Summary

Uncle Awdo Sula stood by his house in Shaqlawa in the morning and saw a beautiful lady carrying a tray on her head passing by and coming towards him. The man was thrilled and thanked God for coming across such a beautiful woman.

She greeted him and brought berries for him and his family. He, expecting she would have had romantic intentions, became infuriated, poured all the berries on the ground, and fed them to his hens. He told the beautiful woman to go away and never return. She nor his own wife understood why he was so angry. He had felt that he was being treated like a poor person.

He said, 'I was sitting [by my house]. It was morning', he said, 'and I saw a woman coming.' Her name was Aunt Warde—as far as I know. Yes.
- (2) He said, 'There was a big tray [she was carrying], which was covered [with a cloth]. She was passing by our alley, heading towards our house.' She came [closer]. I said, "God, look at that beauty. Look at her veil! God must have loved me so much for me to meet her this morning! It is a [great] life!"
- (3) It is said that it was the season of Spring. It is said that she greeted him and sat down. He said [to her], 'What? What are you looking for?' She said, 'By God, I have brought you some [berries]. I thought,⁶ "I shall not eat [them and give them to you]".
- (4) He said, 'What's this? Indeed, the thing, she removed the cloth on the tray [to show him what was in the tray]. He said,⁷ 'Wow! Indeed [the tray was full of] berries!' He became furious. He lost his reason.⁸ He was filled with rage.⁹

Two mullahs served the same mosque in the same village. One mullah always used to arrive at the mosque early in the morning and make the call to prayer before the other mullah came. The other mullah got very upset, since the people in the village blamed him for not working. He asked his colleague how he managed to arrive so early. His colleague told him that it was because he had two wives, who looked after all is needs, and advised him to marry a second wife. The other mullah, thereupon, brought a second wife into his home. The wives, however, made his life hell and the mullah escaped in the night and took refuge in the mosque. He castigated his colleague for his misleading advice. His colleague responded that their lives had now become the same.

- (1) My name is Seran Adday Sher. I am the daughter of Hane Awdo. I am [one of the] people of Shaqlawa. I was born in 1965 in Shaqlawa.
- (2) I have a story called 'The Two Mullahs'. There was and there was not, there was no one who was greater than God the Father and Mother Mary and shall never be, there were two mullahs. These two mullahs were mullahs serving the same village,¹ the same mosque and the same village.
- (3) These two mullahs served the mosque by calling to prayer, attending funerals and so on.
- (4) One of these mullahs used to be in the mosque at dawn before the time of morning prayer. He would make a call to prayer crying, 'Rise to pray' and so forth.
- (5) The other mullah used to get very upset. He used to say, 'How is it possible for you to be there before me?' People began to blame him saying, 'Why on earth have you come to us here? You do not offer us service nor do you call to prayer. You are not good for anything.'
- (6) So, he became very upset. He thought to himself² and said, 'Let me go and ask my colleague who comes before me a little earlier. I am late every time, I do not catch up with anything.'

He said, 'Believe me, the people of the village are not happy with me. They say "You come late and we never hear your voice. It seems you do not come either because your voice is not good or because you are a lazy person."
- (8) He said, 'Look, let me tell you one thing, brother.' He said, 'Do you know what? I have two wives.
- (9) These two wives, one of them always warms water for me [to bathe], one holds a cushion for me, one puts out my socks for me, one prepares my clothes, one polishes my shoes. That is why I get ready in a moment,³ and this is why I get here before you.'
- (10) He said, 'But how?' He said, 'I mean, what is your advice?'⁴ 'My advice is for you to have two wives.'⁵ He said, 'Are you sure?' He said, 'Just give it a try! This is your brother's advice to you.'⁶ He said, 'I shall go immediately [and marry another woman].'

⁷ The speaker uses the masculine pronoun ³aw although the reference is to one of the wives.

- (12) By the time he returned home, the cries of these two wives were reaching the other bank of the Zab River. One said, 'May a dog shit on the mullah!' Another said, 'May this [dog's shit] be on the head of the mullah.' Another said, 'May the dog shit on the mullah's grave.' Besides his sisters and his mother, they included them all in their curses.
- (13) What could he do? He entered [the house] and said, 'What is the matter?' He said, 'All right, why are you swearing at me? What have I done?' They said, 'But it was you who brought us [here].'
- (14) Well,¹¹ he did not know how the next two or three hours passed by. Before dawn broke, he fled from the hands of the two women as they were saying to him, 'You did this, you did that,' at the same time swearing at each other. He had a big headache.
- (15) He went away. It was night time and he could do nothing in the mosque. He could not call to prayer. The mullah could not make a call [to prayer]. He not do anything. He went and opened the door. He sat on the upper floor.
- (16) He sat on the upper floor. He said to the mullah—it is said that it was prayer time and the mullah began to talk to himself saying, 'Is it prayer time? No, it is not prayer time. So let me take a nap and close my eyes for a bit.'

- (18) He said, 'Why have you blamed me?¹⁶ Did you not ask for help from me? Do you see how I have helped you? You are at the mosque before me, so you will legitimately earn your money.'
- (19) 'But you,' he said, 'have turned my home into a hell.' He said, 'Should only my house be in ruins? So our life has now become the same.'
- (20) This story is told about those who do not have a headache but cause themselves to have a headache, so that people will learn a lesson from [the story of] this man. [The story] tells people that one should not act¹⁷ according to what other people say, but one should act using one's own mind, rather than stand and sit according to what [other] people say.

Summary

Two Mullahs served in the same mosque in a village around Khoshnaw. One of them would constantly miss the prayer time. He asked the punctual one to give him some advice. The punctual mullah said that he had two wives who took care of the different home tasks, helping him to get ready for work. The unpunctual Mullah believed this and took another wife. Not long after the marriage ceremony, the two wives started arguing with him, and there was constant quarrelling in the house. From then on, the unpunctual mullah would go to the mosque early—just like the punctual mullah. It turned out that they were both on time for prayers because of the same problems in their homes.

- (1) Well, my name is Hawsar Najat Bapir Rahman Surchi. I am from Shaqlawa. My mother is called Jamila. I was born on the 2^{nd} December 1988.
- (2) What I am going to tell now is a tale called 'two mullahs'. This story has often been told as a moral lesson¹ in Kurdish culture, in order to give people advice or to [encourage them to] amend social problems among them.
- (3) It is said that once there was and once there was not [but] there was no one greater than God. There were once two mullahs in one of the villages around Khoshnaw. One of them would go early to the mosque and call for prayer. The other one would come late to the mosque and miss the prayer.
- (4) One day, the first mullah (i.e. the one who was late) asked the second [punctual one and] said, 'What's up with you?² Really, what's up? You will go to Paradise sooner and achieve a greater merit³ [than me], since you wake up earlier than me, you call to prayers and you do not miss your prayers [unlike me].'
- (5) [The unpunctual mullah continued] 'As for me, I miss my prayers, but I want to have the same merit.⁴ Give me a piece of advice so that I know how you reached that goal?'

¹ Lit. It has come as a lesson.

² Lit. Is it goodness, you?

³ Lit. Your profit is more.

⁴ Lit. I want to reach that goodness for me.

You have one wife who cannot cope with⁵ anything [including your daily tasks]. By the time she brings you your food or brings you your clothes, I'm already out of the house [heading towards the mosque], but you keep being delayed.'
- (7) He (the late mullah) said, 'What's your situation then?' He replied 'I have two wives. My first wife brings me my socks, my second wife brings me my robe. The second one serves me food; the first one brings me the turban. That's why I reach the mosque earlier than you, [while] you're still sitting at home, the sun rises,⁶ and you miss the [morning] prayer.'
- (8) The [late] mullah kept thinking.⁷ He said, 'Indeed I would also like to go to Heaven soon. The earlier and steadier I climb the minaret and call for prayers, the more God will be pleased with me.'

Summary

Fatma was the only daughter in her family, and unaware of the fact that she had five brothers who lived in a mountain. In order to get rid of Fatma, her stepmother told her about her brothers' whereabouts. Fatma joined her brothers. Once their fire went out, Fatma had to search around for fire. She came across an old witch called Pirhavir, who agreed to give Fatma fire only if she would let Pirhavir suck blood from her fingers.

After a while, Fatma's brothers tried to kill Pirhavir by stabbing her, but she would only die by burning. Fatma tricked Pirhavir to walk on a hole under which fire was burning. Pirhavir fell into the hole but did not burn completely. She later made an alliance with Fatma's stepmother and tried to kill Fatma and her brothers. In the end the brothers killed Pirhavir, but her soul went into the stepmother's body. She was also killed and buried in an unknown place. It was believed that if water reached the corpse, Pirhavir would be reincarnated and take revenge.

- (1) My name [is] Bizhan Khoshavi Ahmad. [I am] from the city of Duhok. I will narrate to you a tale/ some tales that I have heard from my grandmother and some ... some old people in the region.
- (2) The first tale for us to start with is the tale of Fatma. There was and there was not, there was nobody greater than God, no bigger liar than man. Once upon a time there was a woman in a remote village.
- (3) That woman was married to a man who already had some children. He (The man) had a girl by the name of Fatma, whom the [his] wife or her (i.e. Fatma's) stepmother did not like much. She (the stepmother) did not like her (Fatma) to stay home. One day, she said to her (Fatma), 'My girl, go [and] play in the lane.'
- (4) When she (Fatma) went to the lane to play. One of them (the girls) cracked an egg on the land of a person. When the egg was cracked, each [girl] blamed the other. And each girl said (to the other), 'You did this; I didn't do this.'
- (5) Somebody passed by there [and] said to them, 'You must all swear an oath! Let's see who has cracked the egg? You must all swear an oath!'
- (6) The first girl said, 'I swear on my brother's head² [that] I didn't break that egg.' The second girl said, 'I swear on my two brothers' heads [that] I didn't break that egg.' The third girl said, 'I swear on my five brothers' heads [that] I didn't break that egg.'

¹ Lit. Each put (it) on the other's head.

² Lit. I put on my brother's head.

- (7) It continued like that. All the girls swore on their brother's head, 'We haven't broken the egg.' However Fatma, as she thought that she had no brothers, did not know whom to swear on. Everybody put the blame on her³ [and] said to her, 'Since you didn't swear, [it means that] you have broken the egg.'
- (8) She (Fatma) returned home with a broken heart [and] started to cry. She said to her stepmother/ she said to her, 'Why haven't I got any brothers?' It became a very good opportunity for the stepmother to kick her (Fatma) out of the house.
- (9) She said to her, 'Come here, I will show you your brothers' whereabouts.' She took her on the roof of the house [and] said to her, 'Behind this mountain over there, behind the mountain [there is another mountain]; Behind that other moutain there is a road to another mountain. There is a cave there. Your five brothers are there. They are busy living and hunting.'
- (10) [On hearing this] Fatma was quite astonished. She said, 'I shall go [and] find my brothers and live with them.' She knew that the stepmother had upset them a lot, and that it was necessary for her to go to [live with] her brothers.
- (11) On the way [to the mountain], the little girl (i.e., Fatma) became very tired. She got quite exhausted by the time she passed the first mountain and the second mountain and [finally] arrived at the third mountain.

- (12) On arriving at the third mountain, she saw a very big⁴ cave. It crossed her mind⁵ that her brothers should be in that cave—just as the stepmother had said.
- (13) When she (Fatma) went inside and looked around, she saw that ... what did she see? Five beds lying [on the ground], five sets of eating utensils, five sets of clothes, five spoons. Each thing in that cave was in five⁶ [sets].
- (14) When she saw all those [things] in five sets, she was sure that it was the place of her brothers. She looked around [the cave and saw that] it was very messy. Lo, she saw a brother sleeping on one of the beds.
- (15) In order for her brother not to hear, Fatma brought a big lining canvas [and] put it on her young brother —the one who was the young[est] brother— she put it (the canvas) on that brother. And Fatma rose [and] started to work.⁷
- (16) Fatma rose [and] started to work. She cleaned all the beds. She washed the clothes. She cleaned all the dishes. She swept all [inside] the cave. She had put everything in order, before her brothers returned.
- (17) After Fatma finished her [cleaning] tasks, she cooked a very good meal for her brothers out of what there was in the cave and what they had hunted—together with bread—she prepared [a meal] for them.

- (18) She said, 'Let it be orderly and clean here by the time my brothers, my other four brothers are back.' Fatma immediately went under a bed/or under a large cooking basket. She hid herself and waited⁸ [there] until her brothers returned.
- (19) When her brothers arrived, the eldest brother bludgeoned his way [through his brothers and] said to them, 'Oh, what has been happening here is indeed surprising! Our youngest brother did not used to be so conscientious. He has washed the dishes all by himself. He has washed the clothes. He has put the beds in order.' They (the brothers) started to thank him (the youngest brother), 'Bravo'! You have done a wonderful job.'
- (20) When the [youngest] brother woke up and saw that the house was clean, he said, 'It simply occurred to me¹⁰. Indeed, it was me who has done these tasks!' He said [to the eldest brother], 'By God, brother, after cleaning everything in the house I got very tired!'
- (21) They (the brothers) said to him, 'Bravo, brother! Tomorrow is our eldest brother's turn. Pardon, 'It's our penultimate brother's turn [the one who was born before the youngest one]; the one [who is] older than him (the youngest one).'

- (23) After the brother fell asleep, the girl (i.e., Fatma) noticed that he was still sleeping. She came out quickly. She took the dirty clothes and dirty stuff from the previous day out of the cave. She arranged them all and cleaned them.
- (24) In addition, she made a small garden of flowers in front of the cave and planted some flowers in it. Also, she cleaned the other side [the area around the cave] and put the things [around the cave] in order.
- (25) [When] it became evening, [and time] for her brothers to come back, Fatma again went under the cooking basket and brought down the cotton canvas, so that her brothers wouldn't see her.
- (26) The brothers returned home [and] looked around [and] said—The eldest brother, given that he was older and more clever than the rest, said, 'This is not something natural that has been happening here! Since my brothers were not that conscientious before, they wouldn't clean the house like this. They wouldn't arrange the things in the house in such a way. What has happened here? I don't know!' - (32) Before they left home [they debated who should stay at home]. Fatma did not hear their words. The brothers did not know it was a girl who was cleaning the cave. When they left, the elder brother too left the cave with them. He went to the roof of the cave and bent down his head in this manner [and] looked [down] to see what was going to happen in the cave.
- (33) He (the eldest brother) saw that a very beautiful girl came out from under the bed. She pulled up the lower part of her trousers and the lower part of her dress. She tied her shirt's sleeves and quickly started to wash [the dishes]. She cleaned the place. She tidied up the place.
- (34) Once, one of her brothers had been wounded while hunting. He was wounded in a part of his body. [On seeing the trace of blood on her brother's clothes] the girl started to cry. The girl started to cry [and] said, 'Oh, this is my brother's blood on these clothes.'
- (35) The [eldest] brother figured out that it was the voice of a girl that was coming [out of the cave]. That is, the voice was coming from a girl who was a close relative of his. In other words, she was not an ordinary girl. It was evident that she was either his sister or a relative of his.
- (36) He came down immediately [and] said, 'Who is that?' The girl (i.e., Fatma) started to cry. She saw her brother, scowled [at him] and said, 'Keep your distance from me.'

[During this period] he has only been in contact with [i.e., seen] his four brothers—they are five brothers [in total]. He has only been in touch with those four boys (i.e., his brothers) and their job was hunting.
- (38) She (Fatma) said, 'Me—don't you know me?' 'No', he (the eldest brother) said. She said, 'Do you have only four brothers?' He said, 'No, I have one sister as well.' She said, 'What is your sister's name?'
- (39) He (the eldest brother) said, 'I won't say my sister's name. But if you tell me your name, I shall know whether you're my sister or not.' She said, 'I am your sister, Fato.' Fato is the abbreviated form of Fatma. 'I'm your sister, Fato.'
- (40) After that, her brother became embarassed¹⁶ and hugged his sister. She said, 'It is very nice that we have found each other.' He said, 'Yes, but you must return to the village. It is wilderness here. You cannot keep up with it. You must return to the village.
- (41) She (Fatma) said, 'No, I will not return to the village. I will stay here.' The brother said, 'Why?' She said, 'The story is as follows. Our stepmother is very mean to us. She hurts and hits me. She humiliates me in front of people. I cannot return.'

If it is the case that somebody must stay in the cave and do the cleaning, [then] I shall do the cleaning and take care of the cave. You go hunting.'
- (43) Three, four weeks passed by. Fatma became very, very gorgeous. She became very beautiful. She took good care of her hair and her appearance and put on nice clothes. She would play in the cave. She would put on whichever clothing she wanted. She would eat whichever food she wanted to her fill.¹⁷
- (44) One day the brothers said, 'Fatma, Isn't it that we live here anyway? Why don't we bring [i.e. buy] two goats? [Why don't] we bring [goats] here from the village for our life to be pleasant?
- (45) Fatma agreed to it. They brought two goats. So, they had milk too. Once, Fatma—their fire was always burning. The fire was always burning. Why? It was hard to find fire¹⁸ in the olden days.
- (46) Many difficult techniques would be employed to make a fire. The fire would not be put out. Their fire would always burn. Fatma milked the goat. She brought it (i.e. the milk) to put it on the fire, in order for it to boil and for her to make yogurt out of it.

- (48) Then¹⁹ Fatma said, 'I shall not leave the home without fire. Before my brothers return, I shall find fire. Otherwise,²⁰ they will say, "It's been only few days since you've come to us. You have extinguished our fire. You have left us with no fire."
- (49) What did Fatma do? She looked around the area in order to seek a way to find [a flame of] fire [but] fire was not found. She decided to climb a high mountain and look around from there whether there was fire or not.
- (50) She (Fatma) went to a high mountain and looked far away. She saw that smoke was rising from a valley. [There was] a deep valley from which smoke was rising. She looked there. On seeing the smoke rising from the valley, she decided to go there.
- (51) Fatma approached there very slowly. She looked around. She looked around; what did she see? There was an old woman there. [She was] a hunchback. Her nose [was] big. A nose-ring was on her nose, on which there were some human fingers. The nose-ring was the size of a human finger. She was very ugly. She was very thin. Her fingernails were long.
- (52) She had put a large cauldron on the fire, in which there were the head of a calf and sheep, and the foot of a lamb—without being cleaned beforehand. She boiled them in the cauldron and was preparing them to eat [as her meal].

- (69) Nowadays, people say zəlkē dədānā 'toothpick' for čəlīk. They (i.e. her hands) had become very thin. Her brother became very upset. Since the brother was sure and certain that Fatma would not tell him the cause [of her wounded hand], he said [to himself], 'I shall spy on her.'
- (70) The next day, when the brothers woke up to go hunting, the elder brother did not go [with them]. He did not go. When he (her brother) realized that it was the [right] moment and Fatma would leave the cave, he followed her.
- (71) He kept following her²⁵ [all the way and] noticed that an old woman was there. The old woman grabbed Fatma's finger, crushed it with her teeth, extracted blood from it, and drank from her blood.
- (72) When she (Fatma) returned, the [elder] brother said, 'I can not cope with them alone. That old [woman]/ Pirhavir is very sly.' She had a scythe in her hand. A scythe is an instrument [that is used] for cutting plants. It has been used since long ago.
- (73) The brother returned home [and] said, 'Fatma, where have you been?' She said, 'I had simply gone into the fields to wander around. Why?' He said, 'No, Fatma, do not lie to me! Where have you been Fatma?'

- (76) He said, 'Alright! From now on we shall play a trick on her. We shall make a plan to kill Pirhavir.' The brothers gathered [in a meeting] at night in which they planned to kill Pirhavir. They said, 'We shall leave with our sister tomorrow. When Pirhavir has sucked Fatma's blood, and [when] she (Pirhavir) is about to fall asleep, we shall go together [and] kill Pirhavir.'
- (77) The next day, the brothers took out their daggers. They sharpened them, heated them, and cleaned them so that the next day they could kill Pirhavir, the woman who had hurt their sister.
- (78) When they (the brothers) went there, they saw that she was sucking [blood from] their sister's hand. All five brothers went towards them. All five brothers approached them [and] stabbed her [Pirhavir] with daggers.
- (79) They stabbed Pirhavir with daggers but she did not die. She disappeared into the sky [in the form of something like] feathers of a black raven. She disappeared into the sky. They (the brothers and Fatma) said, 'Oh, what has happened?'

- (81) She (the captive) said, 'Unless burned in fire, Pirhavir won't die, otherwise she won't die. They (the brothers and Fatma) said, 'What should we do then?' She said, 'Indeed, You—you should burn [her].'
- (82) They (the brothers) said, 'What happened to Pirhavir when we stabbed her with daggers?' She (the captive) said, 'She will go [and] revive somewhere else. She will come back here and will take her revenge.'
- (83) On hearing what [the woman] said,²⁷ the brothers were very frightened. Then they freed the woman and took her with them to the cave. While taking her to the cave, they (the brothers) said, 'What [shall we do] if Pirhavir returns?'
- (84) She (the captive woman) said, 'Believe me, it is only by setting her on fire that she will die.' Pirhavir came. She found the whereabouts of Fatma through smelling. [Pirhavir arrived at the cave and] she saw that her brothers were all sleeping. Her brothers were all sleeping.
- (85) She (Pirhavir) went towards Fatma. She put her hands on her (i.e. Fatma's) mouth and took her out of the cave. She said, 'Now that you have done such a thing to me, and you have betrayed me, and you have broken your promise to me, I shall kill you.'

- (95) They said, 'What shall we do then?' She (the captive girl) said, 'You should bring a lot of wood. We should burn it in the well until it turns into a bed of embers. [So,] when Pirhavir falls into the well, she will burn entirely. There should not remain anything from her body in the well, lest she [would be reincarnated and] came out of the well.'

They made a big bed of embers and put it into the well, until the next morning when Pirhavir was supposed to come. They kept setting fire to the sticks and throwing them into the well, so that the embers would keep burning.
- (97) In the afternoon of the next day, the brothers stopped [fetching wood]. They stopped putting wood in the well, the well which was made for the fire. Immediately, they brought the cow's skin and put it on the top of the well. They put some stones around it (the skin).
- (98) Fatma went towards a stone. She sat behind the well and combed her hair. The next day [when] the old woman came, she (i.e. Fatma) said, 'Pirhavir! Why have you just come now? It's too early now.'

I have laid it here for you so that you move forward here and we shall be happy together. I shall give you my finger in order for you to suck my blood. I am very happy with that.'

(102) When Pirhavir came there [to the well], she fell in. [However], she did not burn completely. Why? Because, she fell into the well on the side. When she fell into the well on the side, only one side of Pirhavir's body was burnt. The other part became a raven again and flew away to somewhere else.

(103) The tale has not finished yet, since Pirhavir is still halfalive. Her brothers could not return [to the valley]. They could not return [to the valley] by any means. Why? Because it was possible that Pirhavir would come back again and harass their sister.

(104) Pirhavir revived in the house of Fatma's stepmother.³⁴ When she had revived, ugly in appearance and a cripple, the stepmother became like somebody insane. She shuddered and was afraid. Immediately, she started to throw away things. She (the stepmother) scowled at her (i.e. Pirhavir).

(105) She (i.e. the stepmother) said, 'Get away from me! Get way from me! You dirty old hag! Is there something wrong with you? What do you want? What do you want from us? Get away from me!' - (111) She (the stepmother) said, 'Get up, go and search for them and bring them back now. Our reputation has been ruined among people. Everyone says, "His children are in the wilderness and mountains." What are they doing in those mountains anyway? Bring them back.'
- (112) The father said, 'All right, I shall go to look for them.' The stepmother knew where the sons and Fatma were, but she had not told him (i.e. the father), so that he would not go after them. He said, 'But where shall I look for them? in those mountains? in these forests? in these woods? Where shall I look for them?'
- (113) The stepmother said [to him], 'I shall say that a few days ago a shepherd passed by here and said, "Some people live in such-and-such place." You should go and pass not only this mountain, but the other one behind it, and also the one behind [the second mountain]. There is a cave there. They are there.'
- (114) The father said, 'All right; very well! I shall go and look for them.' When the father went to them, the brothers knew that something must have happened, since the stepmother had never sent for them. The brothers said, 'We shall not give Fatma [away]. We shall not return either!'
- (115) The father said, 'Don't disgrace us!³⁷ It's been a long time that you have been in the mountains. We've said to the people that you've gone to another city to work. We haven't revealed yet [that you live here]. Indeed we have not revealed [that you live here]! Your stepmother adores you.'

When they returned [home], they took the captive girl in the cage with them too. On the way home, they saw that a black raven was on a tree in the yard of their house, waiting for Fatma and her brothers to come.

(117) They saw from far away that the stepmother was giving some food and such to the raven so that it would not die. She gave it food. She slaughtered [some] hens and gave their blood to the raven so that it would not die of hunger.

(118) When Fatma and her brothers³⁹ returned [home],—the sons returned, Fatma also returned—Fatma bathed and washed her clothes, she cleaned herself. The sons too bathed. They cleaned their clothes. They renewed their spears and woolen jackets.

(119) The stepmother accused the son, the eldest son, of slandering⁴⁰ [and] said, 'He said a dirty word to me. He has lusted after me.⁴¹ He said a dirty word to me.' She said to the father (i.e. her husband), 'How can you accept that your son says such words to me.' He said, 'Which one of them was it [who said those words]?' - (121) When he was beating them, the stepmother said, 'It would be better if we chain them to each other and throw them into the storeroom until one of them speaks and says who has said those words.' However, nobody had said [any] words to her!
- (122) The stepmother said, 'We shall separate the brothers [from Fatma], so that Pirhavir can be resurrected from the raven's body and kill Fatma, because I detest Fatma.'42
- (123) Why did the stepmother detest Fatma? Fatma was so beautiful [that] when her father would look at her, he would be reminded of his ex-wife.⁴³
- (124) The father and stepmother⁴⁴ chained the brothers [to each other], hurt them a lot, and threw them into a shed, or let's say a sheep barn. When Fatma came home, she looked around [and said], 'What's going on? Where are my brothers?'—Fatma had gone to her friends— 'Where are my brothers?'

- (127) It turned out [to be a] very uneasy [situation] for Fatma, since she had no support from then on. Who could she go to if he (her father) would kick her out [of the house]? Earlier she had her brothers [to take refuge with]. Fatma remined silent and waited in the hope that something would change.
- (128) After a few days, Fatma went to start a fire and make some food. While she was making fire, the raven, that is ⁴⁶ Pirhavir, became very angry. [She saw Fatma] and she wished ⁴⁷ to go and kill her, and take revenge on her.
- (129) While Fatma was preparing the wood to start a fire, the black raven started to fly from far away to approach her. Fatma heard a voice. She felt something. She felt that someone was behind her.

- (131) However, this time it was very good for Fatma that the raven did not die. Why? Because her brothers were chained to each other. Their backs were (chained) to each other. They were chained together and they were in the barn. She (i.e. Pirhavir, the black raven) appeared among them.
- (132) She appeared in the middle of them and unchained them from each other. She cut the rope. When this happened, the brothers caught Pirhavir. They did not do her any harm lest she turned into feathers. They grabbed her. Each one of them (the brothers) caught her from one side.
- (133) One brother grabbed a hand, another grabbed another hand. One brother grabbed a leg, another grabbed the other leg. The brother who was elder than the rest grabbed her head. They brought her (i.e. Pirhavir) and kept hitting her head against a hearthstone until she had no forehead.⁴⁸
- (134) Pirhavir lost her forehead, however, the remnants of her corpse were still there. Her remnants went into the soul of the stepmother. After some years, the stepmother learned that that the woman (i.e. Pirhavir) had a malign soul in her body. Pirhavir's soul was in the stepmother's body. They killed that woman (i.e. the stepmother).
- (135) However, they hid her grave (i.e. soil), because whenever water reaches the earth in which she was buried, a soul would reappear there and would turn into Pirhavir again.

31. FIRYAT AND KHAJIJA

Summary

This tale is about a water spring called kahnīkā xamā 'spring of sorrows' in the Amedia region. Firyat, one of the nobles of the region, wanted to marry Khajija, but her family did not want to give their daughter to him in marriage, because they were from different religions.

Since Firyat was a powerful man, Khajija's family would have to agree to the marriage proposal eventually. They gave Firyat a false hope saying that they would give Khajija to him in marriage only if he would build them a canal flowing into a pool to store water.

After a while, Khajija's family noticed that Firyat was about to finish the canal, and they would have to give him their daughter. They went to Fatiha, who poisoned Firyat and tricked him into believing that Khajija was dead, after which he passed away. The water was called the spring of sorrows ever since.

- (1) My name [is] Ahmad Abubakir Sileman. I am from the village of Khizava, from the Gulī tribe. The spring of sorrow contains¹ a narrow canal [through which water flows] here, [the canal] is called Tangā Bānke. It is a rock [that has been] excavated by hand.
- (2) It is evident that the canal has been excavated almost four meters deep. It has been excavated by hand and it is two meters wide. The depth of the canal is four meters. Why was this rock excavated?
- (3) There was a man in this region. This [region] was sometimes populated and sometimes unpopulated. At the time [when this story happened] it was highly populated. It is said that the city of Minīn was very rich.
- (4) There was a king in these regions, [that is] the Minin area and its environs. He was called Firyat. Firyat was a powerful² man. He was wealthy and of great authority. He was powerful. Nobody could compete with him.³ He was a very rich man.⁴
- (5) There is an old village here called Bahnin. A girl used to live there whose name was Khajija. Firyat learned about Khajija's fame. She was a beautiful, gifted girl.

[I have heard that] she is a beautiful and gifted girl. You must give me this daughter [of yours in marriage].'
- (7) They did not want to give her to him [in marriage], [since] their religion was not the same. The one from Bahnin (i.e., Khajija) was Muslim. As for the other one (i.e. Firyat)—I do not know [for sure]—, he was either Christian or Zoroastrian. Anyway, they did not want to give her to him [in marriage].
- (8) He (i.e. Firyat) said, 'You must give [her] to me.' In fact, Khajija's family were helpless [in the face of Firyat]. They knew that Firyat was powerful and could take her anyway. They said [to him], 'We will consider [your proposal].'
- (9) Firyat returned [home]. After a few days, a woman ...— a family used to live in Bahnin, whom we call the family of Kulkā. This 5 woman was from this family. She was a thoughtful, intelligent woman. Her name was Fatiha.
- (10) The woman said,—naturally, when they (i.e. Khajija's family) considered the matter, they made a condition for him.⁶ First, they made a condition for him [and] said, 'We have a condition [that] you need to fulfil.' [Firyat said], 'What is your condition?'

- (11) They said, 'Oh Firyat, [you who are] well-off! You must make a canal from the river for us. It must come straight from the river. Make us a canal, which runs across this rock, the one which is called Barbine Dere. It is a highland and flat land, and it is an area [suitable] for agriculture. You shall build a pool for us to preserve the water coming through the canal!' 'All right', he (i.e. Firyat) said.
- (12) At that time winning a bet was very important to people.⁸ He (i.e. Firyat) rose [and] began to dig the canal.⁹ He excavated the rock. They had a look at his work and saw that he was going to carve out the rock and finish the canal [soon]. And [this means] that eventually they should give her to him [in marriage].'
- (13) The woman whom we talked about (i.e. Fatiha), the one from the Kulkā family, who was a clever woman, said, 'I will go and bring him poisonous pastry. I will kill him. Nobody is going to find out that I put poison¹⁰ in the pastry.'
- (14) The woman took her carpetbag. A carpetbag is [typical of] Kurdish regions. She filled it with some pastry. She marked the poisonous pastries and put them into the carpetbag. And she set off¹¹ in the morning [and] arrived at the spring of sorrow by midday.

Summary

Mirza Muhammad, the youngest of three princes, fulfilled his father's last will to be buried on a hill where a mare would lead him to. While taking turns to guard his grave at night, Mirza Muhammad defeats forty monsters (ḥambušaye) and their mother. Then his brothers wanted to break into a palace of a king who had three daughters. With Mirza Muhammad's help, they manage to get inside the palace. He killed the forty monsters and catapulted himself past the guards. He saved the king from a black scorpion by piercing the wall with his dagger, and claimed the three princesses for him and his brothers. The king did not know who had saved him. Mirza Muhammad's brothers wanted to prove themselves as the heroes, but failed. Then Mirza Muhammad revealed himself as the king's saviour, and the king rewarded him and his brothers by giving them the three princesses in marriage.

- (30) Believe me, he came and said, 'Thank God, [we're] fine, otherwise we would have been killed, [since] my brother was asleep. Well, so it should have been.'
- (31) Then²⁹ he went off and slept. He had been waiting for his brother. So³⁰ he prepared breakfast for his brothers.
- (32) He said, 'Wake up, brothers. It's enough. This is breakfast time. Thank God it's over, today there was nothing [the matter].'
- (33) The youngest brother did not say anything,—Mirza Muhammad.
- (34) Then, the whole day passed. They had dinner and had supper. It was the second night of holding guard. Next turn. It was³¹ Ahmad Chalabi's turn. Ahmad Chalabi, he, too, sat up till twelve o'clock.
- (35) He looked and said, 'Because no one came yesterday, no one else will come today. Our father's grave [is in what is] only wilderness, a remote place, that is.'

And the white one slowly like that on the black one, and it becomes day, and so on. This is my work, you know. I am in charge of making night and day.'
- (66) 'Then, for God's sake, old woman, [this is] exactly [what] I ask of you.'
- (67) 'How?'
- (68) He said, 'I just want you to turn it into night till I come back. Then turn it very slowly into day.'
- (69) 'Why? What's up?'
- (70) 'I have a task [to do],' he said.
- (71) 'No, your majesty, that won't be possible⁵⁰. How is it possible for me to turn it into n... into night just like that? No, there are people [who are] sick. There are many [who] go to their jobs. It's not possible, you know, for me to ruin my own work.'
- (72) Whatever he did⁵¹, she did not listen to him. So, when she did not listen to him, he got up and tied her to large beams. He tied her and left her there.
- (73) He said, 'I am going to get my fire and then I will untie her.'
- (74) Truly, he tied the old woman there, unable to stand up [to handle] a clew, nor make day nor night. It remained night.

- (77) But then⁵², they were⁵³ all sleeping. No one was awake. They would sleep [for] forty days.
- (78) Then⁵⁴ he hit the fire with his torch⁵⁵ to take it.
- (79) He thought to himself⁵⁶, 'Mirza Muhammad, don't you feel ashamed taking fire stealthily?'⁵⁷
- (80) Then⁵⁸ he threw the entire torch over the heads of these monsters, depending on what each one was like. No one woke up. They are monsters.
- (81) 'Very well then, they won't wake up. What am I to do?'
- (82) He hit his torch one more time to leave what's-it-called. His dignity did not allow it.

- (133) So he came, got out and went away.
- (134) No, he did not steal anything. He did not take anything at all.
- (135) So he went away [and] arrived at the tent, at their cave.
- (136) Look! He sees the old woman is there—what's-it-called—the monsters' mother is there.
- (137) He killed her. He cut of her neck, took her ears and put them into his pocket.
- (138) And he went off. He got to—what shall I tell you?—to the eh old woman. He got to the old woman [and] released her.
- (139) 'My Lord,' she said. 'Just say I am Mirza Muhamad! I would have turned not only one day into night, but I would have turned ten days into night for you . If you had just said I was Mirza Muhammad! Or not, had you gone off, then who would have known you were Mirza Muhammad?'
- (140) 'Yes, for God's sake, old woman, trust me, I did this thing out of [a sense of] urgency. You must forgive me.'
- (141) He released her. He said, 'But old woman, I am going away slowly. When I throw an ember into the air, an ember...'
- (142) 'Yes,' she said.

- (197) He said, 'See! This thing is not something to laugh about.¹⁰⁶ He who didn't do this thing cannot do it. He can't.'
- (198) At this time, he once more said, 'If one comes and says it's me and couldn't [do this], I will cut off his head.'
- (199) They were all petrified. Nobody could say anything anymore.
- (200) So, it has [to have these] pieces of evidence. It is not for everyone to say it is I. There is no need.
- (201) One time he cried out, 'Who is it? Who's able [to do that]?'
- (202) Mirza Muhammad said, 'I.'
- (203) He said, 'Who said "I"?'
- (204) His brothers got scared. 'No, Sir,' they said. 'Our brother is saying: "Isn't it time to go home now?" They meant to create an excuse for him.

Summary

Mirza Muhammad is the youngest of three princes; his two elder brothers are called Muhammad Chalabi and Ahmad Chalabi. Once there was a king with three daughters who set forth a challenge for those who wanted to court his beautiful daughters. Whoever could jump over the enormous trench he had dug would be entitled to his eldest daughter. Mirza Muhammad jumps over the trench and reaches the eldest daughter who knocks him with an apple. He took her and 'reserved' her for his eldest brother by hiding her in a room inside the palace. He did the same for the second and third princess. Then Mirza Muhammad's father passed away and the three brothers started checking the state of the palace. They opened the rooms where the three daughters were hidden, and each took one for himself.

nakon, as well as the Arabic imperative singular of the verb kwn 'be'.

⁸ Some other NENA dialects use the phrase na~kun in the sense of 'lest', which is similar to the Northern Kurdish imperative plural form of the verb 'do' (p.c. G. Khan), i.e. na~kən 'do not!'. The /ə/ would have shifted to /u/. There could also be a connection with the Kurdish conjunction neku 'lest'. Otherwise it is reminiscent of the Persian imperative singular

Summary

Mirza Muhammad was the youngest of three princes. After their father's death, they lost their castle to their uncle. Mirza Muhammad set off with his wife to another land. On their way, they arrived at a citadel, which was inhabited by a kind old woman. The sultan of another city abducted Mirza's wife and intended to marry her to his son. The old woman had her friend help Mirza Muhammad bring back his wife and also gave him her treasure. Later, Mirza Muhammad joined his brothers, who had now become poor. The brothers were re-united and took back the castle from their uncle. Eventually, Mirza Muhammad was chosen as his father's successor and inherited the throne.

- (30) The next morning, he rose [and] said to his brothers again, 'Let us rise and leave this place! It is not a safe place here.'
- (31) They both started laughing at him [and] said to him, 'You are a coward. You had simply slept [the last two night] and we kept watch. Nothing is going to happen.'
- (32) [Mirza Muhammad] rose, took out those men's ears [from his pocket], those which he had cut off, [and] said to them, 'Whose ears are these then? Isn't it the case that you would keep watch until midnight and then would go to sleep and I would keep watch until the next morning!? And these bandits intended to attack [and] kill us and take our wives and horses for themselves.'
- (33) Then they said this to him, ['stay with us'], but [Mirza Muhammad] said, 'I will take my wife and leave. I won't stay with you.' They said to him, 'Brother, let us be together!'
- (34) He said, 'I [won't stay with you].' He was angry with them. He took his wife, mounted his horse, seated his wife on the same horse behind himself³¹ and said, 'I won't be staying with you.' They went on a road; he went on another road.

- (69) The sultan⁵² was, let's say⁵³, a cruel man. He was cruel. He rose, said to them (to his man), 'Get up, go and bring the owner of this hair for my son.' He sent his men, all [equipped] with swords and shields, to attack the palace.
- (70) She said to him, 'O Mirza Muhammad!' The old woman said to Mirza Muhammad, 'Go round the palace! Keep watch!⁵⁴ See what is there, what is not there.'
- (71) Mirza Muhammad noticed that horses were coming from afar. The clip-clop of horses [was audible].⁵⁵ He came quickly [and] said to her, 'Some people are [about] to attack us.' She said, 'Prepare for a war.'⁵⁶
- (72) Mirza Muhammad picked up his sword and shield and mounted his horse. The three sisters too (i.e., the three daughters of the other woman) [also mounted] their horses. They wore men's clothes and picked up their swords and shields.
- (73) The old woman said, 'The back gate—one should protect it.⁵⁷ Don't leave it unmanned.'
- (74) Their mother (i.e., the mother of the three girls) went to the back gate, and the three sisters went together with Mirza Muhammad to the battlefield.

- (76) They told the sultan, 'We were many. They were four men. However, [even though] they were four men, each man equalled one hundred men, this is how skilful they were. We couldn't manage (to defeat) them.'
- (77) They made a plan [and] said, 'Tomorrow, you, half of you go to them⁵⁸ and fight [them], and you (another group), three or four of you, go to the back gate, so that you can bring Gulizar.'
- (78) Again, the next day, they went to fight. Again, Mirza Muhammad and his three sisters—well, they had become his sisters. They too wore men's clothes. They picked up their swords and shields and went⁵⁹ to fight.
- (79) They went and fought. They fought their fight. In that battle his (Mirza Muhammad's) sisters were killed. His sisters were killed. By the time he came back to the palace, the ones from the back gate (the sultan's men) had gone away. The woman (the mother of three girls) had been killed, and they had abducted Gulizar and gone away.
- (80) [Mirza Muhammad] returned to the old woman. He said to the old woman, 'What should I do then?' The old woman said to him, 'Get up [and] go! Mount your horse, go to the city of that sultan, Go!' She gave him the address of a family.

- (88) They rose and went to the wedding ceremony. They did not make any trouble⁶⁴ at first. They danced and attended the wedding.⁶⁵ At a certain moment, [Mirza] hit the light bulb with the long sleeves of his dress, and the light was put out.
- (89) The place descended into⁶⁶ [chaos]... They were shaken, 'Who did that? Who put out the light?'
- (90) The woman who was supposedly Mirza Muhammad's mother said, 'I will take my daughter and leave. It's not a big deal.⁶⁷ She is a[n innocent] girl. She put out the light [by mistake]. What wrong has my daughter done?'
- (91) During that time, Mirza Muhammad went into the groom's room⁶⁸. Mirza Muhammad went under the bridegroom's bed.
- (92) By the time the guests were scattered, and each went to their home, the groom went to his place and Gulizar was on the bed. Gulizar did not know that Mirza Muhammad had gone under it (the bed), since it was dark. He had gone under the bed.

- (94) She put a firebrand in a bowl and gave it to him. He said, 'Have I told you to bring it in a bowl? You should put a firebrand into your [bare] hand and bring it.'
- (95) She said, 'I wish to God⁷⁰ that Mirza Muhammad would have seen you!⁷¹ He would turn each of your firebrands like your ears.⁷²
- (96) When she said so, Mirza Muhammad appeared from under the bed, cut his (the groom's) throat with a sword,⁷³ took a sword to him, cut of his (the groom's) finger, and put it in his mouth, saying, 'Here, smoke your cigar!'
- (97) [Mirza Muhammad] put his (the groom's) clothes on, he was the new groom, [and] took off the women's clothing [he had worn]. He put on his (the groom's) clothes, took Gulizar's hand and left.

Summary

A king had an only son called Yohanan. When the boy was young, he used to enjoy praying with a monk, who used to come to visit from time to time. When the boy grew older, he wanted to leave home and go to live in a monastery with the monk. His parents did not allow it. He left secretly with the monk. They, however, had to return due to a storm. He told his parents that he was determined to leave. His father gave him a book of the Gospel as a parting gift. In the monastery, the boy became ill since he gave away half of his food to beggars. An angel appeared in the dreams of the abbot and of Yohanan giving instructions that Yohanan should return to his parents, since he had not long to live. When he returned, he did not identify himself to his parents, who did not recognise him. Eventually, his mother identified him by the book of the Gospel he was holding and by a birth mark. He requested his mother to build a church in his name when he died.

- (1) The story of Mar Yoḥanan. Mar Yoḥanan was the son of a king. The king had only one son.
- (2) There was a monk, who used to come down from a monastery to the place where the king lived. The son was young, like this. When the monk came, the boy used to go to him. He was the son of the king. He used to go to him. They used to pray together.
- (3) He grew up a little. He became this big. The monk used to come and go when he was on leave. When he (the king's son) grew up, he said to the monk 'I shall go with you. I shall go with you to the monastery.'
- (4) His father was the king, he did not allow him [to go]. His mother said, 'We only have you.' His name was Yoḥanan. She said, she said, 'We have only you. How is it possible for you to go and leave us?' He said 'I insist on going with this monk. I shall go to the monastery.'
- (5) They got up and went on their way. But they had to cross the water by boat, by boat they had to cross. He did not say to his father and mother, 'I am going with the monk.' He did not tell them.
- (6) There was lightning, rain and dust. The air became mirky. The boat keeper said, 'I cannot cross.' He said, 'I cannot cross.' He (the monk) said to Yoḥanan, he said, 'We shall return.'
- (7) They returned. They returned and after a few days the monk said to Yoḥanan, he said, 'If you don't tell your father and mother "I am going with this monk," I shall not take you [with me],' he said to him.

36. MAR GIWARGIS (ST GEORGE)

Dorota Molin

Speaker: Zarifa Toma Goryal (ChA. Enishke)

Recording: Lourd Hanna

Assistant: Salim Abraham

Summary

Giwargis was a Greek military leader. He came to a city steeped in moral corruption, but defended the locals from a serpent. He also saved the king's daughter, who was about to be sacrificed to the serpent. Giwargis came to the region (today's northern Iraq) and became a Christian. The pagan locals enslaved him, but he survived. He freed himself and became a religious teacher.

The speaker continues the story with the miracle attributed to Mar (Saint) Giwargis, which she personally witnessed. A Kurdish neighbour came to her with her sick child. The narrator advised the Kurdish woman to take him to the church, bring an offering to Mar Giwargis and leave the sick boy there. The woman did this and her son was healed. The child's mother was very grateful, but the Christian woman (the story-teller) warned her. They—the Kurds—should stop desecrating Christian holy sites, lest a bigger disaster fall on them.

- (1) I am Zarifa Toma Goryal Zayya from the village of Enishke. I come from Enishke. If you want me I will tell you the story of Mar Giwargis (St. George). I have heard about Mar Giwargis, I know (the story), the elderly used to tell (us).
- (2) He was a great leader, but he was not from here. He was Greek. (Once,) he came to a city and found a great injustice (being done there). But they made it into a story. 'If you care for us, there is a serpent in a wadi, which that has blocked the water. If we do not offer it a girl, it will not let the water flow,' said the king of that city.
- (3) He mounted his horse, carrying his sword. He went and the serpent came out shrieking and screeching at him. They both started fighting, I mean, duelling. They started fighting and he struck the serpent in the mouth with his bayonet. He killed him and the wadi was stained with its blood.
- (4) The king's daughter was brought on the day that the serpent would eat her. He took her, put her on the back of a horse and brought her to her father. But what did his people do? They arrested him, (so) he fled and came here and became a follower of God.
- (5) The region where he was did not know God. What were they? They were pagans. They arrested him and put him in jail. They beat him and tortured him. But he still survived. He had the Holy Spirit in him and became a great saint.
- (6) What did they do? They made him work at a mill (like those) of old. A mill in the past was very hard (to work in). A mill in the past had a large flat stone and another stone on top of it. They put him in that mill and no matter how hard they made him grind, he did not die. No matter how hard made him spin [the millstone], he did not die.

² From ču ga 'not once'.

³ This possessive particle has the base di^{2} , though diy- occurs elsewhere. The glottal stop was likely inserted for emphasis: 'It was in my house that this took place.'

⁴ I am not familiar with the verb xayas/xasle (from the root xys) in other NENA dialects. Hezy Mutzafi (personal communication) has suggested a connection to the Classical Aramaic verb 'to have mercy' (> here apparently 'to love, respect'), from the root h(y)s.

- (7) He got up and left. He became a teacher, a pious man and a preacher. His name spread across all the villages, the villages of the Sapna Valley. Every village... He has many villages, Mar Giwargis. [He did this] until he grew old and died. (May I be) a sacrifice for his power.
- (8) We worship him and love him, he is in our village, we hold his memorial twice every year. We believe in him and whatever we ask him, he commands... He has never denied us a request. He has fulfilled our desires. This is the story of Mar Giwargis, (may I be) a sacrifice for his power.
- (9) It was our Mar Giwargis... Muslim people gathered together—this all happened in front of our eyes, I mean it happened in my home—they gathered, but did not respect him.
- (10) I mean, the Muslims occupied the village. For twenty-five years, our village was occupied by immigrants. Our property and our water supplies, our storehouses and hotels fell into their hands. We became unemployed in our (own) village, all our children.

⁵ Probably intended: lé xesiwa 'they did not respect (imperfective)'. Instead, however, we find the present form lé xesi 'they do not respect', apparently along with watwa 'you (MS) were'.

⁶ Instead of the expected ya^cqub.

⁷ Lit. leave the door. Presumably, an idiom meaning 'differ'.

- (11) You would not have loved the church. They used to dump rubbish, a mess, everything. One day a woman came up to me. She had a young boy. 'Mother of Yakub,' she said. 'Yes,' I said. She spoke Kurdish and we and Kurdish women cannot be told apart [when speaking Kurdish]. We and the Kurds cannot be told apart [based on speaking]. We all grew up together.
- (12) She said, 'My little boy faints every day [from] coughing.' 'Have you taken him to the doctor? She had taken him [to many doctors], she had taken him around all the doctors. I said, 'Take him into the church, which you do not respect. Take him inside it. Lock the door behind him.
- (13) Let him scream and do whatever he likes and make an offering on his behalf, and he will be healed.' She went up to the church, put her son to sleep, locked the door and made an offering to Mar Giwargis. Her son got healed.
- (14) This happened in my house, it happened with me [present]. The boy's mother and I became close friends and she used to visit our home often. She said, 'May God grant you [a long life], may God keep you, God willing. You brought relief to my son.'
- (15) I said, 'He is a great saint, but you pay him no respect and do not honour him, you [throw] rubbish, a mess, hang your clothes there. He does not want this and will not accept it from you. He has done you something small for you, but be careful lest something more grave befalls you.' This was [the story], my daughter.

Summary

A certain horse called Dildil (alternatively Dindil) had the power to fly. Once a prophet was riding Dildil on the way to a village called Sarao in the Barwar region. The prophet came across a couple of villains who waylaid him. He prayed to God to be relieved from this predicament. The only way to get out of the situation was through a certain stone called 'Muzalan'. God caused the stone to become soft like dough. Then Dildil walked on the stone until they reached a safe place and got rid of the villains.

It is believed that the footprints of Dildil are still visible on the Muzalan stone. The narrator talks about the cultural significance of Dildil in the region. There are folk songs in which there is reference to Dildil. Historically it is believed that Dildil was the name of the mule of the prophet Muhammad, which was later passed down to Imam Ali. Nowadays in the Barwar region the term 'Dildil' is used to refer to the good quality of a horse.

- (1) My name is Herish. I am twenty-eight years old. I am from Upper Barwar. I am the son of Rashid Bag Barwari, the grandson of Tawfiq Bag, and the great-grandson of Haji Rashid Bag Barwari.
- (2) I have been going around the Barwar region for almost four years. I have collected a lot from the older generation in Barwar. Apart from everyday conversations with people, I have also collected some folktales, a few of which I will tell to you.
- (3) My aim is that the tales I tell you will be written down so that people will not forget, since these tales have been entrusted² to us. They have been passed down to us from our ancestors and will be transmitted to other people. Let us start with the tale of Dildil.
- (4) The first story [is] that of Dildil. It is said that Dildil was a horse whose hooves were like those of cows and bulls. Its hooves were not round [and] horseshoes could not be installed on them. Its footprints on the earth were like those of buffaloes. It was like them.
- (5) It is said that a prophet used to ride Dindil.³ As for this Dindil,—wherever you wanted to go in the world, you could just mount Dindil, and it would fly over there. There are a few villages around here, [two of them are] called Adin and Sararo. On the road to Sararo, in the shady mountain slope by Sararo, there is a stone called the stone of Muzalan. The stone of Muzalan is famous for having the footprints of Dindil on it.

¹ I.e. the stories that they tell us regularly.

² Lit. are like an entrustment.

³ Dindil is a variant of Dildil, see paragraph 10.

Atmān sīyārē dəndəlè! pāžo hara Müsəlè!

- (6) It is said that a⁴ prophet was waylaid from all four different directions. The villains waylaid the prophet, the one who was riding Dindil. He prayed to God to be released form this predicament and dire situation. So⁵ what did he do? So⁶ he prayed to God to open up a way for him to flee from this predicament.
- (7) It is said, what did the Lord of all Worlds do? Dindil ... the horse ridden by the prophet ... He (i.e. the God) did something to Muzalan, the stone of Muzalan, such that it became soft like dough. Dindil put its feet on the stone and went up from the stone of Muzalan until it reached the road leading to the village of Sararo.
- (8) It is said that the footprints of Dindil have remained on the Muzalan stone until today, the one which overlooks the road of the village of Sararo. What we have seen and heard about Dindil, we did⁷ so through [folk] songs [as well].
- (9) There is a song called Atmani, which is told by the Shekhani. It is sung [particularly] in Duhok, and is as follows:

Atman! The rider on Dindil!

Ride it! Go to Mosul!

⁵ Lit. He rose.

⁴ Lit. this.

⁶ Lit. He rose.

⁷ Lit. have heard.

- (10) av təštēt wasà žīk=ēt nāv da hayn. haka am dīf ṛā bə-cin hēštā handī lēkoļīnà bə-kayn ū lə dīv bə-cin ku Dəldəl nà Dəndəl=a Dəldəl=a nāvē wī. nāvē hēstərā payxambari=a bo imām ʿAlī mābo. tə-bēžən hēstərakā səpi bo.
- (11) bas lə daf mà nāv Barwārīyā, lə daf mà, vārāvtər təbēžən-a Dəldəlì. fəlān kasī haspē wī Dəldəl-a, yaʻnī šēt bē bə-fřīt, wasā lə asmānā t-hēt-ū čītən.

- (10) Such couplets are in it (the song). If we follow this matter and do some research on this topic, the name of the horse is not Dindil, but Dildil. This (i.e. Dildil) was the name of the mule of the prophet Muhammad, which was later passed down to Imam Ali. It is said that Dildil was a white mule.
- (11) In our region called Barwar, in our region, we rather say Dildil. [When we say] someone's horse is Dildil, it means that the horse [is so powerful that it] could fly [and] travel through the sky.

38. THE FOUL-MOUTHED PRIEST

Summary

The people of Shaqlawa complained to the bishop about a foul-mouthed priest. The bishop went to Shaqlawa to find out if the people were right, but could not find any fault with him. One day he and the priest visited an old woman to bless her house. She kept them waiting at the door, as she went to collect eggs and lay them under the hens, so that they would hatch, because she believed all eggs would hatch when a priest comes to visit. When the foul-mouthed priest lost his patience and started calling her names, the bishop finally realised the people of Shaqlawa were right.

- (1) Tales are abundant. I will narrate this one too, no problem! It was said that there once was a [Christian] priest. The priest was very foul-mouthed. He would constantly curse [people].
- (2) The people said, 'How is it possible for a priest to be [like this]! He is a religious leader, and our children are going to know [about bad language]. They are going to learn from him.' So,¹ they went in a group, they went secretly, they went to the bishop, to complain to him [about the priest's behaviour].
- (3) They went to the bishop. The bishop said, 'What's wrong?'² Indeed, they said, 'The situation is like this.' The bishop said, 'All right! It doesn't matter [for now]! Be patient³ [for now]. Return⁴ [to Shaqlawa]!' I will come [there] later. He (i.e. the bishop) thought,⁵ 'Perhaps they are lying or [rather] they are right [about the priest]. I shall go to find out whether it is so or not!'
- (4) Once he (i.e. the bishop) came to Shaqlawa and—let me say—he came. Needless to say, the priest greeted and welcomed him. For a day or two, he did not see anything wrong with him (i.e. the priest). They slept there together [in the same place].

- (5) [One day] he said [to the priest], 'My son! Oh priest! Starting from tomorrow we are going to visit families.' In the old days, they (i.e. the members of the church) would go from house to house to bless the families. Yes. There was a [special] prayer [that] they would say.⁶
- (6) He (i.e. the priest) said [to the bishop], 'Please [let's go]!' [He replied] to the bishop in this manner. Indeed, they went out. They spontaneously went to the house of an old woman. They went to the house of an old woman, she was sitting on a terrace in the shade.
- (7) [On seeing them], she got up onto [her] feet [and kept saying], 'Oh welcome! May I be your sacrifice! You have come at a good moment.' He (i.e. the bishop) said, 'Thanks,⁷ my daughter. We have come to your house.' She said, 'May I be your sacrifice, I will go inside the house, I will be back in a moment.'8
- (8) The old woman went inside. She did not come out [of the house] for a while. It took her a lot of time. The bishop tolerated [her delay]. But the priest, the one I have been talking about, became impatient. He was furious. He was seeking such an opportunity [to swear]. It

- (9) He kept saying, 'O Father, what happened to her?' 'Well,' he said. 'My son, be patient! She will be back shortly.' The woman came [to the guests and said], 'May I be your sacrifice! You are very welcome! Please pardon me [for the delay].' He, the bishop replied calmly, 'My daughter, what took you so long inside the house?'
- (10) She said, 'May I be your sacrifice! Our ancestors have said, "If one has a hen [and] it is the time for the hen to hatch, one should lay eggs under the hen ... eh ... no, if a bishop like Your Holiness is paying a visit to a family, one should lay eggs under a hen. The hen will brood them. All the eggs will hatch. None of them will be rooster."
- (11) [The old woman continued] 'It took me a while until I collected all of them [the eggs] and laid them under the hen. May I be your sacrifice! [Pardon me!]' The priest [who was] with him said—he cursed her. I am not going to say it— 'Oh [you] bitch, she-ass! You have kept us waiting downstairs for an hour because of some chickens and eggs?'
- (12) The bishop said, 'My son, be calm!'¹⁶ He said, 'Oh Father! Who can tolerate such behaviour?' Only then did the bishop come to realise that he was impatient and foul-mouthed.

Cambridge Semitic Languages and Cultures

About the series

This series is published by Open Book Publishers in collaboration with the Faculty of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies of the University of Cambridge. The aim of the series is to publish in open-access form monographs in the field of Semitic languages and the cultures associated with speakers of Semitic languages. It is hoped that this will help disseminate research in this field to academic researchers around the world and also open up this research to the communities whose languages and cultures the volumes concern. This series includes philological and linguistic studies of Semitic languages, editions of Semitic texts, and studies of Semitic cultures. Titles in the series will cover all periods, traditions and methodological approaches to the field. The editorial board comprises Geoffrey Khan, Aaron Hornkohl, and Esther-Miriam Wagner.

This is the first Open Access book series in the field; it combines the high peer-review and editorial standards with the fair Open Access model offered by OBP. Open Access (that is, making texts free to read and reuse) helps spread research results and other educational materials to everyone everywhere, not just to those who can afford it or have access to well-endowed university libraries.

Copyrights stay where they belong, with the authors. Authors are encouraged to secure funding to offset the publication costs and thereby sustain the publishing model, but if no institutional funding is available, authors are not charged for publication. Any grant secured covers the actual costs of publishing and is not taken as profit. In short: we support publishing that respects the authors and serves the public interest.

Neo-Aramaic and Kurdish Folklore from Northern Iraq

A Comparative Anthology with a Sample of Glossed Texts VOLUME 2

Geoffrey Khan, Masoud Mohammadirad, Dorota Molin and Paul M. Noorlander In collaboration with Lourd Habeeb Hanna, Aziz Emmanuel Eliya Al-Zebari and Salim Abraham

This comparative anthology showcases the rich and mutually intertwined folklore of three ethno-religious communities from northern Iraq: Aramaic-speaking ('Syriac') Christians, Kurdish Muslims and—to a lesser extent—Aramaic-speaking Jews. The first volume contains several introductory chapters on language, folkore motifs and narrative style, followed by samples of glossed texts in each language variety. The second volume is the anthology proper, presenting folklore narratives in several distinct varieties of North-Eastern Neo-Aramaic and Northern and Central Kurdish. The stories are accompanied by English translations. The material includes different genres such as folktales, legends, fables and anecdotes, and is organised into seven thematic units. The folkloristic material of these three communities is shared to a large extent. The anthology is, therefore, a testament to the intimate and long-standing relations between these three ethno-religious communities—relations that existed in a multilingual environment centuries before the modern era of nationalism.

As with all Open Book publications, this entire book is available to read for free on the publisher's website. Printed and digital editions, together with supplementary digital material, can also be found here: www.openbookpublishers.com
