

OPERA OMNIA DESIDERII ERASMI

OPERA OMNIA
DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI

RECOGNITA ET ADNOTATIONE CRITICA INSTRVCTA
NOTISQVE ILLVSTRATA

ORDINIS NONI TOMVS TERTIVS

MCMXCVI

ELSEVIER

AMSTERDAM – LAUSANNE – NEW YORK – OXFORD
SHANNON – TOKYO

Sous le patronage de
L'UNION ACADEMIQUE INTERNATIONALE
ET DE L'ACADEMIE ROYALE NÉERLANDAISE DES SCIENCES
ET DES SCIENCES HUMAINES

© 1996 Elsevier Science B.V. All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior permission of the copyright owner.

Library of Congress Catalog Card Number: 71 89942

ISBN: – Tomus IX,3: 0444 82385-9

CONSEIL INTERNATIONAL POUR L'ÉDITION DES ŒUVRES
COMPLÈTES D'ÉRASME

S. DRESDEN, Leyde, Président; L.-E. HALKIN, Liège, Vice-président; C. REEDIJK, Haarlem, Secrétaire-général/trésorier; J. TRAPMAN, La Haye, Secrétaire; C. AUGUSTIJN, Amsterdam;
CH. BÉNÉ, Grenoble; V. BRANCA, Venise; F. HEINIMANN, Bâle; O. HERDING, Francfort;
B.R. JENNY, Bâle; J.-C. MARGOLIN, Paris-Tours; J.-P. MASSAUT, Liège; J.K. McCONICA, Oxford;
Mme M.E.H.N. MOUT, Leyde; G.H.M. POSTHUMUS MEYJES, Leyde; C.S.M. RADEMAKER ss. cc., Zierikzee; P.-G. SCHMIDT, Freiburg i. Br.; A. SOTTILI, Turin; H. VREDEVELD, Columbus OH;
A.G. WEILER, Nimègue

COMITÉ DE RÉDACTION

F. AKKERMANN, Groningue; G.J.M. BARTELINK, Nimègue; A.M.M. DEKKER, Utrecht; J. DOMAŃSKI, Varsovie; L.-E. HALKIN, Liège; A. VAN HECK, Leyde; C.L. HESAKKERS, Leyde; H.J. DE JONGE, Leyde;
Mme M.L. VAN POLL-VAN DE LISDONK, Vierpolders; C. REEDIJK, Haarlem; J. TRAPMAN, La Haye

SECRÉTARIAT DU CONSEIL
Constantijn Huygens Instituut
Boîte Postale 90754, 2509 LT La Haye, Pays-Bas

Les membres néerlandais du Conseil (qui constituent la ‘Commission Érasme’) sont chargés, avec le secrétariat, de la gestion des affaires courantes.

This volume has been printed on acid-free paper

Printed in the Netherlands

IN HOC VOLVMINE CONTINETVR

APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM
FABRVM STAPVLENSEM

ed. Andrea W. Steenbeek

PREFACE	VII
INTRODUCTION	I
I. The Historical Situation in which the Apologia ad Iacobvm Fabrvm Stapvlensem Originated	I
II. The History of the Controversy between Erasmus and Lefèvre ...	7
III. A Synopsis of the Contributions of Erasmus and Lefèvre to their Controversy on the Interpretation of Hebreos 2,7	16
IV. An Analysis of the Text of Erasmus' Apologia against Lefèvre. Its Literary Genre	17
V. The Christologies of Erasmus and Lefèvre	22
VI. The History of the Printed Text of Erasmus' Apologia against Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples	46
VII. The Date of the Second Edition of Lefèvre's Epistole Divi Pavli Apostoli cum Commentariis	60
A Select Bibliography of the Controversy between Erasmus and Lefèvre d'Étaples	65
List of the Editions of the Apologia ad Iacobvm Fabrvm Stapvlensem up to and Including 1540	76
CONSPECTVS SIGLORVM AND STEMMA EDITIONVM	78
DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM FABRVM STAPVLENSEM	79
APPENDIX I: Annotatio Iacobi Fabri Stapvlensis in Psalmvm 8,6 (1509)	197
APPENDIX II: Annotatio Iacobi Fabri Stapvlensis in Hebraeos 2,7 (1512)	201

APPENDIX III: Annotatio Desiderii Erasmi Roterodami in Secundum Capvt Epistolae ad Hebraeos ex Ipsius Opere Dekerpta quam Jacobus Faber Siapvlensis Impvgnat (March 1516)	203
APPENDIX IV: Dispvtatio Iacobi Fabri adversus Superiorem Annotationem Desiderii Erasmi Roterodami ex Eivsdem Fabri Commentariis in Secvndvm Capvt Epistolae ad Hebraeos (after November 1516 and before July 1517) .	206
APPENDIX V: Symma Totius Dispvtationis Contracta in Articulos, Additis Dvobvs Verbis Eorum Qvae Obiicivntur Solvntionibvs (1518)	225
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	241
INDEX NOMINVM	249

PREFACE

This twenty-third volume in Erasmus' Opera omnia (ASD) is the third volume of the ninth 'ordo', that is the 'ordo' of the Apologies. The division into 'ordines' – each 'ordo' being devoted to a specific literary or thematic category – was laid down by Erasmus himself for the posthumous publication of his works (cf. General introduction, ASD I, pp. x, xvii–xviii, and C. Reedijk, Tandem bona causa triumphat. Zur Geschichte des Gesamtwerkes des Erasmus von Rotterdam. Vorträge der Aeneas-Silvius-Stiftung an der Universität Basel, XVI, Basel/Stuttgart, 1980, pp. 12 sqq., 21–22. For the reason why the collected Apologies eventually became the ninth 'ordo,' see the Preface to ASD IX,2, p. vii).

The present volume contains the Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, edited by Andrea W. Steenbeek (Leiden). It is the slightly adapted version of her Leiden Ph.D. thesis (1994) which was supervised by Professor H.J. de Jonge.

The Conseil international pour l'édition des œuvres complètes d'Erasme mourns the loss of the former director of North-Holland Publishing Company, Mr. M.D. Frank, who died on 9 November 1995. As early as 1964 he expressed his willingness to publish the new critical edition of Erasmi Opera omnia; after North-Holland was incorporated into Elsevier Science Publishers he kept a lively interest in the Erasmus edition. The Conseil will remember him with gratitude and respect.

For reasons of health Professor Maria Cytowska resigned from the Conseil, which she had joined in 1979. The Conseil wishes to express its gratitude to Professor Cytowska for all she did for the Erasmus edition. The Conseil welcomes as new members Professor Nicolette Mout (Leiden University) and Professor Harry Vredenburg (Ohio State University).

Professor Dresden and Professor Augustijn resigned from the Editorial Board. However, since they are staying on as members of the Conseil international, the Board will have every opportunity to avail itself of their advice and support. Dr. M.L. van Poll-van de Lisdonk was elected to the Editorial Board.

The Editorial Board and the editor of the present volume are grateful to all libraries that kindly put books, photostats, microfilms, and bibliographical material at their disposal.

Constantijn Huygens Instituut
Postbus 90754
2509 LT Den Haag
April 1996

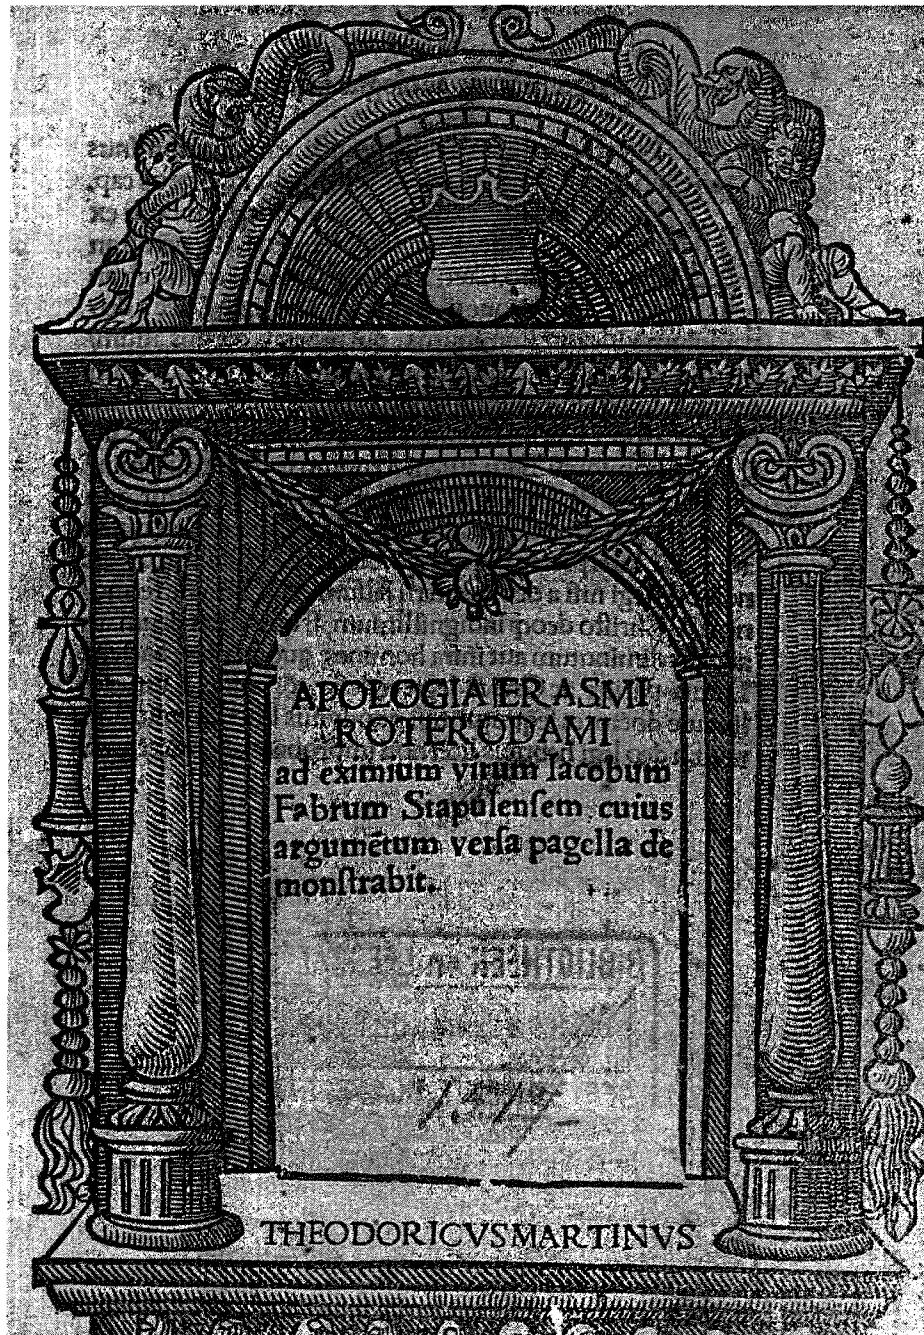

The Editorial Board

APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM
FABRVM STAPVLENSEM

edited by

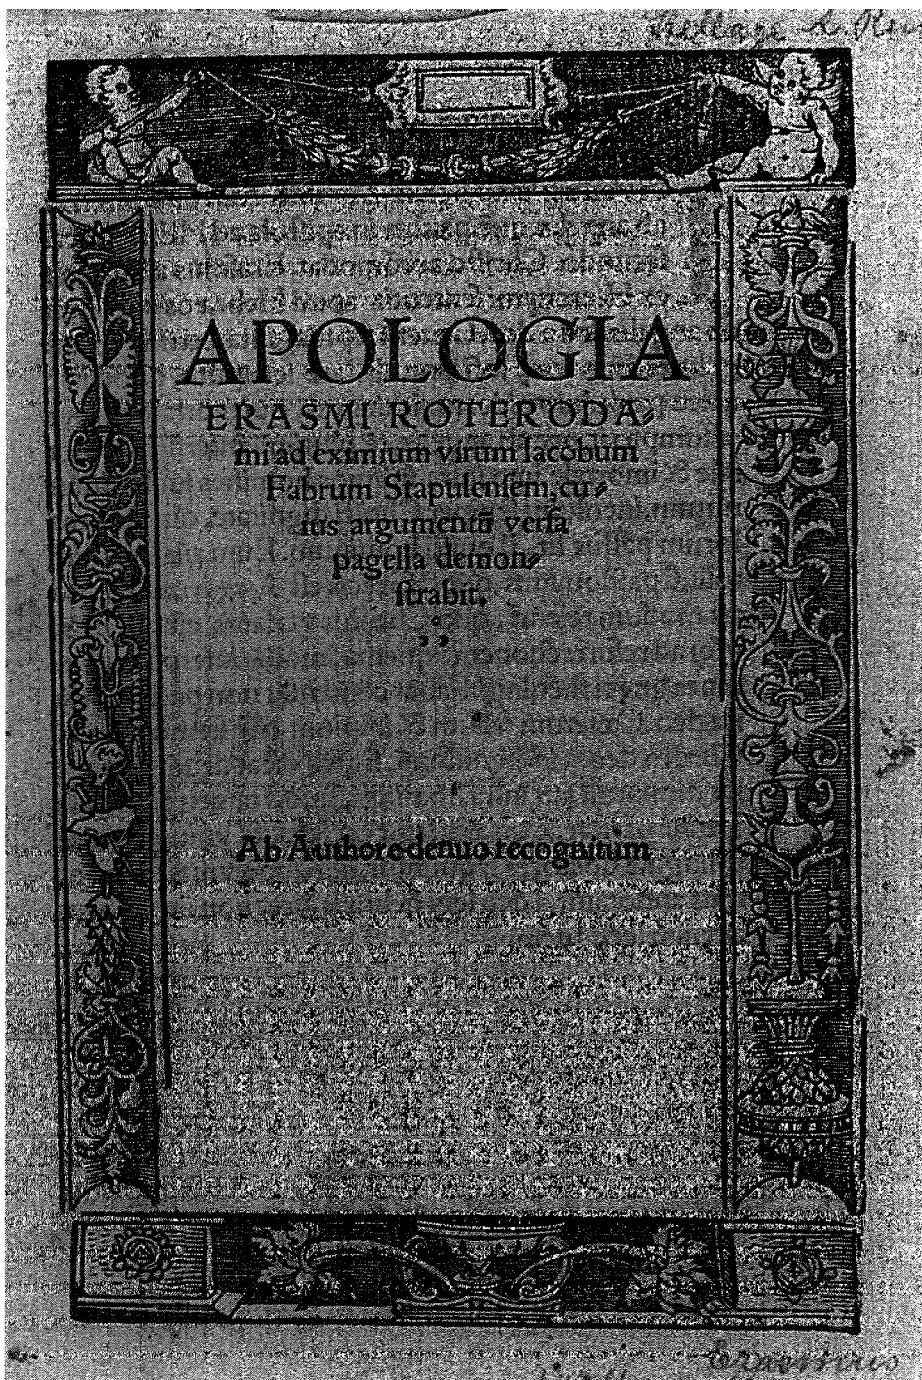

ANDREA W. STEENBEEK

Leiden

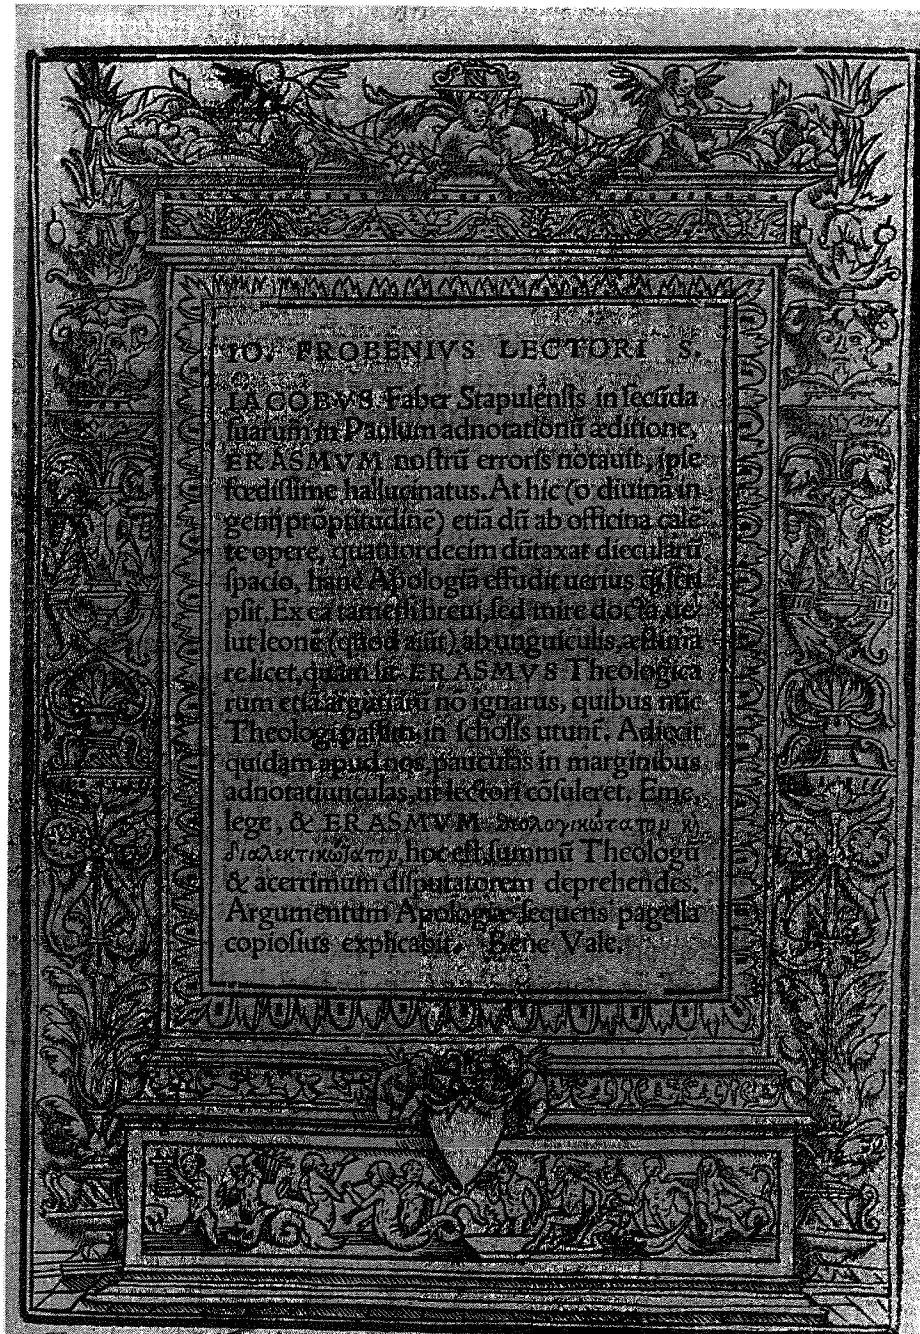

Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Louanii, Theodoricus Martinus, 1517.

Ex. Gemeentebibliotheek Rotterdam

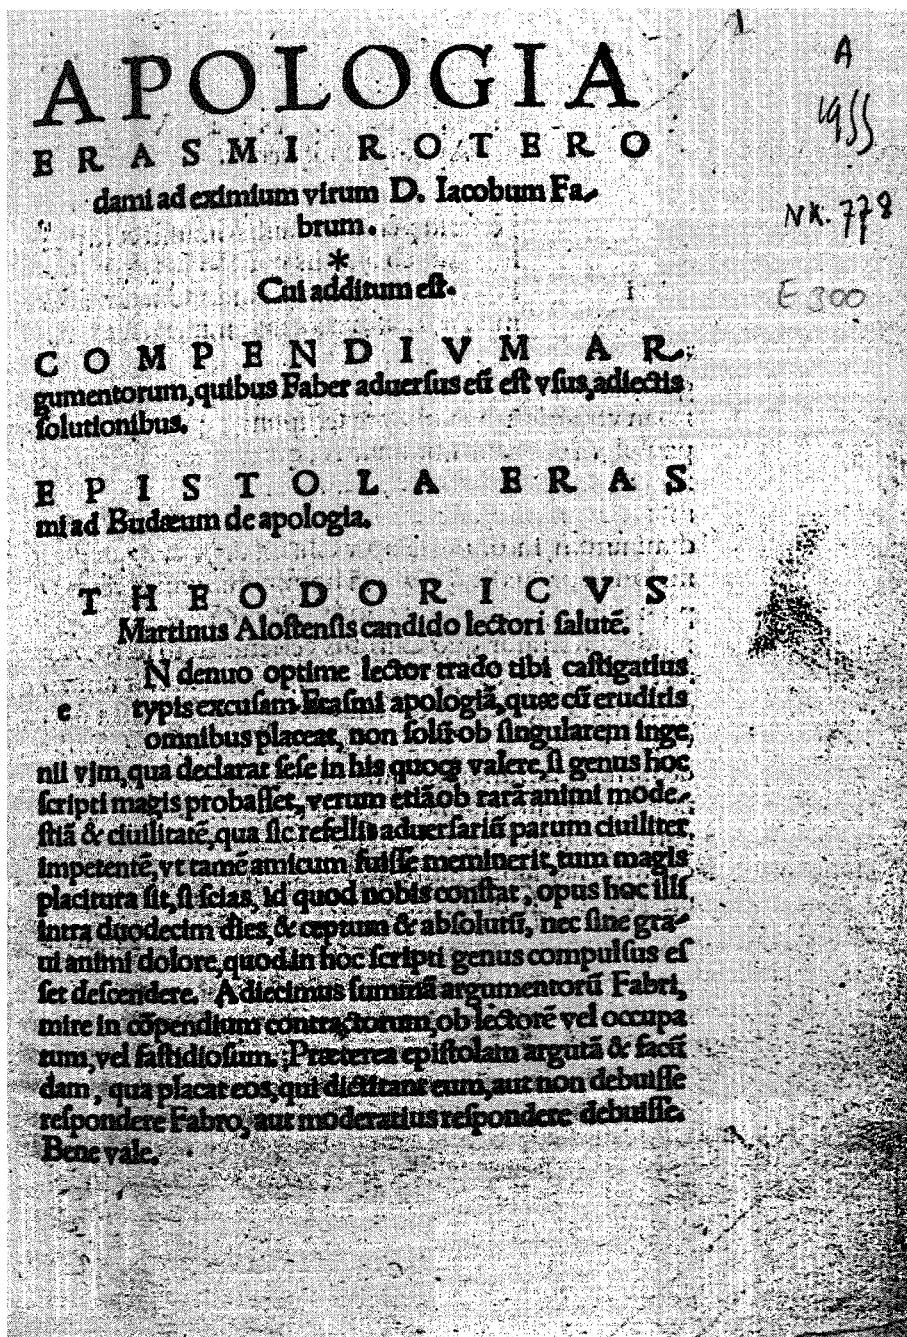

Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Argentorati. Matthias Schürer inter 31 Oct. 1517 et mensem Febr. 1518.

Ex. Gemeentebibliotheek Rotterdam

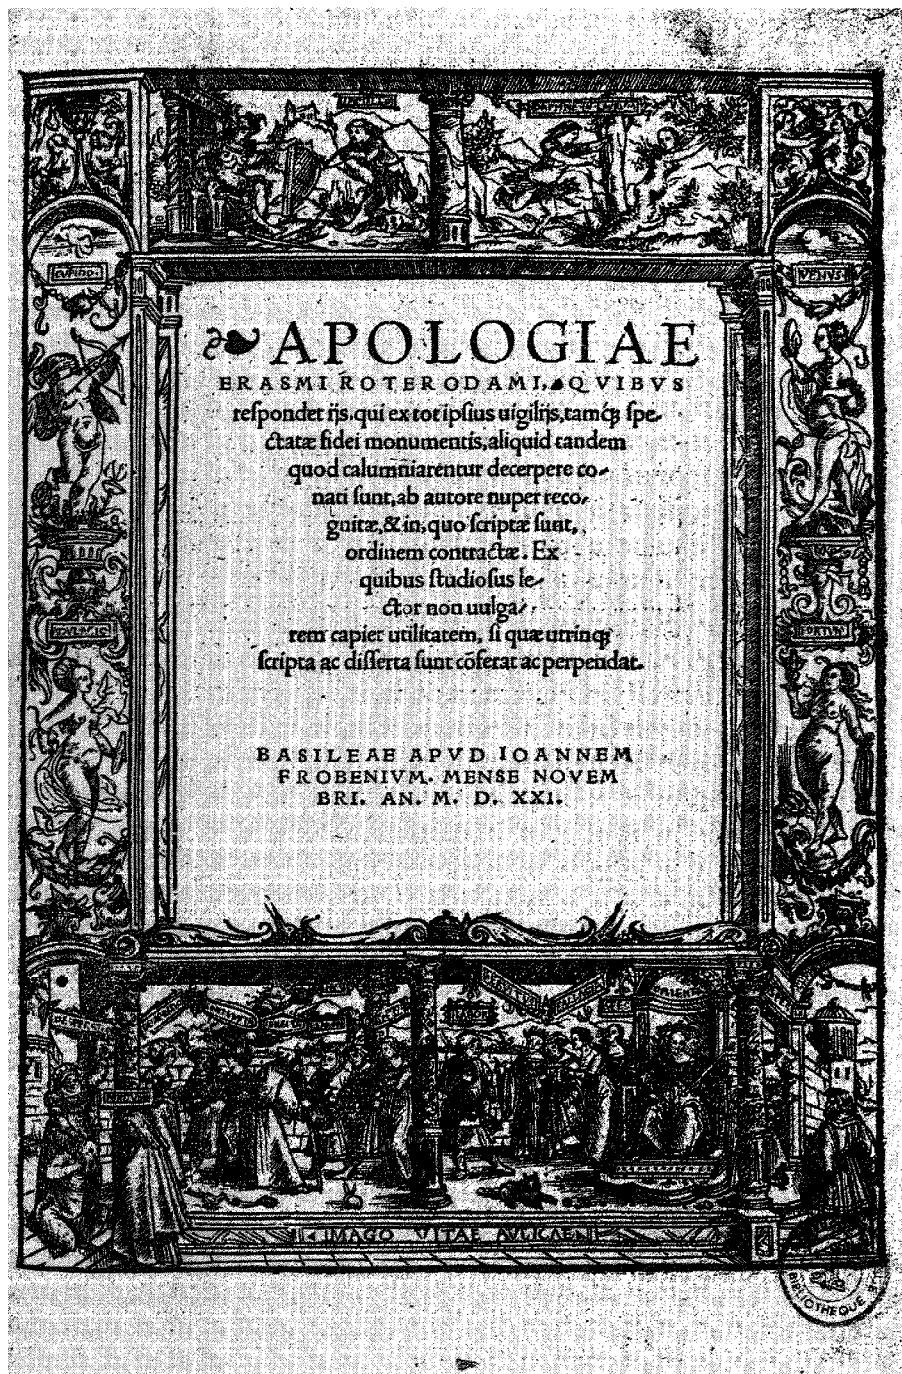

Erasmi Roterodami Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Ioannes Frobenius, mense Februario, 1518.

Ex. Gemeentebibliotheek Rotterdam

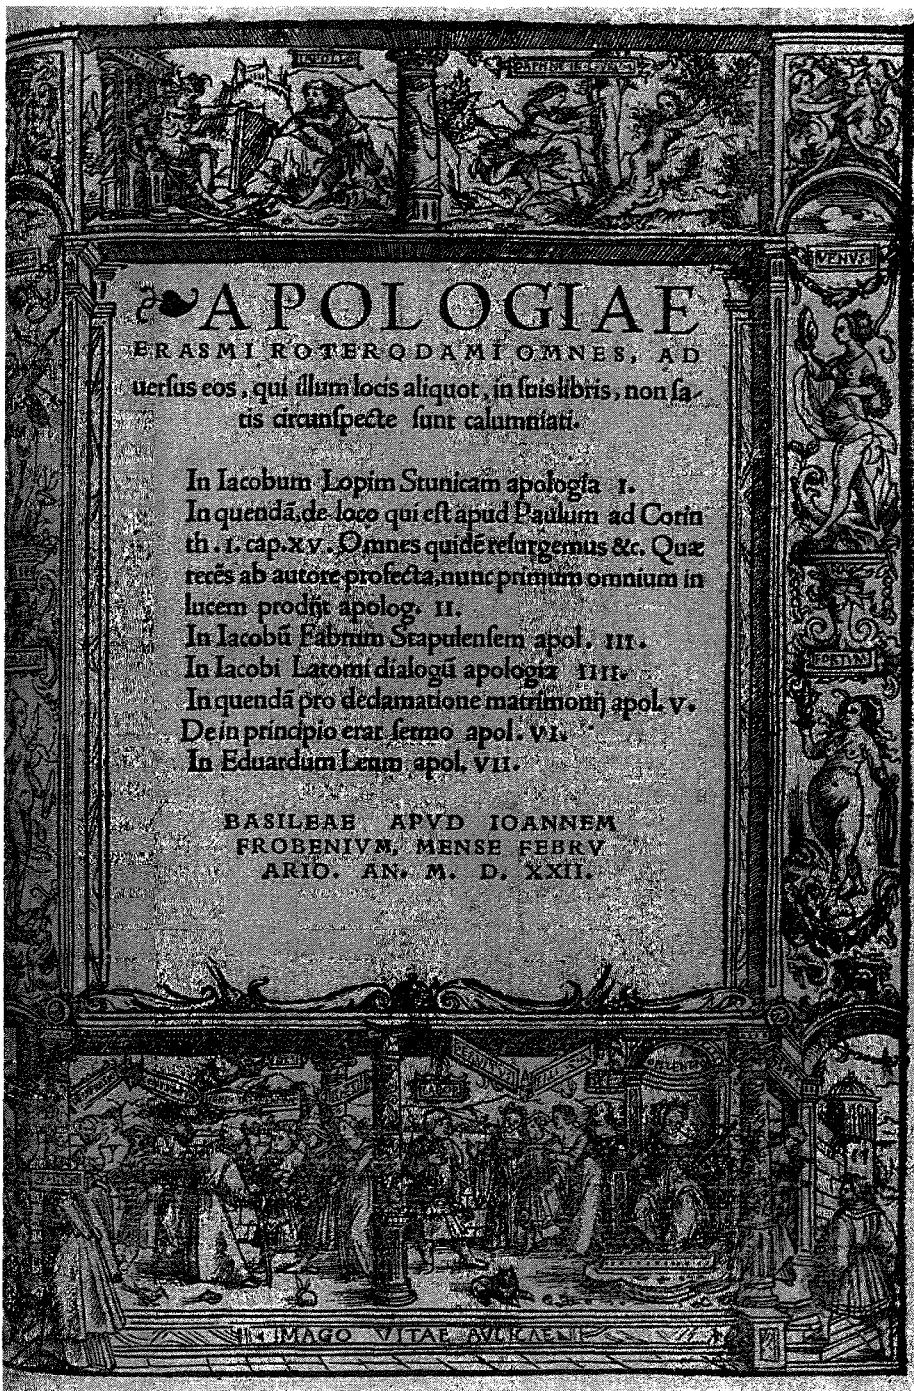

Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Louanii, Theodoricus Martinus, 1518.

Ex. Bibliothèque Royale, Bruxelles

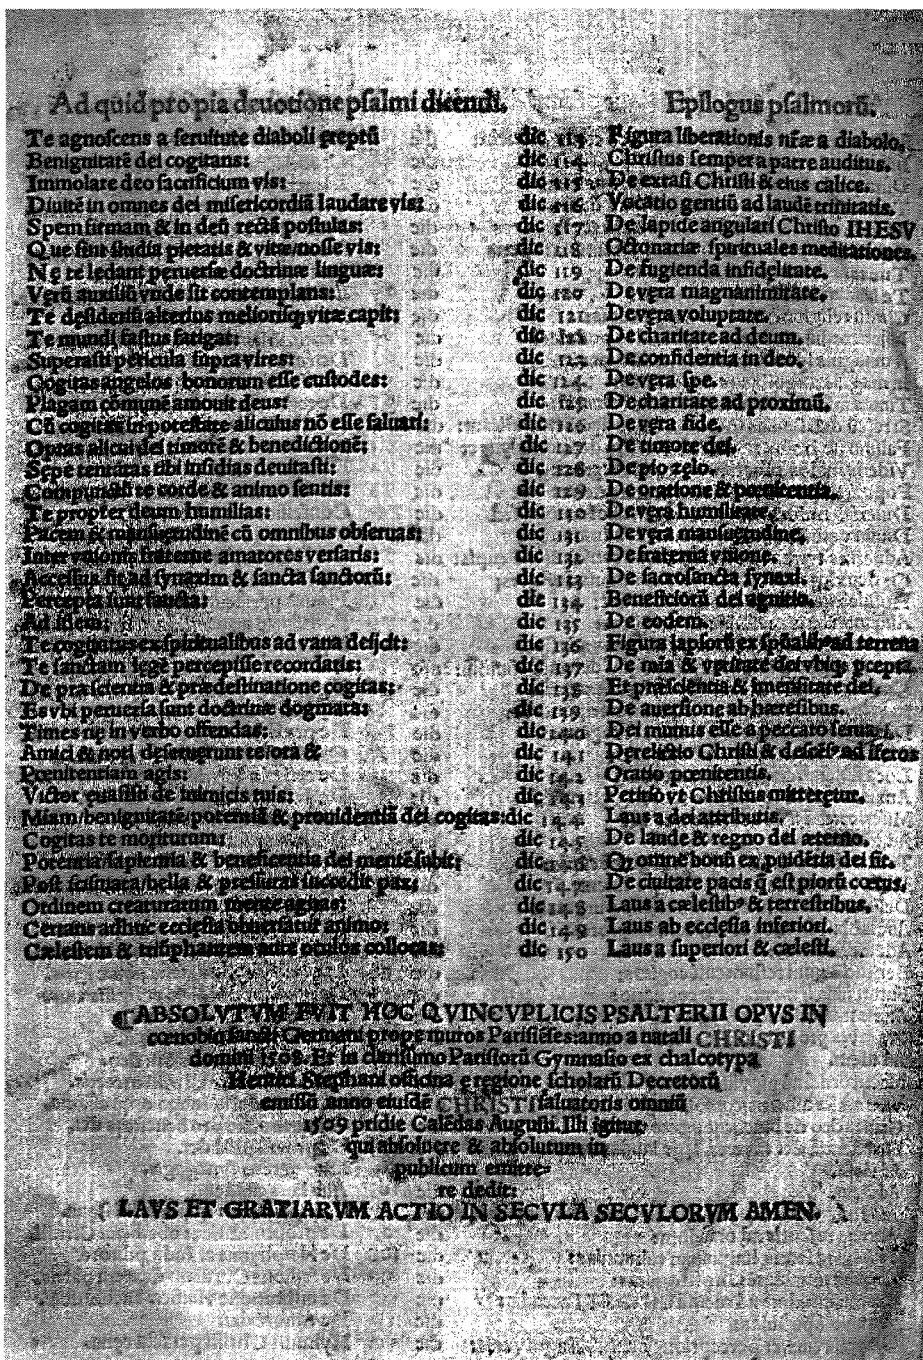

Apologiae Erasmi Roterodami, Basileae. Ioannes Frobenius, mense Novembri, 1521.
Ex. Bibliothèque Générale, Université de Liège

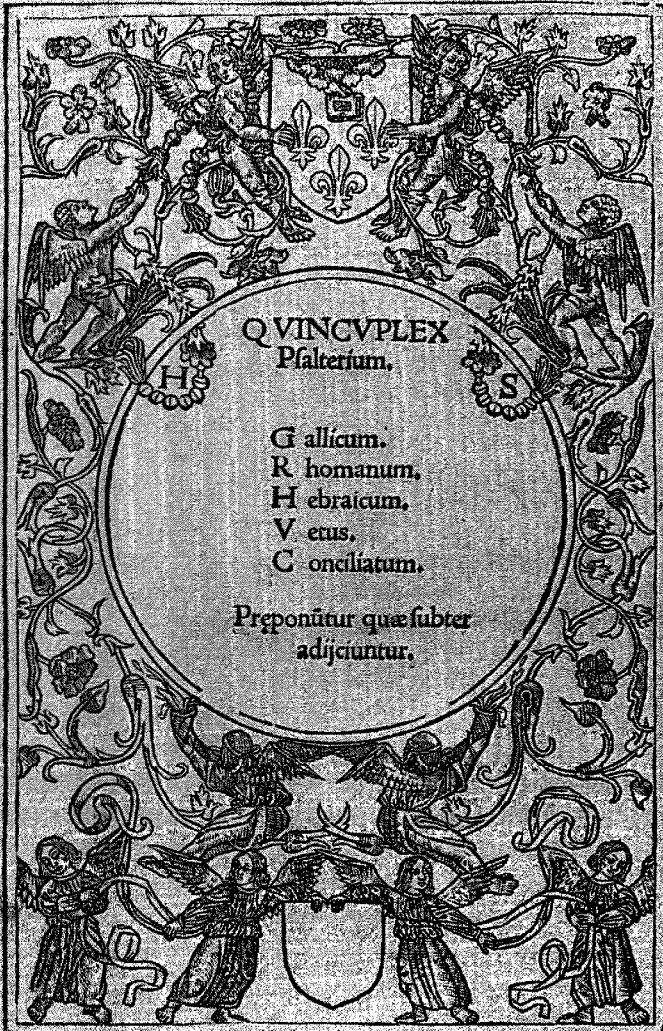

Apologiae Erasmi Roterodami omnes, Basileae, Ioannes Frobenius, mense Februario 1522.
Ex. Gemeentebibliotheek Rotterdam

Ex. Universiteitsbibliotheek Leiden

SEC V N D A E M I S S I O.

Epiſtola.
 Epilogus diſputationis psal. xxx.
 Appendix in psal. xxx.
 Prologi Hieronymi tres.
 Partitio psalmorum triplex.
 Indices psalmorum duo.

J. Faber Stapulensis. Quincuplex Psalterium, Parisii, Henricus Stephanus, 1513.
Ex. Koninklijke Bibliotheek, Den Haag

J. Faber Stapulensis [S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ex vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis] Parisiis, Henricus Stephanus, 1512.

Ex. Bibliotheca Philosophica Hermetica, Amsterdam

XIII.

In eis scriebat: ut in quodam loco de se testatur hoc paulo. Bonum certamen certauit enim sum confutauit inde feruauit. quod reliquum est: repulit et michi corona iustitia. De Hebreis 1:27 videtur magis pertinere. ut ipse dicit confidimus in deo. Atamen quibus magis placebit Paulus de locum sequentur exemplaria habentia praeceps pionis Christi. quibus autem magis placebit locum de Hebreis: quorum iustitia precum postulat: ut quos confidere bona habere conscientiam: vultur exemplaribus habentibus exercit secundam personam. ¶ Vulgata editio. Amplius autem deprecor vos. ¶ Hic amplius non designat certorum item praeterita: ut plerumque verus interpres capace solet: sed abundantius. Vos: abundat. Interpres Pauli. ut quis est pro te? & te mea causa. ¶ Et continuo subdit: τοῦτο τοιοῦτον hoc facere sine ut hoc facias. ¶ Vulgata editio. ¶ Factens in vobis quod placet corde. ¶ Prima persona dicitur in nobis. Interpres Pauli. τοιοῦτον ἐπικρίσεων τοῦτον λέγον. ¶ Vulgata editio. Vi suscans verbum solari. ¶ I amēti vocabulum hic positum & consolacionē & oblationē & exhortationē interpres solēt accommodare tamē hoc illo exhortatio interpetari debet: revidetur. designantur enim multi exhortationē: qui aquo animo solatum admittunt & consolacionē. Interpres Pauli. καὶ γενόθεαι του Λόγου της μαρτυρίας σεως. ¶ Vulgata editio. Item perpasci scripti vobis. ¶ Dicimus doobus vocabulū: per passū: sed id perexigū. Ex quod verus interpres dicit scripti: designat epistolam scripsi: aut epistolam missi. Interpres Pauli. καὶ γένοθεαι της μαρτυρίας σεως. ¶ Vulgata editio. Salutanti vos: qui sunt de Italia frater. ¶ Praeterea abundat. Interpres Pauli. καὶ της μαρτυρίας σεως. & si. sed et γένοθεαι της μαρτυρίας. Et continuo subditur. Χριστός μετὰ της μαρτυρίας σεως. & si. gratia cum omnibus vobis. Amen. Quam & nobis pariter annuit Christus Ihesus in omnia & super omnia fæcula benedictus. Amen. Cui pro suo munere & exaco opere cum acerno patre & infuso superbono spiritu: omnis honor/ virtus gloria & gratiarū actio in omnia fæculorū fæcula. Apud Graecos huius epistola subscriptio habetur. Ad Hebreos scripta ex Italia missa per Timotheum.

HOC OPVS ILVSTRATORE CHRISTO QVI LVCHIV BLOVE
ETSI NON CAPITVR: ABSOLVTVM FVIT IN COENOBIO

SANCTI GERMANI IVXTA PARISIOS ANNO CHRI

STI VITAE AVTHORIS MULLESIMO ET

DVODECIMO SVPRA QVINGENTE

SIMVM ET EODEM ANNO CIR

CA NATALI D OMNINCE.

DE PVRISSIMA YRE.

GINE NATIVITA

TIS DIEM EX OF FICINALIEN.

RICI STE.

PHANIE

MISSVM.

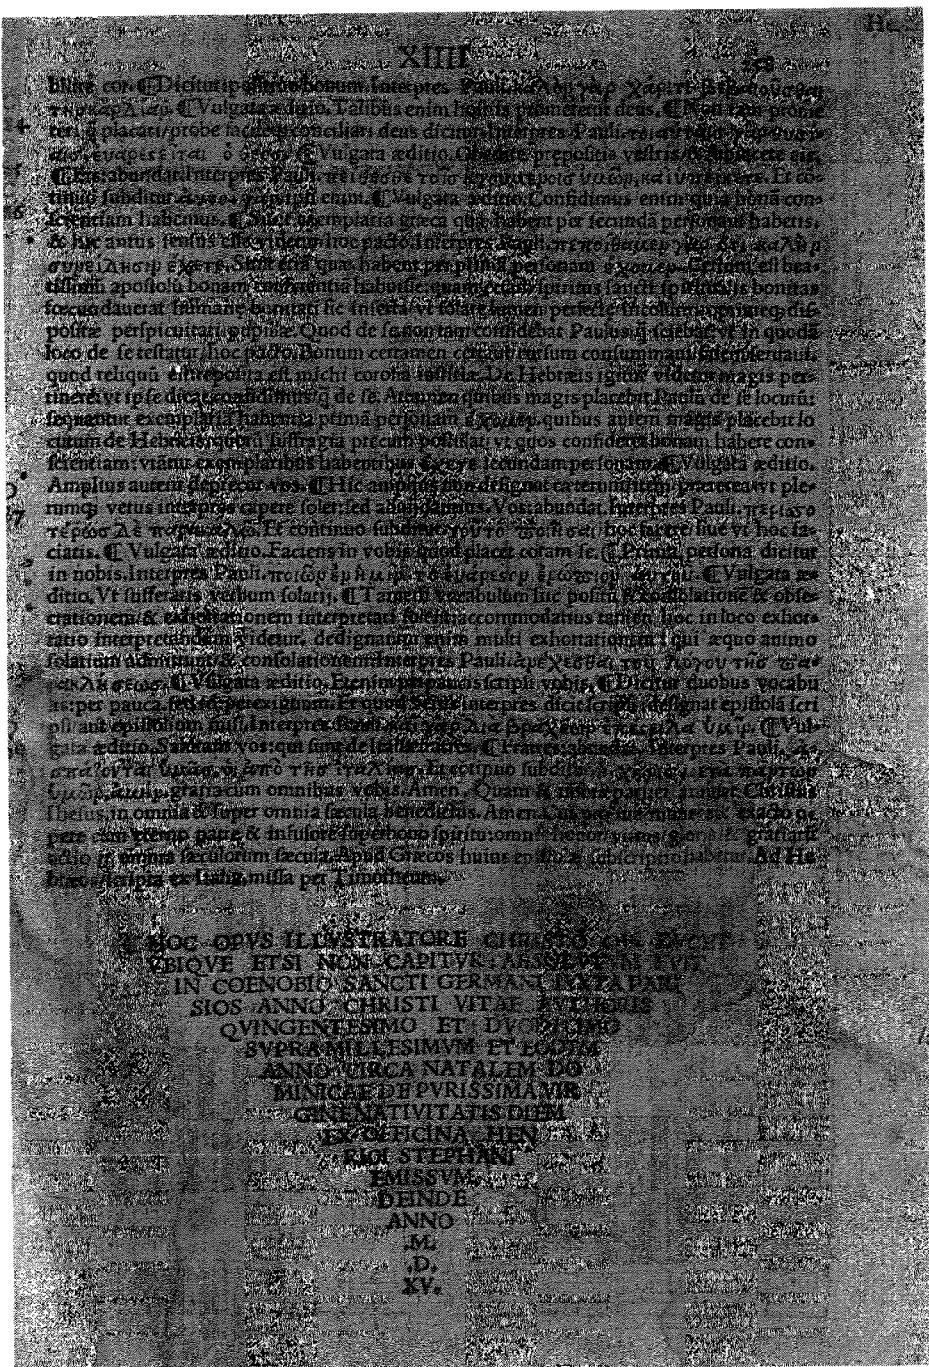

DECIMB. XV.

1 2 3

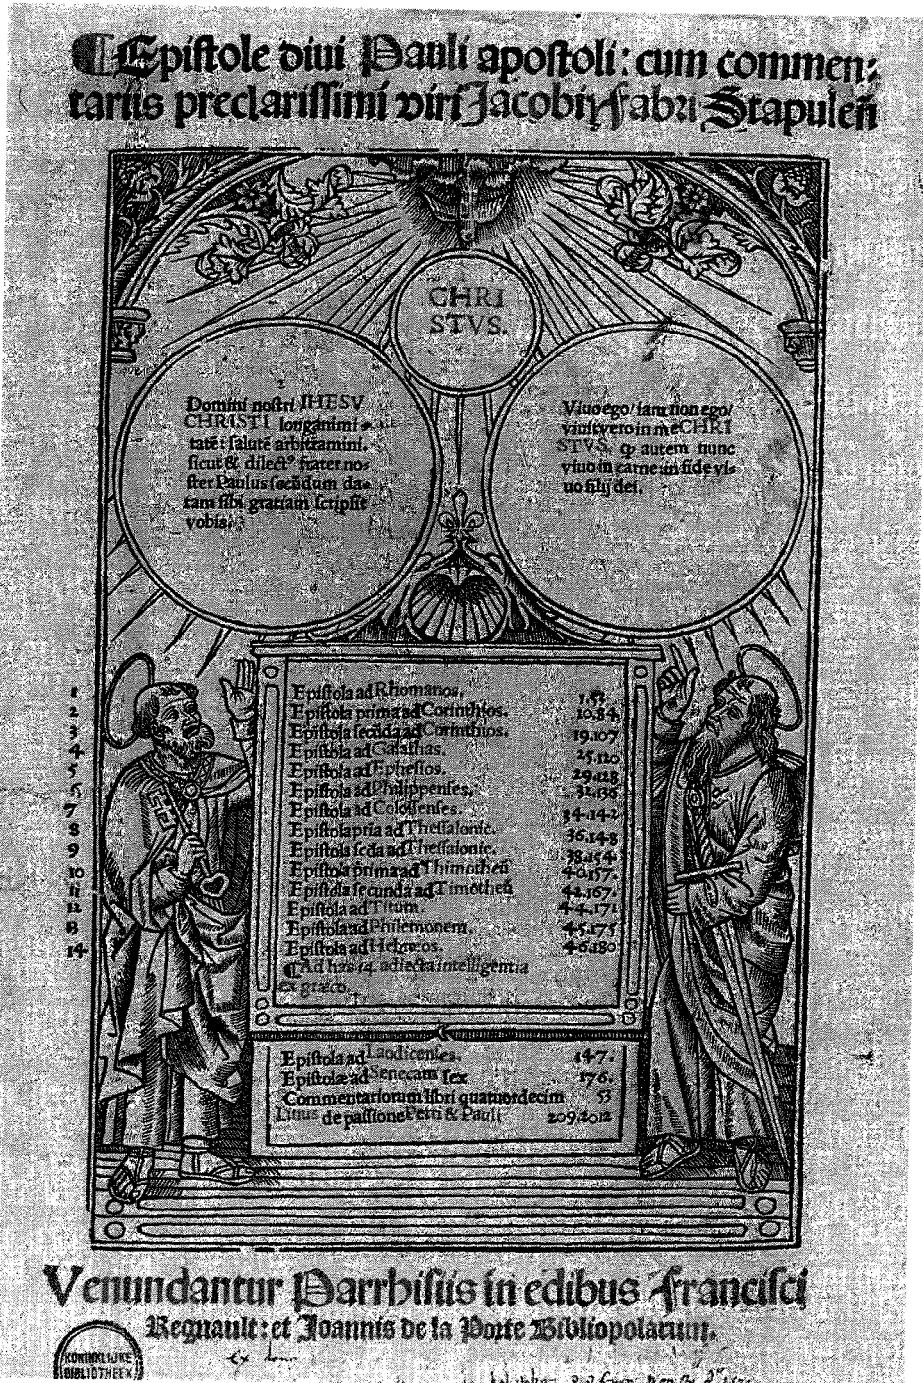

J. Faber Stapulensis [S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ex vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis] Parisiis, Henricus Stephanus, 1515 (real date of publication between November 1516 and 10 July 1517).

Ex. H.J. de Jonge, Leiden

J. Faber Stapulensis [S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ex vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis] Parisiis, Henricus Stephanus, 1515 (real date of publication between November 1516 and 10 July 1517).

Ex. H.J. de Jonge, Leiden

J. Faber Stapulensis. Epistole divi Pauli apostoli cum commentariis, Parisiis, F. Regnault et J. de la Porte, 1517.

Ex. Koninklijke Bibliotheek, Den Haag

Liber.XIII. Cap.XIII. fo.CCVIII

Hebre.

- D habere conscientia veantur exemplaribus habentibus & eis secundam perfoma. ¶ Vulgata editio. Amen plus autem deprecor vos. ¶ Hic amplius no[n] designat ceterum / tempore / ut p[re]dicto / vetus inter praes capere solet / sed abundantius. Vos abundat. Interpres Pauli / n[on] v[er]o ipso[n]e / al[ia] reconsuet. Et com timo subditur. v[er]o v[er]o / n[on] in hoc facias. ¶ Vulgata editio. Facit i[te]r vobis quod pl[ac]at coram e[go] / Prima persona dicitur in nobis. Interpres Pauli / n[on] ipso[n]e / Miserere meum tuum et[er]n[u]m et[er]n[u]m. ¶ Vulgata editio. V[er]o / i[te]rferatis verbum solari. ¶ Tamen ei[us] vocabuli hi[er]o politi & consolatiōne & obsecratione & exhortatione interpres tamen / acc[ord]at in loco exhortatio interpetatio / dum videatur. dedignatur enim multi exhortationem. qui sequo animo solarium admittunt & consolatiōne. Interpres Pauli. ap[osto]l[us] xxi. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. ¶ Vulgata editio. U[er]o per pauca scripti / Dicitur dubius vocabulus per pauca sed idipsernit. Et quod vetus interpres dicit scripsi / designat episoliū scripsi / aut epissolum nulli. Interpres Pauli / xvi. 1. 2. & 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. ¶ Vulgata editio. Salutant vos qui sunt de Italia fratres. ¶ Fratres abudit. Interpres Pauli. ad aduersarios xii. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. Et continuo subditur. Xero. xii. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. gratia cum opere bus vobis. Amen. Qui & nobis pariter annuat Christu[m] Ihesu[m] omnia & sup omnia facila benedictus. Amen. Cui pro suo munere & exado opere in eterno patre & infuore superbono spiritu. omnis honor virtus gloria & gratiant actio in omnia seculorum secula. Apud Grecos huius epistole subscriptio habetur. Ad Hebreos scripta ex Italia missa per Timotheum.

¶ ABSOLVTVM FVIT HOC OPVS IN COENOBIO DIVI GERMANI DB
PRATIS IVXTA PARISIOS ANNO CHRISTI QVINGENTESIMO ET DVODECIMO SVRA MILLESIMVM IMPRESSVM
VERO PARISIIS IMPENSIS HONESTORVM VI
RORVM FRANCISCI REGINALDI ET IOAN
NIS DE PORTA ANNO DOMINI MILE
SIMO QVINGENTESIMO DECI
MO SEPTIMO.

LAVS DEO.

EX DAMASO PP. DE BEATISSIMI PAVLI VITA PANEGYRIS.

Iam dodum Saulus pro auorū dogmata zelans
Cum domino patias vellet præponere leges/
Abmuererat facios CHRISTVM cedimile prophetas
Dum facerat sancte matris pia viscera cactus:
Cedibus affidus ardens deserpere plebem,
Poli tenebras: verum caput cognoscere lumen.
Tenuatus sensit quid posset gloria CHRISTI.
Senibus ut domini vocem / lumenq[ue] recipit
Indumenta more: CHRISTI precepta fecitus.
Vt lotus placuit famulo de nomine Paulus:
(Miranda rerum liberto trans ethera vetus.
Illi nolle datum: quid posset preuenire vita,
Tertia lux coeli: tenet paradisum unum.
Collugis dominii fructus / lezeta referuat.
Genibus ac populis prædicta / vera subvenit.
Iactibus mari nocte nō p[ro] die nō profundus:
Vicit at humerum tantum mirum ei supera se laborem.
Verbera vincula / immerit apides / rabiensq[ue] stratum/
Carcera ihuitem / vngas / tormenta / catenas/
Nafragium iachynmas / cespenti diravenerat/
Stigmataq[ue] exultat portare in corpore CHRISTI.
Credente q[ua]d docet qua possunt vincere mortem.
Digne deo / viuis per secula cuncta magister.
Veribus his brevitatis / fateore / facilius me dobor:
Ipsius Damatus volui monitare triumphos.

INTRODUCTION

I. THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IN WHICH THE APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM FABRVM STAPVLENSEM ORIGINATED

During the years 1516–1517, when his controversy with Lefèvre flared up, Erasmus had already established a reputation as an important scholar. Shortly before he began composing the apologia against Lefèvre, he had moved to Louvain, where he lived from circa 10 July 1517 until 28 October 1521. Before coming to Louvain, he had lived in Basel, from 1514 until May of 1516, except for several months spent in the Netherlands and a few weeks passed in London. The time spent in Basel had been agreeable and stimulating for Erasmus. In particular, he met many interesting people there, including Beatus Rhenanus, Bruno Amerbach and Ludwig Bär. Around 1516, then, Erasmus was happy and successful. In 1515 he had been relieved of several obligations which had burdened him as a member of the Augustinian order. He was granted further dispensations by the pope in January of 1517.¹ In 1515 he had also been appointed to the position of councillor of Charles V.² After his stay in Basel, he followed the imperial court in his function as councillor, first to Antwerp and then to Ghent and Bruges. At one point, Erasmus even had to consider the possibility of going to Spain:³ he was invited by Charles V, who held him in high esteem,⁴ to accompany him to Spain.⁵ But Erasmus preferred to stay in Louvain, where he was elected as a member of the university in September or October 1517, without being charged with any teaching responsibility.⁶ As an argument against going to Spain, he pointed to the quarreling in the court there.⁷ In earlier writings, he had already made unflattering remarks about the mentality of the Spaniards.⁸

Erasmus probably left Bruges for Louvain at the beginning of July, 1517.⁹ Initially, Erasmus had been uncertain as to where he should go. He first considered going to Brussels.¹⁰ He had even secured lodgings there. At the time, Louvain did

¹ See Epp. 517–519, all written by Leo X on 26 January 1517.

² Ep. 370 (written 22 November 1515, ll. 18–19) represents the first mention of Erasmus' appointment as a councillor to Charles.

³ See e.g. Ep. 446, ll. 19–24.

⁴ See Ep. 556, ll. 1–14.

⁵ Epp. 694, ll. 4–17; 853, ll. 2–3.

⁶ Ep. 694, ll. 1–5.

⁷ Ep. 694, ll. 5–7.

⁸ Ep. 545, ll. 15–17.

⁹ See Allen, intr. Ep. 596.

¹⁰ Ep. 470, ll. 9–12.

not seem very attractive to him. He thought that the students there would burden him with too much work, and the opposition of the Louvain theologians, such as Maarten van Dorp¹¹ and Jan Briart of Ath,¹² was something Erasmus was eager to avoid. On 6 October 1516, he wrote the following lines from Brussels to Andrew Ammonius¹³ in London:¹⁴

“Hybernaturus sum Bruxellae ... Animus est a Louanio alienior. Illic mihi meo sumptu obseruiendum foret scholasticis. Obgannirent assidue iuuenes, ‘Castiga hoc carmen, emenda hanc epistolam’; alias hunc autorem flagitaret, alias alium: neque quisquam est illic qui mihi vel ornamento vel subsidio possit esse. Super haec omnia audiendum esset nonnunquam quid obganniant theologi, genus omnium insuauissimum: inter quos egregius ille N.¹⁵ mihi propemodum tragoediam excitauit”

“I mean to spend the winter in Brussels ... I have turned somewhat against Louvain. If I were there, I should have to pay my own way and be the humble servant of the university people. The young men would be interrupting me all the time with their chatter: ‘Do correct these verses, just improve on this letter for me’; there would be constant demands for different authors; and there is no one there whom it would be any credit or any help for me to know. On top of all this I should have to listen sometimes to the chatter of the theologians, the ¹¹ Maarten van Dorp of Naaldwijk (1485–31 May 1525) “matriculated at the university of Louvain in 1501 ... It is fairly certain that before the end of 1504 he was appointed legens in philosophy ... He also became a successful teacher of Latin in the humanistic vein ... In 1510 he was introduced into the theological faculty and put in charge of several courses in Biblical exegesis ... He was appointed full professor in 1515 ... During Dorp’s final year as a student and his first as professor of theology (1514–1516) a scholarly controversy arose between him and Erasmus ... In Ep. 304, Dorp warned Erasmus to be very careful in his critical work on the Vulgate lest he undermine the very foundations of theology ... Erasmus defended his undertaking in Ep. 337 ... Dorp later distanced himself from this position, which he had adopted when he was about to obtain the titles of doctor and magister noster ... The reaction of the faculty of theology to Dorp’s subsequent change proves that he had had good reasons for warning Erasmus in Ep. 304 and for taking a scholastic stance himself at the time of his doctorate: on 30 September 1516 the faculty refused the annual renewal of Dorp’s certification as an academic teacher ... In 1517, however, Dorp regained the confidence of his faculty.” J. IJsewijn in: Contemporaries I, pp. 398–402.

¹² Jan Briart of Ath (1460–8 January 1520) “was later known in Louvain as Athenensis ... His lifelong association with the university of Louvain began with his matriculation on 30 August 1478 ... In 1506 Briart was appointed to a chair in theology ... Beginning in 1515, he occupied a position of prominence ... For the summer terms of 1516 and 1518 he was elected dean of the theological faculty ... When Dorp criticized Erasmus in 1515 and 1516, Erasmus believed that, as Dorp’s mentor, Briart was partly responsible for the attack ... But as his relations with Dorp improved, Erasmus also seems to have dropped his suspicions of Briart ... When he settled in Louvain in July of 1517 Briart was prominent among those who endeavoured to make him welcome and even co-opt him into the faculty of theology.” P.G. Bietenholz in Contemporaries I, p. 195.

¹³ Andrea Ammonio of Lucca (c. 1478–17 August 1517) studied in Bologna, travelled to Rome and by 1506 had arrived in England. “In 1509 he became secretary to William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, and by 1511 he was Latin secretary to Henry VIII ... Ammonio was one of Erasmus’ closest friends in England ... Between 1511 and 1517 they exchanged over forty known letters ... Ammonio also assisted Erasmus in his quest for financial security and freedom from the bonds of his religious order, the canons regular of St Augustine.” T.B. Deutscher in: Contemporaries I, pp. 48–50.

¹⁴ Ep. 475, ll. 12–20.

¹⁵ I.e., Maarten van Dorp, see Allen, Ep. 275, n.l. 20; cf. Ep. 474, n.l. 17.

drearliest sort of men, and among them the egregious x¹⁶ has very nearly got me into trouble”¹⁷

The opposition of the Louvain theologians had begun in September 1514 with Dorp’s fierce criticism of both the Laus Stultitiae and Erasmus’ plan to produce a new Latin translation of the New Testament.¹⁸ Until then, Dorp had seemed to be a fellow humanist, and indeed he later resumed this attitude and became friendly to Erasmus again, explaining his attack on Erasmus by saying that he had acted under pressure from the Louvain theologians who feared and rejected Erasmus’ New Testament work.¹⁹

Erasmus was in Brussels in December 1516 when he heard that the theologians were intending to examine his books.²⁰

In spite of all this, Erasmus moved to Louvain in July 1517. This can be explained by the fact that, in January 1517, Erasmus had already received a very friendly letter from Dorp, in which he was invited to have dinner with Dorp and some other Louvain theologians.²¹ This meeting seems to have resolved the tensions and improved the mutual relations. Two months later Erasmus himself wrote that the theologians insisted on his coming:

“Theologi nunc ambiunt etiam vt Louaniam commigrem”²²

“The theologians are now actually trying to get me to move to Louvain”²³

In July 1517, he settled in Louvain. He came by carriage, probably because he took his books with him.²⁴ In any case Erasmus told his friends John Oecolampadius, Cuthbert Tunstall and Peter Barbirius that in Louvain he had his luggage and his library at his disposal.²⁵

He writes enthusiastically about the salubrious climate²⁶ in Louvain and, crucially, the warm reception offered by the theologians:²⁷

“Louanium commigraui totus, cum theologis aliquot menses acturus, qui me satis benigne acceperint.”

“I have moved bodily to Louvain, intending to spend several months among the theologians, who have given me quite a kind welcome.”²⁸

¹⁶ See previous note.

¹⁷ Cf. CWE 4, p. 94, Ep. 475, ll. 15–24.

¹⁸ See Ep. 304, passim.

¹⁹ See Ep. 1044 (The Hague, 28 November, 1519), passim.

²⁰ Ep. 505, ll. 8–10.

²¹ Ep. 509, Louvain, <January 1517>, ll. 5–8.

²² Ep. 551, to Andrew Ammonius, Antwerp, 11 March <1517>, ll. 12–13. Cf. Ep. 584, ll. 39–41 to Thomas More, <Antwerp>, <30 May>, 1517, ll. 39–41: “Alioqui consilium erat Louanii aestuare, theologis etiam id magnopere flagitantibus.”

²³ CWE 4, p. 283, Ep. 551, ll. 15–16.

²⁴ M.A. Nauwelaerts, Erasme à Louvain, éphémérides d'un séjour de 1517 à 1521 in ed. J. Coppens, Scriinium Erasmianum I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 3–24, see pp. 6–7.

²⁵ Epp. 605, l. 8; 607, l. 1; 608, l. 10.

²⁶ Ep. 625, l. 15.

²⁷ Ep. 597, to Thomas More, <Louvain>, <c. 10 July 1517>, ll. 25–26.

²⁸ Cf. CWE 5, p. 9, Ep. 597, ll. 28–29.

Erasmus registered at the university as Magister Erasmus de Roterodamo, sacre theologie professor.²⁹ This position did not imply any educational tasks.³⁰

In 1515 and 1516, before moving to Louvain, Erasmus had been working on the new edition of Jerome and on a new Latin version of the New Testament, which was to be published with an edition of the Greek text side by side.³¹ Froben had asked him to let him print this New Testament at his Basel printing office. Obviously, Froben had high hopes, both as a humanist scholar and as a businessman, for Erasmus' New Testament project. He was eager, therefore, to become the publisher of this first separate edition of the New Testament in Greek and Latin.³² Froben may also have hoped to anticipate Cardinal Ximenes' publication of the Complutensian Polyglot, although there is no evidence that he knew of that project. The New Testament portion of the Complutensian Bible edition was already in print in 1514, but the publication of the Bible as a whole had been withheld, supposedly to obtain papal permission, which was not forthcoming until 1520.³³

The appearance of Erasmus' Nouum Instrumentum, the first Greek New Testament ever published was a landmark in the history of Biblical scholarship. Unfortunately, the Greek text in this edition is marred by many typographical errors; the work had been done too hastily, "precipitated rather than edited," as Erasmus himself said. The haste was presumably due to pressure from Froben.

Shortly before and during 1517, Erasmus also published many works on political issues, particularly on the problem of war and peace. In these writings – which include the Institutio principis christiani (1516), the Adagium Dulce bellum inexpertis (1515) and the Querela Pacis (1517) – he sought to convince political leaders to avoid war and to take interest primarily in their citizens. He appealed to Christian charity, but also to reason, arguing that war was pointless and went

²⁹ See H. de Jongh, L'ancienne faculté de théologie de Louvain au premier siècle de son existence 1432–1540, Louvain, 1911, p. 140, n. 11: "Matricule de l'université de Louvain de 31 août 1495 au 30 août 1526 (Bibliothèque royale de Bruxelles, Ms. 3441) fol. 236 à l'année 1517: 'Magister Erasmus de Roterodamo, sacre theologie professor. Augusti penultima'. Une main postérieure a ajouté dans la marge: 'ille nominatissimus'. Le titre theologie professor n'indique pas qu'il ait été chargé de quelque enseignement ou ait été reçu dans la faculté: ces mots sont synonymes de theologie doctor."

³⁰ Cf. the quote from Ep. 475 where Erasmus voices his fear that the students would burden him with too much work.

³¹ For an account of this project of Erasmus and its purpose, see H.J. de Jonge, Novum Testamentum a nobis versum: the Essence of Erasmus' Edition of the New Testament, in: Journal of Theological Studies, vol. 35, 2, 1984, pp. 394–413.

³² Cf. Ep. 328 from Beatus Rhenanus, Basel, 17 April 1515, ll. 36–37: "Petit Frobennius Nouum abs te Testamentum habere pro quo tantum se daturum pollicetur quantum alius quisquam." Evidently Erasmus had not yet arranged for the printing of the New Testament (cf. Ep. 330). He may have hoped to have it printed in Italy and hence the frequent mention of a journey to Rome. Cf. Ep. 324, 27 n. See Ep. 384 intr.

³³ Cf. R.H. Bainton, Erasmus of Christendom, London, 1970, p. 164.

against the interest of the citizens. Erasmus' idea of the philosophia Christi excludes the possibility of waging war for one's own profit.

The goal Erasmus pursued in both his philological works and his political writings was the promotion of the knowledge of the philosophia Christi. Erasmus considered the purity of the New Testament text and the readability of its translation important since, in order to know how to follow Christ and in order to learn what his commandments are, people have to read and to understand the New Testament. Christ's teaching and the exemplary way he lived form the basis for the philosophia Christi. Erasmus believed that, at the political level as well, people have to act according to this "philosophy". This conviction is expressed in Erasmus' dedication of his Paraphrases of the New Testament, which appeared around 1520–1522, to the four political leaders who dominated Europe: the paraphrase of Matthew to Charles V, that of John to Ferdinand, the ruler of the Italian realm, that of Luke to Henry VIII of England, and that of Mark to Francis I of France. To the last dedication, that of Mark to Francis I, Erasmus added the prayer that, as he had united their four names in the dedications of the paraphrases, so might their hearts be united in the Spirit of the gospel.³⁴

In these writings on war, peace and politics, Erasmus' peace-loving nature is clearly apparent. It was not in accordance with this nature that he wrote such a fierce attack as the apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples, published in 1517, that is, in the same year in which his Querela Pacis appeared.

Before the publication of the Nouum Instrumentum in 1516, Erasmus had already received many divergent reactions to this enterprise: words of encouragement as well as attempts to stop him. This is how, for example, John Becar of Borssele expressed his eagerness to see Erasmus' new version of the New Testament:

"Nihil autem est quod mihi accidere possit hoc tempore gratius quam si quid eorum accipere possum quae tu in Noui Testamenti castigationem ...scripsisti."³⁵

"There is, indeed, nothing that would give me greater pleasure now than to receive some portion of your own contributions to the critical revision of the New Testament"³⁶

A similar sign of enthusiastic expectation came from Thomas More:

"Gaudeo Hieronymum ac Nouum Testamentum tam bene procedere. Mirum est quanto vndique desyderio expectantur ab omnibus."³⁷

³⁴ Ep. 1400, ll. 14–21.

³⁵ Ep. 291 from John Becar of Borssele, Middelburg, 19 April, 1514, ll. 29–32. Cf. Ep. 371, from John le Molendino, Tournay, 23 November 1515, ll. 14–18: "Scribis Hieronymum tuum belle procedere. Vix ego verbis possum consequi quantopere illum videre, legere, osculari gestiam, cum tuis operibus reliquis et Nouo Testamento. Perge igitur, mi Erasme, et in has lucubrationes clarissimas viriliter incumbe, quae tibi nomen immortale et sempiternam gloriam pariturae sunt."

³⁶ CWE 2, p. 286, Ep. 291, ll. 30–32.

³⁷ Ep. 388, from Thomas More, <London>, <c. 17 February 1516>, ll. 162–163.

"I am delighted that Jerome and the New Testament make such good progress.
It is remarkable how keenly they are awaited by everyone on all sides."³⁸

At the same time, Erasmus received negative reactions, for instance from Maarten van Dorp,³⁹ who undoubtedly spoke for many orthodox theologians. Dorp tried to convince Erasmus to cease working on the New Testament, in order to prevent the very foundations of theology from being undermined. During a rather long period prior to the publication of his New Testament, Erasmus knew that he was viewed with suspicion from several quarters.

This suspicion against Erasmus escalated after the publication of the Nouum Instrumentum. Erasmus himself was not very pleased with the edition: aware that his haste had led to misprints and other errors, he planned to bring out a new edition, but this was not to appear until 1519.

In 1517 and the following years, Erasmus was also involved in another project of great importance: the founding of the Collegium Trilingue Lovaniense, an institute devoted to the study of Greek, Latin and Hebrew. It was financed from the estate of Jerome Busleyden, who died on 27 August 1517. In accordance with a plan worked out with Erasmus – who, by 1516, had become a close friend – Busleyden left a bequest to pay for both the salaries of a professor for each of the three languages and scholarships for eight students. Erasmus devoted a great deal of time to the organisation of the teaching. His task was to assess the candidates for the three chairs and to defend the college against the attacks of the conservatives who feared that its purpose was to dethrone the Vulgate as the authoritative translation of Scripture.⁴⁰

³⁸ CWE 3, p. 236, Ep. 388, ll. 172–174.

³⁹ Ep. 304, Louvain, <c. September 1514>, passim.

⁴⁰ H. de Jongh, L'ancienne faculté de théologie de Louvain au premier siècle de son existence 1432-1540. Louvain, 1911, pp. 145–146.

II. THE HISTORY OF THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN ERASMUS AND LEFEVRE

The first contacts between Erasmus and Lefèvre took place in Paris in 1511.¹ Erasmus spent some of that year in Paris and got to know members of the Faculty of Theology there, including Lefèvre d'Étaples. Erasmus and Lefèvre met and discussed each other's scholarly occupations, but strangely enough neither of them brought up his plan to undertake a new Latin translation of the New Testament. Erasmus writes about this mutual silence in his apologia against Lefèvre², and also in a letter to Dorpius of May 1515:

“Porro Iacobus Faber commentarios illos iam tum habebat in manibus, cum nos hoc operis moliremur; ac parum commode euenit ut nec in familiarissimis colloquiis alterutri nostrum in mentem venerit de suo meminisse instituto. Nec ante cognoui quid agitasset ille, priusquam opus formulis excusum prodisset.”³

“Jacques Lefèvre had his notes in hand already when I was getting this work under way, and it happened, a trifle unfortunately, that even in our most friendly conversations neither of us thought of mentioning his plans, nor did I learn what he had been at until his work appeared in print.”⁴

Erasmus makes the same observation in a preface to his edition of Jerome of March 1515:

“Qua quidem in re nos quoque per idem tempus nauabamus operam, ac mire factum est ut cum vterque de altero nesciret, tamen ambo rem eandem eodem moliremur tempore, etiamsi [si] illius anteuortit editio.”⁵

“In this field too I was working at the same time, and by a strange coincidence, neither of us knowing about the other's work, we were both engaged simultaneously on the same enterprise, though his edition came out first.”⁶

In 1509, three years before Erasmus and Lefèvre met, Lefèvre's Quincuplex Psalterium appeared. The note on Ps. 8,6 included in this work, concerned the subject of the controversy that was to flare up in the years 1516–1517. The Quincuplex Psalterium contains, among other versions of the Psalms, Lefèvre's own translation into Latin. In Ps. 8,6 he translates “lower than God” instead of “lower than the angels.” In a note, he justifies this translation by explaining that even in his incarnation Christ had remained God, so that he could not have been placed below the angels. This note already shows some characteristic features of Lefèvre's christological views.⁷ The divergence between Erasmus' and Lefèvre's christologies was at the heart of their controversy.

¹ For the content of the different writings in which Erasmus and Lefèvre carried on their controversy, see section “V. The Christologies of Erasmus and Lefèvre” of the present introduction.

² See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 95–101 and nn. ll. 95, 96–98 and 99–101.

³ Ep. 337, to Martinus Dorpius, Antwerp <May fin.> 1515, ll. 844–849.

⁴ CWE 3, p. 137, Ep. 337, ll. 886–890.

⁵ Ep. 326, ll. 90–93.

⁶ CWE 3, p. 71, Ep. 326, ll. 100–103.

⁷ For Lefèvre's note on Ps. 8,6 in his Quincuplex Psalterium, see appendix I.

In his second publication on this subject – the note on Hebr. 2,7 in his translation, paraphrase and annotations of the epistles of Paul of 1512 – Lefèvre argued that in Hebr. 2,7 instead of “lower than the angels”, one should translate “lower than God.”

Beginning in the autumn of 1512, at the latest, Erasmus was indeed already preparing his own translation of the New Testament. His plan to make this new translation elicited different reactions. Some of these were encouraging, others sounded a note of warning and distrust. In his attempts to defend himself against his opponents, Erasmus repeatedly referred to Lefèvre as a scholar who had undertaken a project similar to his. But, although Erasmus and Lefèvre had many humanist ideals in common, Erasmus, in order to justify his own enterprise, sometimes allowed himself to speak less favourably of Lefèvre’s work on Paul, in letters that probably received widespread attention. He thus said for instance in one of the prefaces to his edition of Jerome (March 1515):

“Quae (sc. Lefèvre’s work on Paul, 1512) vtinam esset eiusmodi vt nostra quam paramus prorsus superuacanea videri possit.”⁸

“I only wish it (i.e., Lefèvre’s work on Paul, 1512) were of a quality that would render the edition I am preparing quite superfluous.”⁹

Erasmus expressed himself still less amicably with regard to Lefèvre’s work in a letter to Dorpius of May 1515. In this letter Erasmus defended his plan to improve the translation of the Vulgate:

“Porro quod admones sciebam, Laurentium Vallam ante nos hoc laboris occupasse, quippe cuius annotationes primus curarim euulgandas; et Iacobi Fabri in Paulinas epistolas commentarios vidi. Atque vtinam ab his sic esset elaboratum vt nostra industria nihil foret opus. Sed mihi nondum satis liquet cur hos duos obiicias. Num vt a re velut occupata deterreas? At apparebit me post tantos etiam viros non sine causa labore hunc suscepisse. An hoc significas, nec istorum industriam probari theologis? Evidem quid Laurentio ad veterem illam inuidiam accesserit non video. Fabrum audio probari ab omnibus. Quid quod nec omnino simile negocium molimur? Laurentius tantum annotauit locos aliquot, idque, vt apparet, in transcurso leuique, quod dici solet, braccio. Faber in Paulinas duntaxat Epistolas aeditit commentarios, easque suo more vertit: tum si quid discrepabat, obiter annotauit. Nos vniuersum Testamentum Nouum ad Graecorum exemplaria vertimus, additis e regione Graecis, quo cuius promptum sit conferre. Adieciimus separatim Annotationes, in quibus partim argumentis, partim veterum autoritate theologorum docemus non temere mutatum ...”¹⁰

⁸ Ep. 326, Basel, March 1515, ll. 91–94.

⁹ CWE 3, p. 71, Ep. 326, ll. 103–104. Cf. Ep. 334, to Domenico Grimani, London, <15 May> 1515, ll. 164–170: “... proxima aestate emissuri varias nec infrugiferas, vt opinor, annotationes nostras in Nouum Testamentum, vna cum Apostolicis epistolis sic a nobis versis vt intelligi possint; in quo labore ita puto me versatum, vt non sine causa post Laurentium Vallam, post Iacobum Fabrum, virum iuxta doctum ac diligentem, videar hoc negotii suscepisse.”

¹⁰ Ep. 337, to Martinus Dorpius, Antwerp, <May fin.> 1515, ll. 835–866.

"Furthermore you tell me, but I knew already, that Lorenzo Valla had been active in this field before me, for I was the first to publish his annotations; and Jacques Lefèvre's notes on the Pauline epistles I have seen. I only wish that they had finished off their works, so that my efforts might not have been needed. ... But it is not yet quite clear to me why you confront me with these two names. Is it to deter me from the project as though I were already anticipated? But it will be clear that even after such good men I had good reason to undertake this job. Or do you suggest that their efforts, like my own, were unpopular in theological circles? Personally I cannot see that Lorenzo added to his existing unpopularity; and Lefèvre I hear is universally approved. I might add that we do not attempt an exactly similar task. Lorenzo only annotated selected passages, and those, it is clear, in passing and with what they call a light touch. Lefèvre published notes on the Pauline epistles only and translated them in his own way; then added notes in passing if there was any disagreement. But I have translated the whole New Testament after comparison with the Greek copies, and have added the Greek in columns side by side with the Latin, so that anyone may easily compare it. I have appended separate annotations in which, partly by argument and partly by the authority of the early fathers, I show that my modifications of the translation were not haphazard alterations"¹¹

In this passage, Erasmus suggests that Lefèvre set himself only a limited task: he only translated the Pauline epistles, not the entire New Testament. Furthermore, Lefèvre's execution of this task was less thorough: he had not consulted the Greek manuscripts in order to offer a better text and so had failed to give the reader adequate information. In addition, the phrase: "He translated the Pauline epistles in his own way", seems to reflect some reservation on Erasmus' part as to Lefèvre's translation method.

Erasmus seems no more obliging about Lefèvre's translation of Paul in his letter to Henry Bullock of August 1516:

"Iacobus Faber Stapulensis, amicus noster, dudum id fecit in Paulum quod ego in totum Nouum Instrumentum. Cur hic demum tanquam ad rem nouam commouentur quidam? An aliis omnibus istud licere volunt, mihi vno non volunt? Atqui Stapulensis non paulo plus ausus est quam ego. Ille suam interpretationem veteri opposuit, idque in academiarum omnium regina Lutetia; ego recognitorem modo professus locos aliquot aut corrigo aut explico."¹²

"My friend Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples some time ago did for St Paul what I have done for the whole New Testament. Why should certain people wait until now to rise in their wrath as though this were something new? Are they ready to give leave to everyone except me? Yet Lefèvre showed rather more enterprise than I did, for he set his new version opposite the old, and did so in Paris, the queen of all universities, while I set up as no more than a reviser, and either correct or explain a few passages only."¹³

¹¹ CWE 3, pp. 137–138, Ep. 337, ll. 877–909.

¹² Ep. 456, to Henry Bullock, Rochester, <22> August 1516, ll. 94–101. Allen suggests that this letter was perhaps revised for publication as a further defense of the Nouum Instrumentum, because it bears a general resemblance to the Apologia prefixed to that volume.

¹³ CWE 4, p. 47, Ep. 456, ll. 105–112.

Here Erasmus is arguing that Lefèvre had acted more radically and had shown less reverence for the Vulgate than Erasmus. In particular, the wording: "... he set his new version opposite the old ... while I set up as no more than a reviser, and either correct or explain a few passages only," seems intended to direct the suspicion of the theologians away from himself toward Lefèvre.

Rumours about the content of the aforementioned letters are likely to have reached Lefèvre, since the letters under consideration received widespread attention and their subject-matter was of special relevance to Lefèvre. Moreover, Epp. 326 and 337 were certainly published before November 1516.¹⁴ The passages about himself may have provoked him to attack Erasmus in his second edition of his commentary on the epistles of Paul; he had plenty of time to consider a reaction in the period between the dates these letters were written (March 1515; May 1515; August 1516) and the publication of his second edition of Paul (between November 1516 and 10 July 1517). Perhaps he sought revenge. The accusation of impia that Lefèvre uttered against Erasmus (in reaction to Erasmus' assertion that the incarnate Jesus was humiliated below the most abject of human kind¹⁵) was liable to incite suspicion from the orthodox side, just as Erasmus' suggestions about Lefèvre's translation work in the letters cited above (Epp. 337 and 456) had the potential to cast doubt on the orthodoxy of Lefèvre.

Lefèvre ran the same risk of being suspected of heterodoxy by the traditional theologians as Erasmus. The former's situation may actually have been even more perilous than that of Erasmus. In 1515 Lefèvre had been summoned to be "amicably interrogated" about his support of Johann Reuchlin and about the fact that his name was used in Rome by critics of the theological faculty of Paris.¹⁶ It is clear that, like Erasmus, Lefèvre had reason to fear orthodox opponents and to be irritated, therefore, by the letters of Erasmus quoted above.

Since both had reason to fear for their reputation and for the harm their conflict could do to the cause of humanist scholarship, it is remarkable that they proceeded to attack each other and injure each other's reputation.

In March 1516, Erasmus published his Nouuum Instrumentum.

The second part of this work consists of the Annotationes. In the annotation of Hebr. 2,7, Erasmus criticizes Lefèvre for translating "lower than God" rather than "lower than the angels", and for interpreting "a little" as "a little in dignity" instead of as "for a while". Erasmus argued that Lefèvre's translation and interpretation ran counter to the traditional exegesis of the Church, represented by such authorities as Chrysostom and Thomas Aquinas.¹⁷

It was this annotation that prompted Lefèvre to react with his long note of no less than eight pages in folio, added in the second edition of his commentary on ¹⁴ See Allen, intr. Epp. 326 and 337.

¹⁵ See appendix III, II. 22–24.

¹⁶ J.K. Farge, Orthodoxy and Reform in Early Reformation France, the Faculty of Theology of Paris, 1500–1543, Leiden, 1985, p. 170.

¹⁷ See appendix III, passim.

Paul's epistles, at Hebr. 2,7.¹⁸ Lefèvre published this revised edition of his work on Paul some time between November 1516 and 10 July 1517.¹⁹

The central point in Lefèvre's counter-attack is that it is theologically inadmissible to assert that Christ was ever placed lower than the angels. Since "angels" is a rendering of a Hebrew word that normally means "God", the translation "God" has to be preferred in Hebr. 2,7 as well. As a result, there is no need to translate "a little" as "for a while": it should be taken to express that Christ, through the incarnation, became "only a little" lower than God, without ceasing to be God.

In response to what Erasmus called Lefèvre's "disputatio", Erasmus composed his Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem. This work appeared in Louvain between 23 and 28 August 1517. In it, Erasmus stood by his opinion that Hebr. 2,7 should be translated "You have lowered him for a little while below the angels." In support of this translation, Erasmus adduced all the philological evidence available. Furthermore, he argued that it was implausible that the Greek text of Hebr. and the entire exegetical tradition of the Church had been mistaken in reading "angels" here instead of "God". In particular, he explained at length that during his suffering Christ had indeed been humiliated far below the angels and even below the lowest of men. The reading "below the angels" thus was dogmatically unobjectionable: it reflected precisely the image of the suffering Christ in terms of which, according to Erasmus, Christ himself wanted to be remembered by his followers.

While preparing the Nouum Instrumentum, Erasmus had written many letters defending the work against opponents. He did the same in the case of the apologia against Lefèvre. Well in advance of its publication, he informed several correspondents of his intention to compose this defense, trying to justify his public reaction to Lefèvre's intervention.

In the relatively short period of four and a half years, from August 1517 to February 1522, Erasmus had his apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples published no less than six times.²⁰ It was published four times in the six months from August 1517 to March 1518. In addition, he continually expanded the text. As a result, the text of the two issues of the fifth edition (1521, 1522; E^{1,2}) is considerably longer than that of the editio princeps (1517; A). The question may be asked why Erasmus had this work published so frequently and in ever more augmented editions.

An important reason was no doubt that several publishers were keen on printing and publishing works authored by Erasmus and urged him to give them his ¹⁸ This discussion, which Lefèvre inserted in his commentary on Paul of 1516/17, is often designated by Erasmus in his Apologia of 1517 as Lefèvre's disputatio.

¹⁹ The date of publication of this book, according to its colophon, is 1515. This date cannot be correct. This problem will be treated in section VII of this introduction: The Date of the Second Edition of Lefèvre's Epistole divi Pauli apostoli cum commentariis.

²⁰ See BE Rép., pp. 9–15. The apologia against Lefèvre was published six times during Erasmus' lifetime; four times in the years 1517–18 and twice in different issues of the collected Apologiae, Basel, Froben, 1521–22. See also the list of editions of this apologia, at the end of this introduction.

writings for publication.²¹ Another reason, however, was that Erasmus had become nervous and uncertain when, after the first publication of the apologia against Lefèvre, the latter did not react and remained silent.²² This becomes apparent, for instance, in the letter Erasmus wrote to Henry Bullock²³ in April 1518:

“Vos isthic pro me et Fabro inter vos iurgiis concertare doleo profecto. Scripsi nuper homini vt aut epistola quapiam edita testetur inter nos conuenire, si pudet παλινφθεῖν, aut respondeat si quid habet quod defendat, modo temperet a tam amicis ac peramicis dictis quibus antea in me lusit: nunc illius silentio magis excitari dissidium, dum quisque pro suo animo suspicatur. Rixarum nullus est finis. Quod si hoc mali sic coniunctum est studiis vt distrahi non queat, mihi valebunt potius. Dormire prestat quam scribere.”²⁴

“The news that in your part of the world you are at daggers drawn in support of Lefèvre or myself grieves me profoundly. I wrote the man lately, asking him either to publish some sort of letter to show that we are now in agreement, if he is ashamed to withdraw, or to write a reply if there is any point he wishes to maintain, provided he abstains from the friendly, indeed over-friendly, expressions with which he made game of me before. As things are, I said, his silence makes our disagreement more serious, for everyone harbours his own suspicions. Of quarrels there is no end. And if this plague is so closely connected with our studies that we cannot have one without the other, I would rather bid farewell to all my work. Doing nothing is better than scribbling.”²⁵

In fact, Erasmus was afraid that Lefèvre was preparing a defense in response to his apologia. At the same time, Erasmus was embarrassed to hear nothing from Lefèvre. The reaction Erasmus was obviously hoping for was an acknowledgement that he was right.²⁶ He went as far as to threaten with a vehement offensive if Lefèvre refused to budge from his view. Early in 1518, Erasmus wrote William Nesen²⁷ that he might lose his self-control were Lefèvre to provoke him again.

“Quod si cuius instinctu denuo prouocabit odiosius, fortassis non quibo impetrare animo meo similem moderationem.”²⁸

²¹ See, e.g., Epp. 575 and 581.

²² Epp. 752, ll. 10–12, 766, ll. 9–21; 768, ll. 16–24; 775, ll. 16–18; 794, ll. 47–60.

²³ Henry Bullock (c. 1497–1526) studied in Cambridge, where he may have met Erasmus in 1506. Bullock invited Erasmus to Cambridge in 1516 and praised his recent edition of the New Testament (Ep. 449). In August of 1516, Erasmus replied with Ep. 456, a lengthy defense of his New Testament. In 1518 Erasmus sent him three letters, discussing the opposition to his New Testament. R.J. Schoeck in: Contemporaries I, p. 220.

²⁴ Ep. 826, from Erasmus to Henry Bullock, Louvain, 23 April 1518, ll. 9–17.

²⁵ CWE V, p. 398, Ep. 826, ll. 12–22.

²⁶ See Ep. 794, from Erasmus to Peter Barbirius, Louvain, 6 March 1518, ll. 47–48: “Apologia iam quater est impressa. Deleat ille suam insectationem, ego quoad possum premam Apologiam.”

“My Apologia has now been printed four times. Let him remove all traces of attack, and I will do what I can to suppress my defense.” CWE V, p. 342. Ep. 794, ll. 51–52.

²⁷ William Nesen of Nastätten (1493–1524) went to Basel for study in 1511 and worked as a corrector for Johann Froben in 1515–6. Michael Erbe and P.G. Bietenholz in: Contemporaries III, pp. 12–14.

²⁸ Ep. 768, to William Nesen, Louvain, 18 January 1518, ll. 22–24.

"If anyone stirs him up to provoke me still more unpleasantly, I may not be able to force myself to show the same moderation."²⁹

Understandably, Erasmus was afraid that his apologia might meet with disapproval in humanist circles. After all, Lefèvre was a scholar of great renown.³⁰ Moreover, controversy within the humanist movement was sure to damage its intellectual and social respectability. Erasmus indeed heard from several people that they would have preferred a less violent tone in his apologia.³¹ His uneasiness over this apologia is clear from the frequent and divergent explanations he gave for publishing it. In a letter to Cuthbert Tunstall³² he justified his plan to bring out the apologia by saying that he wished to show that he was not so stupid as Lefèvre had imagined he was.

"Respondebimus, sed citra stomachum; non quo illius refellamus sententiam, quam in scholiis nostris recensuimus duntaxat, non reiecimus, verum ut ostendamus nos non vsque adeo stupidos esse quam ille facit"³³

"I shall reply to him, but I shall keep my temper; not so much to prove him wrong – I only discussed his opinion in my own commentary and did not reject it – as to show that I am not so stupid as he makes out"³⁴

In a letter to Wolfgang Capito, however, he explained that he had composed the apologia against Lefèvre in order to defend himself against the charges of impiety and blasphemy which Lefèvre had leveled against him.

"Ex quo legeram Fabri reprehensionem, inter quatuordecim dies absolueram meam apologiam: in qua tantum hoc ago, ut impietatis et blasphemie crimen, quod is nescio cuius instinctu impegerat, depallam."³⁵

"After reading Lefèvre's criticisms I had my apologia finished within a fortnight, in which my sole object is to rebut the charges of impiety and blasphemy which someone, I know not who, had inspired him to bring against me."³⁶

Repeatedly, Erasmus felt the need to emphasize that he was the victor in this controversy.³⁷ Finally, in June of 1518, Erasmus heard that Lefèvre had no intention of ²⁹ CWE V, p. 286, Ep. 768, ll. 27–29. Cf. Allen, Epp. 766, ll. 19–21 and 775, ll. 17–18 and 734, ll. 35–41.

³⁰ Ep. 787, ll. 22–23.

³¹ Epp. 659, ll. 15–16; 724, ll. 7–9; 621, ll. 23–30; 731, ll. 33–35; 747, ll. 85–90.

³² Cuthbert Tunstall (1474–1559) studied at Oxford and Cambridge. About 1499 he went to Padua and remained there for six years. Among the friends he made in Italy was Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples. He returned to England about 1510. From 1515 to 1517 he lived primarily in the Netherlands. Tunstall helped Erasmus in the revision of the text of the New Testament and supported him in his controversies with Dorp and Lefèvre. James K. McConica in: Contemporaries III, s.v., pp. 349–354.

³³ Ep. 607, to Cuthbert Tunstall, Louvain, 17 July <1517>, ll. 10–13.

³⁴ CWE V, p. 31, Ep. 607, ll. 11–14.

³⁵ Ep. 731, from Erasmus to Wolfgang Capito, Louvain, 6 December <1517>, ll. 3–6.

³⁶ CWE V, pp. 226–227, Ep. 731, ll. 2–6. Cf. Epp. 778, ll. 82–94 and 222–250; 608, ll. 22–26; 777, ll. 15–20; 659, ll. 1–15.

³⁷ For example in Epp. 653, ll. 14–17; 659, ll. 1–15; 608, ll. 22–26; 777, ll. 15–20; 794, ll. 36–45.

publishing a reply and even regretted ever having been the first to attack.³⁸ Lefèvre indeed never published a reaction, although he certainly did not accept Erasmus' interpretation of Hebr. 2,7. In 1517 Lefèvre published his third edition of his translation, paraphrase and annotations of the epistles of Paul. It contains his exposition against Erasmus in practically the same form as in 1516/17.³⁹

In 1518, Erasmus brought out the fourth edition of his apologia (Louvain, Martens). At the end of the book, he included a long and detailed enumeration of the objections which Lefèvre had brought against him in 1516/7, with each objection accompanied by Erasmus' answer.⁴⁰ This long summary of the polemic was also incorporated into the note on Hebr. 2,7 in the second edition of the Annotationes in Nouum Testamentum (Basel, 1519). From then on, the summary went almost unaltered through all later editions of Erasmus' Annotationes: Basel, 1521³; 1527⁴; 1535⁵.

In 1523, long after the controversy had begun, and some time after the two issues of the fifth edition of the apologia (E^{1,2}: 1521–22) had appeared in Basel, Simon de Colines published Lefèvre's French translation of the New Testament in Paris.⁴¹ The work appeared anonymously. In this work, Lefèvre translated Hebr. 2,7 as follows: "tu las fait ung peu moindre que les anges". This rendering of Hebr. 2,7, however, does not reveal Lefèvre's real opinion about the meaning of the passage. Had he translated "moindre que Dieu", he had betrayed himself as the translator. This would have been a great risk, since the Inquisition was by no means in favour of translations of the Bible in the vernacular. In August 1523, the theological faculty of Paris debated the admissibility of translations of the Bible in the vernacular.⁴² In August 1525, the publication of such translations was forbidden.⁴³ In 1523, then, Lefèvre had every reason not to reveal his identity as translator by writing "a Deo", a rendering everybody could recognize as his.

In 1524, Erasmus published his Paraphrase of the epistle to the Hebrews. His paraphrase of Hebr. 2,7 mirrors his unaltered view about the humiliation of Christ, but the genre of the paraphrase did not allow him to refer to the polemic with Lefèvre.⁴⁴

³⁸ Ep. 849, ll. 15–17.

³⁹ See appendix IV, the apparatus criticus, for some slight alterations in comparison with the second edition of 1516/7 (to which Erasmus reacts in his apologia against Lefèvre).

⁴⁰ See appendix V.

⁴¹ J. Lefèvre d'Étaples, Le Nouveau Testament. Fac-simile de la première édition Simon de Colines 1523, I–II, ed. M. A. Screech, Paris, The Hague, 1970. See B.T. Chambers, Bibliography of French Bibles. Fifteenth- and Sixteenth-Century French-Language Editions of the Scriptures, Geneva 1983, pp. 42–44, no. 31. Lefèvre's translation of the New Testament was reprinted numerous times.

⁴² G. Bedouelle and B. Roussel, La lecture de la Bible en langue vivante au XVI^e siècle: chronologie de quelques textes et faits marquants, in: I. Backus and F. Higman, edd., Théorie et pratique de l'exégèse, Geneva, 1990, pp. 61–76, see p. 63.

⁴³ Ibid.

⁴⁴ In a note to his English translation of the Paraphrase of Hebr., at Hebr. 2 (CWE 44, Toronto, 1993, p. 357, n. 6), J.J. Bateman suggests that Erasmus did alter his view, because in his paraphrase ad locum he uses the words: "demisisti illum paulisper infra angelos." Bateman

In 1531, two new editions of Lefèvre's edition of the epistles of Paul appeared, one in Paris, the other in Cologne.⁴⁵ Both are based exclusively on the third edition. The long addition of 1516/17 directed against Erasmus figures in them without significant alteration.⁴⁶ Thus, judging from these two 1531 editions, Lefèvre remained convinced that Jesus could not be said to have been humiliated below the angels.

The fact that in 1531, fourteen years after the third edition of Lefèvre's Latin work on Paul, two re-editions appeared unexpectedly and almost simultaneously, may be due to the Parisian Faculty of Theology's decision, in 1531, to enlarge the possibilities for the publication of Bible translations and commentaries.⁴⁷ remarks that this paraphrase "avoids the accusation that Christ was inferior to the angels." But, in fact, the paraphrase expresses the idea that Christ incarnate was inferior to the angels not less clearly than the translation "fecisti eum paululo inferiorem angelis" given in the Nouum Instrumentum.

The polemic between Erasmus and Lefèvre thus ended in 1517 with Erasmus' apologia, without leading to any agreement or resolution between the two opponents.

⁴⁵ In his bibliography of Lefèvre's works, E.F. Rice (Prefatory Epistles, p. 559) mentions four 1531 editions of this book, two of which appeared in Paris, and two in Cologne. For all four editions, Rice refers to libraries where copies of these editions are kept. Examination of the copies indicated by Rice has proven that they do not represent four, but only two different editions. One was printed in Paris by Jean Petit and published by François Regnault. Copies of this edition are in Cambridge, Peterhouse, and Oxford, Bodleian Library. The other was printed and published in Cologne by Eucharius Cervicornus. Copies of this edition are in Copenhagen, Kongelige Bibliotek, and Vienna, Österreichische Nationalbibliothek.

⁴⁶ See the apparatus criticus to appendix IV.

⁴⁷ Cf. J.K. Farge, Orthodoxy and Reform in Early Reformation France, The Faculty of Theology of Paris, 1500–1543, Leiden, 1985, p. 180.

III. A SYNOPSIS OF THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF ERASMUS AND LEFEVRE TO THEIR CONTROVERSY ON THE INTERPRETATION OF HEBREWS 2, 7

For the reader's convenience, the works and the portions of works by Lefèvre and Erasmus in which they carried on their dispute on Hebr. 2,7, are listed here in chronological order. Lefèvre's first two contributions (i.e., his note on Ps. 8,6 in the Quincuplex Psalterium of 1509, and his annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in his commentary on Paul of 1512) were of course a prelude to the controversy rather than a contribution in the strict sense.

In this list, only the first editions of the works concerned will be recorded. Second and later editions will not be mentioned here, unless they themselves make part of the controversy.

- 1509: Lefèvre's annotation of Ps. 8,6 in his Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1509 (reproduced below in appendix I).
- 1512: Lefèvre's annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512 (reproduced below in appendix II).
- 1516: Erasmus' annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in his Nouum Instrumentum, Basel, March 1516 (reproduced below in appendix III).
- 1516/7: Lefèvre's annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the second edition of his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, between November 1516 and 10 July 1517 (reproduced below in appendix IV).
- 1517: Erasmus, Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Louvain, between 23 and 28 August 1517 (edited in the present volume according to the sixth edition, Basel, 1540).
- 1518: Erasmus, Summa totius disputationis, appended to the fourth edition of his Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, Louvain, 1518, also included in his annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the second edition of his Nouum Testamentum, Basel, 1519 (reproduced below in appendix V).

IV. AN ANALYSIS OF THE TEXT OF ERASMUS' APOLOGIA AGAINST LEFEVRE. ITS LITERARY GENRE

The Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem has the form of a letter addressed to Lefèvre. It is a defense against Lefèvre's attack on Erasmus contained in the long note on Hebr. 2,7 which Lefèvre inserted in the second edition of his commentary on Paul (1516/7). In his apologia, a detailed and lengthy reaction, Erasmus tries to prove his case. I will first sketch the organization of the apologia, before going on to discuss some of the devices Erasmus uses here to win over his readers.

The apologia against Lefèvre displays no consistent overall literary structure. Sometimes Erasmus treats certain topics touched upon by Lefèvre, at other times he permits himself to make a digression. He discusses some of the arguments of Lefèvre in the order in which he had brought them up, and others out of sequence. Yet despite the apologia's poorly organized composition, the following parts can be distinguished:

First part: presentation of the problem at issue, ll. 2–18.

Second part: complaints about Lefèvre's ungrateful, unfriendly and cunning behaviour, ll. 21–259.

Third part: treatment of Lefèvre's arguments and objections, ll. 279–1669.

Fourth part: announcement of a summary of what precedes; continuation of the treatment of Lefèvre's arguments; rebuttal of three charges brought by Lefèvre, ll. 1670–2372.

Fifth part: critique of the second edition of Lefèvre's work, on the grounds that it does not make sufficient use of Erasmus' criticisms of the first edition, ll. 2373–2591.

The apologia begins with a short recapitulation¹ of the issue of the controversy. Lefèvre translates Hebr. 2,7: "You (God) have lowered him (Jesus) a little below God," instead of "... below the angels." Thus he prevents the biblical text from saying that Jesus was humiliated very deeply. Erasmus, however, prefers to translate: "You (God) have lowered him for a short time below the angels," since he believed that Jesus in his suffering unto death had indeed been humiliated severely.

The rest of the apologia is composed as a long letter to Lefèvre. Erasmus greets Lefèvre and begins with an introduction,² part two of the apologia. In it he explains that, when he was about to move to Louvain, he saw a copy of the second edition of Lefèvre's work on Paul, read the long passage inserted in the commentary at Hebr. 2,7, and was startled by its sharp tone. Erasmus here elaborates on the friendly way in which he himself had corrected mistakes made by Lefèvre and on Lefèvre's cunning way of attacking Erasmus unexpectedly in an extension of his commentary, a passage in which he offends Erasmus so deeply that it compels him to answer.³

¹ Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2–18.

² Ibid., ll. 21–259.

In the third and longest part,⁴ Erasmus treats the objections raised by Lefèvre and answers them in detail. An important issue, in Erasmus' view, is that Lefèvre had attacked him and begun a polemic without reason, since in his Nouum Instrumentum Erasmus had only proposed two possible interpretations and rejected neither of them. In this context Erasmus states his conviction that in annotations one should be permitted to freely discuss all possible interpretations of biblical passages.⁵

It is true that in the Commentarioli in Psalmos, attributed to Jerome, the reading 'a Deo' is given, but, as Erasmus remarks, it is uncertain that this commentary is Jerome's. Furthermore, Jerome doubts whether the passage Hebr. 2,7, refers to Christ at all, whereas Lefèvre takes this for granted. Lefèvre presupposes that Paul wrote Hebr. in Hebrew, and asserts that Paul in Hebr. 2,7 quoted Ps. 8,6 in Hebrew and read elohim, meaning 'God'. Like Jerome however, Erasmus is sure neither that Paul wrote the epistle to the Hebrews nor that it was originally written in Hebrew. He argues at length that elohim almost always means 'angels' or 'gods' and only rarely 'God'. When Jerome quoted Hebr. 2,7 in his commentary on the epistle to the Galatians (undoubtedly written by him), he wrote 'ab angelis'.⁶

Furthermore, according to Erasmus, paulominus in Hebr. 2,7 must be interpreted as referring to the time of Jesus' suffering, not to the limited degree of his passion. It means 'for a while', not 'a little in dignity', because, in Erasmus' view, Jesus had suffered very much, but only for a short time.⁷

Lefèvre had suggested that Erasmus' reading 'below the angels' implied that Jesus had come into contact with evil, since certain angels were morally bad and sinned. Erasmus, however, has in mind the hardships and the pain that Jesus endured on earth. Angels never have to meet with the adversities of mortal nature. Therefore, Jesus has not been lowered a little but very much below the angels, at least with regard to his human nature, not, indeed, with regard to his divine nature.⁸ Lefèvre wishes to see only the divine side of the incarnate Christ. Erasmus is convinced that emphasizing – or even overstating – the depth of Jesus' passion, including the statement that Jesus was humiliated below the most abject of humankind, contributes to his glory. The glorification of Jesus' might and majesty, which Lefèvre emphasizes, is something for the future life.⁹

³ Ibid., ll. 231–242, 755–773 and 2222–2241.

⁴ Ibid., ll. 283–1669. Erasmus summarizes this part of the apologia in his second edition of the New Testament, Annotations, at Hebr. 2,7 (see appendix V).

⁵ Ibid., ll. 283–348, 1302–1317, 1676–1679.

⁶ Ibid., ll. 537–546, 1646–1669, 1802–1817, and 1911–2112.

⁷ Ibid., ll. 1370–1466, and 1702–1713.

⁸ Ibid., ll. 462–470, 550–581, 846–935.

⁹ Ibid., ll. 774–982 and 1714–1730.

Erasmus succeeds in redirecting the crucial charge brought against him by Lefèvre – namely that Erasmus shows too little reverence towards Christ – against Lefèvre himself. He does so by explaining that by underestimating Jesus' humiliation, Lefèvre fails to appreciate sufficiently the greatness of what Jesus accomplished for the faithful.¹⁰

In the beginning of the fourth part of the apologia, Erasmus explains¹¹ the lack of order in the preceding part of the apologia as inevitable, since he had to follow the disorderly presentation of Lefèvre's attack in order to answer all its parts. But Erasmus announces a conveniently arranged summary of the foregoing. In what follows, however, he repeats a great deal of the argumentation of the preceding part of the apologia, and also expands the argumentation. In an important passage in this "summary", Erasmus paraphrases a tripartite charge brought against him by Lefèvre¹² and indeed answers it in three sections.¹³

In the last ten pages of the apologia,¹⁴ Erasmus expresses his amazement that Lefèvre has done nothing with Erasmus' criticism of the first, 1512 edition of Lefèvre's S. Pauli Epistolae XIV. Here he enumerates a number of Lefèvre's mistakes and makes a great deal of this.

Erasmus finishes his apologia by expressing the hope that Lefèvre will resume his former friendly contacts with him and by threatening him with a more severe offensive if Lefèvre refuses to do so.

In this apologia Erasmus tries to convince the readers by explaining inter alia how friendly he has always been towards Lefèvre. He declares that, accordingly, in this apologia, he will not pay back Lefèvre in his own coin: he will spare him, as he usually does. Erasmus has always favoured him and has often covered up Lefèvre's blunders.¹⁵ He points out that, in the Nouum Instrumentum, he even did Lefèvre the favour of mentioning him in discussing the reading a Deo: he could have confined himself to quoting Jerome only. Moreover, he undergirded Lefèvre's opinion with Jerome's authority, while presenting his own opinion without quoting important authorities.¹⁶

Erasmus further tries to win the sympathy of the readers by stressing that he feels the responsibility to inform the readers completely about the different possible interpretations of Hebr. 2,7. He is willing to stand by this responsibility even to the detriment of his personal friendship with Lefèvre. Erasmus also likes to give the impression that he values the readers' judgement. In discussing a passage, he points out the different possible interpretations and leaves it to the readers to ¹⁰ The return of the accusation of impietas is seen most clearly in ibid., ll. 1333–1363.

¹¹ Ibid., ll. 1670–1675.

¹² Ibid., ll. 1918–1923.

¹³ Ibid., ll. 1924–1946, 1947–2105, 2106–2182.

¹⁴ Ibid., ll. 2396–2591.

¹⁵ Ibid., ll. 48–202, 2113–2121, and 2396–2408.

¹⁶ Ibid., ll. 317–327.

choose. He claims that he does not condemn opinions different from his. He purports to refrain from attacking people who prefer another opinion, and from using his knowledge of rhetoric in criticizing other views.¹⁷

In discussing Lefèvre's attitude and character, Erasmus complains that Lefèvre treats him less amicably than he had treated Lefèvre. Lefèvre does not shrink from calling Erasmus 'insane' and from labelling Erasmus' opinion (that the incarnate Christ was humiliated below the most abject of human kind) 'impious' and 'unworthy of God and Christ.' Lefèvre acted as if there was a war on: he had attacked Erasmus without warning him beforehand. He makes abundant use of rhetoric. He distorts Erasmus' words in the Nouum Instrumentum with the result that they seem to be charges brought exclusively against Lefèvre. Lefèvre never does Erasmus the favour of quoting him in support of his own opinion. Erasmus considers Lefèvre's behaviour all the more unfair because Lefèvre is both a very influential scholar and older than Erasmus; the way he treats Erasmus might harm the latter's reputation.¹⁸

As to Lefèvre's attitude towards the reading public, he does not feel the obligation to inform his readers completely. This is clear from the fact that he corrected nothing in the passages of his work that Erasmus had criticized. Lefèvre claims too much authority: he does not leave it to the readers to judge; he decrees and dictates, and – what is worse – he denounces other opinions.¹⁹ Lefèvre damages the interests of the humanist circle by starting a quarrel with Erasmus for no reason at all.²⁰ Lefèvre has too little respect for the tradition: he does not quote authoritative patristic authors for justifying his reading of Hebr. 2,7 and, moreover, condemns the reading the Church has always accepted in the liturgical lessons.²¹

Dealing with the epistle to the Hebrews in the apologia, Erasmus often uses Jerome as a witness in support of his views. Now Jerome was also the only authority Lefèvre could mention in support of his view. But Erasmus utilizes him for other purposes as well. He refers to him, for instance, as an example of a commentator who presents different possible interpretations of a given passage and leaves it to the reader to decide. For Erasmus, Jerome is also an example of an interpreter who, although preferring one reading, does not denounce the other. Furthermore, just as Jerome did not accept the accusations of those who attacked him, Erasmus does not tolerate the insults of Lefèvre. By thus using the authority of Jerome, the only witness Lefèvre could adduce for his view, in justification of his own interpretation of Hebr. 2,7 and of his whole defense, Erasmus was able to transform Lefèvre's sole witness into a witness supporting his own case.

¹⁷ Ibid., ll. 108–138, 290–378, 550–558, and 2235–2255.

¹⁸ Ibid., ll. 26–356, 462–478, 559–581, 745–773, 1351–1363, 1714–1750, 1888–1901, 1913–1923, 2222–2228, 2381–2408.

¹⁹ Ibid., ll. 479–606, and 2041–2050.

²⁰ Ibid., ll. 21–79.

²¹ Ibid., ll. 317–517.

In summary, the rhetorical means used by Erasmus in his apologia against Lefèvre include the return of the charge, the emphasizing of his own moral integrity, the denouncement of his opponent's behaviour as morally dubious, the appeal to the judgement of the audience which is represented as sufficiently competent to decide, and the constant use of Jerome, Lefèvre's sole witness, in support of both the Erasmian view of Hebr. 2,7 and the Erasmian way of proceeding in this polemic as a whole.

V. THE CHRISTOLOGIES OF ERASMUS AND LEFEVRE

Erasmus and Lefèvre d’Etaples had the same ideals about a better world, one that could be realised only if everyone were able to read the Bible and knew how to follow Jesus. Hence, both were convinced of the importance of the diffusion of knowledge of the Bible and of the significance of Bible commentaries and translations. They had a great deal of sympathy for each others’ occupations.¹

Differences, however, regarding their views on the translation and interpretation of Hebr. 2,7, forced them apart. Where Erasmus translated: “You (God) have made him (Jesus) for a little while lower than the angels,”² Lefèvre translated: “You have made him a little less than God.”³ A fierce controversy flared up, one that was primarily a dispute over their different conceptions of Jesus.

In this chapter, I begin by conveying the context of this quote from Hebr. and briefly pointing out the philological aspect of the translation problem. I then offer a survey of the Christological arguments that Erasmus and Lefèvre used in their controversy, before developing an account of their Christologies and ideas about christiformitas that is clearer than the picture that emerges directly from the controversy. And finally I will say something briefly about the background of their Christologies.

In Hebr. 1 and 2, the author appeals to his readers to remain faithful to the gospel that is preached to them. The sublimity of Christ is the argument for this purpose. After suffering and dying to release people from sin and death, Jesus was taken into heaven. He was granted a position far above the angels and was crowned with honour and glory.

In this argument about the height of the enthroned Christ, the author says in Hebr. 2,7 – using a quotation from Ps. 8,6 – that Jesus reached his glory after God had made him a little, or, for a little while, below the angels.

The translation problem is as follows: this passage, Hebr. 2,7, is a quotation from Ps. 8,6. The translations of Erasmus and Lefèvre are both possible as far as the original Hebrew of this psalm is concerned. The difference of opinion pertains to the translation of the Hebrew words “מְעֻמָּד” that can signify “for a little while” as well as “a little” and “elohim” that can be translated both with “God” and “angels”. The original Greek of Hebr. 2,7, however, is ambiguous only in the case of βραχύ τι “for a little while” or “a little”. Αγγέλους can obviously not be translated as “God” but only as “angels”, “messengers” and so on.

Lefèvre nevertheless translated “Minuisti eum paulominus a Deo”, Erasmus preferred: “Fecisti eum paululo inferiorem angelis.” “Paulominus”, and “paululo”, in their Latin translations are still open to two possible interpretations: “for a little while” and “a little”, “not much”. But they were both quite clear with respect to the following: Erasmus insists that in Hebr. 2,7 “paulominus” refers to the time that Jesus endured his humiliation⁴; Lefèvre insists that it refers to the degree of Jesus’ dignity while he was on earth.⁵

¹ For Erasmus’ opinion about Lefèvre, see, e.g., Epp. 531, ll. 571–576 and 541, ll. 70–71 and for Lefèvre’s view on Erasmus: Epp. 445, ll. 36–43, and 621, ll. 19–23.

² Nov. Instr., Basel, 1516, p. 134. Erasmus’ note on Hebr. 2,7 is represented in appendix III.

³ S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, f° 58v°.

Incidentally, Lefèvre’s translation, “minuisti eum paulominus a Deo”, “you (God) made him (Jesus) a little lower than God,” produces a sentence structure that is remarkable and even incorrect. “You have made him a little lower than yourself” would have been clearer. Bedouelle solves this problem by reading Lefèvre’s translation as: “tu l’as fait un peu moindre qu’un dieu.”⁶ But Lefèvre’s arguments in support of his translation convincingly show that by writing “a Deo” he meant God, not a lower god.⁷

Before turning to a discussion of Erasmus’ and Lefèvre’s Christological views in general, I shall give an overview of the Christological arguments they used in the writings that comprise this controversy.

The dispute began in 1509, with the publication of Lefèvre’s Quincuplex Psalterium, which provides five readings of the Psalms with paraphrase and commentary. Here, in an annotation of Ps. 8,6 Lefèvre translated “elohim” as “a Deo”, “below God”.⁸ He did this contrary to the tradition, that read “ab angelis”, for only (pseudo) Jerome had done this before.⁹

Lefèvre preferred the Psalterium Hebraicum as a rule, partly because of his great admiration for Jerome and partly because of the importance that he saw in using the original text, in this case the Hebrew, as Jerome does throughout the Psalterium Hebraicum.

In this passage, however, Lefèvre had yet another argument for following the reading of the Psalterium Hebraicum: the dignity of Jesus. The thought that Jesus was humiliated below the angels was intolerable to him.

The Septuagint, however, had rendered the word “elohim” in Ps. 8,6 into παρ' ἀγγέλους. Lefèvre explained that this “error” of the interpreters of the Septuagint was due to their defective insight. They had not understood that this passage refers to Jesus. They thought it referred to the ordinary man and were afraid of giving him too much honour.

Using lots of biblical passages as references, Lefèvre tried to discredit the claim that the incarnate Jesus was deeply humiliated. He read the passages in the context of Ps. 8,6 (and Hebr. 2,7) as referring to the incarnate Christ, although they had traditionally been interpreted as references to the enthroned Christ, for example: “You have crowned him with honour and glory and have set him over the works of your hands.”¹⁰ According to Lefèvre, the earthly Jesus retained full

⁴ See appendix III, ll. 29–32.

⁵ See appendix IV, ll. 278–349.

⁶ See G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d’Étaples et l’intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, p. 219.

⁷ See Lefèvre’s Disputatio given appendix IV, passim.

⁸ Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1509, f° 14v^o and r^o.

⁹ In Jerome’s Commentarioli in Psalmos, ed. P. Antin, CCSL 72, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

¹⁰ Ps. 8, 5–6; Hebr. 2,7–8.

possession of his divine dignity. He did indeed descend a little below God, but he was absolutely not humiliated below the angels.

Lefevre assumed that Hebr. had originally been written by Paul in Hebrew and subsequently translated by an interpreter into Greek. Already in 1509, he stated that the interpreter had followed the Septuagint in making the same mistake by rendering “elohim” into ἀγγέλους. Paul himself had, of course, intended “elohim” to mean “below God.” At the end of this annotation in the Quincuplex Psalterium Lefèvre made the appeal:

“... mendas codicum eluite ...”¹¹

“remove the errors of the codices!”

It is noticeable that Lefevre followed a line of thinking which was unorthodox in those days: not only did he consider the Septuagint reading as erroneous; he also denied the correctness of the New Testament canonical text of Hebr.. This is something of which Erasmus was to take advantage of.

The next important event in the controversy was Lefevre’s annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the first edition, in 1512, of his translation, paraphrase, and annotations of Paul’s letters.¹² This is a much shorter note. Lefevre referred in it to his Quincuplex Psalterium and said he did Paul’s intention justice by substituting the “ab angelis” of the Vulgate of Ps. 8,6 for “a Deo.”

“... quod dicitur ab angelis interpretis est, non Pauli, sed Pauli a Deo. Quare sententiam Pauli servantes a Deo diximus.”¹³

“... that it is said ‘below the angels’ is from the translator, not of Paul, but Paul’s reading is ‘below God’. That is why we, following the intention of Paul, said ‘below God’.”

Again he argues the sublimity of the incarnate Jesus by quoting passages that tradition considered to refer to the enthroned Christ.

At this point, in 1516, Erasmus raised issue with Lefevre’s interpretation by his annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the Nouum Instrumentum.¹⁴ Although he admitted that Lefèvre had an advantage by having Jerome as an authority, Erasmus clearly stated that the translation “a Deo” was wrong. It had to be “ab angelis.” According to him Jesus was not merely humiliated below the angels, on the contrary, he was humiliated below the most abject of men:

“Etenim si de assumpto intelligas homine, quemadmodum necesse est, paululum fuit imminutus a Deo, imo infra abiectissimos etiam homines”¹⁵

“Truly, if you understand it as referring to his assumption of human nature, as is necessary, he was lowered for a short time below God, nay rather below the most abject of human kind”

¹¹ See appendix I, l. 93.

¹² S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Hebr. 2,7, fol. 233v^o.

¹³ See appendix II, ll. 8–10.

¹⁴ Nov. Instr., Basel, 1516, pp. 585–586. See appendix III, passim.

¹⁵ See appendix III, ll. 22–24.

Jesus was already humiliated simply by becoming a human being, because the human bears no proportion to the divine. In addition, Jesus had been humiliated still further by all the suffering he underwent on earth. As support for his interpretation, Erasmus quotes Ps. 21,7: “I am a worm and no man, a shame to mankind and despised among the people,” interpreted as a prophecy about Jesus in his misery.

Due to the gravity of Jesus’ suffering the interpretation “a little” for βραχύ τι (or μετά in the psalm) was very problematical in Erasmus’ view. He suggested that βραχύ τι be translated temporally, with “for a little while,” as a solution, following Chrysostom¹⁶ and Theophylact¹⁷. On this reading, Jesus had been terribly humiliated but only for a little while. Apart from this, Erasmus mentioned that those passages “You have crowned him with honour and glory and have set him over the works of your hands”¹⁸ refer to the heavenly Christ, not to the earthly Jesus.¹⁹

Erasmus also drew attention to the fact that authoritative writers of the early Church had named Luke as the translator of *Hebr.*²⁰. Luke, however, had been inspired by the Holy Spirit and thus could not have made the error Lefèvre ascribed to the translator of Hebr., that is, the mistake of copying the Septuagint reading παρ' ἀγγέλους, without seeing that, in Hebr. 2,7, Paul is following David’s Ps. 8,6 where “elohim” means “God”.

Lefèvre’s reaction came quite soon thereafter, as an annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the second edition of his translation, paraphrase, and annotations of Paul’s epistles, published between November 1516 and July 1517.²¹ Lefèvre emphasizes, first of all, that it was impossible that Jesus was humiliated below the angels, because for angels – even for the beatific angels – the real possibility existed of sinning and being punished for it. Apparently, in Lefèvre’s view, Jesus always remained far above the regions where evil had its influence.²²

Lefèvre clearly stated that Jesus had indeed been placed a little below God, but only by his becoming a human being, not because of the misery he underwent on earth.²³ As Lefèvre put it:

“... imminutio ipsa prouenit quia cum humanitate est et in eadem hypostasi cum creatura.”²⁴

“... his humiliation occurs just because of his being clothed with humanity and being in the same person, with a creature.”

¹⁶ Chrysostom, Enn. in Ep. ad Hebr., ad Hebr. 2,7, Migne, PG, 63, 38 b1–7.

¹⁷ Theophylact, Exp. in Ep. ad Hebr., ad Hebr. 2,7, Migne, PG, 125, 208 b12–c9.

¹⁸ Ps. 8, 5–6; Hebr. 2,7–8.

¹⁹ See appendix III, ll. 33–36.

²⁰ E.g. Clemens Alexandrinus, quoted by Eusebius, Historia Ecclesiastica VI, 14, 4.

²¹ S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1516/7, ad Hebr. 2,7, f° 225v°–229v°. This note ad Hebr. 2,7 is given in appendix IV. For the date of publication of this second edition of Lefèvre’s translation, paraphrase, and annotations of Paul’s epistles, see the introduction, section VII.

²² See appendix IV, ll. 6–76.

²³ See appendix IV, ll. 120–130 and ll. 312–329.

²⁴ See appendix IV, ll. 327–328.

On the contrary, according to Lefèvre, that misery meant a heightening, “exaltatio.” It was on the cross that Jesus’ sublime divinity appeared. The suffering which made Erasmus call Jesus “abject,” made him in Lefèvre’s opinion “exalted.” The misery itself meant the exaltation.²⁵

According to Lefèvre, it is also clear that during his stay on earth, Jesus was far superior to all other beings. Jesus revealed himself to be the very mighty Son of God. He performed miracles to show that his divinity was unaffected.²⁶

Lefèvre emphasized further that βραχύ τι (in Hebr. 2,7) and “m^eat” (in Ps. 8,6) absolutely could not be translated temporally, for it must be clear that Jesus had been humiliated only a little, and a temporal reading would leave open the degree of Jesus’ humiliation. In Lefèvre’s view, Chrysostom and Theophylact interpreted βραχύ τι temporally due to their ignorance of Hebrew. They had no other choice than to use the Septuagint, which read παρ' ἀγγέλους. According to these Church Fathers, that awful image of Jesus humiliated below the angels had to be as short as possible and so they interpreted βραχύ τι temporally, by “for a little while.”²⁷

Regarding Erasmus’ assertion that the earthly Christ had been humiliated below the most abject of men, Lefèvre wrote:

“... hunc sermonem, Christum scilicet non paululum imminutum fuisse a Deo, immo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, animose refutabimus tanquam impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum, tanquam Spiritui aduersantem et literae quae occidit adhaerentem.”²⁸

“... we will eagerly refute this phrase, that Christ was ‘not a little lowered below God, nay rather below the most abject of human kind’, as impious, unworthy of God and Christ, opposed to the Holy Spirit and a case of sticking to the letter that kills.”

Lefèvre rejected the Christological interpretation of the quotation from Ps. 22²⁹ – “ego autem sum vermis et non homo”, “I am a worm and no man” – which Erasmus cited as a prophecy about Jesus in his misery. Moreover, it was impermissible to say that Jesus was not a man, since he was in fact the most real man, the true image and likeness of God, not as miserable as other people are. If it were true that Jesus said “I am a worm and no man”, it would refer to his future body, the Christian congregation. The “godforsakenness” that rings throughout the psalm could not have anything to do with Jesus’ own situation on earth.³⁰

Lefèvre’s rejection of a Christological interpretation of this psalm seems contrary to his principal conviction about ²⁵ See appendix IV, ll. 390–394 and ll. 408–415.

²⁶ See appendix IV, ll. 634–654 As concerns Jesus’ sublime position on earth, Lefèvre is clearly influenced by Nicholas of Cusa. See R. Haubst, Die Christologie des Nikolaus von Kues, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1956, p. 198, and ibid., pp. 155, 197–8, 219. Lefèvre edited Cusanus’ works.

²⁷ See appendix IV, ll. 293–359.

²⁸ See appendix IV, ll. 132–136.

²⁹ Ps. 22,7.

³⁰ See appendix IV, ll. 161–236.

“... Christus Dominus qui principium est et finis uniuersae huius psalmodiac
....”³¹

“... the Lord Christ who is the beginning and the end of this entire Psalter”

Lefèvre was convinced that the entire Psalter refers to and is focussed on Christ. He generally interpreted the Psalms Christologically. But his belief that Christ could not have been humiliated very deeply, obliged him to reject the Christological interpretation of Ps. 21,7. Lefèvre's decision was probably based on another principle, namely that of the unity and strong coherence of Scripture.³² The rest of the Bible apparently shows more reverence for Christ than the description: “a worm and no man”.

Erasmus had to react to Lefèvre's disputatio, if only because of the accusation of impiety. This was a serious charge, particularly at this time, when he was very vulnerable as a result of his publication of the Nouum Instrumentum, which had already caused so much religious indignation. His answer came in an apologia,³³ and seems to have been sufficient. Lefèvre never reacted.

In response to Lefèvre's supposition of a translation error in Hebr., Erasmus accused Lefèvre of blaming the whole ecclesiastical tradition for having used a wrong, even impious reading of Ps. 8,6 and Hebr. 2,7.³⁴

Erasmus explained how unrealistic it is to think that Jesus would not have been humiliated by his suffering on earth and that he would have been made only a little less than God, and that he would have been humiliated solely by his incarnation. According to Erasmus, Jesus was first of all humiliated by his misery, not by his incarnation.³⁵

For Lefèvre, the misery itself meant the exaltation; for Erasmus, the exaltation is the reward for Jesus' exemplary attitude during his suffering. Christologically this reward came together with the enthronement, chronologically after Jesus' passion.³⁶

Jesus' suffering was terrible, but all the more admirable was his attitude during that misery: loving, merciful and forgiving towards his fellow human beings and obedient to God. Erasmus thought he added to Jesus' glory if he emphasized the misery that Jesus endured for our salvation.³⁷ In his apologia he wrote:

³¹ Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1513, f° Aiiivº.

³² This, of course, was the normal view in that period. That Lefèvre was convinced of the unity and coherence of Scripture first of all appears from his way of argumentation in his commentaries on the Bible: he is convinced of the possibility of simultaneously using passages of all different writings of the Old and New Testament. Cf. Guy Bedouelle, La lecture christologique du psautier dans le Quincuplex Psalterium de Lefèvre d'Étaples in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle, Geneva, 1978, pp. 136–137.

³³ Firstly published in: Apologia Erasmi Roterdamii ad eximum virum Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem cuius argumentum versa pagella demonstrabit (Louvain, Martens, 1517).

³⁴ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 399–404 and ll. 479–546.

³⁵ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 727–879.

³⁶ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 846–879.

³⁷ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 774–863.

"Equidem illud arbitrabar ad Christi gloriam pertinere si illius humilitatem quam sponte nostra causa subiit quam maxime exaggerassem."³⁸

"I for myself believe to contribute to Christ's glory if I emphasize as much as possible the humiliation he voluntarily underwent for us."

In Erasmus' view it is clear, moreover, that Jesus himself wanted the people to think of him as he was then, in those humiliating circumstances, as is clear from the fact that he showed himself to the people in that quality during his stay on earth.³⁹

Although Erasmus saw Jesus' passion and humiliation as very important, he thought of them as being never so humiliating as to be contrary to Jesus' own wishes and conviction.

M. Mann argues⁴⁰ that the subject of the controversy did not really affect Erasmus, as it did Lefèvre. She writes:

"Dans cette discussion, c'est Lefèvre qui croit combattre pour la pureté de la foi; Erasme sait bien que la foi ne dépend pas de cette question-là et qu'il ne combat que pour sauvegarder sa réputation. ... Evidemment, la question n'est pas aussi sérieuse pour Erasme que pour son adversaire: comme plus tard dans son débat avec Luther, l'un sent qu'il y va de la vie spirituelle, l'autre raisonne, calcule, cause. C'est que la vérité selon Erasme se trouve ailleurs; dans la morale, dans la foi qui agit plutôt que dans l'idée abstraite qui se discute Erasme, ici comme partout, suit la raison; pour lui il ne se présente qu'un problème d'exégèse."

Erasmus did indeed want to defend his reputation against Lefèvre's accusations, especially against that of impiety. To be sure, however, it was very important for Erasmus that the correct translation and interpretation of this passage, Hebr. 2,7, was well known. After all, Erasmus founded his ethics and thus his ideas about the necessity to imitate Jesus, on the deep humiliation of Jesus and his admirable attitude therein.

In Erasmus' work, there is an important connection between philology and ethics. The faithful can find sufficient information about Jesus' life and work in the New Testament to understand how they are to imitate Christ. This forms at least part of the importance Erasmus sees in the correct reading of the New Testament text.

Now I will try to give a more exhaustive description of the Christologies of Erasmus and Lefèvre and, connected with these, their ideas about christiformitas. In studying this subject, it became clear that there is no need to assume a chronological development in Erasmus' and Lefèvre's conceptions of Christology and christiformitas.

³⁸ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 774–775.

³⁹ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 811–812.

⁴⁰ M. Mann, Erasme et les débuts de la réforme française (1517–1536), Paris, 1934, pp. 34–37.

I will begin with Lefèvre's thought about this theme.

Jesus is pictured by Lefèvre as a sublime, exalted, transcendent God, even during his incarnation.⁴¹ It was necessary that Jesus remained God when he was on earth, because, as Lefèvre wrote in his commentary on Phil. 2:

"neque ... Dei patris gloria esset filium habere qui Deus non esset"⁴²

"... it would not be to God's honour to have a son who is not God"

Sometimes Lefèvre even gave Erasmus the impression that he did not make a distinction between Jesus' human and his divine nature, but that he saw only his godly nature.⁴³ This was not the case, but for Lefèvre, Jesus' might and glory were on earth still divine, he was only made a little less than God himself because he had become a human being. Jesus was heightened, not humiliated by his passion.⁴⁴

Lefèvre believed, in accordance with the consensus of his day, that Jesus knew neither sin nor evil and that it was impossible that he would sin. For Lefèvre those qualities must be accompanied by a very high and sublime position: Jesus was equal to God, or, due to his being incarnate, a little less than God.⁴⁵ It was impossible in Lefèvre's view, that Jesus' dignity would have been diminished below the level of the most abject of mankind.⁴⁶

From Lefèvre's disputatio, discussed above, it becomes evident that Lefèvre thought that the use of words such as "abject" or "deeply humiliated" to describe ⁴¹ See p. 45 and nn. Cf. H. Heller, The Evangelism of Lefèvre d'Étaples in: 'Studies in the Renaissance', vol. 19, 1972, p. 56: "... it was from Dionysius in particular that Lefèvre derived the conception of the Deus absconditus who could be defined in terms of the superlative and negative theology. It was this influence which in turn led him to stress the divine rather than the human element in Christ's personality. Thus, for instance, it caused him to change his reading of Psalm 8,6 from the traditional one of 'Minuisti cum paulominus ab angelis' to 'Minuisti eum paulominus a Deo' and to challenge Erasmus's orthodoxy when the latter objected." Cf. R. Roques in: DSAM, s.v. 'Denys l'Aréopagite (Le Pseudo-)', col. 280: "Le Christ des Areopagitica présente tous les caractères de la divinité. Il est 'l'une des hypostases' de la Trinité ..., cause universelle, mesure de toute chose ..., providence et sauveur ... Mais, en même temps, il est véritablement homme. A l'exception du péché, le Verbe assume la totalité de notre condition ... ce qui fait de lui 'un homme véritable selon la totalité de l'essence [humaine] ... C'est l'inhumanation' ... ou la 'kenose' ... qui donne au Verbe une 'existence très divine selon la chair' ... Son activité revêt ainsi ce caractère nouveau que définit l'adjectif théandrique et qui n'est autre que l'activité propre au Dieu fait homme"

⁴² S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Phil. 2, f° 175r^o.

⁴³ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 827–836.

⁴⁴ See appendix IV, ll. 120–130, 312–329, 391–394, and 408–415.

⁴⁵ See appendix IV, ll. 6–76. Cf. K. Spiess, Der Gottesbegriff des J. Faber Stapulensis, Marburg, 1930, p. 93: "In der Christusgestalt spiegelt sich das Gottesbild.... Ganz naiv und unbekümmert setzt Faber Jesus Christus mit der höchsten Gottheit identisch, nicht davor zurückscheuend, die höchsten transzendenten Aussagen über ihn zu machen. Das geht so weit, das man oft nicht unterscheiden kann ob von Gott oder Christus die Rede ist."

⁴⁶ See appendix IV, ll. 132–136. Cf. ibid., ll. 161–236. Cf. K. Spiess op. cit. (see last note), pp. 102–103: "Das Band zwischen Gott und Natur besteht zwar, es ist die sachlich notwendige Verbindung von Schöpfer und Geschöpf. Aber durch den Fall ist der Abstand so ungeheuer gross geworden, das kaum noch – abgesehen vom Heilsgedanken und Christus – eine Verbindung zu bestehen scheint."

Jesus, implied an accusation on moral grounds. This emerges from his argument against the translation “ab angelis,” (“below the angels”) as well as from his torrent of abuse against Erasmus’ use of the word “abject” for the earthly Jesus. Erasmus understood where Lefèvre’s problem lay:

“... fortasse deiiciendi verbum tibi contumeliam sonat”⁴⁷

“... perhaps the verb ‘humiliate’ for you sounds like an insult”

Lefèvre’s depiction of the incarnate Jesus is that of a person who is sure of his ground and who lets his divine might and position shine. Lefèvre cited biblical passages that he interpreted as a testimony to Jesus’ mighty position during his incarnation. This does not seem to be entirely consistent with Lefèvre’s emphasis on Jesus’ humble attitude, but this is in Lefèvre’s view a superior humility. He called Jesus a “sacratissimus martyr”⁴⁸ (“most sacred martyr”).

With regard to the relation of Jesus’ two natures, Lefèvre wrote in his commentary on Phil. 2:

“Duas in se naturas Christus verissime habet, diuinam et humanam; diuina forma dei, humana forma hominum est. Diuina veritas est, humana, diuinae imago et similitudo. Diuina: archetypus et exemplar, humana figura. Et humanam formam diuinae esse imaginem et similitudinem, quid aliud, diuinum testatur eloquium cum Deum inducit loquentem ac dicentem: faciamus hominem ad imaginem et similitudinem nostram? Quomodo igitur Christus qui diuinae formae humanam formam coniunxit, qui in veritate et exemplari erat Deus, in similitudine et in figura non est inuentus homo? ... in Christo non est nuda similitudo, non est nuda figura ut in nobis, sed similitudo vera et exemplaris figura, immo quae est veritas et archetypus. Nam Christus homo vere Deus est”⁴⁹

“Christ truly possessed two natures, the divine and the human; the divine is the form of God, the human is the form of men. The divine is the truth, the human is the image and resemblance of the divine. The divine is the original and the model, the human is the shadow. And the human form is the image and likeness of the divine, for to what else does the divine word testify, when it introduces God speaking and saying: ‘let us create man in our image and likeness’. How, therefore, would Christ, who connected the human form with the divine, who was truly and originally God, not have been a human being in likeness and in form? ... in Christ we find not a poor likeness nor a poor figure as in us, but a true likeness and the figure of the exemplar, nay, which is the true nature and the original, because Christ as a human being is truly God”

Lefèvre also answers the question why the incarnation occurred. According to him, although Jesus Christ was God, he came to earth in the form of a slave to be an example of true humility for people.⁵⁰ Lefèvre writes in his paraphrase of Phil. 2:

⁴⁷ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 917–918.

⁴⁸ Rice, Prefatory Epistles, Ep. 21, p. 71.

⁴⁹ S. Pauli epistolae ..., Paris, 1512, ad Phil. 2, f° 175r°.

⁵⁰ S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Phil. 2, f° 175r°.

"Qui cum Deus esset formam serui induit ut nobis esset verae humilitatis exemplar qui est veritatis gloriae, Et qui natura dominus erat omnium, venit non dominari sed seruire natura serui."⁵¹

"Jesus, who, while he was God, took on the form of a slave to be an example of true humility for us, he who is an example of the glory of the truth And who by nature was Lord of all, came not to reign, but to serve in the nature of a slave."

Jesus' humility was an essential point for Lefèvre. In his commentary on the gospels, at Mt. 26, the passage where it is narrated that Jesus prayed that the cup of his suffering might pass from him, Lefèvre strongly emphasized Jesus' words, "not my will, but thine will be done."⁵² Clearly, Jesus' obedience to God was very important for Lefèvre. Lefèvre also stressed Jesus' humility in praying, in particular, Jesus' prostrating himself. Lefèvre calls this a sign of very deep humility.⁵³ Lefèvre,⁵⁴ apparently, sees no real injury to Jesus' dignity in this.⁵⁵

They both were familiar with the humanist idea of Jesus as the teacher of a new law, the new evangelical doctrine. Lefèvre writes about this, although not extensively.⁵⁶ Perhaps, in his opinion, Jesus' teaching barely contributes to his sublimity, although he was convinced that the way Jesus behaved on earth was a testimony of his divinity.

Lefèvre's Christology is obviously connected with his ideal of the imitation of Christ, christiformitas.

Lefèvre drew a distinction between outer and inner christiformitas. By outer christiformitas, he meant living in accordance with the norms and rules of the Church. Lefèvre considered this of minor importance. He thought it sensible only if it helps the faithful to be directed towards Christ within the limits of the infirmity of the flesh.

⁵¹ S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Phil. 2, f° 175r^o.

⁵² Commentarii initiatorii in quattuor euangelia ..., Cologne, 1541, f° CC.: "Tunc ait (sc. Jesus) illis: Tristis est anima mea vsque ad mortem, sustinetec hic et vigilate mecum. Et progressus pusillum, procidit in faciem suam, orans et dicens: Pater mi, si possibile est, transeat a me calix iste. Veruntamen non sicut ego volo, sed sicut tu. ... Christus ... coepit moestus esse et contristari vsque ad mortem, id est, tanta moestitia et tristitia affici, quantum circa mortem ferre potuit, id non humano, sed diuino spiritu ad satisfactionem prosequendam pro Adam et posteritate eius faciente ... adeo, ut dicente Luca, guttae sanguinis e pretiosissimo corpore eius in terram decurrent et angelus Dei tantae compateretur angustiae. Et quid tunc faciebat? Orabat misericordiarum Patrem, ut transferret a se acerbam illam et nunquam in aliquo perceptam passionem. Veruntamen orabat non suam voluntatem fieri, qua ut homo illam (sc. passionem) natura refugiebat, sed solam Dei (sc. voluntatem). Nam suam voluntatem non quidem simpliciter, sed si id possibile foret, idque diuina voluntas. Dei autem voluntatem simpliciter fieri volebat et sic suam abiiciebat voluntatem ut sua voluntas non esset sua, sed Dei voluntas Hac omnibus salutem peperit: illa quae ex conditione (sc. humana) erat, nemini. Et cum orans, se prostrauit in faciem suam, formam praebuit orantis, pariter et indicium profundae humilitatis"

⁵³ See last note.

⁵⁴ S. Pauli Epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Eph. 2, f° 165 r^o.

⁵⁵ See appendix IV, ll. 391–394 and ll. 408–415.

⁵⁶ See, e.g., Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1513, f° 27v^o, f° 239v^o, f° 240v^o and f° 248v^o.

Inner christiformitas, on the other hand, is essential and salutary. It cannot be attained by following the doctrines of man, but it is the true imitation of Christ as he was on earth, but also as he is now, the exalted heavenly exemplar for the faithful. This is possible:

“Nam quicunque mortui sumus peccatis, gratia viuificati et mystice resuscitati de corpore Christi sumus, et iam in mysterio sedentes cum eo in dextera Patris”⁵⁷

“Since we, who have died in our sins, are living by grace and are mystically risen from the body of Christ and are already in a mysterious sense sitting with him on the right of the Father”

In Lefèvre's thought, inner christiformitas is promoted by the imitation of Jesus' mercy, spirituality, humility, mildness and forbearance. The first condition for achieving christiformitas is humility, since Jesus wanted to be their example of humility. The faithful must take up their cross and follow him. They must consider their own human things as useless and their entire life must be lived in his service. Their words must be spoken and their works must be done in the name of Jesus Christ. All the good they can attain comes from imitating Christ.⁵⁸ And they must praise Christ in psalms and in hymns and in spiritual songs.

However, fortunate are those who are able to follow Christ worthily and to attain both inner and outer christiformitas.⁵⁹

The notion of christiformitas in Lefèvre may be seen as an extension and deepening of the theme of the imitatio Christi. By christiformitas, Lefèvre refers to the formation of the believer into the likeness of Christ. The faithful must not only strive to follow Jesus in their love of God and their fellow men, and to obey his commandments – though this is certainly necessary for attaining christiformitas –

⁵⁷ S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Eph. 2, f° 164vº–165rº.

⁵⁸ S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Eph. 5, f° 170rº: “Totum bonum nostrum est in imitatione Christi: vita enim eius exemplar nostrum est.”

⁵⁹ See S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1512, ad Col. 3, f° 186vº: “... non te, sed vel omnino vel praeципue Christum Dominum, totius bonitatis authorem, attende et sic etiam secundum carnis infirmitatem Christo eris conformis et interiorem adiuuabis (quae spiritum respicit) christiformitatem, non sequens doctrinas hominum sed exemplar quod in coelis est et coelestem habebis imitationem. Veruntamen vt non glorieris nisi in Domino, tuum cilitium, tuum ieunium, tua abstinentia, tua verbera, tua oratio, tua lachrymae, tuus squalor in puluere nichil sunt sed cilitium Christi, ieunium Christi, abstinentia Christi, flagellatio Christi, oratio Christi, lachrymae Christi et squalor Christi. Non tamen illa putas tibi inutilia. Nam si illis, vt par est, et cum discretione vteris, per ea secundum exteriora efficeris Christo conformis collis crucem eius et sequeris eum. At quomodo Christum ducem sequeris preuentem nisi semper eum respicias? Si te respicias, ducem amittis et vitam perdis. Sed de his tantilla. Spiritus est qui viuificat. Haec bona est imitatio, sed ea melior quae est in imitatione misericordiae, benignitatis, spiritualis humilitatis, mansuetudinis, longanimitatis, mutuae supportationis, offensarum dimissionis, si quae contingent ignae dilectionis et pacis Dei in laetitia spirituali, in sermone Christi quod est euangelium aeternae pacis, in sapientia, doctrina et excitatione spirituali et quadam modo concertatione studioque vincendi in psalmis, hymnis et cantis spiritualibus in gratia Dei, in corde iubilando Deo et nichil faciendo aut sermone aut opere nisi in nomine nostri Domini Ihesu Christi, gratias iugiter per eum Deo Patri agendo. Vtraque haec imitatio et foelix qui in utrisque digne potest Christum imitari, et intus et foris fieri christiformis.”

but they must also, gradually, become really identical in form with Christ, that is, they must become really one with him.⁶⁰

Good human works serve as a preparation for christiformitas. Lefèvre compares doing good works with opening one's eyes to let the sun illuminate them. God wants to justify people as the sun wants to lighten.⁶¹ Good works, therefore, are not only a preparation for christiformitas but also constitute a condition for attaining it.

Lefèvre's ethical theory is founded on his ideas about the imitatio Christi. Striving for christiformitas is necessary for Christians, to grow towards Christ, to see the celestial and to understand the Holy Scripture. To attain christiformitas, the faithful must be supported and aided by the Holy Spirit.

Although during their whole life on earth, Christians must try to attain christiformitas, this goal will remain unattained. Perfect christiformitas is only an eschatological possibility. But during their lives on earth the faithful must approach this ideal little by little, thus increasing their unity with Christ.

In the preface to his Latin edition of Ruysbroeck's Die gheestelike brulocht, Lefèvre describes the experience of communion with Christ and of true contemplation of Christ as the sweetest fruits of the contemplative life and states that this spiritual state is enjoyed perfectly by those fortunate spirits who have already put off the garment of mortality, while those who are still wearing this garment can enjoy that state, but only imperfectly and not on their own, but by God's approaching them.⁶²

⁶⁰ S. Pauli epistolae XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad 1 Cor. 6, f° 114rº: "... qui adhaerebat Christo, Spiritu adhaerebat et Spiritus vnu efficiebatur, vt enim adhaesio carnis ad carnem, multo magis spiritus ad Spiritum ad vnitatem, nunquam enim ad vnitatem carnis vniuntur spiritus, sed erunt duo, inquit, in carne vna. Sed ad vniuem spiritus, vnitur et caro. Nos enim vnum corpus sumus et vnu spiritus in Christo. O si altum hoc mysterium de vnitate spiritus et corporis saperemus, vnitate, inquam, sancta et admirabili"

⁶¹ S. Pauli epistolae XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Rom. 2, f° 71vº: "Non enim opera iustificant quemquam, sed opera si bona sunt, praeparant ad Dei iustificationem suscipiendam, vt enim a sole illuminatio, sic a Deo iustificatio, glorificatio, immortalitas et christiformitas. Et vt reuelatio pupillae non est solis illuminatio, sed solum quaedam praeparatio ad illuminationem et ad quandam oculi soliformitatem, ita bonorum operatio non est iustificatio sed praeparatio ad diuinam iustificationem et diuini formitatem et, quemadmodum si quis non reuelat pupillam, a sole non illuminatur, hunc in modum si quis bona non operatur, a Deo non iustificabitur. Non quod hic iustificationis defectus a Deo pendeat, sed a nobis, cum aduersis tum imparatis ad diuinam iustificationem suscipiendam. Si quis enim sponte a sole se auertit et oculos claudit ne solis illuminationem spectet, hic illuminationis defectus non a sole sed ab eo qui se auertit et reddidit incapacem, procedit. Quid enim sol aliud vult quam illuminare? Et Deus quidnam aliud quam iustificare, cum ipse nulla proportione magis iustus sit quam sol lucidus, est enim ipsa per se iustitia."

⁶² See Rice, Prefatory Epistles, p. 276: "Cum omnispicularium religionum status ... sit quaeda mundi fuga et ad extramundana accessio, sit multorum et diuiduorum derelictio et ad vnu adhaesio, tantum igitur quaeque veritatis habet quantum extramundanis et illi vni quod est super omne vnu haeret. In qua vniione et haerentia vera consistit contemplatio et dulcissimus contemplatiuae vitae fructus. Qui a paucis cognoscitur, quippe qui non sine secretis immissionibus diuinisque visitationibus peragit, ex quibus quantum homini mortali fas est, status spiritualis denudatur. Statum enim spiritualem perfecte viuunt animae beatae iam mortalitatis tunica exutae; qui autem nondum exuerunt, illo quidem viuere possunt sed nondum

In his argument for the necessity of the communion of the faithful with Christ, Lefèvre quotes Jesus' words written in Mt. 8: The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head. Lefèvre interprets Jesus here as condemning those who do not consistently follow him: they refuse to make room for him. When Christians do make room for him, he will live in them.⁶³

To grasp the spiritual content of Scripture, Christians first need to be enlightened by Christ.⁶⁴ To understand Jesus' doctrine and message (his lex noua et euangelica), Christians do not in the first place need science or knowledge of Greek and Hebrew; the first necessary condition for gaining a full understanding of Scripture is to be illuminated by the divine Light, which is the Verbum Dei, that is, Christ.⁶⁵ The first condition for receiving this divine Light is to become directed towards the Divine and to leave the human behind.⁶⁶

According to Lefèvre, therefore, the faithful must have a minimal spiritual level to understand Scripture: that is, the Holy Spirit must live in them.

Like Erasmus, Lefèvre wanted everyone to be able to read the Bible and learn about Jesus' life and doctrine.⁶⁷

The constitution of the Christian congregation as the body of Christ, who is the head, implies and requires the christiformitas of Christians. They must be similar to Christ to ensure that the body of Christ (the Church) is in harmony with the head (Christ himself). Otherwise the body and the head would together constitute a monstrosity.⁶⁸

perfecte, non ex se quidem sed ex diuino quodam aduentu. Vado (inquit saluator) et venio ad vos." (Ioh. 14, 28)

⁶³ Ad Mt. 8, 20, f° 64. Cf. G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Etaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, p. 228.

⁶⁴ See Hughes, Lefèvre, pp. 158–161.

⁶⁵ Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1513, ad Ps. 118, f° 196r°.

⁶⁶ Rice, Prefatory Epistles, Ep. 134, pp. 436–7: "Credite (inquit) euangelio. Sed et prius resipiscendum iussit, cum dixit, metavoeūte, poenitentiam agite. Et merito quidem. Nam prius omnes carnem sapiunt quam Spiritum et quae humanum sunt, audiūs amplectentur quam quae Dei, nec forsitan nulla causa, cum haec sint supra hominem, illa secundum hominem. Ergo ab illius resipiscendum est, et caro et ea quae hominum sunt reicienda sunt, vt credere possimus euangelio. Vincant itaque diuina, facessant humana quae ex euangelio lumen non habent, etsi sapientiam et pietatem prae se ferant; nam hic de verbo Dei, de fide, de puro Dei cultu agitur sermo, in quo nimur sola veritas quae est verbum Dei saluat; quod autem tale non est, perdit."

⁶⁷ Rice, Prefatory Epistles, Ep. 134, p. 435. This is the preface to Lefèvre's commentary on the Gospels (Cologne, 1541, f° a2): "Et hoc sit cunctis vnicum studium, solarium, desiderium: scire euangelium, sequi euangelium, vbique promouere euangelium. Atque hoc firmissime teneant omnes, quod maiores nostri, quod primaeva illa ecclesia sanguine martyrum subricata sensit: extra euangelium nihil scire, id esse omnia scire."

⁶⁸ S. Pauli epistolae XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Col. 3, p. 185 v°: "Oportet enim membra totius corporis ad caput habere conformitatem, alioqui monstruosum esset. Haec autem conformitas in caeteris ratio et proportio dicitur, in Christi autem corpore christiformitas. Cum igitur in resurrectione Christi resurgent, etiam vita Christi viuunt. Vnde enim viuerent membra et excellentissima quidem vita, nisi ex capite? Si autem vitam Christi viuant et Christus sursum est (est enim sursum in dextra Patris sedens) quae sursum sunt querere debent, quae sursum sunt sentire, non doctrinas hominum, et ea quae sunt super terram, nam et nunc nos in statu spirituali in coelo versamur, etsi

"Nos enim vnum corpus sumus et vnu spiritus in Christo."⁶⁹

"For we are now one body and one spirit in Christ."

According to Lefèvre, Christians must realize that they have to imitate Jesus' loving, merciful attitude, even his entire life when he was on earth.⁷⁰ All their activities and their thoughts, especially in their life together and in the way they treat each other, must truly imitate Jesus.⁷¹

Lefèvre emphasized Jesus' passion and the imitation of this passion, endured for the sake of Christians. On the cross, Jesus showed the faithful the height of his divinity. Suffering is sublime. Christians must always be prepared to suffer. Suffering in imitation of Jesus occurs according to the wish of the Father and helps Christians to be similar to Jesus.⁷²

The communion with Christ is made possible by the Holy Spirit. There is no way for the faithful to attain this communion without the help of the Holy Spirit, which they can receive only by preparing themselves in faith and work.⁷³ As mentioned above, Lefèvre also writes that God lives in them who try to imitate Christ.⁷⁴

Christians are dependent on God and must realize this. They also need him to grow towards him. God will change them and help them to want this, and to develop the proper state of mind. If the faithful desire to see the celestial, God will give them the necessary strength to achieve this.⁷⁵ moribunda membra carnis nostrae circa terram repant, etsi hic status spiritualis oculis carnis videri non possit, et iis tantum sit manifestus quibus fiunt diuinæ orases, id est spectacula in spiritu quo Paulo frequentissime fiebat et quo a Ihesu Christo doctus est modo ex quo et ipse nos docet "

⁶⁹ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad 1 Cor. 6, f° 114v^o. Cf. n. 60.

⁷⁰ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Eph. 2, f° 164v^o-165v^o.

⁷¹ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Epb. 5, f° 170r^o-171r^o.

⁷² See Commentarii in epistolas catholicas, Basel, 1527, ad 1 Ioh. 3, f° 51v^o: "Charissimi, nunc filii Dei sumus et nondum apparuit quid erimus. Scimus quoniam cum apparuerit, similes ei erimus, quoniam videbimus eum sicuti est. Haec est voluntas Patris ut perigrini filii eius imitentur Filium eius dum fuit perigrinus, dura patientem et aduersa, pii sint, mites, patientes, in omnibus Deo obedientes usque ad mortem, etiam si oportet, confusissimam et iugiter crucem suam portantes, nihil a filiis mundi differentes, nisi sola conuersatione et innocentia vitae et parem cum Christo ad immortalitatis delicias sortientur exitium, de carcere mundi ad regnum lucis tandem translati, christiformes effecti, Deum ex praesentia cognoscentes et non amplius per velamen, vmbras et figuram, sicuti et nos a Deo cogniti sumus ... sanctificabimus nos in hoc mundo sicut ille sanctus est Quid est sanctificare se, nisi pura et sancta fidei opera facere et per Spiritum et gratiam eius purum se seruare et nihil inquinamenti mundi et concupiscentiarum eius admittere. Sicut Christus, exemplar nostrum, in hoc mundo vixit, sic et quoad nobis per gratiam licet, in imitatione eius in hoc mundo viuendum est."

⁷³ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Rom. 2, f° 71v^o. Cf. n. 61.

⁷⁴ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Rom. 8, f° 87v^o. Cf. n. 64.

⁷⁵ S. Pauli epistolæ XIV..., Paris, 1512, ad Phil. 2, f° 175v^o: "Cum aliquid boni volumus, maxime quod diuinum et spirituale est et operamur voluntatem illam executioni demandantes: Deus est qui voluntatem illam et actum affectumque pro beneficio suo in nos operatur. Nos autem Dei instrumentum sumus, neque enim oculus coelestia videt, nisi coelum in eo operetur quamuis oculus ad coelum ut animatus et coelum ut inanimatum. At mens nostra ad Deum ut inanimata, Deus autem ut animatus et superanimatus, Deus ut actus, mens ut materia. Cui igitur motionem et motionis

Now I shall turn to the Christology of Erasmus. As discussed above, Erasmus emphasized Jesus' role as an ethical model. Like Lefevre, Erasmus used the words archetypus and exemplum in this connection.⁷⁶ Jesus' example was sublime because of his divine origin. It was different from the example of ordinary people, who can be exemplary only on occasion and with regard to some aspects of their lives, since Jesus' entire life forms a model for the faithful.⁷⁷ He is the only, unique and perfect example of piety. Christians are to orient themselves towards him only. All other activities have to serve this end.⁷⁸

Erasmus' Christology also stresses the image of Jesus as a teacher. It is in this role that during his life on earth Jesus gave the people the ethical commandments found in the gospels.⁷⁹

The superiority of Jesus as a teacher is explained in the Paraclesis: other important teachers, for example, the Greek philosophers, told truths springing from a human source; Jesus' truth derived from a higher source. Another difference is that Jesus is the only one who consistently lived in accordance with what he taught.⁸⁰ Besides providing this indication of the superiority of Jesus' doctrine, Erasmus also strengthens his argument with Biblical testimony.⁸¹

Erasmus describes Jesus as being very human, as a person more deeply humiliated than the most abject of humankind.⁸² Erasmus emphasized the misery of actionem tribuemus? Et humanae et diuinae philosophiae est ignarus, qui non actui sed potentiae tribuit operari. Deus igitur et voluntatem et energiam actumque ac operationem in spiritualibus operatur.

⁷⁶ For Erasmus' use of the term archetypus, see, e.g., Ratio, Holborn, p. 204, ll. 5–6: “Debent humanae leges ab hoc archetypo peti.” Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 89, ll. 7–9: “Hoc est enim vnicum archetypum, vnde quisquis vel vnguem discesserit, a recto discedit atque extra viam currit.” For Erasmus' use of the word exemplum, see, e.g., Ratio, Holborn, p. 264, ll. 21–23: “Venit Christus, humiliatis ac paupertatis exemplum, venit tyrannidis mundanae contemnendae magister, venit adhortator ac dux ad tollendam crucem.” For the combination of these two references, see e.g., Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 91, ll. 13–17: “Exemplum nostrum Christus est, in quo vno omnes insunt beate viuendi rationes. Hunc sine exceptione licebit imitari. Ceterum in probatis viris eatenus vnumquodque in exemplum vocare conueniet, quatenus respondebit cum archetypo Christi.” Paraclesis, Holborn, p. 146, ll. 13–15: “Siue viuendi formam requiri mus, cur aliud nobis prius est exemplum quam archetypus ipse Christus?”

⁷⁷ See Ratio, Holborn, pp. 210–211: “Reperies fortassis in Platonis aut Senecae libris, quae non abhorreat a decretis Christi; reperies in vita Socratis, quae vtcumque cum Christi vita consentiant. At circulum hunc et omnium rerum inter se congruentium harmoniam in solo Christo reperies. Multa sunt in prophetis et dicta diuinitus et gesta pie, multa in Mose ceterisque viris vitae sanctimonia claris: orbem hunc in nullo reperies homine, qui quidem orbis a prophetis exorsus per apostolorum martyrumque vitam ac doctrinam in sese coit. Hi, quidquid Christus docuit, expresserunt, quidquid promisit, praestiterunt, eundem hauserant spiritum, eadem sonant ac docent quae Christus. Hactenus adoranda sunt omnia, cetera cum delectu iudicioque legenda aut etiam imitanda.”

⁷⁸ Enchiridion, Holborn, pp. 63–64.

⁷⁹ Paraclesis, Holborn, pp. 140–142.

⁸⁰ Paraclesis, Holborn, p. 140, l. 36–p. 141, l. 3: “Certe solus hic e coelo profectus est doctor, solus certa docere potuit, cum sit aeterna sapientia, solus salutaria docuit vnicus humanae salutis auctor, solus absolute praestitit, quicquid vnuquam docuit, solus exhibere potest, quicquid promisit.”

⁸¹ Mt. 3, 16–17. Paraclesis, Holborn, p. 147, ll. 21–31.

⁸² Sc. in Erasmus' Nouum Instrumentum, see appendix III, ll. 22–26.

Jesus in the belief that Jesus' perseverance in such circumstances encouraged people to imitate his example all the more.⁸³

According to Erasmus, Jesus was not humiliated primarily by his becoming a human being, as Lefèvre believed, but by the suffering he underwent.⁸⁴ Erasmus writes:

"Dominus in se recepit non solum veritatem humanae naturae, verum etiam incommoda quae naturam prolapsam comitantur, exceptis iis quae vel non congruunt dignitati personae, quae simul erat et Deus et homo, vel excludunt, vt modo dicebam, gratiae plenitudinem. Neque enim recepit proclivitatem ad peccandum, ac ne facultatem quidem, nec recepit errorem aut ignorantiam. Ea porro mala quae recepit, non ex necessitate naturae, sed volens nostra causa suscepit, vt dependeret quod nos commerueramus."⁸⁵

"The Lord admitted to himself not only the reality of human nature, but also the inconveniences that come along with that fallen nature, except those things that either do not agree with the dignity of the Person, who was simultaneously both God and man, or that, as I just said, exclude the fullness of grace. For he neither assumed a disposition to sin, nor even the possibility, nor was he subject to delusion or ignorance. Furthermore, those calamities he did admit, he did not receive by the necessity of nature, but voluntarily for our sake, as he paid what we deserved."

Erasmus thought that Jesus' humility was consciously exemplary. Jesus revealed himself in his deep humility and he wants the faithful to think of him as he was in those circumstances, destitute but obedient to God and always merciful and forgiving towards his neighbours.⁸⁶ All Erasmus' reflections on Christ are references to the fact that his life should be followed in each respect.

Erasmus concentrates on illustrating and demonstrating all aspects of Jesus' humanity and humility. In the apologia against Lefèvre he focusses on Jesus' deprivations, but in the Disputatiuncula de taedio, paurore, tristitia Iesu – which he wrote circa 1500, after a discussion with Colet – Erasmus describes Jesus' fear of his passion and death as obvious and as belonging to human nature. Jesus was a human being and knew he would suffer. He prayed because he was afraid for his own sake. This was in contrast to Colet, who held that Jesus prayed out of fear that the Jews would be lost. But, as Erasmus writes, when Jesus prayed for the Jews (as recorded in the gospels) he did so explicitly, as when he bewailed the decline of Jerusalem. On the cross he clearly and explicitly prayed for those who were responsible for his death. In the situation described in Mt. 26, therefore, he undoubtedly prayed out of fear for himself.⁸⁷

⁸³ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 893–896.

⁸⁴ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 727–879.

⁸⁵ Expl. Symb., ASD V, 1, p. 243, ll. 134–141.

⁸⁶ See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 759–863.

⁸⁷ Disputatiunc., LB V, 1267 D–F: "... si Christum hoc vnum tantopere angebat, quod mortem suam Iudeis aliquot exitium allaturam esse praeuideret aut, vt sensit Hilarius, quod ea videlicet offensos ac consternatos apostolos a se descituros praesciret, quum ista tum nihilo clarius prospexerit quam a momento conceptionis, nunquam non eodem modo oportuit angi. Nam si

Jesus knew that he would suffer and knew how he would suffer.⁸⁸ If he had not been afraid, he would not have realized, seen and understood the passion he was to endure,⁸⁹ since fear belongs to the nature Jesus had assumed. The more suffering is ascribed to him – and fear is part of that, too – the more this contributes to his glory and the more he is admired in the way he desired to be admired.⁹⁰

Fear of death is not necessarily connected with guilt, and therefore Erasmus sees no reason why people hesitate to ascribe it to Jesus. Sin is against nature; people sin due to a corruption of nature. Death is a consequence of sin and hence goes against nature. Death is therefore certainly opposed to Christ's percausam perpetuam admittis, non potes non et effectum perpetuum admittere. Porro Iudeorum exitium cur nunc demum deprecatur? Cur hoc potissimum tempore? Cur non aliis verbis? Defleuerat ante Hierosolymitanum excidium, sed verbis perspicuis. Oravit de cruce pro mortis auctoribus, pro blasphemantibus, sed verbis neutiquam ambiguis. Conueniunt circumstantiae. Hic neque in re neque in verbis, vel leuis est conjectura, quae pertineat ad interitum Iudeorum, nisi impudentissime quis torserit. Nonne palam, inquis, orat, ne se Iudei occiderent, quum ait: Transeat a me calix iste? Videlicet quod mihi sunt propinaturi? Imo si me verbis virgeas, magis videbuntur ad Patrem propinanter quam ad Iudeos pertinere. Id quod ex simili loco fit luce ipsa clarius, vbi Christus de morte sua loquens: Calicem, inquit, quem dedit mihi Pater, non bibam illum? Dat igitur Pater Filio bibendum calicem, Filius vt homo, et homo nostris malis infirmus, vere reformatid mortem instantem et Patrem orat, vt eum calicem a se transferat. Pro me facit et pronomen 'iste', quod non ignoras, vtro potius oporteat referri, ad Patrem cui loquitur an ad Iudeos? Idem sonant verba Marci: Et orabat, vt, si fieri posset, transiret ab eo hora. Quae tandem hora nisi iam urgentis supplicii? Deinde verba orantis subiicit: Abba, Pater, omnia tibi possibilia sunt, transfer calicem hunc a me."

⁸⁸ Erasmus uses propassio in the way Bernardino of Siena (1380–1444) and earlier Jerome had spoken about it, namely, as referring to the beginning of fear and less confusing and drastic than fear. See Erasmus in: Disputatione, LB V, 1271 E: "Et miramur illum tantum, sic sibi cognitum, talem mortem expausisse, quam non tantum animo prosagiebat, sed perinde atque oculis subiectam prospiciebat, cuius omnes cruciatuum numeros perfectissime praesentiebat. Qua de causa Hieronymus quam et Graeci, propatheian, propassionem nominat, quasi passionis initium. Sunt autem formidabilium rerum primi incursus acerbissimi." And Disputatione, LB V, 1285 E–F: "Vnde non ita nimis me delectat illa Hieronymi interpretatio, qua dicit, hanc in Redemptore moestitiam, propassionem fuisse, non passionem, quae illum, iuxta diui Bernardi distinctionem, turbarit modo, non etiam perturbarit ..." Cf. S. Bernardini Senensis Opera Omnia III, ed. P. A. Sepinski, Firenze, 1956, p. 63, where Bernard speaks about Jesus' fear as the beginning of fear: "Primo enim non timet (sc. Jesus) timore naturali, licet talis timor non sit malus vel boros, cum non sit sub libertate arbitrii constitutus; et hoc timore solet timere homo timore propassionis, sicut etiam fecit Christus. Vnde Marc. 14 cap., 33, scriptum est: Coepit Jesus pauere et taedere, et hoc quantum ad propassionem, propterea inquit: Coepit." Cf. Hiert., Comm. in Mt. ad Mt. 26,37, CCSL 77, edd. D. Hurst and M. Adriaen, pp. 253–4: "... quod Dominus, vt veritatem adsumpti probaret hominis vere quidem contristatus sit sed, ne passio in animo illius dominaretur, per propassionem cooperit contristari. Aliud est enim contristari et aliud incipere contristari. Contristabatur autem non timore patiendi qui ad hoc venerat vt pateretur et Petrum timiditatis arguerat, sed propter infelicissimum Iudam et scandalum omnium apostolorum et refectionem populi Iudeorum et euersionem miserae Hierusalem."

⁸⁹ Disputatione, LB V, 1272 B–C: "Itaque non commoueri periculo mali prementis et instantis, animi est aut non intelligentis periculum aut bruti stupidique; non sentire malum iam praesens, stipitis est, adeoque non hominis, vt ne animantis quidem, neutrum certe sapientis. Nemo autem fortis qui stultus. Infantes, ebrii, furiosi, cum risu ferrum excipiunt. Cur ita? Nempe quia non intelligent periculum. Neque hoc nomine fortis, sed miseri a nobis iudicantur."

⁹⁰ See the quote on p. 40: Disputatione, LB V, 1289 E.

fect nature and obviously it is no shame for the Son of God to shun his own death.⁹¹

Like God, he wanted his death and at the same time he did not. Death does not please God, as it is punishment for guilt. According to this argument, God does not wish death upon anyone, just as he does not wish to allow sin. It is written in the Bible that God says: "I do not wish the death of a sinner,"⁹² consequently God wants the death of a righteous person all the less. God, therefore, opposes death, as he opposes guilt, the author of death.⁹³

If Jesus, like God, did not desire his death, then fear of death cannot have been contemptible and can without blasphemy be ascribed to Jesus. As is also clear from these passages, Erasmus wanted to emphasize Jesus' humility and his human, though sinless, behaviour on earth.

Contrary to Lefèvre, Erasmus did not idealize Jesus' passion and hence did not propagate the imitation of the passion. Erasmus did not consider Jesus' passion to be his exaltation, as Lefèvre did. Jesus' exaltation is his subsequent reward, in the form of the enthronement, for his exemplary attitude during his life on earth and the admirable way in which he endured the suffering he underwent.⁹⁴

In Christ both natures are necessarily united:

"Iam et illud obseruandum erit, quibus argumentis Christus vtramque naturam Dei et hominis declararit. Siquidem a puro homine quis speraret veram salutem? Rursum purum Deum quis crederet pati quidquam?"⁹⁵

"One must also take note of the arguments showing clearly that Jesus possessed the nature of God and of men. Because who would expect true salvation from a mere man? Again, who would believe that a true God suffered in any sense?"

⁹¹ Disputatione, LB V, 1270 E–1271 B: "... mortis reformatiōnē, quae et morte ipsa malum est nonnunquam acerbius, et sic humanae conditioni adhaeret, vt cum nulla culpa sit coniuncta, quid est cur tantopere formidemus adscribere Christo ... Peccatum quidem contra naturam est, et ad illud non impellimur, nisi naturae depravatione. Pietas maxime secundum naturam est, nec ab ea resiliimus, nisi vitio corruptae conditionis primitiuae. Mors vero quoniam peccati filia est, et naturae quae semper appetit esse inimica, natura omnibus est formidabilis Nihil ... tam infensum naturae quam mors, cuius proprium est interitum adferre quem exhorrescant omnia quae sunt. ... Nihil enim nos prius docet natura quam vt primum sensibus, deinde et animi iudicio refugiamus ea quac naturae lenitatem offendunt, multo magis quae totam perimunt ac modis omnibus, id quod sumus tueamur perficiamusque. Quod si nobis vitio aut depravatione accideret, non esse, fateor, cum Christo communicandum. At minime conuenit, illi perfectam hominis naturam tribuere et id detrahere quo nihil est cum natura coniunctius."

⁹² Ez. 33, 11; cf. 18, 23; 18, 32.

⁹³ Disputatione, LB V, 1288 E: "Non placuit mors, tanquam poena culpe, quia ne culpa quidem ipsa placuit, nec placuit auctor culpe, diabolus, secundum hanc rationem tam non vult mortem Diuinitas quam non vult admitti peccatum. Audi iam non hominem, sed Deum. Nolo, inquit, mortem peccatoris, multo igitur minus justi. Sed eatenus aduersatur mortem, quatenus culpam, mortis parentem."

⁹⁴ See the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 846–879.

⁹⁵ Ratio, Holborn, p. 215, l. 32–p. 216, l. 2.

Erasmus also stated that God did not pour out a part of his substance in his Son, but that he communicated with his Son his entire substance. The divine nature of Jesus is just as eternal and immortal as that of the Father.⁹⁶

Erasmus stressed that Jesus assumed human nature without any lessening of or alteration in his divine nature and that only Jesus possessed the true and perfect human nature.⁹⁷

Erasmus extended this doctrine of the unity of Jesus' divine and human nature, by drawing a distinction within human nature between the human body and the human soul. According to Erasmus, therefore, "tres substantiae" (his godly nature, human body and human soul) are united in Christ.⁹⁸ In his Nouum Instrumentum, Erasmus emphasized that Jesus suffered both in his human body and in his human soul.⁹⁹

Thus, Erasmus did recognize the incarnate Jesus' divine nature, arguing that he was God and that his divine dignity was not decreased, though Erasmus considered this of minor importance and more appropriate to contemplate in the afterlife. Then Christ will be seen in his glory. After all, Christ himself will show that glory only later. As we have seen, Erasmus thought that in this life, he contributed most to Jesus' glory by emphasizing as much as possible the misery Jesus endured for the salvation of humankind. This argument also occurs in the Disputatiuncula:

"Hic mansuetudinis, patientiae, obedientiae parabatur exemplum, non animositatis. Exhibebantur argumenta humanitatis, non ostentamenta Diuinitatis. Proponebatur exemplum quod amaremus, quod aemularemur, non tantum miraremur ... neque quidquam in ea magis nos voluit admirari quam suam erga nos caritatem."¹⁰⁰

"He provided the example of mildness, patience and obedience, not of boldness. Evidence of humanity is shown, not displays of Divinity. He presents us with an example that we love, that we try to equal, not only admire. And there is nothing he wanted us to admire more than his love towards us."

⁹⁶ Expl. Symb., ASD V, 1, p. 228, ll. 678–682: "Nec enim Pater substantiae suae partem transfudit in Filium, sed eandem substantiam totam Filio communicauit, nec gignens et genitus constituant duos deos, quemadmodum pater homo et filius homo faciunt duos homines, nec gignens tempore prior est genito, sed eadem est vtriusque aeternitas."

⁹⁷ See p. 39 and Expl. Symb., ASD V, 1, p. 216, l. 306: "... veram et perfectam hominis in Christo naturam ...".

⁹⁸ Expl. Symb., ASD V, 1, pp. 215–216, ll. 289–297: "Sed in Filio quoniam solus (sc. as opposed to the Father and the Holy Spirit) assumpsit humanam naturam, nulla ex parte diminuta aut mutata diuina, quum sit vna persona, triplicem tamen habet substantiam: diuinam, quam eandem habet cum Patre et Spiritu Sancto, animam humanam et corpus humanum, qui quemadmodum ex Patre Deo natus est verus Deus, ita ex homine matre natus est verus homo. Huic adhaeret ecclesia veluti corpus hominis adhaeret capiti. Quemadmodum autem diuinus ille Spiritus conglutinat Patrem cum Filio, ita et ecclesiam Christo adglutinat arcano et indissolubili vinculo. Corpus igitur Christi mysticum quartam symboli partem occupat." (viz. the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit and, the fourth mentioned, the body of Christ, the Church.)

⁹⁹ See appendix III, ll. 10–18.

¹⁰⁰ Disputatiunc., LB V, 1289 E.

This misery was, moreover, necessary for salvation: "o rem horrendam si tam certo verum est quam tu (Lefèvre) firmiter asseueras, Christum nec paulum nec multum ab angelis fuisse deiectum!"¹⁰¹ In other words, if Jesus had been humiliated only a little on earth he would not have suffered enough to save people from sin and death.

As in Lefèvre's thought, Erasmus' Christology is obviously connected with his ideal of the imitation of Christ. For Erasmus, christiformitas means first of all to be totally dependent and focused on God. People can only believe and have faith if they consider God as sublime and exalted above everything good. Christians must view everything in relation to God and must distance themselves from earthly and carnal things.¹⁰²

In Erasmus, the imitation of Christ refers, furthermore, to the imitation of Jesus in his mode of life on earth and the observance of his commandments. The faithful must aim at a loving association with each other, as Christ lived and taught. Erasmus' aim is a better world of Christians who treat the mystery of God's descent to earth and the Bible with respect and treat each other with love, mercy and forgiveness.¹⁰³

In the Enchiridion militis christiani, Erasmus offers a great deal of encouragement and help to persevere in the good Christian life. In this book, first published in 1503, Erasmus tries to encourage people to follow the Christian way of life, as he envisions it.

Erasmus asserts that the fervent study of Scripture will easily repel all temptation, however strong.¹⁰⁴ He does not mention any spiritual preconditions for reading and understanding of Scripture, but he is convinced that if people approach it with respect, veneration and humility, they will feel themselves inspired, moved, swept away, transfigured in an ineffable manner by divine power.¹⁰⁵

¹⁰¹ See the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., II, 489–491.

¹⁰² Expl. Symb., ASD V, I, p. 294: "Dominus ipse nos docuit vniuersa legis praecepta summatim uno contineri: Diliges Dominum Deum tuum ex toto corde tuo, ex tota anima tua et ex totis viribus tuis, et proximum sicut te ipsum. Nullus autem diligere potest Deum super omnia, nisi credit illo nihil esse pulchrius, melius, veracius, aut amabilius. Etenim qui credit illo quicquam ab eo diuersum esse praestantius aut aequale, non credit esse Deum. In hunc igitur qui se totum coniecit, nihil amare potest, nisi quod amet propter Deum, nihil timere, nisi quod timeat propter Deum. Atque hoc statim exordio: 'credo in Deum', resescant aut certe mitigatione vniuersae carnis cupiditates, quarum si cui obtemperans negligis Dei praecepta, constat te tibi alium fingere deum, quicquid hoc est quod illi anteponebis."

¹⁰³ Cf. Padberg, Erasmus als Katechet, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1956, p. 114: "Taufe und neues Leben, Auferstehung mit Christus und die Teilhabe an seiner Himmelfahrt werden Argumente dafür, nach christlicher Vollkommenheit zu streben und die Welt zu verachten, das Himmlische dagegen zu lieben und zu ersehnen. Im Hintergrund steht tatsächlich die unverkürzte Heilsbotschaft in paulinischem Sinne, aber Ziel und Interesse des Erasmus gehen erstlich dahin, diese Wirklichkeiten auszumünzen, aus ihnen ethische Imperative zu schöpfen."

¹⁰⁴ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 30, ll. 26–30: "Crede mihi, ... nulla tam vehemens hostium impressio, id est nulla tam valida tentatio, quam ardens sacrarum litterarum studium non facile retundat, nulla tam tristis aduersitas, quam non reddit tolerabilem."

¹⁰⁵ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 33, ll. 18–22: "Primum est, vt de eis litteris digna sentias. Oracula mera (vt sunt) esse puta, de diuinae mentis adyto profecta. Afflari te numine, affici, rapi, transfigurari, ineffabili modo senties, si religiose, si cum veneratione, si humiliter adieris."

The only road to happiness is first to know oneself and then to act, not according to the passions, but in all things according to the judgement of reason.¹⁰⁶ The faithful have to direct their minds to the admiration of heavenly things.¹⁰⁷ Just as in Lefèvre's view, Christ has to be the only aim. Erasmus advises Christians not to think of Christ as an empty word but as standing for charity, simplicity, patience, purity, in brief, all that he taught.¹⁰⁸ Jesus is the model of piety. Perfect piety is the attempt to progress always from visible things (which are usually imperfect or indifferent) to the invisible.¹⁰⁹

If, due to the weakness of their minds, the faithful are not yet able to reach the required spiritual heights, they should nonetheless apply themselves with undiminished vigour to approach these as closely as possible. Here, Erasmus does not entirely exclude the possibility of realising the highest goal in one's earthly life, as Lefèvre does, probably because Erasmus' highest goal is easier to attain than Lefèvre's, namely, the unity with Christ and the contemplation of God, which is to be attained via the true imitatio Christi.

Christians must not be dissatisfied with themselves too soon.¹¹⁰ On the other hand, they should not attribute anything to their own merits.¹¹¹ Like Lefèvre, Erasmus is convinced of the importance of Christians' felt dependence on God.

According to Erasmus, the faithful learn to know Christ through Scripture, where they can read about his life and doctrine, and from which they can acquire a complete and vivid image of him speaking, curing, dying, etcetera.¹¹²

As argued earlier, Erasmus was convinced that Jesus himself desired to be an example for Christians. In the Disputatiuncula de taedio, pauore, tristitia Iesu, we

¹⁰⁶ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 46, ll. 22–24: "Haec igitur est vnica ad beatitudinem via, primum, vt te noris. Deinde, vt ne quid pro affectionibus, sed omnia pro iudicio rationis agas."

¹⁰⁷ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. III, ll. 2–8: "Porro si per infantiam et imbecillitatem animi nostri nondum ad ista spiritualia licebit aspirare, nihil tamen segnus danda erit opera, vt saltem in proximis consistamus. Alioqui vera compendiariaque ad felicitatem via est, si semel totam mentem ita ad caelestium rerum admirationem conuerterimus, vt veluti corpus vmbram, ita amor Christi, amor aeternorum et honestorum natura secum adducat fastidium caducorum et odium turpium."

¹⁰⁸ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 63, ll. 11–13: "Christum vero esse puta non vocem inanem, sed nihil aliud quam caritatem, simplicitatem, patientiam, puritatem, breuiter quicquid ille docuit."

¹⁰⁹ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. 67, ll. 22–25: "... in hoc vno constitutas perfectam pietatem, si coneris semper a rebus visibilibus, quae fere vel imperfectae, vel mediae sunt, ad inuisibilia proficere"

¹¹⁰ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. II2, ll. 17–19: "Si crebrius ac grauius ingruet in te temptationum procella, ne protinus tibi incipias displicere, quasi ob id Deo tuo vel curae vel cordi non sis aut parum pius aut etiam minus perfectus."

¹¹¹ Enchiridion, Holborn, p. II3, ll. 25–28: "Rursum cum vel post superatum instigatorem vel in pio quoipiam opere senseris mentem tuam intus arcana quadam voluptate profundi, tum etiam atque etiam caueas, ne quid inde tuis meritis arroges, sed totum gratuitae beneficentiae Dei feras acceptum"

¹¹² See Paraclesis, Holborn, p. 149, ll. 2–12: "... nihil erit, quod Christum expressius ac verius repraesentet quam euangelicae literae. Ligneam aut saxeam statuam amore Christi gemmis auroque decoramus. Quin haec potius auro gemmisse et si quid his pretiosius insigniuntur, quae tanto praesentius Christum nobis referunt quam vlla imaguncula? Siquidem illa, quid aliud quam corporis figuram exprimit – si tamen illius quicquam exprimit – , at hae tibi sacrosanctae mentis illius viuam referunt imaginem ipsumque Christum loquentem, sanantem, morientem, resurgentem, denique totum ita praesentem reddunt, vt minus visurus sis, si coram oculis conspicias."

read that Jesus wanted all martyrs following his death to know that they need not be ashamed of their fear. He wished to set an example for them, so that they would know how to behave if they were threatened with suffering and death. He threw himself down prostrate teaching them not to rely on their own strength or merits but to be detached from themselves, that is, from their own bodies and emotions, and be directed towards their head, that is, Christ. And finally, Jesus put God's will ahead of his own in an exemplary fashion, saying, not my will but thine will be done.¹¹³

In conclusion, a few words need to be said regarding the backgrounds of Erasmus' and Lefèvre's Christologies.

As regards their education, Erasmus and Lefèvre had much in common. Both were obviously well acquainted with the pagan Classical authors, with the Church Fathers and the scholastic tradition. Both came into contact with the Modern Devotion movement and were key figures in the humanist circle.

A significant difference is that Erasmus detested the monastic life, while Lefèvre longed for it, but could not enter a monastery because of his poor health.¹¹⁴ The monastic life is the most perfect way of life according to the conviction of the Modern Devotion.

In general Lefèvre gave the impression, more than Erasmus, of having been influenced by the Modern Devotion movement, as can be seen from his belief in the duty to imitate the passion of Christ, his idealization of that passion,¹¹⁵ his appreciation of the monastic life,¹¹⁶ and his attention to mysticism. He was greatly inspired by the mystics, as Hughes clearly explained in his biography of Lefèvre.¹¹⁷ This influence is probably partly responsible for Lefèvre's Christology of a very transcendent, exalted Christ.

Although Erasmus and Lefèvre detested the scholastics and despite their idealization of the early Church,¹¹⁸ it is possible to state that both Christologies have more in common with the scholastic tradition than with the Church Fathers' view of Jesus. This is convincingly shown by J.D. Tracy.¹¹⁹ Tracy traces shifts in the interpretation of Jesus' human nature, especially of his human emotions. The

¹¹³ Disputatiuncula, LB V, 1268 A: "Jesus volens tot martyrum milia, qui suam mortem erant imitaturi, exemplo suo instituere quomodo sese deberent gerere, vbi carnifex dirus virgeret, vbi saeuos intentaret cruciatus, secretum captat locum orantibus idoneum, taedere coepit, ne sibi displicerent martyres similia patientes, abiicit sese humi, hoc facto docens, non expedire martyri supplicium adituro ullis suis inniti viribus aut meritis, verum de se penitus diffiso, ad capitis opem tantum oportere respicere. Orat Patrem in media tristitia, vt si fieri possit, mortem transferret. Sed vincit hunc affectum infirmitatis et se totum paternae voluntati submittit."

¹¹⁴ See e.g. Hughes, Lefèvre, p. II. A. Renaudet, Préréforme et humanisme à Paris pendant les premières guerres d'Italie (1494–1517), Paris, 1916, p. 204.

¹¹⁵ See this introduction, p. 35.

¹¹⁶ G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Étaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, pp. 17–23.

¹¹⁷ P.E. Hughes, Lefèvre, pp. 38–51. See for the influence of Nicholas of Cusa, ibid., p. 46 and G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Étaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, pp. 60–70.

¹¹⁸ For Lefèvre's ideas about this, see Rice, Prefatory Epistles, p. 434. For Erasmus, see Ep. 1334.

¹¹⁹ In: Humanists Among the Scholastics, Erasmus, More and Lefèvre d'Étaples on the Humanity of Christ, in: Erasmus of Rotterdam Society Yearbook, 1985, pp. 30–51.

Church Fathers did not know how to cope with Bible passages that described Jesus having fear or pain, or being angry or sad. They did not understand how such emotions could be compatible with Jesus' divine nature. Mt. 26, in particular, generated great difficulties ("Let this cup pass from me"). In the early Church, it was not possible to believe that Jesus was really frightened by the prospect of his own suffering, since that would imply that he, as a human being, did not want what he as divine obviously must have desired.

At the Sixth Council of Constantinople in 680 "monothelitism" – which taught that Jesus had only one, divine will – was forbidden. Gradually, it became possible to say that Jesus had been afraid or distressed. Both Erasmus and Lefèvre followed this line of thought. With respect to Mt. 26, they had no objection to attributing fear to Jesus. As mentioned above,¹²⁰ Erasmus discussed this theme around 1500 with Colet.

Both Erasmus and Lefèvre indicated the moment in their lives at which they decided to devote themselves wholly to Biblical studies, in 1504¹²¹ and in 1509,¹²² respectively. They both considered this a important decision in the light of their conviction of the necessity of Bible study.

Given this common evangelical aim, the fierceness of their dispute becomes more comprehensible. Although they shared the same goal, each came to see the other as an opponent, because for Erasmus and Lefèvre, respectively, the depth of Christ's humiliation and the inviolability of Jesus' divine position were essential and moreover mutually exclusive.

Summary

At the beginning of the sixteenth century, Erasmus and Lefèvre engaged in a polemic over the interpretation of Hebr. 2,7, which Erasmus translated: "you (God) made him (Jesus) for a little while lower than the angels." He did so in order to emphasize the depth of Jesus' humiliation. Erasmus described the incarnate Jesus as being very human – though sinless – and very humiliated. He aimed to increase admiration for Jesus' exemplary attitude throughout his misery, hoping that, if people admired Jesus, they would be more inclined to consider him an ethical example and a teacher, as he was on earth. In both functions Jesus acted in a divine fashion. In Erasmus' thought; christiformitas represents an ethical ideal. The faithful must feel dependent on God, have the attitude and disposition Jesus had as he was on earth, imitate his loving devotion towards his neighbours and obey his commandments. Erasmus regards Bible study as indispensable to the attainment of this goal.

¹²⁰ See this Introduction, pp. 37–39 and on p. 42–43.

¹²¹ Allen, Ep. 181.

¹²² See Lefèvre's preface to the first edition of his Quincuplex Psalterium, dedicated to Guillaume Briçonnet in E.F. Rice, The Prefatory Epistles of Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples and Related Texts, New York and London, 1972, Ep. 66, pp. 192–201.

Lefèvre's version was: "you made him a little less than God," with which Lefèvre called attention to the inviolability of Jesus' divine status. It was only the human form in which Jesus appeared on earth that made him a little less than God. Lefèvre described the incarnate Jesus as confident of his divine position. He thus saw Jesus' humble attitude on earth as not only exemplary but also sublime. In Lefèvre's thought, christiformitas is the formation of the faithful into the likeness of Christ, the goal of which is the communion with Christ. People can prepare themselves for this by doing good works and by imitating Jesus' merciful and humble attitude, even his passion, as he was on earth (Bible study is indispensable for the latter, but to understand the Bible, people must already be predisposed by the Holy Spirit). Christians must also be directed towards Jesus as their heavenly model. The Holy Spirit will help them to attain the highest goal, communion with Christ, but the perfect christiformitas is only an eschatological possibility.

Although, as typical humanists, both studied the Classics, the Church Fathers and the scholastics, Lefèvre's thought was clearly more mystical and devotional than that of Erasmus. Both scholars fully recognized the divine nature of the incarnate Christ. But Lefèvre felt attached to the sublimity and majesty of Christ and maintained, therefore, that the incarnation had detracted only very little from Christ's divinity. Erasmus preferred to stress the gravity of Jesus' suffering and humiliation, believing that such an image of Jesus would make it easier for Christians to identify with him and to follow him as an ethical example.

VI. THE HISTORY OF THE PRINTED TEXT OF ERASMUS' APOLOGIA AGAINST JACQUES LEFEVRE D'ETAPLES

The text of Erasmus' apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples is available in six authoritative editions. The relationships between these editions are somewhat complicated and uncommon, because some editions are based on more than one earlier edition. Beginning with the second edition, many individual sentences were modified, but the most notable change was the increase in the number of references to Church Fathers and the addition of arguments.

In this chapter I discuss the six editions in chronological order. In each case, I begin with the place and date of its publication, the information given on the title page and the explanatory material added by the publisher. I then discuss the dependence of each edition on earlier ones and attempt to date the editions that appeared without a date of publication. Finally I address the question of why Erasmus published so many editions of his apologia in his effort to make each new edition more convincing than the previous one.

The first edition, A, was published by Martens in Louvain.¹ Erasmus may have chosen Martens as publisher because it was Gerard Geldenhouwer, an employee of Martens, who informed Erasmus of the appearance of the second edition of Lefèvre's translation of (and paraphrase and commentary on) Paul's epistles. For it was this second edition of Lefèvre's work which caused Erasmus to write his apologia.

The title page of A reads:

"Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad eximum virum Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, cuius argumentum versa pagella demonstrabit."

"The apologia of Erasmus of Rotterdam against the distinguished Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples. For its contents, see overleaf."

A contains the apologia and, after it, a short letter from Martens to the reader:

"Theodoricus Martinus Alostensis amico lectori salutem dicit.

Quoniam perpendebam non omnibus suppetere unde sibi magna volumina redimant, aut si suppetit, incommodum est circumferre, studui et hac parte consulere studiosis, adiectis locis ex vtriusque libris decerpitis circa quos haec apologia versatur, videlicet annotatione Erasmi in secundum caput epistolae ad Hebreacos et Fabri ex eodem loco huius annotationis insectatione, si quis aut diligentior aut parum credulus causam omnem propius et exactius velit expendere.

Bene vale optime lector."

¹ Dirk Martens of Aalst (1446/7–1534) opened a press in Louvain in 1497. In 1502 he moved to Antwerp and met Erasmus not long thereafter. In that period he printed a number of works of Erasmus. In the summer of 1512 Martens returned definitively to Louvain. His books were essential to the diffusion of humanist studies at the time of the foundation of the Collegium Trilingue Lovaniense. (J. IJsewijn in: Contemporaries II, s.v., pp. 394–396).

"Dirk Martens of Aalst greets his dear reader.

Since I realized that not all have enough resources to buy big volumes for themselves, or that, if they have, it is inconvenient to carry them around, I wished to help the learned public also by adding the passages from both books which this apologia is about, namely Erasmus' annotation on the second chapter of the epistle to the Hebrews and Lefèvre's attack on this annotation, based on the same passage, in case an attentive or sceptical reader might wish to examine the whole matter more closely and more precisely.

Farewell, dear reader."

Martens' letter is followed by a page of errata. After that one finds, as announced in Martens' letter, Erasmus' annotation on Hebreus 2,7 taken from the Nouum Instrumentum (see appendix III) and Lefèvre's disputatio (see appendix IV).

It is clear that A is the first edition since a number of passages clarifying the argument are found in the other five editions and yet are lacking in A. This applies, for example, to this apologia, ll. 522–525: "praesertim ... et caetera", and ibid., l. 1081: "aut Marcionis, opinor."

A has no date on the title page, nor a dated colophon. The text of the apologia itself, however, is dated at the end (l. 2623) by Erasmus himself, namely "Louanii, nonis Augusti, anno MDXVII", that is, 5 August 1517. This is undoubtedly the day on which Erasmus finished his apologia. This date was reprinted in all subsequent editions of the apologia that are reviewed here and also in LB. The terminus post quem of the date of publication of A is 23 August 1517. This is clear from Ep. 628 (Louvain, 23 August <1517>), a letter from Erasmus to Beatus Rhenanus², ll. 7–11:

"Demiror quid Iacobo Fabro venerit in mentem vt sic in me nugaretur, examinans Epistolae ad Hebraeos caput 2: cui respondimus abunde. Libellus ad te mittetur, si fuerit absolutus in tempore; iam enim non multum abest a meta, in manibus typographi Louaniensis."

"I wonder very much what has come into Jacques Lefèvre's head, that he should write all this nonsense against me in his discussion of the second chapter of Hebrews; but I have replied to him at length. The book shall be sent you, if it is finished in time, for it is now not far from its completion, in the hands of a Louvain printer."³

The terminus ante quem is 28 August 1517, as appears from Erasmus' letter of that date to Peter Gilles⁴ (Ep. 637 Louvain, 28 August <1517>), l. 12:

² Beatus Rhenanus of Sélestat (1485–1547) went to Paris for study in 1503. Among his teachers was Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples. He returned from Paris to Basel in 1507 and remained there for the following 20 years. Erasmus arrived in Basel in about 1514 and when Erasmus returned to the Netherlands, Beatus was empowered to act on his behalf in editorial as well as in personal matters. (Beat von Scarpatetti in: Contemporaries I, s.v., pp. 104–109).

³ CWE 5, pp. 72–73, Ep. 628, ll. 10–14.

⁴ By 1500 Peter Gilles of Antwerp (c. 1486–1533) was a corrector in the press of Dirk Martens in Antwerp where he probably met Erasmus. In 1516 and 1517 Gilles rendered Erasmus an important service by editing two collections of Erasmus' letters. (M.A. Nauwelaerts in: Contemporaries II, s.v., pp. 99–101).

"Mitto duas apologias, quarum alteram donabis M. Nicolao."

"I am sending you two copies of my apologia; please give one to Master Nicholas."⁵

Consequently, A was published between 23 and 28 August 1517, the dates of Epp. 628 and 637 respectively.

Once A had come out, Erasmus sent a copy to the printer Schürer⁷ in Strasbourg and a copy to Froben⁸ in Basel, with the intention of encouraging these printers to undertake a reprint. He also sent a copy to Ludwig Baer.⁹ Baer disapproved of the harsh tone of the apologia, probably because he was an old friend of Lefèvre. Moreover, he could not endorse Erasmus' theological treatment of the natures of Christ. He intimated his hesitations to Wolfgang Faber Capito¹⁰, an editorial adviser to Froben. Baer and Capito then wrote letters to Erasmus explaining their views. The carrier of their letters, however, did not arrive in Louvain until 5 December 1517 and left again on 7 December. In Epp. 730 and 731 Erasmus adduced the haste in which he was forced to reply as an excuse for making no further changes in the apologia. In these letters Erasmus touches upon only one theological point, namely, the relationship between the divine and the human natures of Christ. In Ep. 730 (Louvain, 6 December 1517) Erasmus wrote to Ludwig Baer, ll. 1–15:

"Hic nuncius postridie diluculo profecturus sub noctem me adiit; itaque non fuit ocium relegendae apologiae: tuo arbitratui permitto. Tamen nisi me fallit animi coniectura, non est tibi tota lecta, aut certe aliud agenti lecta. Christum non esse compositum ex duabus naturis didiceram ante annos ferme triginta. Proinde miror si illum vsquam compositum dixi; imo tota disputatione tueor hypostaseos simplicitatem, nec vsquam dico Christum accipi pro altera natura, ⁵ Nicolaas van Broeckhoven (c. 1478–c. 1515) studied in Antwerp, where he subsequently worked for the printer Dirk Martens. He prepared many editions, e.g. Erasmus' translations of several dialogues of Lucian and Plautus. (C.G. van Leijenhorst in: Contemporaries I, s.v., pp. 204–205).

⁶ Cf. CWE 5, p. 86, Ep. 637, ll. 14–15.

⁷ Matthias Schürer of Sélestat (1470–before 1520) began to publish works by Erasmus in 1509, only a year after he had established his own press. He repeatedly asked Erasmus for copy. In 1517 Erasmus gave him the revised text of Quintus Curtius and the apologia against Lefèvre. (Cf. M.U. Chrisman in: Contemporaries III, s.v., p. 233).

⁸ See Ep. 733, l. 15. Johann Froben of Hammelburg (c. 1460–1527) moved to Basel about 1490, supported by Johann Amerbach, who was already established in Basel as a successful printer. Erasmus came to Basel in 1514, probably invited by Froben, who was in need of a new academic director for the great edition of Jerome. Froben was an important publisher for the humanist movement. (P.G. Bietenholz in: Contemporaries II, s.v., pp. 60–63).

⁹ Ludwig Baer of Basel (1479–1554) left Basel and arrived in Paris in 1496. Baer's chief interest lay in the field of formal theology in the tradition of Paris. Erasmus often sought reassurance in Baer's theological expertise, for instance, while preparing De libero arbitrio as well as the second and third editions of the New Testament. (P.G. Bietenholz in: Contemporaries I, s.v., pp. 84–86).

¹⁰ Wolfgang Faber Capito (c. 1478–1541) was trained in the nominalist tradition, but he very early showed a preference for humanistic studies. Since 1515 he worked in Basel both as a cathedral preacher and as a university professor of theology. Erasmus frequently appealed to Capito as a Hebrew scholar in support of his translation of the New Testament. (J.M. Kittelson in: Contemporaries I, s.v., pp. 261–264).

nempe humana, immo potius accipi pro altera quam vtraque, quod vult Faber, nempe pro diuina, sed quae vnicerit sibi humanam. Caeterum ais Christi vocabula, hoc est vocabula hypostaseos, frequenter accipi pro vocabulis naturarum. Quod si fecissem, non eram valde obiurgandus: et tamen declaro ne id quidem a me factum in annotationibus. Velim igitur vt libellum relegas per ocium, deinde communicato consilio cum Guolphango mutes pro tuo in me studio quae videbuntur”

“The bearer of this came to me at nightfall, with the intention of setting out at first light tomorrow and so I had no time to re-read my apologia; I leave it to your discretion. Although if I guess rightly, you have not read it all, or at least, if you read it, you were thinking of something else. That Christ was not a composite being of two natures is a fact I learnt some thirty years ago. I wonder therefore if I ever said he was composite; indeed all through my argument I maintain the singleness of his substance, nor do I say anywhere that Christ is to be taken as having one of the two, meaning human nature, but that he is to be taken as having one rather than both, as Lefevre says; by which I mean the divine nature, but a divine which has united the human to itself. You say that the word Christ, that is, a word meaning the substance, is often taken as a word for the two natures. Had I done this, I should not deserve severe criticism; and yet I maintain that in my notes I never went even that far. I wish therefore you would re-read the book at leisure and then discuss it with Wolfgang, and make such changes as your kindness towards me may suggest”¹¹

Erasmus sent a letter of identical import to Wolfgang Capito.¹² He suggested no modifications in his description of Jesus' natures, nor were such alterations introduced in the edition that came from Froben's press in 1518. It is not even clear whether Capito and Baer replied to Erasmus' letters: no letters answering those of Erasmus are known to exist.¹³

The second edition, B, was published by Schürer in Strasbourg. Schürer frequently urged Erasmus to send him copy, and Erasmus had recently written to John Ruser, who worked as a corrector for Schürer, that he regretted he had nothing to give him for publication.¹⁴ The title page of B reads:

“Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad eximum virum Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem, cuius argumentum versa pagella demonstrabit, ab authore denuo recognitum”.

“The apologia of Erasmus of Rotterdam against the distinguished Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples. Revised by the author. For its contents, see overleaf.”

This edition contains the apologia, Erasmus' annotation on Hebrews 2,7 from the Nouum Instrumentum and Lefèvre's disputatio.

¹¹ CWE 5, p. 225, Ep. 730, ll. 1–17.

¹² Ep. 731, Louvain, 6 December <1517>, ll. 1–25.

¹³ Cf. CWE 5, intr. Ep. 730, vol. 5, pp. 224–225.

¹⁴ Ep. 606, <Louvain>, <July?> 1517, ll. 1–7.

B was published relatively long before the Froben 1518 edition, C, as is clear from Ep. 821 (Louvain, 22 April 1518), ll. 26–27 to Richard Pace:¹⁵

“Apologia qua Fabrum placo, nuper Basilcae prodiit cum annotamentis; iampridem excusa Argentorati.”

“The apologia in which I try to pacify Lefèvre has lately come out in Basel with notes, having some time ago been printed in Strasbourg.”¹⁶

In order to establish the relationship between A, B and C, it is also important to look at Ep. 731 from Erasmus to Wolfgang Capito (Louvain, 6 December 1517), ll. 22–23, 27–30 and 36–37:

“Mitto libellum ante recognitum qualem miseram Schurerio, quando Berus scribit in*<1>tium* deesse ... De apologia fungere amici officio, vt soles, habiturus me tui vicissim studiosissimum. Misi exemplar simile isti ad Schurerium: potes illi mittere tuas annotationes, si Frobennius non excudit, vt addat exemplari a me misso. ... Sed amice facis quod premis: facillimum est ledere.”

“I send the book with the previous revisions, as I sent it to Schürer, for Baer writes that the beginning is missing ... In the matter of my apologia, let me have your friendly help, as you always do, and rely on me to do what I can for you in return. I have sent Schürer a copy similar to yours; you can send your comments to him. if Froben is not printing it, to be added to the copy I sent him. ... But it is kind of you to press the point, for one can very easily do harm.”¹⁷

From both the evidence quoted and a comparison between the texts of the three editions, A, B and C, it is clear that B and C are directly dependent on A. Quite often, B and C have the same additions of two or more words as compared with A. An exception is one passage, (the present apologia) l. 1591, where C has the following addition, lacking in B: “vertit etiam Hieronymus ad modum temporis”, “Jerome, too, translates it as a temporal adjunct”, meant as an additional argument. (A lacks ll. 1586–1595 as a whole, D has the addition, too, but E and BAS omit it again.) As Ep. 731 shows (see the last quotation), Erasmus sent a corrected copy first to Schürer, and then another corrected copy to Froben. For a short period of time, therefore, Erasmus had the possibility of adding material to the text which would go to Froben. Such additions would be too late, however, to be incorporated in B.

The date of publication of the second edition, B, is not mentioned on the title page or in the colophon of the book. In Ep. 693 (Louvain, 31 October 1517), ll. 6–9, however, Erasmus writes to Schürer:

¹⁵ Richard Pace of Hampshire (c.1483–1536) first met Erasmus in 1508 when Pace was studying at Ferrara. Erasmus understood that Pace was collecting classical allegories and he left a number of his papers on the topic with Pace. This turned out to be a mistake, for Erasmus never saw most of the papers again. Pace spent the years between 1517 and 1519 in England acting as a secretary to Henry VIII. (S.E. Lehmburg in: Contemporaries III, s.v., pp. 37–39).

¹⁶ CWE 5, p. 393, Ep. 821, ll. 27–28.

¹⁷ CWE 5, pp. 227–228, Ep. 731, ll. 26–27, 31–35 and 42.

"Mitto ad te apologiam qua Fabro Stapulensi respondeo; quam ego non optarim alio animo propagatam, nisi ne quis existimet inter nos inimicam contentionem: etiam si ille parum amice lacescuit. Si placet, accipe, et tui similis esto."

"I ... send you the apologia containing my reply to Lefèvre d'Etaples; I should not like it to be published with any other purpose than to prevent people from thinking there is any hostility in our discussion, though it was he who provoked me in an unfriendly fashion. If you like it, take it; I know I can rely on you."¹⁸

In Ep. 732 (Louvain, 6 December [1517]), ll. 29–31, Erasmus writes to Beatus Rhenanus:

"Apologiam a me recognitam Argentoratum miseram Schurerio, sed hac lege vt, si non placeret, mitteret Basileam."

"I have sent the apologia, with my revisions, to Schürer in Strasbourg, on the understanding that if he did not like it, he should send it on to Basel."¹⁹

Furthermore, in Ep. 730 (Louvain, 6 December 1517), ll. 24–25, Erasmus writes to Ludwig Baer:

"Miseram Schurerio exemplar apologiae castigatum antequam tuae litterae mihi redderentur."

"I had sent Schürer a corrected copy of my apologia, before your letter²⁰ reached me."²¹

The copy sent to Schürer must have been a corrected version of A and not of C (Froben's edition) since C is dated February 1518.

The terminus post quem of B, then, is 31 October 1517, the date of Ep. 693, the letter accompanying the copy of the apologia that Erasmus sent to Schürer. The terminus ante quem is (some time before) February 1518, the date of publication of C. Consequently, B was published between 31 October 1517 and February 1518. It is somewhat surprising that Allen²² as well as P.G. Bietenholz²³ assumes that Schürer printed his edition of the apologia very soon after he received the corrected copy of A. Allen refers for this to BE Rép. (p. 114), but Vander Haeghen only says that he does not know whether B was published in 1517 or in 1518.

The third edition, C, was published by Froben in Basel in February 1518. The title page reads:

¹⁸ CWE 5, p. 163, Ep. 693, ll. 7–11. CWE translates "attacked" instead of "provoked".

¹⁹ CWE 5, Ep. 732, p. 229, ll. 32–34. This message is remarkable, because Erasmus himself had already sent a copy of his apologia to Basel.

²⁰ CWE 5, p. 226, Ep. 730, n. l. 27 mentions that by "letter" Er. means the Epistolae elegantes of April 1517, which contained the earliest known letters exchanged between Erasmus and Baer (Epp. 488, 507).

²¹ CWE 5, pp. 225–226, Ep. 730, ll. 26–27.

²² Allen III, p. 116, Ep. 693, n.l. 6.

²³ CWE 5, p. 163, Ep. 693, n.l. 7.

"Ioannes Frobenius lectori salutem.

Iacobus Faber Stapulensis in secunda suarum in Paulum adnotationum aeditio Erasmus nostrum erroris notauit, ipse foedissime hallucinatus. At hic – o diuinum ingenii promptitudinem – etiam dum ab officina calente opere, quattuordecim duntaxat diecularum spacio, hanc apologiam effudit verius quam scripsit. Ex ea tametsi breui, sed mire docta, velut leonem, quod aiunt, ab unguiculis,²⁴ aestimare licet, quam sit Erasmus theologicarum, etiam argutiarum non ignarus, quibus nunc theologi passim in scholis vtuntur. Adiecit quidam apud nos pauculas in marginibus adnotatiunculas, vt lectori consuleret. Eme, lege, et Erasmus θεολογικώτατον καὶ διαλεκτικώτατον, hoc est, summum theologum et acerrimum disputatorem deprehendes. Argumentum apologiae sequens pagella copiosius explicabit. Bene vale".

"Johann Froben greets his reader.

In the second edition of his (sc. Lefèvre's) annotations on Paul, Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples criticized our Erasmus for having made a mistake, while he himself was shamefully wandering in his mind. But – how divine is the promptitude of his (sc. Erasmus') genius – when the work was still warm from the press, he poured forth rather than wrote this apologia within a period of merely fourteen days. From this writing, which, though short, is marvelously learned, one may immediately estimate how exceedingly Erasmus is acquainted even with theological subtleties, in which the theologians now indulge everywhere in the universities. Somebody of our firm added a few short notes in the margins to help the reader. Buy it, read it, and you will perceive that Erasmus is a very great theologian and a most acute disputant. The following page will explain more extensively what the apologia is about. Farewell."

The colophon at the end of the book reads:

"Basileae apud Ioannem Frobenium mense Februario anno M.D.XVIII."

"Basel, at Johann Froben's, February A.D. 1518."

Apart from Froben's prefatory letter and the colophon, this edition contains only the apologia. However, a number of short annotations were added in the margins, notes that do not occur in A or B. As the title page indicates, someone belonging to Froben's printing office added them, though it is not clear exactly who that was.

As noted above, both Schürer and Froben received a corrected copy of A. On the basis of these copies they produced B and C respectively. B was published considerably earlier than C. Examples of additions to A which B and C have in common are (the present apologia) ll. 1331–1332: "cuius ... conflictationibus" and (the present apologia) ll. 1586–1595 "Quid ... locus".

Theoretically, since B was published earlier than C, the possibility cannot be ruled out that C was not only based on A, but also on B. The text of C, however, can be accounted for satisfactorily without reference to this. In a number of cases in which B deviates from A by clarifying A's text, C does not switch from A to the more attractive reading of B, but continues to follow the less attractive reading of A. Examples of this phenomenon are the present apologia, l. 1227 and l. 1242, where B reads "inquit" and A and C do not.

²⁴ "Leonem ex unguibus aestimare" Adag. 834, LB II, 347 D–F; "to know a lion by its claws", i.e., to form an idea of an entire subject from one single inference. R.A.B. Mynors in: CWE 32, Toronto/Buffalo/London, 1989, p. 200.

As was observed above, C is dated February 1518.

The fourth edition, D, was published in Louvain by Martens between February 1518 and 6 March 1518. The title page reads:

"Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad eximium virum diuum Iacobum Fabrum. Cui additum est compendium argumentorum, quibus Faber aduersus eum est vsus, adiectis solutionibus, Epistola Erasmi ad Budacum de apologia."

"The apologia by Erasmus of Rotterdam against the distinguished theologian Jacques Lefèvre, to which has been added a summary of the arguments Lefèvre had used against him, with refutations, and Erasmus' letter to Budé about the apologia."

D also contains a letter from Martens to the reader:

"Theodoricus Martinus Alostensis candido lectori salutem.

En denuo optime lector trado tibi castigatius typis excussam Erasmi apologiam, quae cum eruditis omnibus placeat, non solum ob singularem ingenii vim, qua declarat sese in his quoque valere si genus hoc scripti magis probasset, verum etiam ob raram animi modestiam et ciuitatem qua sic refellit aduersarium parum ciuiliter impetentem, vt tamen amicum fuisse meminerit. Tum magis placitura sit, si scias, id quod nobis constat, opus hoc illi intra duodecim dies et ceptum et absolutum, nec sine graui animi dolore, quod in hoc scripti genus compulsus esset descendere. Adiecum summa argumentorum Fabri mire in compendium contractorum ob lectorem vel occupatum vel fastidiosum, praeterea epistolam argutam et facundam, qua placat eos qui dictitant eum aut non debuisse respondere Fabro, aut moderatius respondere debuisse. Bene vale."

"Dirk Martens of Aalst greets his sincere reader.

Here I offer you again, dear reader, a corrected edition of Erasmus' apologia. I hope it will please all learned readers. For it shows the extraordinary force of the author's genius. Through this force he demonstrates that he would excel in this field, too, if he could appreciate this genre of writing more than he does. The apologia also shows the author's singular modesty and courtesy, for although his opponent attacked him most unkindly, he refutes him without forgetting that he was his friend. I hope that the book will please you the more if you know what we know as an established fact, namely that Erasmus undertook and completed this work within twelve days. Yet he wrote it sore at heart, for it pained him that he was compelled to engage in that sort of writing. We have added a survey of Lefèvre's arguments, admirably summarized for the benefit of the busily engaged or fastidious reader. Moreover, we added the penetrating and eloquent letter in which he allays the alarm of those who keep saying that he ought not to have replied, or ought to have replied in more moderate terms. Farewell."

This edition provides the apologia, and, as mentioned above, a synopsis of Lefèvre's objections entitled:

"Summa totius disputationis contracta in articulos, additis duobus verbis eorum quae obiciuntur solutionibus."

"A synopsis of the whole disputatio (sc. of Lefèvre) summarized and divided into short paragraphs. To the objections (of Lefèvre) we have added refutations, briefly worded."

An edition of this synopsis will be included in this volume in appendix V. In D, the synopsis was followed by a letter, dated "Louanii octauo calendas Martias", from Erasmus to Budé, Allen, Ep. 778, Louvain, 22 February 1518.

D contains the same marginalia as C. As in C, the author of the marginalia is not mentioned.

D generally follows the reading of C, with occasional additions to the common text of A, B and C. This is the case, for example, at (the present apologia), l. 2373, where D adds "inter omnes" and at ll. 1997–2031, where D adds "Idem ... notatus." It follows that D is later than C. An example of a passage in which D reads the same as C whereas A and B read somewhat differently, is (the present apologia), l. 613, where C and D read "verborum sophisticasque" but A "verborumque sophisticas" and B "sophisticasque verborum".

In some cases, however, D prefers a reading of A or B to the variant reading of C. For example in (the present apologia), l. 2565, C reads "antecedente", whereas A, B and D read "accidente"; and in (the present apologia) l. 2499, C reads "iudicare" whereas D follows A or B in the reading "indicare".

It must be concluded from this that the editor of D, while basing his text generally on C, occasionally drew his reading from A or B. Whether his secondary source was A or B cannot be established with certainty, but it is probable that the editor employed by Martens used the Martens edition, A, rather than the Schürer edition, B.

Like A, D was printed by Martens in Louvain without a date of publication. In Ep. 794 (Louvain, 6 March 1518), addressed to Peter Barbirius,²⁵ l. 47, Er. writes:

"Apologia iam quater est impressa."

"The apologia has now been printed four times."

Allen believed that this was an error.²⁶ But in discussing the editions of this apologia, he only mentions those of Martens and Froben, obviously unaware of the edition printed by Schürer. The fourth edition referred to in Ep. 794, l. 47, must be D, for E and BAS are certainly of a much later date than this letter.

The terminus post quem of D, then, is February 1518, the date of publication of C, and the terminus ante quem 6 March 1518, the date of Ep. 794.

²⁵ Peter Barbirius of Arras (died 1551/1552) worked as a corrector for the Louvain printer Dirk Martens in 1513. In this circle he met Erasmus. Erasmus told him of his progress in preparing the second and third editions of the New Testament. Especially in the period of Barbirius' service in the curia of Adrian VI, Erasmus kept him fully informed of his troubles and controversies. (P.G. Bietenholz in: Contemporaries I, pp. 93–94).

²⁶ Allen, vol. III, p. 248, n. l. 47 and ibid., pp. 220–221.

There are two identical printings of the fifth edition, E, both of which were published by Froben in Basel. The edition came out for the first time in November 1521 in a collection of Erasmus' apologetical writings entitled:

"Apologiae Erasmi Roterodami, quibus respondet iis, qui ex tot ipsis vigiliis, tamque spectatae fidei monumentis, aliquid tandem quod calumniarentur decerpere conati sunt, ab autore nuper recognitae, et in, quo scriptae sunt, ordinem contractae. Ex quibus studiosus lector non vulgarem capiet vtilitatem si quae vtrinque scripta ac disserta sunt conferat ac perpendat. Basileae apud Ioannem Frobenium, mense nouembri, anno M.D.XXI."

"The apologetical works of Erasmus of Rotterdam. In these he answers those who have tried to pick out something from his numerous learned works and from his books that testify to a proven faith, in order to calumniate it. These writings have recently been revised by the author. They have been collected here and arranged in the order in which they were written. They will be of great benefit to the studious reader, if he compares and considers what has been written and argued from both sides. Basel, at Johann Froben's firm, November 1521."

Some four months later, in February 1522, a second issue of the same edition was published under the following title:

"Apologiae Erasmi Roterodami omnes, aduersus eos, qui illum locis aliquot, in suis libris, non satis circunspecte sunt calumniati.

In Iacobum Lopim Stunicam apologia I.

In quendam, dc loco qui est apud Paulum ad Corinthios I, capite XV, 'Omnes quidem resurgemus etc.,' quae recens ab autore profecta, nunc primum omnium in lucem prodiit apologia II.

In Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem apologia III.

In Iacobi Latomi dialogum apologia IIII.

In quendam pro declamatione matrimonii apologia V.

De 'in principio erat sermo' apologia VI.

In Eduardum Leum apologia VII.

Basileae apud Ioannem Frobenium, mense Februario, anno M.D.XXII."

"All the apologetical works of Erasmus of Rotterdam against those who were so imprudent as to calumniate him in numerous passages in their writings.

The first apologia, against Diego Lopez de Zuniga,

The second apologia, against a certain person on Paul's words in 1 Cor. 15 'we shall all rise, etc.' This work has recently been produced by the author. It appears here for the very first time.

The third apologia, against Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples,

The fourth apologia, against Jacobus Latomus.

The fifth apologia, against a certain person in defence of the declamation on marriage.

The sixth apologia, on 'In the beginning was the Word'.

The seventh apologia, against Edward Lee.

Basel, at Johann Froben's firm, February 1522."

The second issue of E contains the same apologetias as the first issue, with two additions. These two were placed at the beginning, presumably to give the volume the complexion of a new book rather than a re-issue of the edition of November 1521.²⁷ The first of the two newly-added apologetics, against Diego Lopez de Zuniga, had first been published by Martens in Louvain in September 1521, under the title Apologia respondens ad ea quae Iacobus Lopis Stunica taxauerat in prima Noui Testamenti aeditione. The Apologiae omnes of February 1522 contain the second edition of this work (now in ASD IX, 2).

The other apologia that was added in February 1522 was directed against Nicholas Baechem alias Egmondanus.²⁸ Erasmus does not mention his adversary's name in this work. Its title is Apologia de loco 'omnes quidem resurgemus'. This apologia was printed here for the first time.

In a Cambridge copy of this second issue of E, Erasmus himself added some handwritten notes in the margins.²⁹ Only one of these notes occurs in the margin of the apologia against Lefèvre, namely ad ll. 2485–2486: "Qui potui temperantius? Hactenus annotatio mea". Erasmus himself crossed out the words "Qui potui temperantius", but "Hactenus annotatio mea" was incorporated in BAS.

In both issues of E, the apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples is followed by the letter of Martens to the reader occurring in A, but with slight differences. Froben understandably omitted the opening words ("Theodoricus ... dicit.")

E is dependent primarily on D, but in cases in which B has a different reading from A, C, and D, it sometimes follows B. Evidence of the dependence of E on D can be found at (the present apologia), l. 1941, where A, C, D and E read "tam", whereas B reads "iam", and at (the present apologia), l. 226 where A, C, D and E read "veros" but B "vero". E follows B, not A, C and D at, for example, l. 1056, where E and B have the addition "inspiciamus" as compared to A, C and D. At l. 955, E and B read "hac est" whereas A, C and D read "hoc est".

Both issues of E have short annotations printed in the margins. There are fewer of them, and they are not the same as the marginalia in C and D. The author of the marginalia in E is no more known than that of the marginalia in C and D.

The sixth edition of the apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples is the one incorporated in volume IX of Erasmus' Omnia Opera, published by Froben in Basel in 1540, and is referred to here as BAS. The title page reads:

"Desiderii Erasmi Roterodami Operum nonus tomus complectens ipsius apologias aduersus eos qui illum locis aliquot in suis libris aut non satis cir-cumspicte aut malitiose sunt calumniati quarum nomenclaturam versa pagina demonstrabit.

Froben, Basileac in officina Frobenii, Anno M.D.XL."

²⁷ Cf. L.-E. Halkin, Une édition rarissime des apologetiques d'Érasme en 1521 in: Bibliothèque d'humanisme et renaissance XLV,2 (1983), pp. 243–249.

²⁸ L.-E. Halkin, ibid., pp. 347–348.

²⁹ For an extensive discussion of these annotations, see H.J. de Jonge, Aantekeningen van Erasmus in een exemplaar van zijn Apologiae omnes (1522), NAK 58 (1978), pp. 176–189.

"Ninth volume of the works of Desiderius Erasmus of Rotterdam, containing his apologetical writings against those who were so imprudent or malicious as to calumniate him in numerous passages in their works. For the titles of these apologetical writings, see overleaf.

Froben, at Froben's printing house in Basel, 1540."

In this edition, too, the apologia is followed by Martens' letter to the reader, in the form in which it had been adopted in E. The editors also added Erasmus' note on Hebrews 2,7 from the Nouum Instrumentum and Lefevre's disputatio.

Except for a few new additions which are certainly due to Erasmus and to which we shall return below, BAS is dependent only on E. There is no need to assume secondary influence of any other edition.

In BAS a few passages have been inserted that do not yet occur in A, B, C, D or E. Although BAS was published in 1540, after Erasmus' death, these additions are certainly due to Erasmus himself. They contain material meant to corroborate the argumentation already given in the existing text. It is much more plausible that Erasmus himself collected this material and inserted it in a working copy of his apologia against Lefèvre d'Etaples than that someone else assembled this material. The additions include such passages as those at ll. 1628–1631: "quum ... illustrum" and ll. 2067–2076 "Origenes ... Hieronymus". These passages make BAS the most recent edition of the apologia for which Erasmus was responsible.

The fact that someone from Froben's press may have added something to the text after Erasmus' death, is no reason for not taking BAS as the basis for this new edition. Erasmus did not hesitate to permit his publishers to change the text wherever they found it needed correction. See, for example, Ep. 730 (Louvain, 6 December 1517) to Louis Ber, ll. 1–2:

"Hic nuncius postridie diluculo profecturus sub noctem me adiit; itaque non fuit ocium relegendae apologiae: tuo arbitratui permitto."

"The bearer of this came to me at nightfall, with the intention of setting out at first light tomorrow and so I had no time to re-read my apologia; I leave it to your discretion."³⁰

Cf. Ep. 731 (Louvain, 6 December [1517]) to Wolfgang Capito, ll. 27–30:

"De apologia fungere amici officio, vt soles, habiturus me tui vicissim studio-simum. Misi exemplar simile isti ad Schurerium: potes illi mittere tuas annotationes, si Frobennius non excudit, vt addat exemplari a me misso."

"In the matter of my apologia, let me have your friendly help, as you always do, and rely on me to do what I can for you in return. I have sent Schürer a copy similar to yours; you can send your comments to him, if Froben is not printing it, to be added to the copy I sent him."³¹

³⁰ CWE 5, p. 225, Ep. 730, ll. 1–3.

³¹ CWE 5, p. 227, Ep. 731, ll. 31–35.

Nor is the possibility that Lefèvre d'Étaples was confronted with earlier editions of this apologia than that of BAS sufficient reason for not basing this edition on BAS. Lefèvre did not react to the apologia. For a correct understanding of any response of Lefèvre d'Étaples it is not necessary, therefore, to re-edit A, B, C, D or E: such a response simply was not forthcoming. The new edition in of this apologia could best be based, therefore, on the final version for which Erasmus can be held responsible, that is, on BAS.

Some passages in the apologia against Lefèvre d'Étaples deserve further examination. In (the present apologia), l. 1997, E has a passage that does not occur in A, B, C, D or BAS. The passage runs as follows: "Rursus Augustinus libro De ciuitate Dei sedecimo, capite vigesimo secundo." The next word is "Idem" but that refers to Jerome, not to Augustine. In the passage preceding the words added in E, Erasmus is speaking about Jerome. Probably, then, the passage which occurs solely in E has been omitted in BAS in order to restore the line of the argument. In the reading of E, "Idem" wrongly refers to Augustine. It is not necessary to assume that the reading of BAS here derives from an earlier edition than E.

The present apologia, ll. 2307–2372 "Si nullus" up to and including "magistros nostros" is a passage that is found only in D, E, and BAS. A, B and C do not contain it. At l. 2324, BAS omits eight words that do occur in D and E, namely "Nemo insectatur Hilarium quod Arrianos recusarit, nisi rebaptisatos." Neither the content of this passage, nor the line of thought in the context, can have been a reason for its omission. Since the next sentence begins with a capital N, however, the omission of the passage in question in BAS may be due to a saut du même au même.

Conclusion

The apologia of Erasmus against Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples was published six times in editions revised or edited by Erasmus himself.

A was published by Martens in Louvain between 23 and 28 August 1517. Erasmus corrected two copies of this edition by hand and sent one to Schürer in Strasbourg and the other to Froben in Basel. In printing B Schürer followed the copy he had received from Erasmus, after 31 October 1517 and before C came out in February 1518. Froben used the other corrected copy for printing the edition that appeared in February 1518, C. B and C are dependent only on A and the corrections introduced in A by Erasmus. There is no reason to assume influence of B on C.

D was published by Martens in Louvain after the publication of C in February 1518 and before 6 March 1518. D is chiefly dependent on C but also reflects some influence from A or B.

E was published twice by Froben at Basel. A first issue appeared in November, 1521; the second, in February, 1522, with a new title page. E is primarily dependent on D but was also subject to some secondary influence from B.

A sixth edition appeared in BAS, that is, Erasmus' Omnia Opera published in Basel by Froben in 1540. The text of the apologia in BAS is dependent on E but includes additions introduced by Erasmus himself.

The publishers of A, B, D, E and BAS added several appendices to the text as helps for the readers. Editions A, B, E and BAS incorporate Erasmus' note on Hebr. 2,7 from the Nouum Instrumentum (1516) and Lefèvre's disputatio from the second edition of his translation of, and paraphrase and commentary on, Paul's epistles (1516/7). In the case of D, the publisher added a synopsis of Lefèvre's objections, together with Erasmus' replies, and a letter from Erasmus to Budé (Ep. 778) that could serve as a defence of the apologia.

After the first edition had appeared in 1517, Erasmus continuously enlarged and improved his apologia. He even continued to expand the work after it had become clear that Lefèvre d'Etaples was not going to respond. Eventually the text in BAS was seven and a half percent longer than that in A. The additions consist predominantly of references to, or quotations from, patristic authors.

It is clear that the long text in BAS reflects the latest and most mature form that Erasmus gave the apologia. This was an important reason for basing the text of the new edition of this apologia on BAS.

Other factors that had to be taken into account were the length of the passages inserted in the second and later editions, and the desirability of keeping the text reasonably readable.

VII. THE DATE OF THE SECOND EDITION OF LEFEVRE'S *EPISTOLE DIVI PAVLI APOSTOLI CVM COMMENTARIIS

The first edition of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of the epistles of Paul was published by H. Estienne in 1512. A second edition – containing the attack on Erasmus – was brought out by the same publisher in Paris, but when?

In a colophon at the end of the book, the place and date of publication are mentioned: Paris, 1515. The mention of Paris as the place of publication is doubtless correct, but distrust soon arose regarding the date. Erasmus commented upon it as follows:

... nonnihil demiror et illud, qui factum sit vt quum nostra aeditio fuerit abso-luta Basileae in officina Frobenii anno ab orbe redempto MDXVI, tua annum habeat MDXV. Si prior est tua aut si aequalis, quo modo meam citat? Si posterior, quo cursu nostrae anteuerit, quae prior a linea discesserat? Quod certe aut typographorum errore factum sit oportet, qui, quum crebro peccent, faciunt vt nostra quoque commissa probabiliter in ipsos reuiciamus; aut tui studiosus quispiam anteuerendum putauit, ne quid videreris ex meis lucubra-tionibus in tuas sumpsisse mutuo atque ita dum sedulo tuae gloriae consultit, aut non meminit aut non sensit illic prioris aeditionis nostrae factam abs te mentionem.¹

... I also wonder very much how it can have happened that, while the printing of our edition was completed in Basel at Froben's printing office in the year 1516, your edition mentions 1515 as year of publication. If your edition was printed earlier or simultaneously, how can it quote mine? If it was later than mine, by what race did it come before mine, which had started earlier? No, this is certainly due to an error of the type-setters, who so often make a mistake that we credibly blame them for our own mistakes; or some adept of yours believed that your work had to have a date earlier than mine in order to avoid the impression that you had taken over something from my work into yours. Thus, trying to protect your reputation, he either forgot or failed to notice that you refer in your work to that earlier edition of mine.

Since in the second edition of his commentary on Paul, dated 1515, Lefèvre quotes Erasmus' Nouum Instrumentum of 1516, the book must have been ante-dated.

In his important 1902 study of Erasmus' first two editions of the New Testament, Bludau dates Lefèvre's second edition to 1517 and refers to Henke's eighteenth-century Leben des Erasmus, which assumed that no separate edition with the date 1515 had appeared, but that some copies of the 1517 edition incor-rectly mention the date 1515.² This shows that Bludau and Henke did not compare a copy dated 1515 with a copy of the 1517 edition, for the edition dated 1515 differs so markedly from the one dated 1517 that it is impossible to equate the editions.

¹ Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 167–177.

² A. Bludau, Die beiden ersten Erasmus-Ausgaben des Neuen Testaments und ihre Gegner, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1902, p. 64, referring to H.Ph. Konrad Henke (tr. and ed.), Das Leben des Des. Erasmus. Auf dem Französischen des Herrn von Burigny, mit Berichtigungen und Zusätzen, Halle and Helm-städt, 1782, I, p. 347.

P.S. Allen did not know the second edition and mistook the third, 1517 edition for the cause of Erasmus' furious reaction in his apologia.³ That this cannot be correct appears from Erasmus' words cited above, which make clear that he was reacting to a book dated 1515. Moreover, the first and second editions were published by Henry Estienne in Paris and the third by Regnault and De la Porte, also in Paris. Since Allen mentions these last publishers, he obviously used a copy of the third edition (1517). Hughes,⁴ Bedouelle,⁵ and Feld,⁶ who have written more recently about Lefèvre's conflict with Erasmus, repeatedly note that Lefèvre's second edition must have been antedated, but they make no attempt to educe the real date of publication of the work that aroused Erasmus' anger.

Yet, the date of Lefèvre's second edition of his translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's epistles can be established without great difficulty. The terminus post quem is the date of publication of Agostini Giustiniani's Octuplex Psalterium, which is the most recent publication Lefèvre quotes in his second edition:

Quod manifestissime is intelliget cui curae fuerit illam Psalterii nobilem octoplum legere, quam insignis vir multarum linguarum vtpore Latinae, Graecae, Hebraicae, Caldaicae et Arabicae gnarus, Augustinus Iustinianus, episcopus Nebiensis ordinis praedicatorii, hac nostra tempestate aeditit.⁷

And this (viz. that Lefèvre is right) will be perfectly understood by anyone who takes the trouble to consult the magnificent Octuplex Psalterium, recently edited by the distinguished, polyglot scholar and Dominican friar, Agostino Giustiniani, a man familiar with, e.g., Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Aramaic and Arabic, and also a bi&shop of Nebbio (in Corsica).

The Psalterium Octuplex of Agostini Giustiniani was published in November of 1516.⁸ This date has to be considered the terminus post quem of Lefèvre's second edition.

The terminus ante quem is the date of Erasmus' letter to Thomas More of 10 July 1517. This is the earliest known letter written by Erasmus after he had seen Lefèvre's second edition:

Faber amicus haud admodum amice mecum egit in proxima editione Epistolarum Apostolicarum; odiosius enim tuetur suam sententiam, arrodenst etiam nonnulla que ad ipsius causam nihil attinebant. Illico animum tetigit, Homo est; cui mox edita epistola respondebo, sed stomacho temperans, ne contentio, ³ Allen, vol. III, p. 5, n.l. 29.

⁴ P.E. Hughes, Lefèvre, Pioneer of Ecclesiastical Renewal in France, Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1984, p. III.

⁵ G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Étaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, p. 220.

⁶ H. Feld, Der Humanisten-Streit um Hebräer 2,7 (Psalm 8,6), in: ARG 61 (1970), pp. 5–35.

⁷ See appendix IV, ll. 72–76.

⁸ Allen, vol. III, p. 278, n.l. 356.

non disputatio, videatur. Si rem voles cognoscere, lege annotationes nostras in secundum caput Epistolae ad Hebreos et illius in eundem locum examinationes; sed secundam editionem illius agnosces ex subscriptione Fabri in prima statim pagina.⁹

"My friend Lefèvre has treated me in a very unfriendly fashion in the latest edition of his apostolic epistles; he clings obstinately to his own opinion and gets his teeth into some things that had nothing to do with his point. I touched him on the raw by saying 'He (viz. Christ) is a man'; I shall answer him shortly in an open letter, but with strict control over my temper, so that it is clearly an argument and not a quarrel. If you wish to know what the point is, read my note on the second chapter of Hebrews and his criticisms of the same passage; you will know which is his second edition from the note by Lefèvre on the title page."¹⁰

From the evidence quoted it can be concluded that the second edition of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's letters was published between November of 1516 and 10 July 1517.

Why was this book antedated? As quoted above, Erasmus suggested that the intention was to avoid the impression that Lefèvre had taken something over from him. Erasmus is supposing here that the second edition of Lefèvre's work on Paul's epistles is an improved edition of the work Lefèvre had published in 1512. Some alterations, indeed, could be due to Erasmus' Nouum Instrumentum of 1516.

This interpretation of the false date '1515', however, cannot be correct. In several passages of his second edition, Lefèvre reacts to the views Erasmus had expressed in the Nouum Instrumentum, but in these cases he almost always mentions Erasmus' name. There is no reason to think that Lefèvre ever wanted to dissimulate his use of Erasmus' Nouum Instrumentum.

The other explanation which Erasmus offered for the wrong date in the colophon of Lefèvre's second edition, was that it was a type-setter's error. This explanation is, indeed, much more plausible. The colophon in the first, 1512 edition, reads as follows:¹¹

⁹ Ep. 597, ll. 32–40.

¹⁰ CWE 5, p. II, Ep. 597, ll. 37–45. The title page of the first edition (Paris, Henry Estienne, 15 December 1512) merely lists the contents: Contenta. Epistola ad Romanos .... The title page of the second edition does the same, but at the bottom of the page there is an introductory note beginning with the words 'In hac secunda emissione ...'. This note is no longer included in the third edition (Paris, Regnault and De la Porte, 1517). Cf. CWE 5, p. II, n.l. 44.

¹¹ J. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 262 r°.

HOC OPVS ILLVSTRATORE CHRISTO QVI LVCET VBIQUE
 ETSI NON CAPITVR: ABSOLVTVM FVIT IN COENOBIO
 SANCII GERMANI IVXTA PARISIOS ANNO CHRI STI VITAE AUTHORIS MILLESIMO ET
 DVODECIMO SVPRA QVINGENTE
 SIMVM ET EODEM ANNO CIR
 CA NATALEM DOMINICE
 DE PVRISSIMA VIR-
 GINE NATIVITA
 TIS DIEM EX OF FICINA HEN-RICI STE-
 PHANI E-
 MISSVM.
 *.
 DECEMB.XV.
 I 5 I 2

This is the colophon in Lefèvre's second edition:¹²

HOC OPVS ILLVSTRATORE CHRISTO QVI LVCET
 VBIQUE ETSI NON CAPITVR: ABSOLVTVM FVIT
 IN COENOBIO SANCTI GERMANI IVXTA PARI
 SIOS ANNO CHRISTI VITAE AUTHORIS
 QVINGENTESIMO ET DVODECIMO
 SVPRA MILLESIMVM ET EODEM ANNO CIRCA NATALEM DOMI
 NICAE DE PVRISSIMA VIR
 GINE NATIVITATIS DIEM
 EX OFFICINA HEN
 RICI STEPHANI
 EMISSVM DEINDE
 ANNO
 .M.
 .D.
 XV.

The similarity between these two colophons is remarkable. The difference between anno ... millesimo et duodecimo supra quingentesimum

and

anno ... quingentesimo et duodecimo supra millesimum is negligible. Up to and including the word "emissum" the type-setter of the second edition adopted the colophon of the first edition almost exactly. After the word "emissum", the number XV is the only element common to the two ¹² id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV ..., Paris, 1516/7, f° 258 r°.

colophons. Presumably the type-setter was somewhat inattentive in setting this passage and either took the figure XV over from the 1512 colophon where it signified the fifteenth of December, into the date of the 1516/7 edition where it became the year date, or he merely failed to put a 'T' or 'II' after 'XV', which resulted in MDXV instead of MDXVI or MDXVII.

A SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN ERASMUS AND LEFEVRE D'ETAPLES

16th-Century Sources except Erasmus

- Correspondance des réformateurs de langue française*, ed. A.L. Herminjard, 9 vols., Geneva/Paris, 1866–1897; reprint Nieuwkoop, 1966.
- Die Amerbachkorrespondenz*, ed. A. Hartmann, 6 vols., Basel, 1942–1967.
- Johann Reuchlins Briefwechsel*, ed. L. Gciger, Tübingen, 1875.
- Briefwechsel des Beatus Rhenanus*,edd. A. Horawitz and Karl Hartfelder, Leipzig, 1886.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Le Nouveau Testament. Facsimile de la première édition Simon de Colines 1523, ed. and intr. M.A. Screech, I–II, Paris/The Hague, 1970.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Quincuplex psalterium. Facsimile de l'édition de 1513, Geneva, 1979 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 170).
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, [S. Pauli epistolae XIV ex Vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis], Paris, 1512; reprint Stuttgart, 1978.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, [S. Pauli epistolae XIV ex Vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis], Paris, 1515 [real date of publication 1516 or 1517].
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Epistole diui Pauli apostoli cum commentariis preclarissimi viri Iacobi Fabri Stapulensis, Paris, 1517.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Epistolae diui Pauli apostoli, cum commentariis praeclarissimi viri Iacobi Fabri Stapulensis, Paris, 1531.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Iacobi Fabri Stapulensis in omneis D. Pauli epistolas commentariorum libri XIII ..., Cologne, 1531.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Commentarii initiatorii in quattuor euangelia ..., Cologne, 1541.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, 1509; Paris, 1513²; Rouen, 1515³.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Commentarii in epistolas catholicas, Basel, 1527.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, et ses disciples, Epistres et évangiles pour les cinquante et deux dimanches de l'an. Texte de l'édition Pierre de Vingle. Édition critique avec introduction et notes par G. Bedouelle et F. Giaccone, Leiden, 1976.
- J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, et ses disciples, Epistres et évangiles pour les cinquante et deux dimanches de l'an. Facsimile de la première édition Simon de Bois, avec introduction, note bibliographique et appendices par M.A. Screech, Geneva, 1964.
- G. Bedouelle and F. Giaccone, Une lettre de Gilles de Viterbe (1469–1532) à Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples (c. 1460–1536) au sujet de l'affaire Reuchlin, Bibliothèque d'Humanisme et Renaissance 36 (1974), pp. 335–345.
- Agostino Giustiniani, Psalterium Hebraicum, Graecum, Arabicum et Chaldaicum cum tribus Latinis interpretationibus et glossis, s.l. [Genoa], 1516.

Literature on the Controversy between Erasmus and Lefèvre d'Etaples

- W.J. Alberts, Moderne Devotie, Bussum, 1969 (Fibulareeks 48).
- J.W. Aldridge, The Hermeneutic of Erasmus, Zürich, 1966 (Basel Studies of Theology 2).
- P.S. Allen, The Young Erasmus, in: edd. E. His et al., Gedenkschrift zum 400. Todestage des Erasmus von Rotterdam, Basel, 1936, pp. 25–33.
- P.S. Allen, Erasmus and the Oxford Reformers, in: edd. F. Kossman et al., Voordrachten gehouden ter herdenking van den sterfdag van Erasmus op 10 en 11 juli 1936 te Rotterdam, The Hague, 1936, pp. 132–154.
- P.S. Allen, H.M. Allen, H.W. Garrod, edd., Opus epistolarum Des. Erasmi Roterodami, vols. 1–12, Oxford, 1906–1958.
- C. Asso, La teologia e la grammatica. La controversia tra Erasmo ed Edward Lee, Florence, 1993 (Studi e testi per la storia religiosa del cinquecento 4).

- A. Auer, Die volkommene Frömmigkeit des Christen. Nach dem Enchiridion Militis Christiani des Erasmus von Rotterdam, Düsseldorf, 1954.
- C. Augustijn, Erasmus, Baarn, 1986. Review by H.J. de Jonge, in: NAK 66 (1986), pp. 253–256.
- C. Augustijn, Erasmus en de Moderne Devotie, in: edd. T. Bangs et al., De doorwerking van de Moderne Devotie: Windesheim 1387–1987, Hilversum, 1988, pp. 71–80.
- C. Augustijn, The Ecclesiology of Erasmus, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, II, Leiden, 1969, pp. 135–155.
- C. Augustijn, Erasmus en de Reformatie. Een onderzoek naar de houding die Erasmus ten opzichte van de Reformatie heeft aangenomen, Amsterdam, 1962.
- C. Augustijn, Het probleem van de initia Erasmi, in: Bijdragen, tijdschrift voor filosofie en theologie 30 (1969), pp. 380–395.
- S. Axters, De Moderne Devotie 1380–1550, in: ed. id., Geschiedenis van de vroomheid in de Nederlanden III, Antwerp, 1956.
- R.H. Bainton, Erasmus of Christendom, New York, 1969.
- R.H. Bainton, Erasmus and the "Wesen des Christentums" in: edd. G. Müller and W. Zeller, Glaube, Geist und Geschichte. Festschrift für Ernst Benz, Leiden, 1967, pp. 200–206.
- R.H. Bainton, Changing Ideas and Ideals in the Sixteenth Century, in: id., Early and Medieval Christianity, Boston/London, 1962, pp. 154–182.
- J.N. Bakhuis van den Brink, Erasme: humanisme et "philosophia Christiana", in: Mededelingen van het Nederlands Instituut te Rome 36 (1974), pp. 89–100.
- J. Baruzi, Introduction d'un cours sur les diverses interprétations de S. Paul au 16^e siècle et les résultats de l'exégèse contemporaine, in: Revue de théologie et de philosophie 17 (1929), pp. 81–102.
- G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Etaples et l'intelligence des écritures, Geneva, 1976 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 62).
- G. Bedouelle, Le Quincuplex Psalterium de Lefèvre d'Etaples, un guide de lecture, Geneva, 1979 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 17).
- G. Bedouelle, La lecture christologique du psautier dans le Quincuplex Psalterium de Lefèvre d'Etaples, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 133–143.
- G. Bedouelle, Le débat catholique sur la traduction de la Bible en langue vulgaire. Appendice: La lecture de la Bible en langue vivante au XVI^e siècle: chronologie de quelques textes et faits marquants (par Guy Bedouelle et Bernard Roussel), in: edd. I. Backus and F. Higman, Théorie et pratique de l'exégèse. Actes du troisième colloque international sur l'histoire de l'exégèse biblique au XVI^e siècle (Genève, 31 août – 2 septembre 1988), Geneva, 1990 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 43), pp. 39–76.
- C. Béné, Erasme et St. Augustin ou l'influence de Saint Augustin sur l'humanisme d'Erasmus, Geneva, 1969 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 103).
- C. Béné, L'exégèse des Psaumes chez Erasme, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 118–132.
- J.H. Bentley, Erasmus' Annotations in Novum Testamentum and the Textual Criticism of the Gospels, in: ARG 67 (1976), pp. 33–53.
- J.H. Bentley, Humanists and Holy Writ. New Testament Scholarship in the Renaissance, Princeton/New Jersey, 1983.
- J.H. Bentley, New Testament Scholarship at Louvain in the Early Sixteenth Century, in: Studies in Medieval and Renaissance History 2 (1979), pp. 51–79.
- S. Berger, La Bible au XVI^e siècle, Paris, 1879; reprint Geneva, 1969.

- J. Bernaud, Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples, son influence sur les origines de la Réformation française, Cahors, 1900.
- J. Bernaud, Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples in: Etudes théologiques et religieuses 11 (1936), pp. 3–29, 98–129, 135–159, 203–237.
- A. Bludau, Die beiden ersten Erasmus-Ausgaben des Neuen Testaments und ihre Gegner, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1902 (Biblische Studien VII, 5).
- P.G. Bietenholz and T.B. Deutscher, edd., Contemporaries of Erasmus. A Biographical Register of the Renaissance and Reformation I–III, Toronto/Buffalo/London, 1985–1987.
- J. Boisset, Le christianisme d'Erasme dans l'Enchiridion militis christiani, in: ed. J.-C. Margolin, Colloquia Erasmiana Turonensis, II. Douzième stage international d'études humanistes, Tours, 1969, Paris, 1972 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 24), pp. 647–656.
- R.R. Bolgar, ed., Classical Influences on European Culture A.D. 1500–1700, Cambridge, 1976.
- L. Bouyer, Autour d'Erasme. Etudes sur le christianisme des humanistes catholiques, Paris, 1955.
- B. Bradshaw, The Christian Humanism of Erasmus, in: JTS 33 (1982), pp. 411–447.
- A.J. Brown, The Date of Erasmus' Latin Translation of the New Testament, in: Transactions of the Cambridge Bibliographical Society 8 (1984), pp. 351–380.
- C.C. de Bruin, E. Persoons and A.G. Weiler, Geert Grote en de Moderne Devotie, Zutphen, 1984.
- J.W. Brush, Lefèvre d'Etaples. Three Phases in his Life and Work in: ed. F.H. Littell, Reformation Studies. Essays in Honor of Roland H. Bainton, Richmond, 1962, pp. 117–128.
- R. Cameton, The Attack on the Biblical Works of Lefèvre d'Etaples 1514–1521, in: CH 38 (1969), pp. 9–24.
- G. Chantraine, Erasme, lecteur des psaumes, in: ed. J.-C. Margolin, Colloquia Erasmiana Turonensis, II. Douzième stage international d'études humanistes, Tours, 1969, Paris, 1972 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 24), pp. 691–712.
- G. Chantraine, Mystère et philosophie du Christ selon Erasme, Namur, 1971.
- G. Chantraine, L'Apologia ad Latomum, deux conceptions de la théologie, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, II, Leiden, 1969, pp. 51–75.
- J. Chomarat, Grammaire et rhétorique chez Erasme, I–II, Paris, 1981.
- J. Chomarat, Les Annotations de Valla, celles d'Erasme et la grammaire, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 202–228.
- C. Christ-von Wedel, Das Nichtwissen bei Erasmus von Rotterdam, Basel/Frankfurt a.M., 1981.
- Collected Works of Erasmus*, Toronto/Buffalo/London, 1974–.
- A. Combes, Jean Gerson, commentateur Dionysien, les Notulae super quaedam verba Dionysii de Caelesti Hierarchia. Texte inédit, démonstration de son authenticité. Appendices historiques, pour l'histoire des courants doctrinaux à l'université de Paris à la fin du XIV^e siècle, Paris, 1973².
- J. Coppens, Erasme, exégète et théologien, in: Ephemerides Theologicae Lovanienses 44 (1986), pp. 191–204.
- J. Coppens, Erasmus' laatste bijdragen tot de hereniging der christenen, Brussel, 1962. Mededelingen van de Koninklijke Vlaamse Academie voor Wetenschappen, Letteren en Schone Kunsten van België. Klasse der Letteren 24, 3.
- J. Coppens, Eustachius van Zichem en zijn strijdschrift tegen Erasmus, Amsterdam, London, 1974. Mededelingen der Koninklijke Nederlandse Akademie van Wetenschappen, afd. Letterkunde, N.S. 37, 2.

- R. Crahay, Les censeurs louvanistes d'Erasme, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 221–249.
- R. Crahay, Recherches sur le Compendium Vitae attribué à Erasme, in: HeR 6 (1939), pp. 7–19, 135–153.
- J. Dagens, Humanisme et évangélisme chez Lefèvre d'Etaples, in: A. Renaudet et al., Courants religieux et humanisme à la fin du XV^e et au début du XVI^e siècle. Colloque de Strasbourg, 9–11 May 1957, Paris, 1959, pp. 121–134.
- W.F. Dankbaar, Op de grens der reformatie: de rechtvaardigingsleer van Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples, in: ed. id., Hervormers en Humanisten, Amsterdam, 1978, pp. 47–65.
- C. Dolfen, Die Stellung des Erasmus von Rotterdam zur scholastischen Methode, Münster, 1936.
- S. Dresden, Erasme et la notion de humanitas, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, II, Leiden, 1969, pp. 527–545.
- K. Esser, Die religiösen Bewegungen des Hochmittelalters und Franziskus von Assisi, in: edd. E. Iserloh and P. Manns, Glaube und Geschichte. Festgabe J. Lortz, II, Baden-Baden, 1958, pp. 287–315.
- J. Etienne, Spiritualisme éasmien et les théologiens louvanistes. Un changement de problématique au début du XVI^e siècle, Louvain, 1956.
- J. Etienne, La médiation des Ecritures selon Erasme, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, II, Leiden, 1969, pp. 3–11.
- J.K. Farge, Orthodoxy and Reform in Early Reformation France. The Faculty of Theology in Paris 1500–1543, Leiden, 1985 (Studies in Medieval and Reformation Thought 32).
- H. Feld, Die Anfänge der modernen biblischen Hermeneutik in der spätmittelalterlichen Theologie, Wiesbaden, 1977.
- H. Feld, Der Humanistenstreit um Hebräer 2:7 (Psalm 8:6), in: ARG 61 (1970), pp. 5–35.
- W.K. Ferguson, Renaissance Tendencies in the Religious Thought of Erasmus, in: JHI 15 (1954), pp. 499–508.
- W.K. Ferguson, ed., Erasmi opuscula. A Supplement to the Opera Omnia, The Hague, 1933.
- J. Fokke, Christus verae pacis auctor et unicus scopus. Erasmus and Origen, Louvain, 1977.
- J.A. Froude, Life and Letters of Erasmus, London, 1894.
- A.J. Gail, Erasmus von Rotterdam, Reinbek bei Hamburg, 1990².
- M.-M. de la Garanderie, La correspondance d'Erasme et de Guillaume Budé, Paris, 1967.
- M.-M. de la Garanderie, Les relations d'Erasme avec Paris aux temps de son séjour aux Pays-Bas méridionaux (1516–1521), in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 29–53.
- G. Gebhardt, Die Stellung des Erasmus von Rotterdam zur Römischen Kirche, Frankfurt am Main, 1966.
- H.A.E. van Gelder, The Two Reformations in the 16th Century. A Study of the Religious Aspects and Consequences of Renaissance and Humanism, The Hague, 1964².
- H.J. Genthe, Kleine Geschichte der neutestamentlichen Wissenschaft, Göttingen, 1977.
- A. Gerlo and P. Foriers, edd., La correspondance d'Erasme, vols. 1–12, Brussels, 1967–1984.
- M.P. Gilmore, De modis disputandi: The Apologetic Works of Erasmus, in: edd. J.G. Rowe and W.H. Stockdale, Florilegium Historiale. Essays presented to W.K. Ferguson, Toronto, 1971, pp. 62–88.
- M.P. Gilmore, Les limites de la tolérance dans l'œuvre polémique d'Erasme, in: ed. J.-C. Margolin, Colloquia Erasmiana Turonensis, II. Douzième stage international d'études humanistes, Tours, 1969, Paris, 1972 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 24), pp. 713–736.
- M.P. Gilmore, Erasmus and Alberto Pio, Prince of Capri, in: edd. T.K. Rabb and J.E. Seigel, Action and Conviction in Early Modern Europe. Essays in Memory of E.H. Harbison, Princeton, 1969, pp. 229–318.
- M.P. Gilmore, The World of Humanism, New York, 1952.

- A. Godin, Erasme, lecteur d'Origène, Geneva, 1982. Review by H.J. de Jonge in: Vig. christ. 40 (1986), pp. 193–198.
- A. Godin, Fonction d'Origène dans la pratique exégétique d'Erasme: les Annotations sur l'épître aux Romains, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international, tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 17–44.
- A. Godin, Notes sur Bucer et Erasme, commentateurs du Notre Père, in: edd. I. Backus and F. Higman, Théorie et pratique de l'exégèse. Actes du troisième colloque international sur l'histoire de l'exégèse biblique au XVI^e siècle (Genève, 31 août – 2 septembre 1988), Geneva, 1990 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 43), pp. 303–318.
- M. Gogacz, Mystische Erfahrung im Hinblick auf verschiedene Arten des Sehen Gottes und das Werk De visione Dei des Nikolaus von Kues, in: ed. R. Haubst, Das Sehen Gottes nach Nikolaus von Kues, Trier, 1989 (Mitteilungen und Forschungsbeiträge der Cusanusgesellschaft 18), pp. 271–275.
- D. Gorce, La patristique dans la réforme d'Erasme, in: edd. E. Iserloh and P. Manns, Reformation, Schicksal und Auftrag. Festgabe Joseph Lortz, I, Baden-Baden 1958, pp. 233–276.
- K.H. Graf, Essai sur la vie et les écrits de Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples, Strasbourg, 1842; reprint Geneva, 1970.
- K.H. Graf, Jacobus Faber Stapulensis: ein Beitrag zur Geschichte der Reformation in Frankreich, in: Zeitschrift für die historische Theologie 21 (1852), pp. 3–86, 165–237.
- R.H. Graham, Erasmus and Stunica: A Chapter in the History of New Testament Scholarship, in: Erasmus of Rotterdam Society Yearbook 10 (1990), pp. 9–60.
- H.R. Guggisberg, Basel in the Sixteenth Century, St. Louis, Missouri, 1982.
- J. Hadot, Le Nouveau Testament d'Erasme in: M. Bataillon et al., Colloquium Erasmianum. Actes du Colloque International réuni à Mons du 26 au 29 octobre 1967 à l'occasion du cinquième centenaire de la naissance d'Erasme, Mons, 1968, pp. 59–67.
- F. Vander Haeghen and M.-T. Lenger, Bibliotheca Belgica. Bibliographie générale des Pays-Bas, vols. 1–7, Brussels, 1964–1975.
- K. Hagen, Hebrews Commenting from Erasmus to Bèze 1516–1598, Tübingen, 1981.
- K. Hagen, What did the Term 'Commentarius' mean to Sixteenth-Century Theologians?, in: edd. I. Backus and F. Higman, Théorie et pratique de l'exégèse. Actes du troisième colloque international sur l'histoire de l'exégèse biblique au XVI^e siècle (Genève, 31 août – 2 septembre 1988), Geneva, 1990 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 43), pp. 13–38.
- F. Hahn, Faber Stapulensis und Luther, in: ZKG 3 (1938), pp. 356–432.
- H.J. Hak, De humanistische waardering der Heilige Schrift, in het bijzonder bij M. Ficino en Faber Stapulensis, in: NAK 29 (1937), pp. 77–90.
- J.R. Hale, ed., French Humanism 1470–1600, Glasgow, 1969.
- L.-E. Halkin, Erasme et l'humanisme chrétien, Paris, 1969.
- L.-E. Halkin, Erasme parmi nous, Paris, 1987.
- L.-E. Halkin, Matthias Schürer imprimeur d'Erasme, in: edd. W.H.R. Koops et al., Boekbibliotheek en geesteswetenschappen. Festschrift C. Reedijk, Hilversum, 1986, pp. 124–131.
- L.-E. Halkin, Une édition rarissime des apologies d'Erasme en 1521, in: BHR 45 (1983), pp. 343–348.
- L.-E. Halkin, La "Devotio moderna" et les origines de la Réforme aux Pays-Bas, in: A. Renaudet et al., Courants religieux et humanisme à la fin du XV^e et au début du XVI^e siècle. Colloque de Strasbourg, 9–11 May 1957, Paris, 1959, pp. 45–51.
- E.H. Harbison, The Christian Scholar in the Age of the Reformation, New York, 1936.
- R. Haubst, Die Christologie des Nicholas von Kues, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1956.

- C.L. Heesakkers, Argumentatio a persona in Erasmus' Second Apology against Alberto Pio, in: edd. J. Sperna Weiland and W.Th.M. Frijhoff, Erasmus of Rotterdam. The Man and the Scholar. Proceedings of the Symposium held at the Erasmus University Rotterdam, 9–11 November 1986, Leiden, 1988, pp. 79–87.
- H. Heller, Nicholas of Cusa and Early French Evangelism, in: ARG 63 (1972), pp. 6–21.
- H. Heller, The Evangelism of Lefèvre d'Étaples in: Studies in the Renaissance 19 (1972), pp. 42–77.
- O. Hendriks, Erasmus en Leuven, Bussum, 1946.
- M. Hoffmann, Erkenntnis und Verwirklichung der wahren Theologie nach Erasmus von Rotterdam, Tübingen, 1972 (Beiträge zur Historischen Theologie 44).
- H. Holborn, The Christian Renaissance, New York, 1924.
- H. Holborn, Erasmus and the Oxford Reformers, in: NAK 15 (1932), pp. 69–92, 97–134.
- H. Holborn and A. Holborn, edd., Des Erasmus Roterodamus. Ausgewählte Werke: Enchiridion militis christiani; In Nouum Testamentum praefationes: Paraclesis, Methodus, Apologia; Ratio seu Methodus compendio perueniendi ad veram theologiam, München, 1933; reprint 1964.
- H. Holeczek, Humanistische Bibelphilologie als Reformproblem bei Erasmus von Rotterdam, Thomas More und William Tyndale, Leiden, 1975 (Studies in the History of Christian Thought 9).
- H. Holeczek, ed., Erasmus von Rotterdam, Novum Instrumentum, Faksimile-Neudruck [der Ausgabe] Basel 1516 mit einer historischen, textkritischen und bibliographischen Einleitung, Stuttgart/Bad Cannstatt, 1986. Review by H.J. de Jonge, in: NAK 66 (1986), pp. 256–257.
- P.E. Hughes, Lefèvre Pioneer of Ecclesiastical Renewal in France, Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1984. Review by G. Bedouelle, in: RQ 39 (1986), pp. 93–95.
- J. Huijzinga, Erasmus, Haarlem, 1924; Rotterdam, 1988⁹.
- F. Husner, Die Bibliothek des Erasmus, in: edd. E. His et al., Gedenkschrift zum 400. Todestage des Erasmus von Rotterdam, Basel, 1936, pp. 228–259.
- A. Hyma, Erasmus and the Oxford Reformers, 1493–1503, in: edd. F. Kossmann et al., Voordrachten gehouden ter herdenking van den sterfdag van Erasmus op 10 en 11 juli 1936 te Rotterdam, The Hague, 1936, pp. 132–154.
- E.F. Jacob, Cusanus the Theologian, in: Bulletin of the John Rylands Library, Manchester 21 (1937), pp. 406–424.
- C.A.L. Jarrot, Erasmus' Biblical Humanism, in: Studies in the Renaissance 17 (1970), pp. 119–152.
- H.J. de Jonge, The Relationship of Erasmus' Translation of the New Testament to that of the Pauline Epistles by Lefèvre d'Étaples, in: Erasmus in English 15 (1987/88), pp. 2–7.
- H.J. de Jonge, The Date and Purpose of Erasmus' castigatio Novi Testamenti, in: edd. A.C. Dionisotti, A. Grafton, J. Kräye, The Uses of Greek and Latin. Historical Essays, London, 1988, pp. 97–110.
- H.J. de Jonge, Aantekeningen van Erasmus in een exemplaar van zijn Apologiae omnes, in: NAK 58 (1978), pp. 176–189.
- H.J. de Jonge, Novum Testamentum a nobis versum: the Essence of Erasmus' Edition of the New Testament, in: JTS 35 (1984), pp. 394–413.
- H.J. de Jonge, Wann ist Erasmus' Übersetzung des Neuen Testaments entstanden?, in: edd. J. Sperna Weiland and W.Th.M. Frijhoff, Erasmus of Rotterdam. The Man and the Scholar. Proceedings of the Symposium held at the Erasmus University Rotterdam, 9–11 November 1986, Leiden, 1988, pp. 151–157.
- H.J. de Jonge, The Character of Erasmus' Translation of the New Testament as Reflected in His Translation of Hebrews 9, in: Journal of Medieval and Renaissance Studies 14 (1984), pp. 81–87.

- H. de Jongh, L'ancienne faculté de théologie de Louvain au premier siècle de son existence 1432–1540: ses débuts, son organisation, son enseignement, sa lutte contre Erasme et Luther, Louvain, 1911; reprint Utrecht, 1980.
- P.I. Kaufman, Augustinian Piety and Catholic Reform. Augustine, Colet and Erasmus, Macon, 1982.
- W. Köhler, Erasmus von Rotterdam als religiöse Persönlichkeit, in: ed. F. Kossmann et al., Voordrachten gehouden ter herdenking van den sterfdag van Erasmus op 10 en 11 juli 1936 te Rotterdam, The Hague, 1936, pp. 213–225.
- E.-W. Kohls, Die Theologie des Erasmus I–II, Basel, 1966.
- F. Krüger, Humanistische Evangelienauslegung, Tübingen, 1986.
- A. Launc, La traduction de l'Ancien Testament de Lefèvre d'Étaples, Le Cateau, 1895.
- A. Laune, Lefèvre d'Étaples et la traduction française de la Bible, in: RHR 32 (1895), pp. 56–72.
- A.H.T. Levi, The Neoplatonist Calculus. The Exploitation of Neoplatonist Themes in French Renaissance Literature, in: ed. A.H.T. Levi, Humanism in France at the End of the Middle Ages and in the Early Renaissance, Manchester/New York, 1970, pp. 229–248.
- J. Lindeboom, Erasmus, onderzoek naar zijne theologie en zijn godsdienstig gemoedsbestaan, Leiden, 1909.
- J. Lindeboom, Het Bijbelsch Humanisme in Nederland, Leiden, 1913.
- W. Lourdaux, Dévotion moderne et humanisme chrétien, in: edd. G. Verbeke and J. IJsewijn, The Late Middle Ages and the Dawn of Humanism outside Italy. Proceedings of the International Conference Louvain May 11–13, 1970, Louvain/The Hague, 1972, pp. 57–77 (Mediaevalia Lovaniensia, series I, studia I).
- F. De Maeseneer, De methode van de theologie volgens Erasmus, Mechelen, 1963.
- M. Mann Phillips, Erasme et les débuts de la réforme française (1517–1536), Paris, 1934.
- M. Mann Phillips, Erasmus and the Northern Renaissance, London, 1959².
- M. Mann Phillips, La "Philosophia Christi" reflétée dans les "Adages" d'Erasme, in: A. Renaudet et al., Courants religieux et humanisme à la fin du XV^e et au début du XVI^e siècle. Colloque de Strasbourg, 9–11 May 1957, Paris, 1959, pp. 53–71.
- R. Marcel, Enchiridion militis christiani, sa genèse et sa doctrine, son succès et ses vicissitudes, in: ed. J.-C. Margolin, Colloquia Erasmiana Turonensis, II. Douzième stage international d'études humanistes, Tours, 1969, Paris, 1972 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 24), pp. 613–645.
- J.-C. Margolin, Recherches érasmiennes, Geneva, 1969.
- J.-C. Margolin, Duns Scot et Erasme in: ed. C. Bérubé, Regnum hominis et regnum Dei. Acta quarti congressus scotisti internationalis, Rome, 1978, pp. 89–112.
- J.-C. Margolin, Interprétation d'un passage de l'Enchiridion militis christiani, canon quintus, in: ed. C. Reedijk, Actes du congrès Erasme, Rotterdam, 27–29 octobre 1969, Amsterdam/London, 1971, pp. 99–115.
- J.-P. Massaut, Critique et tradition à la veille de la réforme en France, Paris, 1974 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 31).
- J.-P. Massaut, Mystique rhénane et humanisme chrétien d'Eckhart à Erasme. Continuité, convergence ou rupture?, in: edd. G. Verbeke and J. IJsewijn, The Late Middle Ages and the Dawn of Humanism outside Italy. Proceedings of the International Conference Louvain May 11–13, 1970, Louvain/The Hague, 1972, pp. 112–130 (Mediaevalia Lovaniensia, series I, studia I).
- J.-P. Massaut, Lefèvre d'Étaples et l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle, Revue d'histoire ecclésiastique 78 (1983), pp. 73–78.
- J.-P. Massaut, Erasme et Saint Thomas in: ed. J.-C. Margolin, Colloquia Erasmiana Turonensis, II. Douzième stage international d'études humanistes, Tours, 1969, Paris, 1972 (De Pétrarque à Descartes 24), pp. 581–612.

- J.-P. Massaut, Histoire et allégorie dans les évangiles d'après Lefèvre d'Etaples et Clichtove, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenckel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international, tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Études de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 186–201.
- C. Mattheeussen, "Religio" und "Litterae" im Menschenideal des Erasmus, in: ed. J. Coppejns, Scrinium Erasmianum, I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 351–374.
- P. Mesnard, Erasme ou le christianisme critique, Paris, 1969.
- P. Mesnard, Humanisme et théologie dans la controverse entre Erasme et Dorpius, Filosofia 14 (1963), pp. 885–900.
- P. Mestwerdt, Die Anfänge des Erasmus. Humanismus und 'Devotio Moderna', Leipzig, 1917 (Studien zur Kultur und Geschichte der Reformation 2).
- J. Meyendorff, Le Christ dans la théologie byzantine, Paris, 1969 (Bibliothèque oecuménique 2).
- A. Michel, Idiomes (communication des), in: DTG 7, 1, Paris, 1927, col. 595–602.
- P. Moffitt Watts, Nicolaus Cusanus. A Fifteenth-Century Vision of Man, Leiden, 1982 (Studies in the History of Christian Thought 30).
- E. Monnerjahn, Zum Begriff der theologischen Unklarheit im Humanismus, in: edd. E. Iserloh and P. Manns, Reformation, Schicksal und Auftrag. Festgabe J. Lortz, I, Baden-Baden, 1958, pp. 277–304.
- C.G. Nauert, The Clash of Humanists and Scholastics: an Approach to Prereformation Controversies, in: Sixteenth Century Journal 4 (1973), pp. 1–18.
- M.A. Nauwelaerts, Erasme à Louvain. Ephémérides d'un séjour de 1517 à 1521, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 3–24.
- M.A. Nauwelaerts, Erasmus, Bussum, 1969 (Fibulareeks 46).
- H.A. Oberman, Forerunners of the Reformation. The Shape of Late Medieval Thought Illustrated by Key Documents, London, 1967.
- H.A. Oberman and T.A. Brady, Itinerarium Italicum. The Profile of the Italian Renaissance in the Mirror of Its European Transformations, Leiden, 1975 (Studies in Medieval and Reformation Thought 14).
- M. O'Rourke Boyle, Erasmus on Language and Method in Theology, Toronto/Buffalo, 1977 (Erasmus Studies 2).
- M. O'Rourke Boyle, Erasmus and the 'Modern' Question: Was He Semi-Pelagian?, in: ARG 75 (1984), pp. 59–77.
- A.A. van Otterloo, Johannes Ruysbroeck. Een bijdrage tot de kennis van de ontwikkelingsgang der mystiek, Amsterdam, 1874.
- J.H. Overfield, A New Look at the Reuchlin Affair, in: ed. H.L. Adelson, Studies in Medieval and Renaissance History 8, Lincoln, 1971, pp. 165–207.
- R. Padberg, Erasmus als Katechet, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1956.
- J.B. Payne, Erasmus and Lefèvre d'Etaples as Interpreters of Paul, in: ARG 65 (1974), pp. 54–83.
- J.B. Payne, Toward the Hermeneutics of Erasmus, in: ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum, II, Leiden, 1969, pp. 13–49.
- R. Pfeiffer, Humanitas Erasmiana, Leipzig/Berlin, 1931 (Studien der Bibliothek Warburg 22).
- F. Pijper, Erasmus en de Nederlandsche Reformatie, Handelingen en Meedenedelingen van de Maatschappij der Nederlandsche Letterkunde, 1906–1907, Leiden, 1907, pp. 5–31.
- J.-B. Pineau, Erasme, sa pensée religieuse, Paris, 1924.
- R.R. Post, The Modern Devotion. Confrontation with Reformation and Humanism, Leiden, 1968 (Studies in Medieval and Reformation Thought 3).
- P. Quiévreux, La traduction du Nouveau Testament de Lefèvre d'Etaples, Le Cateau, 1894.

- A. Rabil Jr., Erasmus and the New Testament: The Mind of a Christian Humanist, San Antonio, 1972.
- A. Rabil Jr., Erasmus's Paraphrases of the New Testament, in: ed. R.L. DeMolen, Essays on the Works of Erasmus, New Haven/London, 1978, pp. 145–161.
- A. Reeve, ed., M.A. Screech, intr., Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament. The Gospels. Facsimile of the Final Latin Text (1535) with All Earlier Variants (1516, 1519, 1522 and 1527), London, 1986. Review by H.J. de Jonge in: Novum Testamentum 29 (1987), pp. 382–383.
- A. Reeve and M.A. Screech, edd., Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament. Acts, Romans, I and II Corinthians. Facsimile of the Final Latin Text with All Earlier Variants, Leiden, 1990 (Studies in the History of Christian Thought 42). Review by H.J. de Jonge in: NAK 71 (1991), pp. III–II3.
- A. Reeve, ed., M.A. Screech, intr., Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament. Galatians to the Apocalypse. Facsimile of the Final Latin Text with All Earlier Variants, Leiden, 1993 (Studies in the History of Christian Thought 52).
- K. Reinhardt, Christus, die "absolute Mitte" als der Mittler zu Gotteskindschaft, in: ed. R. Haubst, Das Sehen Gottes des Nikolaus von Kues, Trier, 1989 (Mitteilungen und Forschungsbeiträge der Cusanusgesellschaft 18), pp. 196–226.
- A. Renaudet, Préréforme et humanisme à Paris pendant les premières guerres d'Italie (1494–1517), Paris, 1916. (Bibliothèque de l'Institut français de Florence 1, 4).
- A. Renaudet, Un problème historique: la pensée religieuse de J. Lefèvre d'Etaples, in: ed. id., Humanisme et Renaissance, Geneva, 1958 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 30), pp. 201–216.
- A. Renaudet, Paris de 1494 à 1517: église et université, réformes religieuses, culture et critique humaniste, in: id. et al., Courants religieux et humanisme à la fin du XV^e et au début du XVI^e siècle. Colloque de Strasbourg, 9–11 May 1957, Paris, 1959, pp. 5–24.
- A. Renaudet, Etudes érasmiennes (1521–1529), Paris, 1939.
- A. Renaudet, La critique érasmienne et l'humanisme français, in: ed. F. Kossmann et al., Voordrachten gehouden ter herdenking van den sterfdag van Erasmus op 10 en 11 juli 1936 te Rotterdam, The Hague, 1936, pp. 226–234.
- A. Renaudet, Erasme et l'Italie, Geneva, 1954 (Travaux d'humanisme et renaissance 15).
- A. Renaudet, Erasme. Sa pensée religieuse et son action d'après sa correspondance (1518–1521), Paris, 1926.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., The Prefatory Epistles of Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples and Related Texts, London/New York, 1972.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., The Humanist Idea of Christian Antiquity: Lefèvre d'Etaples and his Circle, in: Studies in the Renaissance 9 (1962), pp. 126–160; reprinted in: ed., J.R. Hale, French Humanism, 1470–1600, Glasgow, 1969, pp. 163–180.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples and the Medieval Christian Mystics, in: edd. J.G. Rowe and W.H. Stockdale, Florilegium Historiale. Essays Presented to Wallace K. Ferguson, Toronto, 1971, pp. 89–124.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., Humanist Aristotelism in France: Jacques Lefèvre d'Etaples and his Circle, in: ed. A.H.T. Levi, Humanism in France at the End of the Middle Ages and in the Early Renaissance, Manchester/New York, 1970, pp. 132–149.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., Erasmus and the Religious Tradition 1495–1499, in: JHI 11 (1950), pp. 387–411.
- E.F. Rice, Jr., Saint Jerome in the Renaissance, Baltimore/London, 1985.
- E. Riggelbach, Die ältesten lateinischen Kommentare zum Hebräerbrief, Leipzig, 1907.
- G. Ritter, Die geschichtliche Bedeutung des deutschen Humanismus, in: HZ 127 (1923), pp. 393–453.
- R. Roques et al., Denys l'Aréopagite (le Pseudo-), in: DSAM III, col. 244–430.

- B. Roussel, Histoire de l'église et histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle, in: BHR 37 (1975), pp. 181–192.
- B. Roussel, Traducteurs de la Bible comme exégètes, in: edd. I. Backus and F. Higman, Théorie et pratique de l'exégèse. Actes du troisième colloque international sur l'histoire de l'exégèse biblique au XVI^e siècle (Genève, 31 août – 2 septembre 1988), Geneva, 1990 (Études de philologie et d'histoire 43), pp. 141–154.
- E. Rummel, Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament: from Philologist to Theologian, Toronto, 1986.
- E. Rummel, Erasmus and His Catholic Critics I (1515–1522); II (1523–1536), Nieuwkoop, 1989.
- E. Rummel, Nameless Critics in Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament, in: BHR 48 (1986) 41–57.
- E. Rummel, Probatī autores as Models of the Biblical Translator, in: edd. A. Dalzell et al., Acta conventus neo-latini Torontonensis. Proceedings of the Seventh International Congress of Neo-Latin Studies, Toronto 8 August to 13 August 1988, New York, 1991 (Medieval and Renaissance Texts and Studies 86), pp. 121–127.
- E. Rummel, Quoting Poetry instead of Scripture: Erasmus and Eucherius on Contemptus Mundi, in: BHR 45 (1983), pp. 503–509.
- H. de Sabatier-Plantier, Origines de la Réformation française: Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples, Paris, 1870.
- J.E. Sandys, A History of Classical Scholarship, vols. 1–3, Cambridge, 1903–1920; reprint New York/London, 1967.
- H. Schlingensiepen, Erasmus als Exeget, in: ZKG 48 (1929), pp. 16–57.
- O. Schottenloher, Erasmus im Ringen um die humanistische Bildungsform. Ein Beitrag zum Verständnis seiner geistigen Entwicklung, Münster i.W., 1933 (Reformationsgeschichtliche Studien und Texte 61).
- W. Schwarz, Principles and Problems of Biblical Translation. Some Reformation Controversies and Their Background, Cambridge, 1955.
- W. Schwarz, The History of Principles of Bible Translation in the Western World, in: Babel 9 (1963), pp. 5–22.
- M.A. Screech, Ecstasy and the Praise of Folly, London, 1980.
- E. Seeberg, Meister Eckhart, Tübingen, 1934 (Philosophie und Geschichte 50).
- F. Seehoim, The Oxford Reformers: Colet, Erasmus and More, London, 1929² (Everyman's Library 665).
- J.K. Sowards, The Two Lost Years of Erasmus. Summary, Review and Speculation, in: Studies in the Renaissance 9 (1962), pp. 161–186.
- K. Spiess, Der Gottesbegriff des J. Faber Stapulensis. Ein Beitrag zum Verständnis der religiösen Eigenart Johann Kalvins, Marburg, 1930.
- A. Stegman, Erasme et la France (1495–1520), in: M. Bataillon et al., Colloquium Erasmianum. Actes du colloque international réuni à Mons du 26 au 29 octobre 1967 à l'occasion du cinquième centenaire de la naissance d'Erasme, Mons, 1968, pp. 275–297.
- J.K. Steppe et al., Erasmus en Leuven, Tentoonstellingscatalogus, Leuven, Stedelijk Museum, 17 november–15 december 1969, second impression, Louvain, 1969.
- L.C. Stevens, A Reevaluation of Hellenism in the French Renaissance, in: J.R. Hale, ed., French Humanism 1470–1600, Glasgow, 1969, pp. 181–196.
- R. Stupperich, Die theologische Neuorientierung des Erasmus in der Ratio seu Methodus 1516/18 in: ed. C. Reedijk, Actes du congrès Erasme, Rotterdam 27–29 octobre 1969, Amsterdam/London, 1971, pp. 148–158.
- R. Stupperich, Das Enchiridion militis christiani des Erasmus von Rotterdam nach seiner Entstehung, seinem Sinn und Charakter, in: ARG 69 (1978), pp. 5–23.

- D.F.S. Thomson and H.C. Porter, Erasmus and Cambridge. The Cambridge Letters of Erasmus, Toronto, 1963.
- J.D. Tracy, Humanists among the Scholastics. Erasmus, More and Lefèvre d'Étaples on the Humanity of Christ, in: Erasmus of Rotterdam Society Yearbook 5 (1985), pp. 30–51.
- J.B. Trapp, Erasmus, Colet and More. The Early Tudor Humanists and Their Books, London, 1991.
- C. Trinkaus with H. Oberman, edd., The Pursuit of Holiness in Late Medieval and Renaissance Religion, Leiden, 1974 (Studies in Medieval and Reformation Thought 10).
- W. Ullman, Medieval Foundations of Renaissance Humanism, London, 1977.
- J.M. Victor, The Revival of Lullism at Paris, in: RQ 28 (1975), pp. 504–534.
- H. de Vocht, History of the Foundation and the Rise of the Collegium Trilingue Lovaniense, 1517–1550, I, Louvain, 1951 (Recueil de travaux d'histoire et de philologie, 3^e série, fasc. 42).
- R. Wackernagel, Humanismus und Reformation in Basel, Basel, 1934.
- R. Weier, Das Thema vom verborgenen Gott von Nikolaus von Kues zu Martin Luther, Münster, Westfalen, 1967.
- W. Welzig ed., Erasmus von Rotterdam, Ausgewählte Schriften, lateinisch und deutsch, vols. 1–8, Darmstadt, 1967–1980.
- G. Winkler, Das Psalmenargument des Erasmus im Streit um den freien Willen, in: edd. O. Fatio and P. Fraenkel, Histoire de l'exégèse au XVI^e siècle. Textes du colloque international, tenu à Genève en 1976, Geneva, 1978 (Etudes de philologie et d'histoire 34), pp. 95–117.
- G. Winkler, Erasmus von Rotterdam und die Einleitungsschriften zum Neuen Testament. Formale Strukturen und theologischer Sinn, Münster, Westfalen, 1974 (Reformationsgeschichtliche Studien und Texte 108).

LIST OF THE EDITIONS OF THE APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM FABRVM STAPVLENSEM up to and including 1540

1. ed. Lou., Theod. Martinus, inter 23 and 28 Aug. 1517 (NK 777). (=A).
2. ed. Argent., Matth. Schürer, inter 31 Oct. 1517 et mensem Febr. 1518). (=B).
3. ed. Bas., Ioa. Frobenius, mense Febr. 1518. (=C).
4. ed. Lou., Theod. Martinus, post mensem Febr. et ante 6 Mart. 1518 (NK 778). (=D).
- 5a. ed. Bas., Ioa. Frobenius, mense Nov. 1521 (in corpore quod inscribitur Apologiae). (=E).
- 5b. ed. Bas., Ioa. Frobenius, mense Febr. 1522 (in corpore quod inscribitur Apologiae omnes). (=E²).
6. ed. Bas. in tomo IX Omnium Operum, H. Frobenius et Nic. Episcopius, 1540. (=BAS).

CONSPECTVS SIGLORVM AND STEMMA EDITIONVM

- A: ed. pr., Louanii, Theodoricus Martinus, inter 23 et 28 Aug. 1517.
 Ac: tabula corrigerorum editioni principi A addita.
 B: Argentorati, Matthias Schürer, inter 31 Oct. 1517 et mensem Febr. 1518.
 C: Basileae, Ioa. Frobenius, Febr. 1518.
 D: Louanii, Theodoricus Martinus, post C (Febr. 1518) et ante 6 Mart. 1518.
 E¹: Basileae, Ioa. Frobenius, Nov. 1521 (in corpore quod inscribitur Apologiae).
 E²: Basileae, Ioa. Frobenius, Febr. 1522 (in corpore quod inscribitur Apologiae Omnes).
 M: Marginalia manu ipsius Erasmi scripta ad oram exemplaris Apologiarum eius Omnia ed. 1522 (E²) quod nunc in Bibliotheca vniuersitatis Cantabrigiensis asseruatur, signatum Adu. a. 5. 1.
 BAS: Basileae, H. Frobenius et Nic. Episcopius, 1540 (in tomo IX Omnia Operum Erasmi).

DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI APOLOGIA AD IACOBVM FABRVM STAPVLENSEM

- LB 17–18 Argumentum apologiae sequentis:
- In versu psalmi octaui: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quem Paulus in epistola ad Hebreos, capite secundo Christo accommodat, Erasmus annotarat ex Hieronymi sententia apud Hebreos esse non ab angelis, sed a Deo, caeterum Septuaginta vertisse ab angelis. Sed in vtraque lectione obstare scrupum, quod nec a Deo paululum videatur imminutus, qui mortale corpus assumpserit, nec ab angelis, quum plurimum intersit inter mortale et immortale, imo infra infimos homines fuisse diminutum incolumi semper Christi dignitate, qui plus malorum passus sit quam quisquam hominum. Eum autem scrupum tolli si paulominus,

³ versu Ps. 8, 6^a, according to the Psalterium Gallicanum incorporated in the Vulgate. This Latin version of the Psalter is Jerome's revision of an earlier Latin text, the Vetus Latina, which he compared with the LXX in Origen's Hexapla.

⁴ Paulus Erasmus was not at all convinced of the Pauline authorship of Hebr. His rejection of it was based on the epistle's late incorporation into the canon of the Western Church. Erasmus inferred this late acceptance from the fact that Ambrosiaster's commentary covered all the epistles of Paul except Hebr. Erasmus also quotes Jerome, who mentions that this letter was not generally incorporated into the canon of Scripture. Cf. this apologia, ll. 1989–2050 and ll. 2059–2099. In these two rather long passages, Erasmus quotes Church Fathers who were not convinced of the authority of Hebr. Cf. appendix III, ll. 56–59.

⁴ capite secundo Hebr. 2, 7^a.
Erasmus annotarat In the annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 in his Nov. Instr., Basel, 1516. This annotation is reproduced in appendix III.

^{4–5} ex Hieronymi sententia Hier. Comm. in Ps., CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

⁹ diminutum Throughout this apologia, Erasmus uses "diminuere" (to break) in the sense of "deminuere" (to lessen, to diminish, to lower).

incolumi ... dignitate Lefèvre held that Christ's dignity remaining intact implied the impossibility of his being placed below the angels. See appendix IV, ll. 77–136. In Erasmus' opinion, however, Christ had been placed below the angels as far as his human nature was concerned, not as far as his divine nature was concerned. See this apologia, ll. 782–792.

¹⁰ Eum ... tolli In Lefèvre's view $\betaορχι\tauο$ must be translated as 'a little', not as 'for a short time', to make it clear that, because of his dignity, Christ could not have been placed much below God (appendix IV, ll. 120–132). Moreover, Lefèvre was convinced that $\betaορχι\tauο$ in Greek and 'm^eat' in Hebrew never have a temporal sense (ibid., ll. 278–349). Erasmus countered this argument in the present apologia, see ll. 1486–1620.

quod Graecis est βροχύ τι, ad temporis modum referatur quo Christus versatus est in terris vsque ad resurrectionem, quemadmodum interpretantur omnes Graeci theologi.

¹⁵ Faber contendit non posse legi nisi a Deo, caeterum falsum et impium esse sermonem et Christo Deoque indignissimum, si quis dicat Deum ab angelis diminutum aut infra homines, quod tamen hactenus Latina pariter ac Graeca legit ecclesia et vniuersi vtriusque linguae doctores sequuntur, nisi quod vnu Hieronymus annotauit a Deo legi Hebraeis, licet non improbans alteram lectionem.

^{LB 17} ²⁰ Desiderius Erasmus Roterodamus Iacobo Fabro Stapulensi insigni philosopho salutem dicit.

Quum essendum concenderem, eruditissime Faber, Louanium commigraturus – id enim malui quam principem in Hispanias comitari – commodum submouuit me quidam amiculus commentarios in Paulum iterum abs te aeditos, in quibus mecum prolixa disputatione conflictareri, simulque locum indicauit, nempe epistolae ad Hebraeos caput secundum. Ego laetus ilico librum a bibliopola mihi curauit. Interea dum vehor, ita vt fit quoties noua res subito obiicitur, praesertim si quid ad nos attinet, auide lego tuam illam apologiam vel pugnam potius, qua tanto calore tantaque vehementia pro tuis aris ac focis dimicas vt non sat habeas quod a tuis rebus erat interuersum recepissee, sed vltro etiam in meas possessiones incursas. Sicque tuas tueris copias vt parum tibi sit nostram aciem profligasse, verum ipso victoriae successu gestiens in mea castra procurrirs populabundus ac ferox velutique geminis trophyis insignis, simul et tuis receptis et mihi detractis opimis spoliis. Legi vero, vir optime, nullo quidem stomacho sed tamen, vt ingenue quod res est fatear, non omnino nullo animi dolore, non ³⁵ quod grauate feram admoneri aut etiam reprehendi ab amico, praesertim autem ab amico tali, tam eruditio, tam integro, sed quod optarim te in ea conflictatione cum homine, vt scribis, per amico paulo amicius fuisse versatum, neque id sane perinde mea causa atque tua vel aliorum potius.

⁴⁰ Neque enim ipse quicquam addubito quin tu, siue tuopte iudicio negocium hoc sumpseris siue alieno impulsu suscepferis, simplici puroque animo id feceris.

¹⁹ Desiderius BAS: deest in A-E.
³⁰ tueris copias E BAS: copias tueris A-D.

³¹ ipso BAS: ipse A-E.
³² velut E BAS: ac veluti A-D.

¹⁴ Faber contendit Lefèvre did this already in the first edition of the Quincuplex Psalterium, published in Paris by Henri Estienne, 31 July 1509 (f^o 14); see appendix I. He restated his view in the first edition of his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, published in Paris by Henri Estienne in 1512. Lefèvre's comments on Hebr. 2, 7 of 1512 are reproduced in appendix II. Erasmus reacted with his annotation on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr., published by J. Froben, Basel, 1516. This note is reproduced in appendix III. Lefèvre responded to Erasmus' criticisms in his second edition of the S. Pauli Epistolae XIV. This second edition was published by Henri Estienne in Paris after November 1516, the date of publication of the Psalterium octapolum (see appendix IV, ll. 72–76, and n. l. 75) and before July 1517, when Erasmus mentioned in a letter to Thomas More (Ep. 597, <Louvain>, <10 July 1517>, ll. 32–35) that he had seen the book. The second edition is antedated 1515; cf. this apologia, ll. 167–177, where Erasmus himself notices that the book must have been antedated because it quotes his own Nov. Instr. of 1516. Lefèvre's note of 1516/7 (his second edition) was reprinted in the third edition of Lefèvre's translation and commentary of Paul's epistles, Regnault et de la Porte, Paris, 1517, without any significant alterations. A mere reprint of Lefèvre's first edition (1512) came out at Cologne, on 5 June 1515, printed by Martinus Werdenensis.

14–15 falsum ... indignissimum Erasmus very often repeats these accusations leveled against him; see e.g., this apologia, ll. 481–482. He was accustomed to do this in the apologetics he wrote; see e.g., the Apolog. resp. Iac. Lop. Stun., ASD IX, 2, p. 146, ll. 709–710, cf. R.H. Graham, Erasmus and Stunica: A Chapter in the History of New Testament Scholarship, in: Erasmus of Rotterdam Society Yearbook 10 (1990), pp. 9–60, p. 39. The accusations quoted here in ll. 14–15 can be found in Lefèvre's disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 134–136 and 146–148. In his note on Ps. 8, 6 in the Quincuplex Psalterium, 1509, f° 14 (reproduced in appendix I), Lefèvre explained the “wrong” translation παρ’ ἀγγέλους of the Septuaginta by saying that the translators were afraid to attribute to man more than is allowed. According to Lefèvre, they did not understand that Ps. 8, 6 refers to Christ. He thought that the translator of Hebr. (originally written by Paul in Hebrew) had committed the same error, under the influence of the LXX. See appendix I, ll. 9–11. Cf. appendix II, ll. 4–5: interpretes Pauli ... id ex Septuaginta desumpsit and ll. 9–10: sententiam Pauli seruantes a Deo diximus (appendix IV, ll. 6–7 and ll. 11–12).

18 non improbans To be sure, Jerome did not explicitly disapprove of the translation ‘ab angelis’, but in the Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos, he himself translated a Deo; see Sancti Hieronymi psalterium iuxta Hebraeos, ed. H. de Sainte Marie, Rome, 1954, p. 15.

21 Quum ... commigraturus Erasmus probably left Bruges at the beginning of July 1517, see Allen, introd. Ep. 596.

essendum Cf. M.A. Nauwelaerts, Erasme à Louvain, épiphénomènes d'un séjour de 1517 à 1521 in ed. J. Coppens, Scrinium Erasmianum I, Leiden, 1969, pp. 3–24, see pp. 6–7. Nauwelaerts points out that Erasmus usually travelled by carriage when he did not feel well, and that he perhaps wanted to take his books with him. In any case, Erasmus told his friends John Oecolampadius, Cuthbert Tunstall and Peter Barbirus that in Louvain he had his luggage and his library at his disposal (Epp. 605, l. 8; 607, l. 1; 608, l. 10).

22 id ... comitari Erasmus was invited by Charles V, who held him in high esteem (see Ep. 556, ll. 1–14), to accompany him to Spain (Epp. 694, ll. 4–17; 853, ll. 2–3). But Erasmus preferred to work at the theological faculty of Louvain (Ep. 694, ll. 1–5). As an argument against a stay in Spain, he pointed to the dissension at the court there (Ep. 694, ll. 5–7). Earlier, he wrote rather critically about the mentality of the Spaniards (Ep. 545, ll. 15–17).

23 quidam amiculus According to Allen (see Epp. 777, n. ll. 29–30 and 456, n. l. 281), this amiculus is Gerardus Godfrey of Graten in Limburg (died c. Sept. 1539), a Dutch stationer in Cambridge. Erasmus may at one time have lodged with him in Cambridge (Ep. 456, ll. 280–281). In the present apologia (see ll. 157–158), Erasmus described him as bibliopola quispiam, amicus magis quam literatus. He is probably the bibliopola (ll. 25–26) from whom Erasmus bought Lefèvre's book. On Godfrey, see C.F. Gunderson in: Contemporaries II, pp. III–II2, s.v. Garret Godfrey.

commentarios ... aeditos The second edition: Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, H. Stephanus, Paris, 1516/7. See the present apologia, n. l. 14. Appendix IV reproduces the note on Hebr. 2, 7.

25–26 bibliopola See this apologia, n. l. 23.

28 pro ... dimicis Cf. Liv. 5, 30, 1 “pro aris focisque ... dimicandum fore”. For the phrase “arae focique”, see Otto, 147.

29–30 vt ... incurcas Cf. Ep. 607, ll. 6–8 “... non sat habet suam interpretationem tueri, sed nostram quoque subodiose insectatur, arrodens etiam quedam quae ad illius rem nihil attinebant”.

35–36 amico ... integro Cf. Ep. 778, ll. 143–144: “Amicus est Faber, sed qui sic incessit, amicus esse desiit.”

36–37 sed ... versatum This is an allusion to appendix IV, ll. 19, 29, 40 and 573.

38 vel aliorum potius Erasmus means that the controversy between Erasmus and Lefèvre could harm the cause of the humanist movement. Cf. this apologia, ll. 39–47 and n. l. 48.

40 alieno impulsu Erasmus often suggests that Lefèvre's fierce attack, his disputatio, was inspired by someone else or even by an evil genie, because Lefèvre's vehemence was not

Verum vt sunt plerique mortalium ad deteriora suspicaces, fortasse non deerunt qui interpretentur nonnullos aemulationis stimulus inter nos intercessisse et fortassis Hesiodum illud in nos torquebunt, fabrum inuidere fabro, atque eo magis quod casu in idem incidimus argumentum, praesertim cum illic legent quaedam odiosius et acerbius ac τραγικώτερον abs te dicta quam vel res ipsa vel nostra postulabat amicicia, nonnulla extra id quod institueras velut ascita studio, quae mox suis locis indicabimus.

Atque adeo iam nunc accipio nonnullos offendit quod hoc loco nonnihil desiderare se dicant tuam illam synceritatem ac simplicitatem, toties a me quoque praedicatam, quae tuam eruditionem hactenus vnicet commendauit et ab inuidia, quae semper eximiam virtutem solet impetere, magna ex parte vindicauit. Quibus hic videris tui dissimilis et, vt aiunt, in Fabro Fabrum requirunt. Etenim quum tot iam aeditis voluminibus semper hactenus innoxius et incruentus fuerit stilos tuus, admirantur me potissimum tibi visum idoneum, in quem primum calami tui mucronem stringeres cuiusque sanguine ingenii tui telum hucusque purum inquinares, praesertim a me non solum non lacesitus sed toties etiam praedicatus.

Quoniam autem hoc habet pura christianaque charitas quam Paulus ἀνυπόκριτον appellat, vt amicorum incommodis magis etiam commoueatur quam suis, nolim vllam esse datam ansam vt quisquam hominum de Fabro deterius sentiat. Quod si iuxta Pauli doctrinam semper abstinentia non tantum a malis, verum etiam ab omni specie mali, quod quidem licet, id certe multo maxime praestandum est in tractandis arcanis literis quae, quantum fieri potest, talibus animis tractandae sunt qualibus sunt proditae. Neque conuenit illic humanos affectus obstrepere vbi diuinum est, vbi coeleste est omne quod geritur, neque congruum est in his libris parum modestos et integros videri, qui soli omnium vere modestos ac probos reddunt. Id quum omnibus tum nobis praecepit fuit animaduertendum hac aetate in qua iam sit indecorum φιλοτιμεῖσθαι aut υσχνεῖσθαι, tum hac fama quam tibi olim tot aeditae lucubrationes tuo merito peperere, mihi nuper et si tua minorem, meis tamen meritis longe maiorem, mea qualiscunque industria conciliauit.

Vtrique igitur velimus nolimus velut in proscenio consistimus, totius pene orbis oculis in nos coniectis. Neque clam nobis est quam sint fastidiosa multitudo iudicia non profecto minus quam oculi spectatorum, quibus vix placent etiam optima. Quo magis curandum vt scena theatroque seruiamus neque quic-

45 et acerbius ac τραγικώτερον A B E BAS: ac acerbius, τραγικώτερον C D.
54 potissimum E BAS: deest in A-D.

61 non tantum BAS: non E, non solum A-D.
62 quidem BAS: deest in A-E.

in accordance with his normal kindness, cf. tui dissimilis, l. 52. See also Epp. 659, ll. 2-4; 652, ll. 17-18; 707, ll. 25-26, and 855, ll. 52-53. See also this apologia l. 249 alieno instinctu. For similar insinuations against other opponents, see H.J. de Jonge, ASD IX, 2, p. 63, n. ll. 39-40. Erasmus is somewhat more explicit in Ep. 800 (from Eras- mus to Paul Bombasius, Louvain, 14 March, 1518), ll. 15–20, where he attributes Lefèvre's animosity to the influence of the theologians. Erasmus describes them as sycophants who judge about works they never read.

- 41 plerique ... suspicaces Cf. this apologia, ll. 2183–2208. Opponents of the humanist movement could take advantage of this controversy, probably without understanding the issue, to damage the reputation of the humanists and weaken their social standing. Cf. Ep. 659, from Erasmus to Lefèvre, Louvain, 11 September 1517, ll. 15–16: "Ex aduerso gaudent qui nobis ac rectioribus studiis male volunt." and also Ep. 724, from Erasmus to Lefèvre, Louvain, 30 November <1517>, ll. 7–9: "Vides plerosque ad maledicendi rabiem accinctos: ne demus ansam huiusmodi hominum generi." Other humanists had the same fear; see e.g., Peter Barbirius in Ep. 621, St Cybardeaux, 12 August 1517, ll. 23–30; and cf. Ep. 731, from Erasmus to Wolfgang Capito, Louvain, 6 December <1517>, ll. 33–35, from which it is clear that Capito had expressed fear about the bad impression this controversy would leave. See also Willibald Pirckheimer in Ep. 747, Nuremberg, 31 December 1517, ll. 85–90.
- 43 Hesiodium ... fabro Hes. Erg., ed. F. Solmsen (Oxford 1983), p. 50 l. 25: Καὶ κεραυνὸς κεραυεῖ κοτέει καὶ τέκτονι τέκτων. Adag. 125 (Figulus figulo invidet, faber fabro), ASD II, 1, p. 242. Erasmus used the same proverb rather loosely in Froben's letter to the reader, Nou. Instr., f° aavº: καὶ πτωχὸς πτωχῷ φθονεῖ, καὶ τέκτονι τέκτων, a conflation of Hes. Opera, ll. 25–26.
- 45 res ipsa Cf. this apologia, ll. 262–263. Although Erasmus is convinced that Jesus' humiliation is important for the salvation of Christians and has to be an example for them, the issue of Lefèvre's and Erasmus' controversy did not justify, in Erasmus' view, the hateful and polemic way Lefèvre had attacked him in his disputatio. See also ll. 62–67.
- 48 nonnullos offendit This was indeed the case. Cf. Epp. 601, ll. 34–49; 621, ll. 23–30; 680, ll. 1–24; 680A, ll. 1–31; 731, ll. 33–35.
- 49–50 toties ... praedicatam Cf. ll. 56–57 toties etiam praedicatus. Erasmus indeed spoke appreciatively of Lefèvre, except with reference to his attack in his disputatio (for this, see appendix IV), which Erasmus answers in the present apologia. Cf. Epp. 531, ll. 571–576 and 541, ll. 70–71. From his part, Lefèvre also expressed his esteem for Erasmus, see Ep. 445, ll. 36–43 and 621, ll. 19–23, except, naturally, with regard to Erasmus' point of view in their controversy. The man who handed Lefèvre a presentation copy of Erasmus' Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap. wrote: "Ille (i.e., Lefèvre) apud meam personam satis arguit Erasmi leuitatem" (Ep. 796, ll. 25–26; see also Ep. 778, ll. 295–297).
- 52 tui dissimilis Cf. this apologia, n. l. 40. Cf. Ep. 651, from Erasmus to Marcus Laurinus, Louvain, 7 September 1517, ll. 15–17: "Amo hominem (i.e., Fabrum) ex animo, sed hic tantum sui dissimilem, et in me vnum in quem minime oportuit."
- 56–57 toties ... praedicatus See this apologia, n. ll. 49–50.
- 58 Paulus Rom. 12, 9; 2 Cor. 6, 6.
- 61 Pauli 1 Thess. 5, 22.
- 62–64 id ... proditae That one should study Scripture in a spirit of piety and reverence for God is a view already expressed by Augustine: Doctr. chr. II, vii, 9–11. Erasmus voices it elsewhere as well, e.g., Methodus, ed. Holborn, pp. 150–151.
- 69 vearvever "to act rashly", but here also "insolently." Adag. 3083, LB II, 988 A–B. Liddell-Scott only give the form vearvevesθαι with an -t- and as a verbum deponens.
- 72 velimus nolimus Adag. 245, ASD II, 1, pp. 358–359, Otto 1852. Cf. Ep. 768, from Erasmus to William Nesen, Louvain, 18 January 1518, ll. 26–27, where Erasmus writes with regard to this controversy: "Sed nemo pugnat acrius quam qui nolens et inuitus ad pugnam pertrahitur."
- 72–73 totius ... connectis Erasmus was convinced that the whole world followed their polemic. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 2206–2208, Epp. 653, ll. 14–17; 814 and Huizinga, p. 155.
- 75–77 Quo ... descendere Erasmus often uses this imagery of the theater, especially for Lefèvre's part in their controversy; see Ep. 778, ll. 197–199: "At Fabri insectatio plusquam tragica est, ac plane demiror hominem huiusmodi tragediis delectari ..." See also the present apologia, ll. 263–278, l. 422, l. 602, ll. 689–699, l. 749. Cf. Adag. 1439 (Tragice loqui), LB II, 564 E–565 A, Adag. 2154 (Tragoedias agere, aut insanire), ASD II, 5, p. 136, ll. 749–766, and Adag. 1791 (Tragoedias in nugis agere), ASD II, 4, p. 208, ll. 253–261.

quam committamus quod vel vt indecorum exibiletur, vel vt iuuvenile rideatur. Atque haud scio an optimum fuerit in hoc theatrum non descendere. Certe posteaquam deus aliquis huc nos protraxit, superest vt pro viribus nos fabulae susceptae attemperemus.

LB 19 At ipse, inquieras, lacesisti, qui prior a me tot lojcis dissenseris. Si contumelia est dissentire, nihil deprecor nec recuso quantumuis iniquam talionem. Sin hoc in omni professionis genere semper liberum fuit, in hisce duntaxat rebus quae ad religionis nostrae dogmata proprie non pertinent, nec mihi fraudi vitioue verti par est. Et tamen hoc ipsum vide, quaeso, quam non fecerim affectate, imo quam inuitus, tum autem quam honorifice.

81 Quid enim mihi faciundum fuisse censes quum tu iam aeditionem occupasses et viderem non pauca mutata abs te perperam, neque me praeteribat quantum obtineres autoritatis apud patres simul et populum studiosorum? Res euidentior erat quam vt excusari posset et liber iam erat euulgatus. Quid facerem? Paterer 90 lectorem impune labi? Sinerem errorem inolescere? Id opinor nec ipse dicturus eras, praesertim quum publica vtilitas cum nulla tui nominis nota esset coniuncta, quandoquidem in huiusmodi labi et hallucinari nonnunquam adeo humanum est vt hactenus nemini mortalium licuerit effugere, perpaucis exceptis, quorum literas non vt humanas excutimus sed vt diuinias veneramur.

95 Neque tua rursus aeditio ad hoc laboris capessendum nos impulit, vt quisquam cauillari possit tui reprehensionem a nobis studio quaesitam. Quin iam opus absoluera, iam cum typographis transegeram priusquam tua prodissent in vulgus. Quae simulatque prodierunt, saepe mecum admiratus sum quinam

85 tum autem quam BAS: quamque A-D, tum autem E.

88 et E BAS: ac A-D.

89 iam E BAS: deest in A-D.

77 haud ... descendere Here, Erasmus is saying that it is regrettable that everyone's attention is drawn to the controversy between Lefevre and him; cf. Ep. 653, from Erasmus to <John Fisher>, Antwerp, 8 September 1517, ll. 15–17: “Verum ipse odi hanc necessitatem que me traxit in hanc harenam; odi victoriā quia vici hominem tam amicum.” Not entirely consistent with the foregoing is the fact that Erasmus published the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap. four times within six months, though this becomes comprehensible in light of the requests that publishers made to Erasmus for texts they could print and publish, see Epp. 575 en 581. Other factors that may have led Erasmus to publish his apologia so often may have included his growing nervousness over Lefèvre's silence and his wish to augment his apologia with new arguments and new material. See e.g., Epp. 659, 724 and 814. Cf. Ep. 826 from Erasmus to Henry Bullock (Louvain, 23 April, <1518>), ll. 10–14: “Scripsi nuper homini ... nunc illius silentio magis excitari dissidium, dum quisque pro suo animo suspicatur.”

78 deus aliquis Cf. I. 2616 ciliber deorum.
80 qui ... dissenseris This concerns the following passages in the Nov. Instr. where Lefevre's name is mentioned: Rom. 1, 6; Rom. 8, 33; 1 Cor. 5, 4; 1 Cor. 6, 8; 1 Cor. 7, 31; 1 Cor. 12, 28; 1 Cor. 15, 45; 2 Cor. 6, 7; 2 Cor. 8, 9; 2 Cor. 9, 13; 2 Cor. 10, 16, Eph. 4, 14; Eph. 5, 18; Col. 2, 18 en 20; Tit. 1, 3; Hebr. 2, 7. In his translation or in his annotation Erasmus departs from Lefevre's edition of 1512, but without criticizing Lefevre's view explicitly at Eph. 6, 6; Eph. 6, 12; Phil. 1, 16–17 and Phil. 2, 30. At these passages Erasmus only mentions his disagreement.

80–81 Si ... dissentire Cf. Ep. 768, from Erasmus to William Nesen, Louvain, 18 January 1518, ll. 29–31: “Pene rursus absolui Nouum Testamentum in quo quoties quam honorifice Fabri facio mentionem: nisi prorsus contumelia est illi dissentire, cum ille dissentiat etiam ab omnibus.

82–83 quae ... pertinent Lefèvre was convinced, however, that the interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 concerned a matter of great dogmatic importance, namely, the dignity of Christ. Yet it is incorrect to suppose that Erasmus was not interested in the theological significance of Hebr. 2, 7. Cf. M. Mann, Erasme et les débuts de la réforme française (1517–1536), Paris, 1934, p. 34: “Dans cette discussion, c'est Lefèvre qui croit combattre pour la pureté de la foi; Erasme sait bien que la foi ne dépend pas de cette question-là et qu'il ne combat que pour sauvegarder sa réputation ...” Cf. Ep. 778, ll. 269–271 from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February 1518, where Erasmus complains: “inquit ... me nihil aliud quam rhetorculum esse, se philosophum, theologum, mystagogum cuius omnia dicta oraculorum instar essent ...” It is indeed a misrepresentation of his intentions to claim that Erasmus was only involved in the conflict as a philologist or rhetorician, not as a theologian. He wanted to use Hebr. 2, 7 to present the humiliated but obedient Christ as an ethical example. Cf. this apologia, ll. 800–821 and ll. 959–967.

83 raudi vitioue verti Cf. Cic. Fam. 7, 6, 1: “ne sibi vitio verterent”. The phrase also occurs in Adag. 2833 (Quod alii vitio vertas, ipse ne feceris), ASD II, 6, p. 528, ll. 296–300.

86 aeditiōnē Lefèvre's first edition of his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Henri Estienne, Paris, 1512. For his note on Hebr. 2, 7, see appendix II.

occupasses “You were the first to come out with your edition”, that is, earlier than Erasmus himself.

87 mutata In the Latin text of the Pauline epistles.

87–88 quantum ... studiosorum Cf. Erasmus in Ep. 787 to Richard Pace, Louvain, 5 March 1518, ll. 22–23: “Apologia male habet Fabritas quosdam, non quod improbent causam meam, sed quod ausus [sim] tanto viro responderet”.

88 patres The civil, not the ecclesiastical authorities.

89–90 Quid ... inolescere Erasmus had not thought it acceptable to let his feelings of friendship for Lefèvre prevail over his fear of the risks of a mistranslation and misinterpretation of Hebr. 2, 7, being disseminated by the publication of Lefèvre's edition of Paul.

Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February, <1518>, ll. 304–305: “... vbi de fide Christiana agitur, impium etiam est causam aduersario trahere.”, i. e. not to fight the matter out. Cf. Epp. 326, ll. 96–101 and 337, ll. 849–852 and this apologia, ll. 108–111.

95 aeditiōnē Lefèvre's first edition of his translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's epistles, see n. l. 86.

hoc laboris Erasmus' Nov. Instr.

96–98 Quin ... vulgus This is incorrect. The first edition of Lefèvre's S. Pauli Epistolae XIV appeared circa Christmas 1512; Erasmus' Nov. Instr., not until 1516. It is true that Erasmus worked on his revision of the Latin text of the New Testament from 1512, before he had heard of Lefèvre's new commentated translation of Paul's epistles. But by far the greatest part of the work that finally went into the Nov. Instr. was done in the years 1514–1516. Especially the annotations were written in a late stage of the production process. This is what enabled Erasmus to criticize Lefèvre repeatedly in the annotations, see n. l. 80. Negotiations with the firm of Froben about the publication of Erasmus' edition of the New Testament did not start until 1514 or 1515; the earliest evidence is from April–May 1515 (Epp. 330–331). It is clear that during the greater part of Erasmus' preparations for the Nov. Instr. Lefèvre's work on Paul was well known to him. With regard to the chronology of the origin of the Nov. Instr. and the relationship between Erasmus' and Lefèvre's work on the New Testament, see H.J. de Jonge, The Date and Purpose of Erasmus's Castigatio Novi Testamenti, in: A.C. Dionisotti, A. Grafton, J. Kräye, eds., The Uses of Greek and Latin, London, 1988, pp. 97–110, esp. p. 108. Moreover, if Erasmus' account here is correct, he would have to have made an incredible number of additions at the last moment, in particular, all criticisms of Lefèvre's work; cf. n. l. 80. Erasmus wrote Epp. 326, 334 en 337, in which he mentions Lefèvre's edition of 1512, long before the publication of the Nov. Instr. In Ep. 337, from Erasmus to Martin Dorp, Antwerp, <May fin.> 1515, ll. 844–848, Erasmus states explicitly: “Porro Iacobus Faber Stapulensis commentarios illos iam tum habebat in manibus, cum nos hoc operis moliremur ...” Erasmus had certainly not finished his work on the Nov. Instr. when Lefèvre's edition of 1512 came out.

euenerit vt in tam crebris, tam prolixis tamque familiaribus colloquiis, quibus 100 Lutetiae fueramus conflictati, ne casu quidem inciderit vlla mentio quid vel meum vel tuum studium parturiret ac moliretur. Quod si in tempore sensisse, fortassis ipse destitisse ab instituto et si quid forte nobis paratum fuisse quod operi tuo conduceret, impartisse amico. Non quod istud ingenium quoties in suo campo versatur meis egeat auxiliaribus opibus, sed quod tu quum in exami-nationibus illis, sic enim vocas, versareris nec in tua propria arena essem nec in tuo foro, in quo ipse quamlibet caetera inferior, nec tibi videor aspernandus, ni fallor.

Caeterum rebus in eum locum adductis non exegisses, opinor, tantam tui nominis habendam esse rationem, vt in sacris libris plus apud me valeret amici 110 studium quam ipsa veritas et publicam vtilitatem vnius famae posthaberem, etiam si, vt diximus, id citra famae tuae dispendium fieret. Imo sic de tuo inge-nio deque moribus tuis iudicabam vt crederem Erasmus amicum vel hoc nomine fore amicissimum, si publicam vtilitatem, cui tu tantum vigiliarum 115 impenderas, nostra quoque opella adiuuisse, praesertim quum sic vero succur-rerem vt ne tantulum quidem laederem amici existimationem adeoque non obscurarem illius gloriam vt, si qua fieri posset, lucis etiam aliquid adderem.

Scis enim ipse, si tamen nostra legisti, quam amice abs te dissentiam, multa interim dissimulans ac praetercurrens, quaedam quoad licet excusans ac leniens, nihil insectans aut naso suspendens, nusquam immorans aut vrgens, etiam si 120 nonnulla erant tam manifesti lapsus, vt alias fortassis, suae gloriae quam christianae modestiae tenacior, conuiciis fuerit exagitaturus, praesertim quum ista tanta cum autoritate praecipias.

Nec his contentus, age, quoties Fabrum cum honoris praeftatione nomino?
 Quoties meis fulciendis tuam autoritatem reuerenter adduco? Id viuo tribuens, 125 quod non omnibus defunctis tribuitur, quum a rogo liuor omnis emori soleat.
 Idque facio locis aliquot vbi nihil opus erat tui nominis patrocinio, velut in fron-tispicio epistolae ad Colossenses, quum tot autoribus euicisset Colossenses, ad quos scribit Paulus, in insula Rhodo non esse, ex superfluo tuam autoritatem 130 adiungo. Rursus hoc ipso in loco quo mecum tam affectate digladiaris, quam ego affectate honorificam tui nominis mentionem ingero. Atque in hanc sane partem malui videri affectatior quam in alteram istam quae nescio quo consilio tibi magis placuit.

Super haec omnia vide quam nihil fucate, nihil ex insidiis fecerim aut molitus
 LB 20 sim, quam simpliciter pureque omnia. Primum quum adornarem aeditionem 135 ac mox in ipso iam operis cursu praemonui te literis fore vt in aedendis meis

101 Quod A-D BAS: Quid E.

105 propria A-D: proprie E BAS.

108 excusans A C-BAS: accusans B.

121 fucrit A B E BAS: fuerat C D.

127-128 alt. ad ... Paulus BAS: deest in A-E.

128 ex superfluo E BAS: deest in A-D.

130 honorificam E BAS: deest in A-D.

131 affectatior E BAS: affectantior A-D.

134 Primum E BAS: deest in A-D.

135 ac mox E BAS: atque A-D.

- 99–101 evenerit ... moliretur Erasmus offers the same rather improbable, but possibly correct account of the course of events in Ep. 326, ll. 90–101 and Ep. 337, ll. 844–849.
- 101–102 Quod ... instituto On the other hand, Erasmus states in Epp. 326, ll. 93–94; 334, ll. 167–170; 337, ll. 835–839 and in the Apologia, ed. Holborn, p. 174, ll. 1–5, that even after having seen Lefèvre's work on the New Testament he did not regard his own work as superfluous. Moreover, Lefèvre only dealt with the Pauline correspondence, whereas Erasmus dealt with the whole New Testament. Cf. Ep. 402, from Erasmus to Nicholas Ellenbog, <Basle>, <April 1516>, ll. 1–3: "Nouum Testamentum praecipitatum est verius quam aeditum, et tamē sic editum vt in hoc sane genere superiores omneis vicerimus."
- 104–106 quod ... inferior Cf. this apologia, n. l. 151. On the other hand, Erasmus often defends his work on the New Testament with the argument that Lefèvre had already done similar work on the New Testament, see Ep. 337, from Erasmus to Martin Dorp, Antwerp, <May fin.> 1515, ll. 857–862: "Fabrum audio probari ab omnibus. Quid quod nec omnino simile negocium molimur? ... Faber in Paulinas duntaxat Epistolas aeditum commentarios, easque suo more vertit: tum si quid discrepabat, obiter annotauit." And Ep. 456, Erasmus to Henry Bullock, Rochester, <22?> August 1516, ll. 94–101: "Iacobus Faber Stapulensis, amicus noster, dudum id fecit in Paulum quod ego in totum Nouum Instrumentum. Cur hic demum tanquam ad rem nouam commouentur quidam? An aliis omnibus istud licere volunt, mihi vni non volunt? Atqui Stapulensis non paulo plus ausus est quam ego. Ille suam interpretationem veteri opposuit, idque in academiarum omnium regina Lutetia; ego recognitorem modo professus locos aliquot aut corrigo aut explico." See also Apologia, ed. Holborn, p. 174, ll. 3–5.
- 105 in ... arena For Erasmus' use of this image, see ASD IX, 2, p. 211, n. ll. 776–777.
- 105–106 in tuo foro Cf. Adag. 1190 (In alieno foro litigare), LB II, 480 B. Otto 712.
- 108–111 Caeterum ... fieret Cf. this apologia, n. ll. 89–90.
- 111 vt diximus See the present apologia, ll. 91–92 praesertim ... coniuncta. See ibid., l. 346 citra tui notam.
- 117 quam ... dissentiam. At Rom. 1, 5; 2 Cor. 10, 16; Col. 2, 18 and Tit. 1, 3 Erasmus mentions an error of Lefèvre, but also moderates it a little. At Rom. 8, 33; 1 Cor. 5, 4; 1 Cor. 6, 8; 1 Cor. 7, 31; 1 Cor. 12, 28; 1 Cor. 15, 45; 2 Cor. 6, 7; 2 Cor. 8, 9; 2 Cor. 9, 13; Gal. 2, 13; Eph. 4, 14; Eph. 5, 18; Col. 2, 20; Tit. 1, 12 and Hebr. 2, 7 Erasmus criticizes Lefèvre's view without either malice or caution.
- 117–118 multa ... praetercurrentis Erasmus is referring to those passages in the Nov. Instr. where, in his translation or in the annotations, he departs from Lefèvre without criticizing him explicitly. Cf. n. l. 80.
- 119 naso suspendens Adag. 722 (naso suspendere), LB II, 307 D–308 A. Otto 1198.
- 123 contentus This adjective qualifies the subject of nomino, i.e., Erasmus, age being only an interjection.
- 125 a ... soleat Cf. Ov., Am. 1, 15, 39: "Pascitur in viuis Liuor, post fata quiescit".
- 126–129 velut ... adiungo Nov. Instr., p. 543, Annotat. ad Col., intr., where Erasmus argues that Colossae was a city in Asia Minor, not on Rhodos, adding the remark: "Nec ab hac sententia dissentit Faber Stapulensis."
- 128 Rhodo non esse Cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 218, ll. 880–884 and n.
- 129–130 hoc ... ingero. This concerns the annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 of 1516 (appendix III), where, in point of fact, Erasmus displays little respect in opposing Lefèvre's view.
- 130–131 in ... partem I.e., in the direction of praise.
- 131 in alteram istam I.e., in the direction of blame, cf. affectate digladiaris, l. 129. Lefèvre treats Erasmus in an unfriendly manner in his disputatio, the note on Hebr. 2, 7 in his second edition of his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7. For the text of the disputatio, see appendix IV. Cf. Ep. 796 from Erasmus to Beatus Rhenanus, Louvain, 13 March <1518>, ll. 26–28: "Non possum satis admirari quid acciderit homini, nisi sub illa specie modestiae <et> lenitatis latet aliquod naturae venenum."
- 133 fucate Cf. Adag. 452, ASD II, 1, pp. 525–526 (Fucum facere, pro eo quod est imposturam facere et artificiosa dissimulatione deludere ...).
- 133–134 nihil fucate ... sim Erasmus emphasizes this in contrast to Lefèvre's course of action; see this apologia, ll. 159–164 and n.
- 135 literis These letters seem to be lost. They do not occur in Allen, nor in Rice, Prefatory Epistles. In Allen, Ep. 434, from Jodocus Badius to Erasmus, <Paris>, 6 July 1516, l. 17, Badius says he passed a letter from Erasmus to Lefèvre. This may have been either the letter Erasmus refers to here, l. 135 mox ... cursu or either one of the later letters mentioned in this apologia, l. 139. Lefèvre also points out that Erasmus invited him to react, see appendix IV, ll. 580–581 and n.

aliquot locis abs te dissentirem, sed amanter. Comprobabas institutum vel hoc argumento quod in literis ad me tuis, quibus laboribus nostris applaudebas, nulla fieret huius rei mentio.

140 Rursus alteris ac tertiiis literis reddidi tibi facti mei rationem admonens futurum vt si qua ex his quae nos annotaucramus in tuis proxima aeditione mutare velles, ego item in proxima mearum annotationum aeditione loci castigati mentionem omitterem. Quod sicubi nobis non accederes, excusationem tuam, si recte dissentires, scripsi me libenter accepturum et si quid ipse lapsus essem, admonitionem tuam beneficii loco habiturum.

145 Atqui quum tam multi obtigerint qui literas ad me tuas efflagitarint etiam, quorum de numero sunt eximium illud religionis ac nobilitatis decus Stephanus Poncherius, episcopus Parisiensis, et ille literarum vnicus antistes Gulielmus Budaeus, nunquam tamen verbum vllum abs te factum, aut quid displiceret aut quid probares.

150 Ipse interim pro mea simplicitate tuum animum ex meo a estimans, nihil aliud suspicari potui quam ingenium tuum grauioribus studiis intentum. Quin de hac quoque proxima aeditione mirum vbique silentium, quae iam sesquiannum per omnes regiones volitat me vno omnium inscio, cuius maxime intererat scire, vt propemodum ridere libuerit illud in me satyricum: dedecus ille domus sciet ultimus. Ego securus omnium et omnia tranquilla credens traducebar ignarus et ceu caudam trahens obambulabam et hodie sic ornatus incederem risuque essem impune, ni me mihi forte fortuna bibliopola quispiam, amicus magis quam literatus, indicasset. Ac prorsus tale quiddam mihi accidit, quale solet his qui se proscriptos legunt priusquam proscriptionem timuerunt. In bello forsitan laudi ducitur hostem occupasse celeritate, oppressisse inopinantem, obrepssisse improviso, ex insidiis adortum esse incautum et ante praelium inferre quam pugnae suspicionem praebueris. At longe alia militiae, alia sacrorum studiorum ratio. Quamquam egregii duces ne dignantur quidem dolis vti aduersus hostem viribus non arte gerentem bellum. Nec hoc dixerim quod suspicer id artificio tuo curatum, sed quod verear ne quis minus candidus quam nos sumus in hanc partem interpretetur.

160 Verum quando posterioris aeditionis mentio nos admonuit, nonnihil demiror et illud, qui factum sit vt quum nostra aeditio fuerit absoluta Basileae in officina

143 recte B-BAS: deest in A.

158 indicasset A-D BAS: rem indicasset E; 158 solet E BAS: deest in A-D.

137 literis ... tuis Perhaps Erasmus means Ep. 315, from Lefèvre to Erasmus, St. Germain's, Paris, dated (by Allen) to 23 October 1514. At that moment the Nov. Instr. was not yet published, but Lefèvre could have heard nonetheless that Erasmus prepared a translation and annotations of the New Testament. Cf. Epp. 270, 291, 296, where Erasmus mentioned his work on the New Testament. But it is possible, of course, that when Lefèvre praised Erasmus' work in Ep. 315, he was not referring to Erasmus' studies of the New Testament.

139 literis These letters seem to be lost. They do not occur in Allen, nor in Rice, Prefatory Epistles. Cf. this apologia, n. l. 135.

145–148 Atqui ... Budaeus There appear to be no such requests in Gul. Budaeus, Epistolaes [Latinae et Graecae], Paris, Jod. Badius, [1520]. Nor is there any mention of such requests made by Budé or Poncher in Allen or in: La correspondance d'Erasme et de Guillaume Budé, traduction intégrale, annotations et index bibliographique par M.-M. de la Garanderie, Paris, 1967, or in Rice, Prefatory Epistles.

146–147 Stephanus ... Parisiensis See this apologia, n. ll. 760–761.

148–149 nunquam ... probares This is not correct, in light of Ep. 445, from Thomas Grey to Erasmus, Paris, 5 August 1516, ll. 31–49. In this letter, Thomas Grey writes that Lefèvre sends his compliments to Erasmus but that Lefèvre himself is too ill to write or dictate. Grey here also mentions that Lefèvre always speaks of Erasmus with esteem. Furthermore, he remarks that Lefèvre does not mind Erasmus correcting him, that on the contrary, he was even quite grateful, since Lefèvre himself had already noticed some errors in his commentary of 1512 before Erasmus had pointed them out in the Nov. Instr. Lefèvre, he continues, would also have published corrections of such errors if Erasmus had not anticipated him. It is remarkable, however, that in August 1516 Lefèvre spoke favourably about the Nov. Instr. and then shortly thereafter (that is, between November 1516 and 10 July 1517; see the present apologia, n. l. 14), in the second edition of his translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's epistles, he spoke so depreciatingly about Erasmus.

151 grauioribus studiis Erasmus probably means to say that at that time he thought that Lefèvre had returned to his earlier activities. Lefèvre enjoyed the fame of having opened up the true Aristotle by means of translations, commentaries and analytical studies. See G. Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Etaples et l'intelligence des écritures, Geneva, 1976, pp. 28–36. Cf. this apologia, ll. 103–107.

151–152 hac ... aeditione The second edition of Lefèvre's S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, published between November 1516 and July 1517, see the present apologia, n. l. 14.

152 sesquiannum The book cannot have been in circulation for a year and a half without Erasmus knowing of it. Erasmus had too many contacts within humanist circles, where much attention was paid to publications concerning the study of Scripture, to be ignorant of the book for such a long time. So sesquiannum is a rhetorical exaggeration. Possibly Erasmus here mentions the period of eighteen months to allude to the fact that Lefèvre's second edition had been antedated; see the present apologia, n. l. 14.

152–153 per omnes regiones Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 82–84: "... quid me facere voluisses, posteaquam ille libris per orbem terrarum diuulgatis me tot atrocissimis dictis imperisset, blasphemiaeque et impietatis publicitus reum ageret?" and ibid., ll. 164–167: "Neque spes est rem tectum iri posse, cum illius volumina iam per Hispanias, Gallias, Italiam, Germaniam ac Britanniam passim obambulent, vt iam nec illi sit integrum premere quod scripsit, neque mihi dissimulare defensionem." Cf. on the other hand Ep. 794, from Erasmus to Peter Barbirius, Louvain, 6 March 1518, ll. 40–41: "Passim mihi gratulantur Gallum deuiculum Germani, Itali et Angli ..." Ep. 778 is dated 22 February and Ep. 794, only two weeks later, 6 March 1518.

154–155 dederus ... ultimus Iuv. Sat. X, 342.
156 caudam trahens "made a fool behind my back", Hor. Serm. 2, 3, 53.

157–158 bibliopola ... literatus Cf. this apologia, n. l. 23.

159–164 In ... bellum For the imagery, cf. this apologia, ll. 27–33. In flagrant contradiction to the present apologia, ll. 163–164 (and ll. 39–40), Erasmus is now suggesting that Lefèvre had slyly plotted an unexpected attack, probably because Lefèvre had not first mentioned his criticisms by letter, but published them immediately in his disputatio (appendix IV) accusing Erasmus of impietas (appendix IV, ll. 132–136). Erasmus pretends that he himself did warn Lefèvre by letter about his criticisms of Lefèvre's work, see this apologia, ll. 134–136, 139–144 en ll. 148–149 and nn. Cf. Ep. 784, from Erasmus to <John Fisher> <Louvain>, <c. 5 March 1518>, ll. 37–39: "... cur non potius Fabro indignantur, qui amicum ex insidiis tam atrociter lacessierit, quam mihi qui me clypeo tantum defendo, non repeto telis, quod communis certe iure poteram?"

167–177 Verum ... mentionem Erasmus here suggests that Lefèvre himself had antedated his second edition to create the semblance of originality. If Lefèvre's work was actually published as early as 1515, he could not have taken 170 Frobenii anno ab orbe redempto MDXVI, tua annum habeat MDXV. Si prior est tua aut si aequalis, quo modo meam citat? Si posterior, quo cursu nostrae anteuertit, quae prior a linea discesserat?

175 Quod certe aut typographorum errore factum sit oportet, qui, quum crebro peccent, faciunt ut nostra quoque commissa probabiliter in ipsos reiciamus; aut tui studiosus quispiam anteuertendum putauit, ne quid videreris ex meis lucubrationibus in tuas sumpsisse mutuo atque ita dum sedulo tuae gloriae consulit, aut non meminit aut non sensit illic prioris aeditionis nostrae factam abs te mentionem. Verum id quocunque casu acciderit, mea quidem haud magni refert. Neque enim sum adeo gloriae vel inops vel ieiunus ut in huiusmodi velim μικρολογεῖν.

180 At ipse, inquis, stimulus ad respondendum addidisti. Fateor, hortatus sum si quid esset operae precium ut libere dissentires, sed ita dissentires ut ego abs te disenseram, ut ciuiliter, non criminaliter tuam causam ageres, abesset nasus, abesset procacitas. Quod etiam si ipse non vbique praestitissem, quum non deesset voluntas, tuum tamen erat praestare quod nos voluissemus, quippe vir tanto melior 185 ac non melior tantum, verum etiam annis aliquot maior, etiam si ipse quinquagesimum iam excessi.

185 Caeterum si par pari referendum duxisti, erat nimirum tuae humanitatis, quam ego tuae gloriae non minimam partem esse puto, meam ciuitatem non aequare solum, sed etiam vincere iuxta | praeceptum Hesiodi χαὶ λότον remetiendo, praesertim cum ea res tibi forct in manu, ne quod apud eundem mox sequitur possis praetexere αἴτης δύνηται. In eruditione aut eloquentia, quoniam id haud est in nobis situm, non est semper turpe vinci. At in humanitatis officiis et superari turpe est et superare pulcherrimum, propterea quod hic tantum quisque praestat quantum animo collibuerit, neque plus requiritur facultatis sed plus bonae mentis.

190 Ego sic admisceo Fabri mei mentionem ut celebrandi nominis tui videri possim affectasse occasionem, tam effusus in tui laudes quam parcus in reprehendendo, ut facile liqueat affectus esse mei quod te praedico, necessitatis quod dissentio. Iam etiam si quid alicubi per humanam incuriam efluxit quod nasum corrugare possit, si modo christiana charitas nasum haberet, non solum ab omni conuicio tempore verum etiam caui pro mea virili, ne quid effutirem quod in contemptus aut malevolentiae suspicionem rapi posset.

195 Quod si hoc ipsum te offendit, vllam esse tui nominis in meis libris mentionem, age ut primum licebit, prorsus abolebitur tui commemoratio, si quemadmodum Alexander Magnus non nisi Apellis penicillo pingi voluit nec nisi Lysippi manu fingi, ita tu non sustines a quo quis scriptore nominari.

200 Sed qui factum istud tuum benignissime velit interpretari, causari fortasse poterit tibi hanc ansam esse quae sitam celebrandi nominis mei, quo vel hac parte mihi vicem officii reponeres. At si quid istiusmodi venabaris, tot erant loci in quibus indicaui lapsum tuum, quos si mutasti – nondum enim contuli praeter vnum et alterum – gratitudinis erat, hoc quicquid est officii, non solum agnoscere verum etiam verbis exaggerare. Si non mutasti, quum sint omnino mutandi quidam, aut contemptus est non legere quod ad te pertineat, aut pertinaciae nolle corrigere quod intelligas esse correndum.

215 Si in his recipis admonitionem meam, cur nec agnoscis nec mutas? Si non recipis, cur non refellis abs te dissentientem et tua palam ingenuaque corrigen-tem? Hic erat tibi nominandus Erasmus, si quid eiusmodi captabas ipsa re vltro praebente occasionem. Si qua gratia debetur vel honorifice praedicanti vel amice 220 simpliciterque monenti, bellum profecto mihi repositum est praemium, egregium amicitiae nostrae monumentum proditum abs te est posteritati.

171 prior BAS: prius A-E.

173 ipsos BAS: illos A-E.

174 studiosus A-E; studiosius BAS.

178 prius vel A-C E BAS: deest in D.

185 ipse A-C E BAS: deest in D.

189-190 remetiendo BAS: remetiens A-E.

191 αἰκὲ E BAS: εἰκὲ A-D.

196 mei A C-BAS: deest in B.

202 posset BAS: possit A-E.

217-218 Hic ... occasionem E BAS: deest in A-D.

something from Erasmus' Nou. Instr. of 1516. But presumably the wrong date in the colophon of Lefèvre's second edition crept in by an error of the compositor, who omitted an I or II and wrote XV instead of XVI or XVII. From Ep. 445, ll. 41-43 it is clear that Lefèvre himself acknowledged that his second edition came out after Erasmus' Nou. Instr. Cf. this apologia, n. ll. 148-149. What is more, in his second edition Lefèvre quotes Erasmus favourably. See this apologia, n. ll. 215-218.

170-171 cursu ... linea These metaphors are drawn from the language of athletics, see Adag. 557 (a linea incipere), LB II, 246 A-C.
179 μικρολογεῖν i.e., to split hairs, make a fuss about trifles. Adag. 1933, ASD II, 4, p. 297, ll. 378-379 and n.

180 At ... addidisti. Cf. this apologia ll. 142-144. At the end of Lefèvre's disputatio (that is, in his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in his second edition, appendix IV) he expresses the expectation that Erasmus will react positively to it, cum ipse nobis stimulum respondendi addiderit. Appendix IV, ll. 580-581.

182 nasus "haughtiness", "disdain", "condescension", see sub Adag. 581 (Odorari ac similes aliquot metaphorae), LB II, 253 C. Cf. Otto 1198.

187 par pari Adag. 35, ASD II, 1, pp. 150-151. Cf. the present apologia, n. l. 1060.

189-191 καὶ λώιον ... αἰκὲ δύνηται Hes. Erg. 350. 196-199 Ego ... dissentio Cf. this apologia, n. l. 80 and n. l. 117.

199-200 nasum corrugare Cf. Hor. Epist. I, 5, 23 "corrugat nares", "to cause disgust". See also the present apologia, n. l. 182.

205 Apellis Famous painter, living in the days of Alexander the Great. Indeed, according to tradition, Alexander wanted to be painted only by him. A. Rumpf, "Apelles 4", in: Der kleine Pauly I, Stuttgart, 1964, col. 422.

206 Lysippi Renowned sculptor of the same period. He also was the only one in his profession who was allowed to immortalize Alexander in stone. W.H. Gross, "Lysippos 2" in: Der kleine Pauly III, Stuttgart, 1969, col. 843-844.

207 factum istud tuum Lefèvre's disputatio against Erasmus in his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, reproduced in appendix IV.

208 ansam Adag. 304 (Ansam querere et consimiles metaphorae), ASD II, 1, pp. 411-412.

209 vicem officii "a service in return", Cic. Sest. 4, 10.

210 contuli "I compared".

215-218 Si ... occasionem These words do not do justice to Lefèvre. In his second edition, Lefèvre corrected the note on 1 Cor. 5, 4 with due acknowledgement to Erasmus, who presumably did not notice it, for he ridicules Lefèvre's error at great length in this apologia (see ll. 2474-2487). As to Lefèvre's alleged failure to recognise Erasmus' merits, cf. also Ep. 607, from Erasmus to Cuthbert Tunstall, Louvain, 17 July <1517>, ll. 2-6. It is remarkable that Lefèvre did not alter his translation of 1 Cor. 5, 4. At 2 Cor. 10, 16, too, Lefèvre has rectified his note (here without mentioning Erasmus) but did not correct the translation. Erasmus did notice this alteration; see the present apologia, ll. 2511-2518).

Cur vno duntaxat in loco tibi succurrit Erasmus amicus et peramicus? An hoc vno in loco tantum abs te dissentio? Cur sic vrges, sic instas, sic immoraris, sic exquiris et excutis vt non oblata, sed quaeſita videri possit occasio? Atque adeo, vt proprius accedam ad rem, cur ibi fingis pugnam vbi nulla mihi tecum pugna est? Imo vbi pro te facio, id quod mox aperiam.

Ego veros lapsus aut lenio aut tego, tu vbi in re tranquillitas est, tuis verbis grauem excitas tempestatem. Neque dubito quin meam ciuitatem hac quidem in parte satis tecum agnoscas. Caeteris autem malim eam parum probari quam, dum eam nimium diligenter approbare nitor, partem aliquam eius laudis amittere, quando bona ciuitatis pars est non imputare ciuitatem.

Ac Deum omnium conscientia libenter et hoc dissimulatur eram, nisi quaedam inculcasses odiosiora quam vt mihi integrum esset dissimulare, quae mox proferentur. Lenitatis ac moderationis est dissimulare conuicia, sed vsque ad aras, vt aiunt. Impietas est ad impietatis crimen esse mutum. Non quod tu id palam intendas, sed tamen aspergis nonnulla quae, sicunde interpretem iniquiorem nacta fuerint, efficient vt videaris me non solum stupidum et ἀγράμματον facere, verum etiam impium. Quorum vt prius illud leuiter fero, ita posterius haud arbitror dissimulandum.

Accedit his et illud incommodi quod hic nec ipse tuam causam agere possum, si maxime velim. Etenim si candidius incipiā interpretari quae videntur inclemens abs te scripta, non effugiam quin videar ipse blandiri. Vide quo me deieceris angustiae. Atque haec ita habere mox, vt dixi, demonstrabimus.

Ea res, mi Faber, tametsi nonnihil molesta fuit, tamen non ita multum apud me valuit vt veterem meam de te opinionem mutarim, qua semper te virum literis ac pietate cum primis insignem esse iudicauī, sed tamen admonuit hominem esse te, ne quid ipse dicam aut suspicer inhumanius. Et haud scio an quicquid istud est stomachi tuorum affectibus dederis. Nam vt optimis nonnunquam principibus, ita mitissimis ingenii hoc vitii solet adhaerere, quod se duci patientur alieno instinctu. Neque enim me clam est quam multos habeas impendio tui studiosos, nec secus addictos tibi, quam si in tua verba iurassent, qui tua non secus atque oracula venerantur. Hi fortasse nephas esse ducunt vsquam abs te dissentire et protinus ad lapides prouocant, si quis verbo refragetur. Atque istorum sane studio non illibenter ignoscō quod a charitatis ac benevolentiae radice proficiscitur.

Caeterum aut omnino non noui te aut virum arbitror prudentiorem ac prorsus meliorem quam vt tuis commentariis tantum autoritatis deferri postules, quantum nec Augustinus postulat suis nec Ambrosius aut Hieronymus suis, praesertim quum ipse in hac tua defensione praesidium humanae autoritatis omne submoueas, quoties de veri inuestigatione agitur.

223–224 Atque adeo, vt E BAS: Imo vt A B,

Imo et C D.

226 veros A C–BAS: vero B.

229 approbare C–BAS: probare A B.

234 id E BAS: deest in A–D.

240 si maxime velim E BAS: deest in A–D.

250 iurassent BAS: iurarent A–E.

- 221 Cur ... peramicus See this apologia, n. ll. 36–37.
- 226 Ego ... tego Cf. this apologia, nn. ll. 80, 117 and 117–118.
- 226 vbi ... est Cf. this apologia, ll. 262–263 and n.
- 233–234 usque ad aras Adag. 2110 (Vsque ad aras amicus) ASD II, 5, p. 112. The meaning is: “only as far as is appropriate”.
- 234 Impietas ... mutum. Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 237–238: “... qui moderate ferre potest impietatis crimen, is leuiter pius est.” The accusation of impietas was a serious one because impietas had the connotation of heresy, see e.g., Ep. 778, ll. 174–175 “reputa ... quam sit odiosum hereseos et impietatis crimen ...” Cf. J.-P. Massaut, Critique et tradition à la veille de la réforme en France, Paris, 1974, pp. 63–64.
- 236 videaris ... stupidum Erasmus is referring to a passage in Lefèvre’s disputatio of 1516–1517; see appendix IV, l. 515.
- 236–237 ἀγράμματον In his disputatio, Lefèvre fiercely argues that the Hebrew ‘m’at’ and the Greek βραχύ τι never have a temporal meaning, see appendix IV, ll. 293–349. Erasmus argued the opposite in the Nov. Instr., see appendix III. Cf. this apologia, n. l. 10.
- 237 impium Cf. this apologia, ll. 14–15 and n. Lefèvre describes Erasmus’ interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 – more specifically, his explanation that Jesus had been humiliated infra abiectissimos etiam homines (see appendix III, ll. 23–24) – as: ... impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum, ... Spiritui aduersantem et litterae quae occidit adhaerentem. Caeterum id prorsus prophetae aduersatur ...; appendix IV, ll. 134–137.
- 237–238 Quorum ... dissimulandum On the other hand, in Ep. 607, from Erasmus to Cuthbert Tunstall, Louvain, 17 July 1517, ll. 10–13 and Ep. 608, from Erasmus to Peter Barbiri, Louvain, 17 July <1517>, ll. 25–26, Erasmus justifies his writing this apologia simply with his desire to show that he was not as stupid as Lefèvre had suggested. Elsewhere, however, e.g., in Ep. 731, from Erasmus to Wolfgang Capito, Louvain, 6 December <1517>, ll. 4–6, he describes the aim of this apologia as the refutation of Lefèvre’s accusation of impietas; cf. this apologia, l. 234 and n. and n. ll. 236–237.
- 242 quo ... angustiae “How difficult you have made things for me”, “how you have driven me into a corner”; angustiae is a partitive genitive, modifying quo. Cf. ll. 803–804: declarant quo se humiliatis Sermo ... deiecerit.
- 245–246 admonuit hominem esse Just as the slave whispered this in the ear of the Roman triumphator; cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 227, n. l. 24.
- 247 tuorum affectibus dederis “you gave in to the emotions of your friends.”
- 249 alieno instinctu For a similar insinuation, often used by Erasmus, see this apologia, ll. 39–40 and n.
- 250–251 quam ... venerantur Among Lefèvre’s students and adepts who reacted negatively to the present apologia are: William Budé, who wrote about this controversy to Erasmus in Ep. 810, Paris, 12 April <1518>, ll. 9–346; John Molendinus, see Ep. 755, from Erasmus to John Molendinus, <Louvain>, <c. January 1518>, ll. 13–24, from which it appears that John Molendinus reacted disapprovingly to the apologia; John Caesarius, see Ep. 680, from John Caesarius to Erasmus, Cologne, 22 September <1517>, ll. 1–24; Louis Ber, see Ep. 730, from Erasmus to Louis Ber, Louvain, 6 December 1517, ll. 29–40. Cf. H. Heller in: Contemporaries, s.v. Lefèvre, E. Rummel, Erasmus and his Catholic Critics, I 1515–1522, Nieuwkoop, 1989, pp. 54–56 and M. Mann, Erasme et les débuts de la réforme française (1517–1536), Paris, 1934, p. 4. See also Ep. 726, from Erasmus to Thomas More, Louvain, 30 November <1517>, ll. 8–10: “Ab ipso (i.e., Fabro) nihil metuo, tantum vereor ne discipulus aliquis subornetur, cum quo non digner digladiari.” In Ep. 890, from Erasmus to Henry Bullock, <Louvain>, <c. 23 October 1518>, ll. 1–3, Erasmus calls the “Fabristae” sycophants!
- 252 ad lapides provocant “They incite to proceed to lapidation”. Cf. Epp. 541, ll. 65–66; 597, l. 57; 948, l. 61.
- 256–257 vt ... Hieronymus suis Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 278–282: “Atqui si ipsi (i.c., Lefèvre) licet ab Augustino, Ambrosio, Hieronymo, imo semel ab omnibus antiquis ac probatis dissentire, mihi non licebit vel honorifice dissentire a Fabro? Et haec erit scriptorum conditio, vt quicunque a Fabro dissentiat, is euangeliis et sacris eloquiis aduersetur?”
- 258 defensione Here Erasmus calls Lefèvre’s attack a defensio in accordance with Lefèvre’s own designation in his disputatio; see appendix IV, l. 27.
- 258–259 praesidium ... submoueas In Erasmus’ opinion, Lefèvre’s interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 runs counter to almost the whole Christian tradition. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 16–18 and n. l. 18, and Ep. 778 as quoted in n. ll. 256–257.

260 Sed iam tempus est vt apologiae tuae altera respondeam apologia, quae mihi sic temperanda est vt ita meam tuear existimationem, ne quid laedam amici vel famam vel animum, quoad fieri poterit. Et quanquam facilis erat defensio vbi causae nulla pene est controuersia, tamen hic non paulum negotii mihi addidit 265 tua disputatio, multis verborum laciniis vndique diffluens, siue quod hic tuus est mos, siue quod ita tibi visum fuit in hoc ceu theatro specimen aedere, quantum polleres eloquentiae viribus et orationis vbertate. Proinde quum non mediocris sit negocii vel recensere quae sunt abs te disserta, quanto difficilius fuerit singula refellere. Vsque adeo omnia dilatas et exaggeras ac pene iuxta prouerbium ex musca facis elephantum.

270 Quis enim non ipso statim in limine expectet magnificam aliquam tragoe-diam, vt audierit te in exordio tam religiose implorantem coelestis auxilium numinis ac rursus in calce disputationis tam accurate perorantem vsque ad per omnia secula seculorum. Deinde iuxta rhetorum praecepta, credo quod tibi 275 videreris agere cum homine rhetorico, proponis quid conueniat cum aduersario et quid in controuersia relinquatur, veluti committens hinc atque hinc instructas acies. Tum perinde ac si apud Areopagitas de capite agatur, ita ad singulas capitis partes mea dicta subscribis; credas Demosthenem aduersus Aeschinem proferre testimonia.

280 Vt igitur carptim respondeam idque paucis nec ad omnia, sed ad ea potissimum quae mihi parum aequus lector tui vero studiosior in meam calumniam torquere possit, ne simul et molestus sim lectori et plus satis operae mihi percat in hoc negocio, necessario quidem illo sed inamoeno, summam causae proponis hunc in modum. Verum hanc, inquis, sententiam nostram in hoc loco non accep-285 tat amicus noster Erasmus neque beati Hieronymi sexti versus octaui psalmi, quem sic interpretatur: minues eum paulominus a Deo, gloria et decore coronabis eum, approbat interpretationem. Obsecro te νὴ τὴν ἀλήθειαν, nonne hic protinus controuersiam fingis, ne dicam fabricaris, vbi concordia est et praelium inducis vbi pax est et defensionem paras quum nemo vocet in ius et nullo actore temetipsum reum agis?

290 Relege totum eum locum in annotationibus meis, excute, vestiga num vllum vsquam insit verbum reiicientis Hieronymi tuamque sententiam; tantum recenseo duplcem lectionem, alteram Hieronymi cui tu subscribis, alteram Septuaginta et, vt quidam asserunt, Chaldaeorum quam et olim Graecorum et nunc Romana sequitur ecclesia magno orbis consensu, cui subscriptibunt tot orthodoxi
LB 23 nostra | religionis doctores, non minus eruditione quam vitae sanctimonia macti 296 spectatique.

300 Evidem existimabam id licere, praesertim in annotationibus, diuersas diuer-sorum opiniones recensere ac meam etiam, si visum esset, opinionem interponere hac lege, vt nihil secius liberum foret suum cuique iudicium neque cuiusquam sententiae praeiudicaretur. Qum enim viderem eam esse libertatem commenta-tiorum ad quam saepenumero prouocat diuus Hieronymus et hoc colore causam tuetur suam, arbitrabar multo magis idem ius mihi tribuendum in opere quod praeter humiles ac pene grammaticas quasdarn annotatiunculas nihil profiteretur, praesertim quum semel, imo non semel, sed crebro tester me annotationes 305 scribere, non dogmata.

273 *secula B-BAS: deest in A.*281 *torquere A B E BAS: torqueri C D.*283 *in hoc BAS: hoc in A-E.*262–263 vbi ... controversia Cf. this apologia, ll. 82–83 and n., and l. 226.264 tua ... diffluens Erasmus has little right to reproach Lefèvre for verbosity: Erasmus' Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap. is approximately five times as long as Lefèvre's disputatio of 1516/7 (see appendix IV).265 theatro For this image, see this apologia, ll. 75–77 and n.268–269 ex ... elephantum Adag. 869, LB II, 359 A.271–272 in ... numinis For Lefèvre's words to which Erasmus is referring here, see appendix IV, ll. 27–30. In this apologia, l. 231, Erasmus himself called upon God as a witness.272–273 in ... seculorum For the ending of Lefèvre's disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 583–585.273–275 iuxta ... relinquatur For the rhetorical rules Erasmus is referring to here, see H. Lausberg, Handbuch der literarischen Rhetorik I, München, 1973, pp. 155–156, 163–164 en 425–426. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 264–266.274 aduersario Cf. l. 342 and n.276 Areopagitas Members of the supreme court in Athens.277 Demosthenem ... Aeschinem These two Attic orators of the fourth century B.C. were very ill disposed to each other.283–286 Verum ... interpretationem This is a quotation from the second edition of Lefèvre's commentary on Paul, see appendix IV, ll. 19–22.283 in hoc loco Lefèvre's text reads hoc in loco.285 interpretatur I.e., Jerome in his translation of the Psalms iuxta Hebraeos; Ps. 8, 6.288 defensionem Cf. the present apologia, l. 258 and n.290 eum locum Erasmus' annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nov. Instr. of 1516, appendix III.291–292 tantum ... lectionem Cf. Hier. Adv. Ruf. III, CCSL 79, ed. P. Lardet, Turnhout, 1982, p. 83, ll. 9–11: "Hic est enim commentariorum mos ... vt opiniones in expositione varias persequantur ...". Cf. ibid., I, pp. 14–15, ll. 15–22. For the function of annotationes, see the present apologia, nn. ll. 299, 304 and 306.292–296 duplicem ... spectatique Cf. the present apologia, ll. 16–18 and n. l. 18 and ll. 258–259 and n.293 Chaldaeorum An Aramaic translation of the Psalms had recently been published by Agostino Giustiniani in his Psalterium octuplex, Genoa 1516. Lefèvre cites this work in his disputatio of 1516/7; see appendix IV, ll. 72–76.297–298 diuersas ... recensere Cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 291–292.299 liberum ... iudicium Cf. Hier. Comm. in Ir. (prologus) CCSL 74, ed. S. Reiter, Turnhout, 1960, pp. 1–2, ll. 9–12: "... leges commentariorum in quibus multae diuersorum ponuntur opiniones, vel tacitis vel expressis auctorum nominibus, vt lectoris arbitrium sit, quid potissimum eligere debeat, decernere ...", and Erasmus, Apologia (Holborn p. 170, ll. 33–35): "... in annotationis varias [i.e., lectiones] referimus, aut indicantes quid nobis optimum videatur, aut tuo relinquentes arbitrio quid sequi malis."304 annotationes Cf. Erasmus, Capita argumentorum contra morosos, LB VI, f° 3v°: "Annotationes scribimus, non leges; et expendenda proponimus, non protinus habenda pro compertis"; cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 49, nn. ll. 193–195. See also the present apologia, n. ll. 291–292. Cf. appendix V, ll. 365–366.

Hieronymus aliquoties et haereticorum recenset opiniones nec reicit sententias nec indicat autores, hic primum in ius trahatur si non licet referre quid senserint alii. At hic duas recenseo sententias quarum neutra sit haeretica, imo vtraque probata viris orthodoxis et recenseo, neutrā conuellens aut labefac-310 tans, tantum indicō quis scrupus obstrepere videatur vtramuis sequenti lec-tionem: nimirum hic quod Christus Iesus, quantum ad humanam naturam et vitae in terris actae speciem, non solum longe diminutus videatur infra Deum, verum etiam infra angelos et homines plerosque. Deinde tento rationes aliquot quibus ea difficultas possit explicari, nihil interim vel hic asseuerans sed, quod est 315 commentantis ac multo potius annotantis officium, lectori cogitandi materiam suppeditans.

Proinde non solum neutrā reicio sententiam, quod tu ais, sed tuae videor etiam fauere vt quam primo recitem loco ac Hieronymiana autoritate corro-borem, indicans vnde petere possit si quis plenius super ea cupiat edoceri, quum 320 alteram cui tu non faues nudam et inermem producam. Imo periclitor ne cui videar hoc loco tui nominis mentionem affectatus induxisse. Quorsum enim attinebat te huius sententiae autorem nominare, quum haud me praeteriret ante tot annos sic ex Hebraica veritate vertisse Hieronymum et eundem sic in com-325 mentariis suis annotasse? Si tamen hos Hieronymo tribuis, quos tamen mirum est in commentariis tuis abs te non fuisse citatos, quum illic tantopere contenderes docere a Deo legendum esse. Neque enim opinor te tam indiligentem vt scribens in Psalmos non curaris inspicere quid tantus autor dixisset.

Haec cum ita habeant, mi Faber, neque enim potest negari, vide, te quaeso, quam non ciuiliter proponas non contentus assumere quod tuam reiecerim sen-330 tentiam sed, quo res esset dictu odiosior, addis etiam Hieronymianam interpretationem a me non approbari, cui tamen faueo aut certe non aduersor.

Nec id satis erat. Subiiciis quod his quoque est odiosius. Scripta, inquis, eius in annotationibus huius loci interdum subiiciemus quo facilius legentes et eius mentem et meae assertionis et Hieronymianae interpretationis, imo propheticae intelligentiae defensionem intelligent. Videlicet haec eo tendunt vt non solum omneis tui studiosos, hoc est omneis, vt ita dixerim, Fabristas in me concites, verum etiam omneis quibus Hieronymi sacrosancta est autoritas, imo christianos vniuersos qui propheticae intelligentiae defensori fauent aduersus hostem. Si tu Hieronymianae interpretationis et propheticae intelligentiae defensor es, necessum est vt sit qui oppugnet. Hunc igitur hoc loco me facis, quum nihil sim minus. Atque hoc quidem est tuae disputationis vestibulum in quo puto te videre, quam parum amicabiliter agas cum amico, tuis enim verbis vtor. Aduersarium facis qui tuae sen-

306–307 sententias E BAS: deest in A–D.
 309 probata A B E BAS: reprobata C D.

331 aut ... aduersor E BAS: deest in A–D.
 341 est BAS: deest in A–E.

306 Hieronymus ... opiniones Cf. Hier., Adv. Ruf. I, CCSL 79, ed. P. Lardet, Turnhout, 1982, p. 21, ll. 14–18: "... et Origine dicente contraria, nos ecclesiasticum sensum securi sumus. Et quia commentatoris officium est multorum sententias ponere ... etiam Orige-

- nis, absque inuidia nominis eius, explanationem posui..." and the present apologia, n. ll. 291–292.
- 306–307 nec reiicit sententias Cf. on the other hand Hier. Adv. Ruf. III, CCSL 79, ed. P. Lardet, Turnhout, 1982, p. 83, ll. 8–9 (Here, Jerome discusses his own method): "... aperte confitentes quae sunt haeretica, quae catholica".
- 307 nec indicat autores For Jerome this was not a matter of principle, cf. Hier. Comm. in Ir. (prologus), CCSL 74, ed. S. Reiter, Turnhout, 1960, pp. 1–2, ll. 10–11: "... vel tacitis vel expressis auctorum nominibus ..." Erasmus himself does not consistently mention the authors he quotes; see the present apologia, n. l. 80 and E. Rummel, Nameless Critics in Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament, in: BHR 48 (1986) 41–57.
- 314–316 quod ... suppeditans Hier. Adv. Ruf. I, CCSL 79, ed. P. Lardet, Turnhout, 1982, p. 15, ll. 20–22: "... vt prudens lector, cum diuersas explanationes legerit et multorum vel probanda vel improbanda didicerit, iudicet quid verius sit ..."
- 317 reiicio ... ais In his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 19–22, Lefèvre had asserted that Erasmus rejected both his and Jerome's interpretations.
- 318 Hieronymiana autoritate Lefèvre himself had already mentioned that he had Jerome's support for the translation a Deo; see appendix I, l. 4. In the first edition of the S. Pauli Epistola XIV (1512) Lefèvre referred to this note, see appendix II, ll. 7–8. Cf. below, ll. 362–363.
- 319 indicans ... edoceri See appendix III, ll. 7–10: Erasmus mentioned Jerome and Lefèvre as supporting the reading a Deo.
- 319–320 quam ... producam Erasmus on the contrary argues at length in favour of his preferred reading – alteram cui tu non faues (see appendix III, ll. 22–59) – and also mentions where one can find further information in support of his view, viz. in Chrysostom and Theophylact, appendix III, ll. 31–32 and in Aquinas, ibid. l. 36.
- 320 inermem The metaphor corresponds to the one earlier used in the present apologia, ll. 27–33; cf. ll. 159–164.
- 321–324 Quorsum ... annotasse For Erasmus' conviction that he quoted Lefèvre in a very honourable sense, see the present apologia, ll. 129–130.
- 324–325 Si ... citatos Erasmus is suggesting that, since Lefèvre does not quote Jerome's Comm. in Ps., one could reasonably conclude that Lefèvre does not ascribe this work to Jerome. Erasmus himself doubts the Hieronymian authorship of the Comm. in Ps.. See the present apologia, ll. 537–546 and n. ll. 542–546.
- quos ... citatos* Lefèvre does mention the precedent of Jerome in translating a Deo (see appendix I, l. 4), but he does not actually quote Jerome's Comm. in Ps. Cf. the present apologia, n. l. 318.
- 328–331 Haec ... aduersor Syntactically, this sentence is no success.
- 332–335 Scripta ... intelligent See appendix IV, ll. 31–33.
- 335 defensionem Cf. the present apologia, ll. 255–259 and n. l. 258.
- 335–338 vt ... hostem Cf. ibid., ll. 249–252 and n. ll. 250–251. See, on the other hand, Ep. 653, from Erasmus to <John Fisher>, Antwerp, 8 September 1517, ll. 14–15 "Omnes vno ore theologi, omnes etiam Fabristae, mihi decernunt palmarum." And Ep. 794, from Erasmus to Peter Barbirius, Louvain, 6 March 1518, ll. 36–37: "Multos, vt ajunt, terret Fabri male accepti exemplum, nam prostratum esse fatentur et ipsi Fabristae ..."
- 338 hostem Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 94–96 "Satius igitur esse duxi Gratias alicubi non satisfacere quam Christi dignitatis labefactor et hostis videri: nam hac persona ille me produxit in theatrum."
- 338–339 Hieronyminae ... defensor See for these claims of Lefèvre, appendix IV, ll. 31–33.
- 341–342 amicabiliter ... amico See this apologia, ll. 36–37 and n.
- 342 Aduersarium See l. 1328 and l. 2227 and nn. Occasionally Erasmus also calls Lefèvre his aduersarius, see Ep. 794, from Erasmus to Peter Barbirius, Louvain, 6 March 1518, ll. 37–38: "... in quem (i.e., Fabrum) tamen viribus meis non sum vsus, fauens etiam, quoad licuit, aduersario." Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1002–1007.
- 342–343 qui ... patrocinor This presumably refers to the passage in which Erasmus observes that Lefèvre is in agreement with Jerome, appendix III, ll. 7–10. Erasmus likes to emphasize he could have cited Lefèvre less favourably: "Ego neutram sententiam nec in annotamento nec in Apologia refello, cum possem eam quam Faber solam vult esse piam, vt impiam ac falsam reiicere, idque applaudentibus, opinor, theologorum centuriis." Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 103–106.

tentiae patrocinor. Nam finge quod tu vis, nihil aliud legi posse nisi minorasti eum paulo minus a Deo. An paulum descendit qui Deus descendit ad hominem, quum humana natura infinitis partibus inferior sit diuina? Eamque difficultatem quum tu parum pudenter dissimules, ego citra tui notam amolior quod tuae interpretationi videbatur obstare. Et quum id faciam, aduersarium me fingis et propheticae intelligentiae impugnatorem.

Sic lectore de summa causae edocto singulas annotationis parteis vellicas ac vexas, quasi singulos dedissem aphorismos, cum quaedam obiter ac velut e superfluo admisceam, quaedam assumam argumentantis iure, non autoritate definientis. Insidiosum videlicet et callidum oppugnationis genus, praesertim apud eos quibus res parum est cognita. Quod si quemadmodum in iudiciis causa cadere solet qui litem perperam intendit, itidem fieret in disputationibus, iam haec causa mihi perorata erat. Nunc pergamus ostendere quam caetera huic amicæ propositioni respondeant.

Ingenuus fateris admonuisse te apud Hebraeos haberi scriptum: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo. Quid audio? Fateris, perinde quasi hoc tibi crimen intenderim? Imo si primus hoc admonuisses, gloriari poteras et ipse laudem hanc lubens tibi tribuisse. Quanquam quid erat ingenuitatis fateri quod libris aeditis vulgatum inficiari nullo modo poteras?

Mox velut alterum accusationis caput proponens, fateris esse in Hieronymianis commentariis quod illinc citaram, nisi quod ille idem dixit apertius. Nam id etiam obiter admonendus erat lector. Atque hic sane non solum ingenuus videri vis, qui fatearis quod palam extat in aeditis voluminibus, verum etiam civilis et amicus, sic enim scribis: et id tribuimus amico et sic habet veritas. Quid est hic quod largiris amicitiae nostræ? Si cum hoste fidei ageres, quid aliud poteras quam fateri verum esse quod negari nec debet nec potest?

Iam ceu tertium accusationis caput facis quod scripserim te hac in parte a Thoma dissentientem multis argumentis contendisse 'a Deo' legendum esse, non 'ab angelis', idque diuidis: partim agnoscens factum, sed vt recte factum defendens, partim factum inficians. Et probe, inquis, mea sententia. At quis intendit hoc perperam abs te factum? Nec hic erat inficiandum quicquam nec erat quod inficiari posses, nimirum libris euulgatis protinus tibi reclamaturis. Aio te multis argumentis contendere, non malis argumentis, nec sententiam tuam refellens nec argumenta tua vellicans, tantum lectori commonstro vnde posset petere si desideraret argumenta, simul ipse prolixam recitationem parum congruam annotatori declino.

In altera parte defendenda more rhetorum duplii vteris statu: primum negans te a Thoma dissensisse, deinde, vt id donec, contendis licere. Primum an non dissentit qui diuersum sentit nisi norit quid ille sentiat a cuius opinione dissentit? An ideo non sum dissimilis Petro quia nesciam qua ille sit forma? An nobis non 369 hac in A B E BAS: in hac C D.

374 tibi A C-BAS: deest in B.

373 abs E BAS: a A-D.

- 343–344 minorasti ... Deo This is a translation of Jerome's: Comm. ad Gal. II, iv, ad 2, 14, Migne PL 26, 407 D7–8.
- 345–346 Eamque ... dissimules Lefèvre did try to solve this problem; see appendix IV, e.g., ll. 237–255.
- 346 citra tui notam Cf. the present apologia, l. 1. III citra famae tui dispendium and l. 2449 citra tui nominis notam.
- 347 aduersarum Cf. the present apologia, l. 342, ll. 1328, 2227 and nn.
- 348 propheticae ... impugnatorem Cf. appendix IV, ll. 33 and 137. Cf. Ep. 777, from Erasmus to Henry Bullock, Antwerp, <c. 22 Februari 1518>, ll. 17–19: “Verum non vsque adeo mihi est amicus vt in illius gratiam hostis dignitatis Christi, et propheticae intelligentiae subversor, et ludeorum fautor esse debuerim ...”
- 349–350 Sic ... vexas Erasmus uses the same method in dealing with Lefèvre's work, namely, that of quoting and criticizing selected passages of which he did not approve.
- 350–352 quasi ... genus Cf. the present apologia, ll. 276–278.
- 350 aphorismos “positive assertions”.
- 352 Insidiosum ... genus Erasmus considers Lefèvre's misrepresentation of Erasmus' argumentation to be unfair and devious.
- 352–353 praesertim ... cognita Cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 41–42.
- 353 causa cadere “to lose his case”. causa is separative abl.
- 354–355 qui ... erat What Erasmus means is that if his argument against Lefèvre was as poor as Lefèvre suggested, then he had already lost his case and did not need to defend himself anymore.
- 354 litem ... intendit Cic. De Or. 1, 10, 42.
- 355–356 amicae propositioni Cf. appendix IV, ll. 28–29.
- 357–358 Ingenue ... Deo Appendix IV, ll. 36–37.
- 357 Ingenue fateris See appendix IV, l. 37. Erasmus quotes these words with a touch of irony. Actually there was nothing to admit, since what Lefèvre had remarked – viz. that the Hebrew text reads “lower than God” – was simply a fact verifiable in printed and published books. Time and again in the present apologia Erasmus alludes to these words (ingenue fateor) ironically, see ll. 34, 1569, 1580, 2166–2167. Cf. l. 2444: ingenuitatem requiro.
- 358–359 quasi ... intenderim Cf. the present apologia, l. 362 velut alterum accusationis caput proponens and l. 369 ceu tertium accusationis caput facis.
- 359 Imo ... poteras Cf. the present apologia, l. 318 and n.
- 360 fateri Lefèvre used this expression in his disputatio, see the present apologia, ll. 357–358 and nn.
- libris aeditis* Erasmus is referring here to Lefèvre's Quincuplex Psalterium (see appendix I for the note at Ps. 8, 6) and the first edition of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of the Pauline epistles (see appendix II for the note at Hebr. 2, 7).
- 362–363 fateris ... apertius See appendix IV, ll. 37–40.
- 366 et ... veritas Ibid., ll. 40–41.
- 369–371 Iam ... angelis See appendix IV, ll. 42–45.
- 369 scripserim See appendix III, ll. 19–20.
- 370 Thoma S. Thomae Aquinatis ... Super Epistolas S. Pauli Lectura, vol. II, ed. P. Raphael Cai, Rome and Turin, 1953, at Hebr. 2, 7, pp. 361–362: “Vbi sciendum est, quod ordine naturae, corruptibilia et passibilia minora sunt incorruptibilis et impassibilis. Angeli autem secundum naturam sunt impassibles et immortales. Vnde quando Christus dignatus est passionem et mortem sustinere, minoratus est ab ipsis.”
- 371 agnoscens factum The factum is Lefèvre's disagreement with Aquinas, see appendix IV, ll. 46–65.
- 372 factum inficians See appendix IV, ll. 66–70.
- Et ... sententia* See appendix IV, ll. 46–47.
- 374–347 Aio ... contendere See appendix III, ll. 19–20.
- 376–377 lectori ... argumenta For Erasmus' methodology in his annotations on the New Testament, cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 304, 306–307, 307 and 314–316.
- 379 more rhetorum Cf. this apologia, ll. 264–278.
- duplici viteris statu* For the rhetorical rules to which Erasmus is referring here, see Lausberg, Handbuch der literarischen Rhetorik I, München, 1973, pp. 418–419 and Quint. Inst. 3, 6, 10: “etiam si feci, recte feci, sed non feci.”
- statu* “status”, “type of defence according to the degree in which the case of the accused person is sustainable”.
- 379–380 primum ... dissensisse See appendix IV, ll. 66–70.
- 380 contendis licere Ibid., ll. 70–72.

dissentit alicubi Plato a M. Tullio quum ille nescierit quid hic sensurus esset? Certe nobis a Thoma dissentis quoties diuersum ab illo sentis, qui vtriusque 385 opinionem cum altera pugnantem cernimus. Nec hic attinebat anxie defendere quod a Thoma dissenseris, nisi, quod credo factum, quo gratiam inires apud huius sodales et apud eosdem me vocares in inuidiam. Ego nemini vnquam vitio verti quod a quoquam dissenserit, quantumlibet magni nominis autore, modo id faciat reuerenter erga eos quibus hoc honoris debetur, in quibus ego sane et 390 Thomam numero primum eruditionis deinde etiam sanctimoniae nomine.

Sed negas te tum consuluisse quid ille sentiret, magis autem quid dicerent eloquia, sic enim loqueris. Atqui operae precium erat, quum scribebas commentarios in Paulum, excutere quid ille sensisset, haudquaquam, vt opinor, aspernandus 395 autor, a quo quanquam et ipse locis aliquot dissentiam, tamen id facio aliquanto ciuilius ac reuerentius quam tu recenses: neque Erasmus, inquiens, ipse vt qui toties eum coarguat. Miror non dixisse te: qui toties eum explodat atque exibilet, quo fiat etiam atrocius. Neque consentaneum est Thomam non consuluisse quid dicerent sacrae literae, quum illa scriptis proderet.

Neque rursus id odiose aut suspiciose dictum est a me quod a Thoma dissentires, alioqui, si quid tale voluissem, addidisse potius ab Augustino dissentire te, nec dubito quin ab Hilario, ni pars ea commentariorum intercidisset, 401 dixissem a Chrysostomo, dixissem a Theophylacto, dixissem ab omnibus orthodoxis vno excepto Hieronymo eoque incerto, dixissem a publica totius ecclesiae consuetudine tot iam seculorum vsu comprobata, si te inuidia voluissem onerare. 405 Nihil horum. Simpliciter ostendi quemadmodum tua sententia consentiret cum Hieronymiana, ita eandem abs Thomae opinione dissentire, caeterum Thomae sententiam Chrysostomi Theophylactique interpretationi congruere, praeterquam quod illi simpliciter ad humanam naturam referre videntur, hic ad corpus assumptum duntaxat arbitratur pertinere, lectori commonstrans neutri sententiae 410 suos deesse autores.

Hic vero Thomae causam sic agis vt non putas absoluendum nisi persuaseris illum simpliciter errasse et credidisse sic haberi apud Hebraeos. At mihi videtur Thomas nec tam supinus et oscitans vt, cum aederet commentarios in hunc locum, nec Hieronymianam interpretationem consuluerit nec eiusdem in hunc 415 psalmum commentaryem excusserit. Imo vero propius est illum hac in parte plus tribuisse publicae ecclesiarum omnium consuetudini et orthodoxorum autorum tanto consensui, quam vnius Hieronymi ex ignota barbaraque lingua annotatione. Praesertim quum is paucis verbis sic indicauerit quid haberetur apud Hebraeos vt alteram tamen lectionem nec reliceret nec insectaretur, id quod tu 420 gnauiter facis. Atqui vtinam Hieronymi magis placuissest exemplum. Etenim si Hieronymianam modestiam hic imitari voluisses, rectius tuae famae, mi Faber, consuluissest nec hanc amico suscitasses tragoediam.

Quod si Thomas diuinum illud et e coelo delapsum octaplum opus vidisset, forsitan ausus fuisset publicam lectionem immutare. Tanto enim apparatu mihi 425 citas scriptorem, vt ne quid aliud dicam recentem, ac si proferres oraculum e 400 addidissem A–E: edidissem BAS.

 402 Theophylacto BAS: Vulgario A–E.
 403 eoque incerto B–BAS: deest in A.
 406 abs E BAS: cum A–D.

386–387 quo ... inuidiam For a similar insinuation, cf. the present apologia, ll. 335–338.
 387 me ... inuidiam “you make me hateful”. Cf. Cic. Phil. 2, 24, 59.
 387–388 Ego ... verti “I have never blamed anyone for ...”. For this expression, cf. the present apologia, l. 83 and n.
 391–392 negas ... loqueris See appendix IV, ll. 47–48 and ll. 67–68.
 394 a quo ... dissentiam E.g., at Rom. II, II, Nov. Instr., pp. 444–445, at Hebr. 5, II, ibid., p. 589 and at Hebr. 2, 7, see appendix III, ll. 10–18.
 395–396 neque ... coarguat See appendix IV, ll. 48–49.
 398 quam ... proderet “Since it was precisely his intention to shed light on the meaning of Scripture in his commentary.”
 400–404 ab ... comprobata Erasmus here supposes a disagreement between Lefèvre and the Church Fathers. In his disputatio, Lefèvre had denied disagreeing with them; see appendix IV, ll. 350–359 and ll. 457–476. What Lefèvre meant was that these Fathers were incapable of understanding Hebr. 2, 7, since they knew only Greek. Within the limits of their knowledge, their interpretation was correct. If they had known Hebrew, Lefèvre argued, they would have understood the real meaning of Ps. 8, 6, which Paul had of course quoted correctly, and then would have shared Lefèvre’s point of view.
 401 pars ... intercidisset B. Altaner, Patrologie. Leben, Schriften und Lehre der Kirchenväter, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1978⁸, p. 363, notes only that Hilary’s biblical commentary on Job is no longer extant. Further Altaner notes that a Tractatus super Psalmos remained unfinished. In this work Hilary treats Ps. 1 f.; 9; 13 f.; 51–69; 91; 118–150. Thus, it is unlikely that Hilary wrote commentaries on either Ps. 8, 6 or Hebr.
 403 Hieronymo ... incerto Cf. the present apologia, ll. 537–546 and n. ll. 542–546.
 409–410 lectori ... autores Cf. Hier., Comm. in Ir. (prologus), CCSL 74, ed. S. Reiter, Turnhout, 1960, pp. 1–2, ll. 9–12 and the present apologia, ll. 299–300 and n.
 409 commonstrans The participle qualifies the subject of ostendi, l. 405, i.e., Erasmus.

407 Theophylactique BAS: Vulgariique A–E.
 407–408 praeterquam B–BAS: nisi A.
 420 Atqui E BAS: atque A–D.

411–412 Hic ... Hebraeos See appendix IV, ll. 62–65 and ll. 459–476.
 418–419 Praesertim ... insectaretur See the present apologia, n. l. 18 and Hier., Comm. in Ps., CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.
 420 Atqui ... exemplum Here Erasmus is suggesting that Lefèvre would have done well to leave the interpretation open, just as Jerome had done. According to Erasmus, a commentator is not obliged to decide. See the present apologia, n. ll. 291–292, n. l. 299 and ll. 300–302.
 422 amico Cf. ibid., ll. 36–37 and n.
tragoeidam See ibid., ll. 75–77 and n.
 423 diuinum ... opus The Psalterium octuplex, written by Agostino Giustiniani (c. 1470–1536) of Genoa. It was published in November 1516 (Allen, Ep. 810, n. l. 356 and R.G. Hobbs, Contemporaries II, s.v.). Lefèvre recommends it in his disputatio; see appendix IV, ll. 72–76, possibly because Agostino Giustiniani quotes Lefèvre’s interpretation of Ps. 8, 6 with approval in the Psalterium octuplex, I^o B ii. In the present apologia, Erasmus speaks about it sarcastically and slightly, ll. 423–441. He later regretted this; see Ep. 906, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 December, 1518, ll. 482–483: “... proinde dolet quod illius nomen in Apologia perstrinxerim.” In spite of this, Erasmus never altered the passage about Giustiniani in the present apologia. Remarkably, in Ep. 878, from Erasmus to <Hermann, Count of Neuenahr>, Louvain, 19 October 1518, ll. 2–3, Erasmus claims to have spoken positively about Giustiniani’s work. For more information, see Allen, Ep. 906, n. l. 483. e coelo delapsum Adag. 786 (Terra filius), LB II, 329 B–C.
 424 apparatu “with a great deal of fuss”, “with a flourish of trumpets”.
 425 recentem Erasmus is speaking of Giustiniani with disdain, because the latter is not an ancient, but merely a modern author. Giustiniani was born in 1470. (R.G. Hobbs in Contemporaries).
 425–426 e tripode Cf. Cic. Nat. 3, 16, 42. The reference is to the tripod of the Pythia, the priestess of Apollo in Delphi. Adag. 690 (Ex tripode), LB II, 297 E–298 C.

tripode redditum. Ego vt hominis istius studium insectari nolim, ita nolim rurus illius autoritate admodum grauari. Etenim quod attinet ad operis vtilitatem, iam aeditum erat Basileae psalterium tribus linguis idque satis, opinor, feliciter et emendate. Nec est vnde praesidium petamus nisi ab his linguis, si quid nos in

430 Psalmis torqueat. Nam vt fonteis nemo potest contemnere, ita Septuaginta interpretum omnibus semper fuit grauissima autoritas, nec quod Hieronymus Latine vertit ex Hebraica veritate reicit ecclesia, etiamsi publicitus non vtitur. Quid autem refert, si posthac psalterium in sexcentas linguas transfusum nobis proponas? Etenim quod ad autoritatem attinet, haud ita multum interest Sueicum 435 an Hybernicum an Gothicum psalterium mihi proferas, an Arabicum Armeniacumue.

Et quum res plurimum habeat fumi plurimumque ostentationis, vix vllum hic fructum video nisi forte vt hoc volumine discamus tot linguas praedicaturi Christum apud eas nationes. Nam si studemus vt hac ratione inter barbaros spargatur 440 euulgeturque christiana religio, proprius ad rem faciebat euangelicam historiam et apostolicas epistolas totidem linguis producere quam psalterium.

Iam de annotationibus quas ex cabalisticis et talmudicis et rabbinis Iudeorum adducit, primum paucas deinde plerasque etiam frigidas, in praesentia non disputabo pluribus. Hoc tantum fatebor, mihi quicquid vsquam adhuc hauriri

445 video ex apocryphis Hebraeorum libris, maxima ex parte aut suspectum haberi aut videri frigidum nec magnopere facere ad nostrum Christum. Porro quod ad eruditionem hominis pertinet, primum quam Graece Latineque calluerit, ex ipsius praefationibus facile deprehendet quisquis vtranque linguam perdidicerit. Iam qualis sit in caeteris, aliis coniectandum relinquo. Quorsum igitur attinebat
450 vt illius praefationem tot linguis legeremus, velut hoc argumento protinus crediti

LB 26 illum has callere linguas? At hoc opus non probant modo, verum etiam | suspiciunt ac mirantur duo praedicatorii sodalitii fratres. Non adducam huc illud e triuio mutuum muli. Ista comprobatio plus habebit ponderis apud eruditos, si comprobatum sit istos, qui opus hoc comprobarunt, intellexisse quod probant.
455 Neque enim arbitror hanc tyrannidem in litterariam etiam politiam esse recipiendam, vt hic aut ille librum suo arbitratu nunc creta nunc carbone notet, etiam si nihil intelligat. Nam quid aliud est autoritas sine iudicio quam tyrannis? Et tamen hic vt Augustini tui studium non improbo, quod fauorem promereatur quisquis quocunque modo conetur illustrare sacras literas, ita tuum candorem, 460 mi Faber, amo proboque, sed miror cur hunc vni Erasmo non praestiteris, praesertim toties amico tum huc prouocatus.

Sed haec pluribus fortasse quam sat est. Illud haud dum scio, nunquid ad me pertineat quod ais falsum tibi videri angelos nullis malis attingi posse, quum et peccato fuerint obnoxii et poenam horreant. Quasi vero Christum cum impiis ange-

465 lis conferam aut, cum malum dico, de peccatis aut poenis sentiam admissorum. De his malis illic ago quibus humana natura est obnoxia et mihi satis est quod angelus mori non potest, sitire non potest, crucifigi non potest. Neque vero, vt dixi, cum malis angelis Christum arbitror conferendum, sed cum his potius quorum felicitas iam in tuto est, de quibus et absolute dictum verum arbitror nullis 470 malis attingi posse.

Atque hactenus quidem non admodum cruenta fuit velitatio, dum nunc imperitis, nonnunquam concedis ac parcis aduersario. At in his quae sequuntur 428 iam A-C E BAS: ita D.

435 tert. an BAS: aut A-E.

442 rabbinis B-BAS: rabbi A.

469 arbitror BAS: est A-E.

427–430 Etenim ... torqueat These words seem to suggest that in Erasmus' view Lefèvre's Quincuplex Psalterium of 1509 was not a very useful work either.

428 psalterium tribus linguis This Psalterium is incorporated in the Opera Omnia of Jerome, edited by Erasmus in co-operation with Conrad Pellicanus and published by Froben, Amerbach and Rechburgius in Basel in 1516. The Psalterium appears in it in Greek, Latin and Hebrew. Both Jerome's Latin translation iuxta Hebraeos and his Latin translation iuxta LXX are included.

430 fonteis Cf. Adag. 1087 (E dolio haurire), LB II, 442E–443B.

434–435 Suevicum ... Gothicum Erasmus mentions the languages Swedish, Irish and Gothic ironically, as examples of very strange languages of barbarian countries.

435 Hybernicum “Irish”. For Erasmus' view of the Irish, cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 181, n. l. 289.

437 res The content of Giustiniani's Psalterium Octuplex.

fumi Adag. 3783 (fumus ... dicuntur promissa magnifica quidem, sed inania), LB II, 1141 D–E.

438 tot linguas Giustiniani's work contains the Psalter in Hebrew, Greek and Arabic, with a Latin translation of each. It also contains an Aramaic Targum and rabbinic scholia.

442–443 cabalisticis ... Iudeorum For Erasmus' negative opinion on these Jewish books, see also S. Markish, Erasmus and the Jews, Chicago and London, 1986, p. 73.

443 frigidas “insipid”, “vain”, “without point”.

449 coniectandum “to draw their conclusions”.

450 praefationem tot linguis The preface in Giustiniani's Psalterium is given in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Arabic and Aramaic.

451–452 suspiciunt “they admire”, “honor”.

452 duo ... fratres These two Dominicans are Bernardus Granellus and Caspar de Varagine, who examined Giustiniani's Psalterium on behalf of the inquisition. They are mentioned on the imprimatur on f° A4r°. They do not appear in J. Quetif and J. Echard, Scriptores ordinis praedicatorum I-II, Paris, 1719–1721.

452–453 e triuio “ex trivio”, “off the street”, “from the mob”, “common”, Cic. Mur. 6, 13.

453 mutuum muli Adag. 696, LB II, 300 A–D. (Mutuum muli scabunt. Vbi improbi arque illaudati se vicissim mirantur ac praedicant.)

455 politiam Synonym of “res publica”.

456 creta ... notet Adag. 454, ASD II, 1, pp. 527–528 (creta notare pro eo quod est approbare et carbone notare quod est damnare.)

457 sine iudicio Erasmus here refers to the authority of incompetent people as sine iudicio, because they assert their opinion about translations they cannot judge about.

458 Augustini Agostino Giustiniani, see the present apologia, n. l. 423.

460 proboque Ov. Met. 7, 20.

miror ... praestiteris Erasmus wonders why Lefèvre did not treat him kindly, although Erasmus favoured Lefèvre so much; see the present apologia, ll. 123–130. Erasmus complained about this already earlier in this apologia, see ll. 209–220, but see also n. ll. 215–218.

461 tum “And moreover”.

prouocatus For Erasmus' claim that, in several letters, he tried to provoke a response from Lefèvre, see the present apologia, ll. 139–149 and n. ll. 148–149, l. 180 and n.

463 falsum ... posse See appendix IV, l. 53. Cf. the present apologia, n. l. 370 and appendix III, ll. 10–13. Lefèvre elaborates on the theme that angels can sin and be punished for it in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 52–61.

471 velitatio “wrangling dispute”.

472 aduersario For Lefèvre's use of this word, cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 342–343.

quae sequuntur I.e., in Lefèvre's disputatio; see appendix IV, from l. 62.

nihil inter nos conuenit, perstrepunt classica, crudescit pugna, omni machinarum genere premor et vrgeor miser. Quo me vertam? Quem deum aut hominum implorem, imbecillis, inermis et huius militiae rudis miles, cum tantus ac tam exercitatus bellator cominus vrgeat? Iam non de asini, quod dici solet, vmbra certamen est, de capite agitur, ferro petuntur vitalia atque, vt aptius dicam, mihi sane περὶ τῶν κρεῶν δρόμος.

Vt piaculum admissum insectaris quod scripserim: verum siue legas a Deo siue ab angelis, idem manet scrupus. Quis, inquis, relinquitur scrupus si constat legendum esse a Deo? Si istud vsque adeo constat, doctissime Faber, et si altera lectio falsa, impia, haeretica et diuinae scripturae aduersa, quin hoc persuades orbi christiano? Quin synodus imploras vt tantus error ex omnibus ecclesiae codicibus aboleatur? Quin Ambrosii, Hilarii, Augustini, Chrysostomi, Theophylacti et, ne persequar omnes, vniuersorum orthodoxorum, vno excepto Hieronymo, vicem deploras, qui per omnem aetatem sic legerint, sic scripserint, sic docuerint?

Christus, vt ais, nec paulum nec multum fuit imminutus ab angelis et tamen haec vox in omnibus Christiani orbis ecclesiis auditur, haec in scholis, haec in sacris concionibus publicitus resonat. O rem horrendam, si tam certo verum est, quam tu firmiter asseueras, Christum nec paulum nec multum ab angelis fuisse diminutum. Atqui si tuam aspernatus sententiam huic adhaesisset, tamen haud merebar obiurgari si Septuaginta interpretum autoritatem quae Hilario, Ambrosio, Augustino ac pene doctoribus omnibus olim sacrosancta fuit, quam ipsi etiam apostoli non dedignantur aliquoties sequi et, si quid huic addit momenti, aeditio Chaldaica, si vtriusque orbis Graecanici et Romani publicum in hac re consensum, si consuetudinem tot seculorum autoritate comprobatum vnius Hieronymi annotationi anteponerem. Pudens, non impius videri poteram, si minus ausus fuisse a totius populo pariter ac senatu dissentire, vnius Hieronymi secutus suffragium licet alias grauissimum.

Certe non fugit ecclesiasticos proceres quid verterit aut admonuerit diuus Hieronymus et tamen tot iam aetatibus diuersam sequuntur lectionem idque tum publicitus, tum magno consensu. Nam quod hunc enarrans psalmum ceu classico hortaris ad eluendas e codicibus mendas, quid sibi velit non satis intellico. Neque enim id sentis, opinor, lectionem hanc errore librariorum induictam fuisse vt mendum appellari debeat. Quicquid habent Hebraei, certe ab angelis trididerunt nobis Septuaginta idque hactenus constanter sequitur ecclesia, haudquaquam, opinor, factura ni iudicasset neutram lectionem cum impietate

484 Theophylacti BAS; Vulgarii A-E.

489 resonat BAS: praedicator A-E.

499 suffragium B-BAS: autoritatem A; grauissimum B-BAS: grauissimam A.

473-476 perstrepunt ... vrgeat For Erasmus' metaphorical use of terms belonging to the world of warfare, cf. the present apologia, ll. 159-164 and n.

474 miser Cf. Ter. And. 649: "nescis quantis in malis vorser miser."

Quo me vertam? Ter. Hec. 516. Cf. the present apologia, l. 241-242: Vide quo me deiceris angustiae?

474 deum i.e., deorum.

476-477 de ... est Adag. 252, ASD II, 1, pp. 362-365.

- 478 περὶ ... δούμος For this use of κρέας, cf. Aristoph. Equ. 421 and 457. For this reproach, cf. the present apologia, ll. 335–338.
- 479–481 Vt ... Deo See appendix IV, ll. 77–79. Up until l. 148, Lefèvre argues that reading a Deo in Hebr. 2, 7 is christologically unobjectionable.
- 479 scripterim Lefèvre's rendition of Erasmus' opinion does no justice to Erasmus' own words. Erasmus had written: videtur idem manere scrupus (appendix III, l. 22), but Lefèvre quoted this as idem manet scrupus (appendix IV, ll. 77–78). Cf. the present apologia, ll. 546–549 and nn.
- 481–486 Si ... docuerint Cf. the present apologia, ll. 399–404 and nn. ll. 400–404.
- 482 falsa ... aduersa Cf. appendix IV, ll. 116–119, ll. 132–136 and ll. 147–148.
- 484 Ambrosii Neither Ambrose nor Ambrosiaster quotes Hebr. 2, 7 with the reading 'ab angelis'. So Erasmus seems to intend passages as cited in the present apologia, ll. 880–900, where Ambrosiaster emphasizes Jesus' humilation.
- Hilarii* I have not found a quotation of Hebr. 2, 7 in the form 'ab angelis' in Hilary; see, however, the present apologia, ll. 400–402 and n. l. 401, and ll. 910–911 and n.
- Augustini* Cf. ll. 532–536 and ll. 901–907.
- Chrysostomi Enarr. ad. Hebr.*, 2, 7, hom. iv, Migne PG 63, 38.
- Theophylacti Expos. ad Hebr.*, 2, 6–7, Migne PG 125, 208 B12–C9.
- 486 vicem deploras "Why do you not) lament the fate of ...".
- 487–489 Christus ... resonat Cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 400–404.
- 487 Christus ... angelis See appendix IV, ll. 81–84 and ll. 157–158.
- 488–489 omnibus in ... resonat The reading "ab angelis" is that of the Vulgate of both Ps. 8, 6 and Hebr. 2, 7. In Scripture lessons both passages could therefore only have the form "ab angelis", never "a Deo". The Psalter of the Roman Breviary, from which the complete Psalter was recited each week, is that of the Vulgate (i.e., the Psalterium Gallicanum). Consequently, in the Breviary, too, Ps. 8, 6 reads "ab angelis". The Psalter used in the fixed liturgical texts of the Mass and in the office of St. Peter in Rome is the Psalterium Romanum, but in this Psalter, too, Ps. 8, 6 reads "paulo minus ab angelis"; see R. Weber Le Psautier Romain (Collectanea Biblica Latina 10), Rome 1953, p. 14. Erasmus is correct, therefore, in stating that the only form in which Ps. 8, 6 occurred in ecclesiastical, liturgical practice was the form "ab angelis"
- 489–490 si ... asseueras Cf. the present apologia, ll. 511–512 quam ... asseueras.
- 494–495 si ... momenti This clause testifies to Erasmus' disparaging view of the targum. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 427–430, where Erasmus argues that it is unnecessary to use other versions than those included in the Psalterium tribus linguis, edited by Erasmus et. al. in 1516, and incorporated in Jerome's Opera Omnia. In 1516, however, Erasmus did use the testimony of the targum; see appendix III, ll. 47–48.
- 495 aditio Chaldaica Erasmus here assumes that the targumim occasionally confirm the Septuagint reading of Ps. 8, 6. This is a correct supposition; see, for example, the targum at Ps. 8, 6, ed. P. de Lagarde, Hagiographa, Chaldaice, Leipzig, 1873 (reprint Osnabrück, 1967), p. 4, l. 29. The relevant Aramaic passage offers the same interpretation of "elohim" as the LXX: "the angels".
- 497 vnius Hieronymi Elsewhere in the present apologia, see l. 824. Erasmus even suggests that Lefèvre was the only author to hold the view that one should read 'a Deo' in Hebr. 2, 7, since Jerome's authorship of the Comm. in Ps. is questionable. But then Erasmus forgets that Jerome's translation of the Psalms iuxta Hebraeos (which is undoubtedly his work), ad Ps. 8, 6 also reads a Deo. For the suggestion that Lefèvre is the only interpreter who reads a Deo, see also the present apologia, ll. 537–546 and n. ll. 542–546.
- 499 suffragium "vote", "voice", hence "opinion".
- 503 classico Cf. Adag. 2488 (Bellicum canere. Recepui canere), ASD II, 5, p. 340, ll. 284–296.
- hortaris ... mendas* Lefèvre 1509, see appendix I, l. 93: Mendas codicum eluite ...
- 504 librariorum "of the scribes, copyists". Cf. Erasmus, Apologia, ed. Holborn, p. 165, l. 31 and p. 166, l. 18.
- 507–508 haudquaque ... esse This argument is not conclusive, for the Church could also have followed the reading ab angelis, if it had rejected the reading a Deo. Probably Erasmus merely expressed himself infelicitously. He means to say that if the Church had considered the reading ab angelis impious, it would not have been accepted.

coniunctam esse, quod tu magnopere et sine fine contendis, nisi forte impium non est palam ac serio mentiri de Christo eaque publice in diuino cultu ac templis canere quae propheticae intelligentiae, quae diuinis literis, quae tibi nescio cur vbiique peculiari vocabulo dicantur eloquia, ἐκ διαμέτρου repugnant. Si tam constaret, quam tu constanter asseueras, apud Hebraeos nihil aliud accipi posse quam Deum, tamen si quid nouasset Spiritus Sanctus siue per interpretes Septuaginta, vt plerisque visum est, siue per ecclesiam, quicquid id erat, non arbitror cuiquam christiano contumeliose reiiciendum, quod nec ipse Hieronymus ausus est facere duobus tantum verbis indicans quid legerent Hebrei, non damnans quod vertissent Septuaginta.

At constat, inquis, quod Paulus sic adduxerit. Primum apud me certe non constat hanc epistolam a Paulo scriptam Hebraice, etiam si plerique id opinentur. Deinde si nusquam Paulus sequitur aeditionem Septuaginta, donabo fortassis non videri probabile hic voluisse sequi. Quod si compertum est, vt est, eum aliis locis frequenter vti ea, prodigiosum non sit si idem hic fecisset, praesertim cum in Actis apostolorum cum Hebraeis agens Esaiae locum non iuxta Hebraicam veritatem, sed iuxta Septuaginta aeditionem adducat, vade ad populum istum et dic ad eos: aure audietis et non intelligetis et caetera. Sed hoc mox proprius et suo loco diligentius excutiemus.

Interim quod institueram persequar. Nihil video causae, Faber eruditissime, cur mihi impingendum putaris quod vtranque lectionem recenseo neutra reiecta. Nihil enim aliud hic de nobis queri potes. Et fauebam et faueo tuae Hieronymique sententiae, sed mihi tum non est visum sic alteram recipere, vt alteram velut impiam et haereticam repudiarem, quae talis non est visa sacro-sanctis ecclesiae doctoribus et in primis Augustino qui hunc locum non veretur ad hunc interpretari modum. Nam ipsius verba subscribam si forte requiris: quandoquidem et angeli sunt opera manuum Dei, etiam super angelos constitutum accipimus unigenitum Filium, quem minutum paulominus ab angelis per humilitatem carnalis generationis atque passionis audiuiimus et credimus.

Imo nec ipse Hieronymus, cuius vnius autoritate niteris, cum alias frequenter, tum quartum edisserens caput epistolae ad Galatas, dubitat hanc sequi lectionem ita scribens: quod autem ait: sicut angelum, sicut Christum Iesum suscepistis me et angelo Christum ostendit esse maiorem quem secundum dispensationem corporis minorem psalmista cantauerat dicens: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis. Proinde Hieronymi autoritas eiusdem autoritate poterat refelli, qui tribus verbis duntaxat annotauit apud Hebraeos haberi a Deo idque in eo opere de quo docti vehementer addubitant num eius sit cui inscribitur. At idem in his libris, de quibus nullus ambigit quin ipsius sint, eam lectionem amplectitur quam tu vt Christo indignam iubes explodi. Vt sileam interim quod mea adducens pro eo quod modestius scripseram, videtur idem manere scrupus, tu recitas: idem manet scrupus, quasi nihil intersit inter dubitantem inquirentemque et asseuerantem, inter vestigatorem et dogmatistem.

550 Ego delectum lectionis suo cuiusque iudicio relinquens, aperio difficultatem quae videbatur obstare intelligentiae. Nam cum vtique verum sit quod legimus Christum diminutum, aut secundum diuinam naturam imminutus intelligatur

522 frequenter B-BAS: deest in A.

522–525 praesertim ... et caetera. B-BAS: deest in A.

524 adducat B E BAS: adduceret C D.

534 super A-C E BAS: supra D.

537–546 Imo ... explodi E BAS: deest in A-D.

539 angelum BAS: angeli E.

508 quod ... contendis Lefèvre argues in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 116–192 that the reading ab angelis is impious.

impium Erasmus chooses this word because Lefèvre had used it against him, see appendix IV, l. 134.

510 propheticae intelligentiae See ibid., l. 33.

511 ἐξ διακέτον repugnant Adag. 945, LB II, 380 E–F.

512 quam ... asseueras See appendix IV, ll. 6–12.

513 nouasset “had changed”.

516–517 duobus ... Septuaginta Hier., Comm. in Ps., CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

516 non damnans Cf. the present apologia, n. l. 18.

518 At ... adduxerit See appendix IV, ll. 8–9.

518–519 apud ... Hebraice For Erasmus’ doubts about the Pauline authorship of Hebr., see: LB VI, 1023 D–1024 F and Ep. 1171, from Erasmus to Matthew Schinner, Louvain, 16 December 1520, ll. 6–11. Cf. E. Rummel, Erasmus and his Catholic Critics, I 1515–1522, Nieuwkoop, 1989, p. 208, n. 45.

524–525 vade ... intelligetis Act. 28, 26, a paraphrase of Is. 6, 9 LXX.

531 impian et haereticam Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre’s condemnation of Erasmus’ opinion that Jesus had been humiliated infra abiectissimos etiam homines (appendix III, ll. 23–24); appendix IV, ll. 132–136).

534–536 quandoquidem ... credimus Aug. Enarr. in Ps. 8, 11, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 54, ll. 7–11. This text reads “audiuimus” where Erasmus writes audiuiimus. The apparatus criticus in Dekkers-Fraipont, ad locum, does not mention the variant reading audiuiimus.

539–541 quod ... angelis Hier., Comm. ad Gal., 2, 4, Migne PL 26, 407 D3–8. Migne reads “esse ostendit” where Erasmus reads ostendit esse and “minorasti” where Erasmus reads minuisti.

542–546 Proinde ... explodi Cf. LB VI, 988 F:

“... commentarii quos habemus in Psalmos aut non sint Hieronymi aut certe multis locis contaminati sint alienis emblematis ...” In his edition of Jerome’s work, Erasmus also put the authorship of the Comm. in Ps. into doubt, vol. I, f. 75v° (Allen, Ep. 778, n. l. 184). The authenticity of the Comm. in Ps. has actually been called into question by other scholars; see P. Antin in his introduction to the Comm. in Ps. of Jerome (CCSL LXXII, Turnhout, 1959), pp. 165–166. The authenticity of the Comm. in Gal., however, has never been doubted. Cf. O. Bardenhewer, Geschichte der altkirchlichen Literatur III, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1912, pp. 620 and 625. In the last edition of the Annot. in N.T. Erasmus added after Hieronymus (appendix III, l. 3), “... aut si quis alius fuit ...”, LB VI, 985 D. Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 183–186, and the present apologia, l. 824 and n.

545–546 quam ... explodi Cf. appendix IV, ll. 134–135.

547 videtur ... scrupus See appendix III, l. 22. Cf. the present apologia, l. 479 and n. and l. 732 and n.

547–548 idem manet scrupus See appendix IV, ll. 77–78.

548–549 quasi ... dogmatistem Cf. the present apologia, ll. 302–305 where Erasmus emphasizes that what he wrote were annotationes, not dogmata. See also ibid., n. l. 304.

550–551 Ego ... intelligentiae Erasmus knows that this view on the task of commentators is supported by that of Jerome; see Hier. Adv. Ruf. I, CCSL 79, ed. P. Lardet, Turnhout, 1982, pp. 14–15, ll. 15–22. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 290–316 and nn.

551–553 Nam ... humanam Erasmus fails to mention here the possibility of Christ’s being humiliated with regard to his divine nature as well as to his human nature.

oportet aut secundum humanam. Si secundum diuinam, non fuit vlo pacto inde diminutus in quo semper fuit aequalis. Si iuxta humanam assumptam, opinor non mediocre interuallum esse inter angelicam felicitatem et humanae vitae calamitatem. Neque enim arbitror ob id tantum dici deiectum quod humanam naturam assumpserit, sed quod | omnia ferme huius vitae incommoda, qua de re mox aliquanto copiosius disseremus.

Quanquam sunt hic et alia abs te dicta, vt mihi videtur, parum attente, quae tamen non sit operaे precium diligentius refellere, velut illud quod sic mecum agis quasi ego senserim scrupum in hoc esse situm a Deo legendum sit an ab angelis, quum palam explicem in hoc esse scrupum quomodo Filius Dei dici possit paululum imminutus a Deo, quum humanae naturae cuius assumptione diminutus dicitur ad diuinam assumentem nulla sit proportio, aut quomodo paululum imminutus ab angelis, quum non mediocre sit interuallum inter angelos immortales et carnem morti obnoxiam iuxta quam Christus dicitur exinanisse se.

Deinde quod adducis, quis enim in nubibus aequabitur Domino aut quis erit similis Deo in filiis Dei, non hoc docet quod tu parum dialectice colligis, angelos esse multo inferiores Deo. Neque enim quisquis aequalis aut similis negatur, is protinus est multo inferior, quandoquidem fieri potest vt primo proximus sit qui tamen aliquanto sit impar, veluti qui triginta natus sit annos non est quidem aequalis annos nato triginta vnum, nec tamen multo est minor.

Vnde liquet et illud quam absurde colligas: dilucidum igitur est, inquis, non idem esse siue legatur 'paulo minus a Deo' aut 'ab angelis'. Nam huiusmodi flosculis omnis tuus scatet sermo. Neque enim simpliciter dictum est mihi nihil interesse vtro modo legatur, sed nihil interesse quod attinet ad 'paululum', siue 'paulominus'. Quae sententia, si minus tibi probabatur, erat solidioribus argumentis refellenda priusquam tanta cum autoritate aduersum nos ferres sententiam. Quanquam huiusmodi permulta mihi dissimulanda sunt, ne cui vel molestus sim loquacitate vel argutior videar quam candidior.

Verum hic obiter me flagellas, fortassis non omnino sine causa sed tamen paulo superciliosius, mi Iacobe, si quidem scriptis responderet animus. Refutas enim ac reiicis velut impium quod dixerim aliquid intelligi posse de homine assumpto, quod quae in Christum Deum et hominem competunt non oporteat de altera natura enunciari. Quo quidem in loco multa repetis de summa vnitate hypostaseos Iesu Christi.

Adduci non possum vt credam te vsque adeo male sentire de Erasmo, vt me putas adeo stupidum aut indoctum vt numquam legerim apud theologos Iesum Christum vnam esse personam, eundem Deum et hominem, et quanquam quaedam in illum competent ratione diuinae naturae, quaedam humanae, tamen vtrunque nomine de illo praedicari propter hypostaseos vnitatem, si ita permittis me loqui, adeo vt recte Deus dicatur fleuisse, doluisse ac mortuus esse et Dominus gloriae crucifixus, rursus homo dicatur aequalis Deo Patri. Haec si me non docuissent sacri doctores Hieronymus, Hilarius, Ambrosius, Augustinus, certe ex tertio libro Theologicarum sententiarum, quibus nihil est vulgatus, didicisse poteram, nisi forte credis et has mihi nunquam lectas. Itaque vehementer ineruditum me iudicas, si credis hoc me latuisse quod neminem fugit qui vel primoribus labris prima theologiae rudimenta attigerit. Rursum vehementer impium, si quum id sciam, existimes me velle dirimere personae siue hypostasis, quae est Christus Iesus, vnitatem. Quod si neutrum horum arbitraris, quid est quod tam prolixa agis disputatione et verbis pene tragicis insectaris? Refutamus, inquis et rursum aliquanto post: si igitur in illo Psalmorum loco Filium hominis et id quod ipsum refert intelligeremus de homine assumpto et non de hypostasi contra consuetudinem diuinarum scripturarum et intelligentiam Spiritus, irrationaliter faceremus quod nequaquam est admittendum.

Non dubito quin tibi recognoscendi minus placeant ista, quam ea scribenti pridem calor quidam et fero animi commendabat. Nam more hominum fit ut 574 inquis E BAS: deest in A-D.

578 probabatur A C-BAS: probatur B.

591 competunt BAS: competant A-E.

593 Deus E BAS: et Deus A-D.

553–554 Si ... aequalis See, on the other hand, the present apologia, ll. 586–594, where Erasmus contends that one is allowed to say that God suffered and was crucified, because Christ was both God and man.

558 max ... disseremus See the present apologia, ll. 791–796.

568–569 quis ... Dei See appendix IV, ll. 80–81. This is a paraphrase of Ps. 88, 7.

574 absurde colligas This wording may have some connection with Lefevre's use of the word absurdum against Erasmus in his disputatio, cf. appendix IV, l. 106.

574–575 dilucidum ... angelis See appendix IV, ll. 88–89.

576–578 nihil ... paulominus Erasmus means that, no matter whether one translates a Deo or ab angelis, it is impossible in either case to maintain that Christ was humiliated only a little (paululum or paulominus); see the present apologia, ll. 550–557 and appendix III, ll. 21–22 and n.

579 tanta cum autoritate Cf. the present apologia, ll. 255–259.

583 si ... animus Cf. the present apologia, ll. 607–610, where Erasmus even supposes that Lefevre already regrets the tone of his disputatio.

Refutas See appendix IV, l. 96.

585–586 quod ... enunciari See appendix III, ll. 22–38.

586 multa repetis See appendix IV, ll. 95–127.

593–594 adeo ... crucifixus Erasmus cannot have learned this “patripassionism” from the authors mentioned in ll. 594–596, since they reject it as a heresy. See also A. Michel, Idiomes (Communication des), DTC VII, 1, Paris, 1927, pp. 595–602.

593 Deus The first four editions of this apologia, A–D, here read “et Deus”. This was altered in E and BAS into “Deus”, perhaps to emphasize the unity of the Father and the Son.

594 Dominus gloriae I Cor. 2, 8.

596 ex ... sententiarum See Magistri Petri Lombardi Sententiae in iv libris distinctae, Collegium S. Bonaventurae ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata, Rome, 1981, iii, 6, 2, pp. 50–52 and iii, 9, pp. 68–71.

598–599 qui ... attigeret “who was acquainted only superficially with the basic principles of theology”, cf. Cic. Nat. 1, 8, 20: “quae ipsi rhetores ne primoribus quidem labris attigissent”.

600 impium See appendix IV, l. 134.

602 verbis pene tragicis For Erasmus' use of the imagery of tragedy and theatre for the controversy between Lefèvre and himself, cf. the present apologia, ll. 75–77 and n.

Refutamus See appendix IV, l. 96.

603–606 si ... admittendum See appendix IV, ll. 116–119.

607–610 Non ... iudicare Cf. the present apologia, ll. 583: si quidem scriptis responder animus.

608 feruor animi Cf. Cic. Tusc. 4, 10, 24.

quae commentanti veniunt in mentem nobis veluti partus ingenii nostri impendio blandiantur, neque enim eiusdem est gignere et iudicare. Primum non versabar illuc in hoc ut traderem rationes enunciandi. Et quanquam scio de rebus diuinis circunspecte et religiose loquendum, tamen anxie ac putide non puto oportere, praesertim apud te qui captiones istiusmodi verborum sophisticasque λογομαχίας soles negligere.

Certe quid sentirem satis intelligebas ex iis quae praecesserant, quum aio: Thomas refert hunc locum ad humanitatem Christi qui minor angelis factus sit, non iuxta animam sed iuxta corpus assumptum. At quod hic dixi referri ad humanitatem Christi, paulo post commutatis verbis dico intelligi de homine assumpto. Quid enim aliud est assumptus homo in Christo nisi humanitas Christi, ut interim explicandae rei gratia humanitatis vocabulo abutamur. Quid aliud est intelligere locum psalmi de ea, quam intellectu quod dictum est ad eam referre? Quod si nullo modo permittis nobis sic loqui, cur non et prior ille locus aures tuas offendebat quo sic loquor referri ad humanitatem Christi? Nihilo magis enim dici conuenit humanitatem a Deo diminutam, quam hominem assumptum a Deo diminutum. Neque enim cum alterutri naturae quippiam tribuimus, ita tribuimus quasi sit sola in Christo, sed quasi cum altera ὑποστάτικῶς coniuncta vel unita potius, ut et sic interim loquamur. Sed tamen eidem Christo varia tribuentes alio atque alio respicimus, haudquaquam plures ex uno dissecro facientes sed pro diuersitate rerum non eodem referentes quod tribuimus, veluti Nepotianus in eodem Heliodoro diligebat auunculum, venerabatur episcopum, imitabatur monachum, non ex uno plures faciens sed in uno diuersa considerans.

Quid autem vetat quippiam enunciare de altera natura, quod idem simpliciter in Christum competit? Age, si dicam: ‘humanitas Christi nos docuit humana contemnere, diuinitas euehet ad aeterna’, rursum ‘ab homine discamus modestiam ac tolerantiam, a Deo speremus immortalitatem’, quaeo num cuiusquam offendentur aures? Imo quid vetat etiam si singulis quae in Christo sunt substantiis, nam hoc verbo versus est hic Augustinus, tribuamus quod idem in Christum competit? Caro Christi plagis afflita est pro commissis nostris, anima Christi doluit pro nostris malis, diuinitas Christi vicit mortem. Nec minus, opinor, pie dixerim his modis et fortassis efficacius quam si dicam: ‘Christus secundum carnem afflictus est, Christus secundum animam doluit, Christus secundum diuinitatem vicit mortem’. Nec enim offensurus sit, opinor, te qui ‘hominem assumptum’ dixerit pro ‘humanitate’ siue ‘humana natura assumpta’, quandoquidem hanc sermonis formam et publicus Latinorum versus approbat, nec veretur uti solenniter ecclesia nec refugiunt sacri doctores. Nam qui minus dicamus ‘assumpsit hominem’ quam ‘exuit hominem’ pro his: ‘coepit esse homo’ et ‘desiit esse homo’?

Fateor non apposite dici ‘Christus est humanitas’ cum recte dicatur ‘homo’, quod ‘humanitas’ naturae sit vocabulum, ‘homo’ suppositi, quando hoc verbi recentioribus theologis arridet, veteribus inaudita vox. Tibi, ut videtur, impense placet hypostaseos vocabulum, olim Hieronymo suspectum odio, opinor, Arianorum a quibus ea vox profecta videbatur. Caeterum hominis nomen vtroque modo vsurpatum reperies apud autores probatissimos, frequenter ita loquentes: Christus iuxta hominem filius virginis, iuxta hominem mortalis et iuxta hominem assumptum, pro eo quod est iuxta humanam naturam. Et chorus ecclesiasticus canit: tu ad liberandum suscepturus hominem.

655

609 veluti A B E BAS: velut C D.613 verborum sophisticasque Ac C-BAS: verborumque sophisticas A, sophisticasqueverborum B.646 coepit C-BAS: cepit A B.654 et B E BAS: deest in A C D.609 commentanti ... nobis The grammatical incongruity is remarkable.610 neque ... iudicare Cf. Apolog. adv. rhaps. Alb. Pii, LB IX, 1100 D: "nec enim eiusdem est, iuxta Socratem, parere et de partu aedito ferre iudicium." (I owe this reference to Professor C.L. Heesakkers, Leiden). I have not found Socrates' words in Diogenes Laertius, Stobaeus, Leutsch-Schneidewin, Erasmus' Adag. and *Apophth.*611 rationes enunciandi "a system for making pronouncements". rationes seems to refer to Lefèvre's irrationabiliter occurring in the quotation in l. 605.612 putide "too precisely". Cf. Cic. de Or. 3, II, 14.614 λογομαχίας Cf. 1 Tim. 6, 4.615–623 Certe ... Christi Cf. appendix IV, ll. 42–52, where Lefèvre indeed does not object to the expression humanitas Christi in the quotation from Aquinas which Erasmus gives (next note.) In l. 323, Lefèvre speaks about the humanitatis assumptio of Christ. In ll. 95–100, Lefèvre rejects the designation homo assumptus for the incarnated Christ.616–617 Thomas ... assumptum See appendix III, ll. 10–13.618 paulo ... assumpto See appendix III, ll. 22–28.618 paulo ... assumpto See appendix III, ll. 22–28.621 *locum Psalmi Ps. 8, 6.*626 ἴσοστατικῶς "in one and the same person".630 Nepotianus ... Heliodoro Heliodorus (330/40–407), bishop in Altino, was a friend and correspondent of Jerome (A. Frutaz, in: LThK V (1960), col. 212). With regard to the mutual affection between Heliodorus and Nepotianus, see Hier. Epist. 60, written as a consolation upon the death of Nepotianus, CSEL 54, ed. I. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 1910, pp. 548–575636–637 substantiis E.g., Aug. Trin. 2, II, 20, CSEL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, p. 107, ll. 4 and 20 and Epist. 187, De praesentia Dei liber, CSEL 57, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1911, p. 91, l. 14 and p. 92, l. 15.642–645 Nec ... doctores See the present apologia, n. ll. 615–623.642 te qui te is not the antecedent of qui. The relative qui has an included antecedent: "is qui".649 suppositi "concerning the individual substance" or the "essence". Suppositum seems to translate ὑπόστατος here, see ll. 659–660: *pro vna natura posuit, non pro hypostasi.*651–652 hypostaseos ... videbatur Hier. Epist. 15, Ad Damasum, CSEL 54, ed. I. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 1910, p. 64, l. 12–p. 67, l. 13.654 filius virginis Cf. Is. 7, 14; Mt. 1, 21–23; Lc. 1, 31.656 tu ... hominem From the Té Deum, see Cantuale Romano Seraphicum, ed. altera, Paris, 1929, pp. 251–252.

Hoc quoque durius est quod dixit Augustinus libro De Trinitate secundo, capite sexto: sicut assumptus est Filius hominis, pro eo quod est, sicut assumpta est natura humana. Si Filius hominis Christi nomen est, certe Augustinus pro 660 vna natura posuit, non pro hypostasi, quod tu putas esse sacrilegium. Idem epistola tertia ad Volusianum: sic autem quidam reddi sibi rationem postulant quomodo Deus homini permixtus sit, vt vna fieret persona Christi. Nonne hominem LB 30 dixit pro natura humana? Idem epistola LVII: neque enim ipso die in coelo | futurus erat homo Christus Iesus, an non dixit homo Christus pro eo quod erat Christus secundum humanam naturam? Ac mox: restat igitur vt si secundum hominem dictum est: hodie mecum eris in paradiſo. Quin ibidem subinde repetuntur haec verba, secundum hominem, secundum Deum. Atque is sermonis color adeo solennis est apud sacrosanctos theologos vt vix reperias aliter locutos.

Quanquam totum hoc, quod hactenus disputatum est, non pertinet proprie 670 ad sensum meum. Neque enim illuc tam hominem assumptum dixi naturam humanam in Christo quam ipsam naturae humanae assumptionem. Opinor et hanc sermonis formam agnoscere ab omnibus qui Latine sciunt. Conferam exemplum quo quod loquor fiat apertius: si quis laudet quempiam quod prudentissime se gesserit et alter quispiam non satis intelligenti interpretetur ac dicat: ‘de 675 bello vitato sentit’, is non dicit bellum vitatum esse prudens, sed in hoc sitam esse prudentiae laudem quam illi tribuebat, quod bellum vitarit. Rursum quum dicimus: ‘exprobrat epotum dolium’, non ipsum dolium opprobrat, sed dolii epotationem. Et, ‘cruciat hunc amissus liber’ pro eo quod est ‘excruciat hunc amissio libri’. Ita quum hic propheta dicat Christum a Deo fuisse diminutum, 680 ostendo eam diminutionem nihil aliud fuisse quam assumptionem humanae naturae. Atque ad hunc modum locutus est diuus Hieronymus enarrans epistolae ad Ephesios caput quartum: sed sic, inquit, vnum et Dei et hominis Filium confitemur ne dispensationem assumpti hominis qua saluati sumus ex parte credentes, in parte truncemus.

685 Arbitror iam satis demonstratum nec in verbis meis esse quod pias aures vlo pacto debeat offendere. Et tamen si quid etiam fuisse simplicius aut parum circunspecte dictum, quum, vt eleganter ab Hilario dictum est, sensus, non sermonis fiat crimen, non erat hoc tui candoris tot verbis, imo conuiciis insectari praesertim in annotationibus. Alioqui quam multa, quaeso, reperiemus in Ambrosii, Hieronymi, Augustini, Gregorii libris quae liceret ad istam rationem calumniari.

690 Quis enim nunc latus sit, si quis in Christo mixturam inducat naturarum aut compositionem, vt vnum hoc exempli gratia producam? Atqui is in epistola tertia quam scripsit ad Volusianum, quoties id facit? Quomodo, inquit, Deus homini permixtus sit. Ac rursum: in illa ergo persona est mixtura animae et corporis, in hac persona mixtura est Dei et hominis. Mox item: quum enim Verbum Dei permixtum est animae habenti corpus, simul et animam suscepit et corpus. Iterum paulo post: ac per hoc Verbi Dei et animae credibilior debuit esse permixtio quam animae et corporis. An non iniquum sit ex mixturae vocabulo tragedias excitare, quum intelligamus illum recte sentientem mixturae nomine abusum pro 700 vniione.

Olim crassius forte loquebantur theologi, nunc quidam fortasse loquuntur subtilius, at viuunt ac sapiunt crassius. Nisi forte Deum morosum quempiam et captiosum facimus et hominum quorundam similem cum qualibus nemo libens habeat commercium, de quo difficillimum sit verba facere ut non offendas, ut non capiaris. Inter vere pios facile de verbis oportet conuenire quoties de re controversia non est, praesertim quum et frequenter excuset diuus Hilarius quod rerum huiusmodi sublimitatem nullus hominum sermo satis explicet, nec de iis veteres eodem balbutiant modo, imo ne nunc quidem satis inter theologos conueniat. Augustinus in commentariis suis dominicum hominem appellarat Christum, atque eum sermonem post corrigit ac vitat. Si

660–668 Idem ... locutos E BAS: deest in A–D.

670 illic tam B E BAS: tam illic A C D.

681–684 Atque ... truncemus E BAS: deest in A–D.

682 inquit BAS: deest in E.

691–700 Quis ... vniione E BAS: deest in A–D.

694 mixtura BAS: mixtura est E.

703 et ... cum B–BAS: deest in A; qualibus B E BAS: deest in A, quibus C D; nemo B–BAS: deest in A.

704 libens E BAS: deest in A, liberis B, lubens C D; habeat commercium B–BAS: deest in A.

658–659 sicut assumptus ... humana Cf. Aug. Trin. 2, 6, CCSL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, pp. 93–94.

660 vna natura I.e., the human nature.

hypostasi The person possessing both the divine nature and the human nature.

661–662 sic ... Christi Aug. Epist. 137, Ad Volusianum, CSEL 44, 3, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1904, p. 109, ll. 15–16. This edition reads “flagitant” where Erasmus has postulant. The critical apparatus ad locum in Augustine does not give the variant reading postulant.

663–664 neque ... Jesus Epist. 187, ad Dardanum, CSEL 57, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1911, p. 84, ll. 13–14.

665–666 restat ... paradiso Ibid., p. 85, ll. 13–14.

667 secundum hominem Ibid., p. 84, l. 10 and p. 85, l. 13.

secundum Deum Ibid., p. 88, l. 19.

682–684 sed ... truncemus Hier. Comm. ad Eph., lib. ii, cap. iv, Migne PL 26, 531 D4–7. Migne reads “hic” where Erasmus has sic.

687–688 sensus ... crimen Cf. Hil. Trin., 7, 38: “Sed forte intelligentiae sensus in crimine sit.”, CCSL 62, ed. P. Smulders, Turnhout, 1979, p. 305, ll. 13–14.

688–689 praesertim in annotationibus I.e., Lefèvre’s annotationes in his second edition of the S. Pauli Epistolae XIV (1516/7). Earlier in the present apologia (ll. 145–149), Erasmus complained that Lefèvre had not first warned him by letter, but had immediately attacked him in a widely circulated publication; cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 130–131: “... ac mediis suis commentariis infusserat ...”

692 is I.e., Augustinus.

693–694 Quomodo ... sit Aug. Epist. 137, Ad Volusianum, CSEL 44, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1904, p. 109, ll. 15–16. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 617–618.

695 in ... hominis Aug. Epist. 137, Ad Volusianum, CSEL 44, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1904, p. 110, ll. 3–4.

695–696 quam ... corpus Ibid., p. 110, ll. 9–11.

697–698 ac ... corporis Ibid., p. 110, ll. 16–18.

698 tragoedias Cf. the present apologia, ll. 75–77 and n.

701–702 Olim ... crassius Cf. Ep. 1334, ll. 360–380; Declarat. ad cens. Lut., LB IX, 918 D–E, 926 E; Parac., Holborn, p. 142, l. 28–p. 143, l. 3.

706 quoties ... est Cf. the present apologia, ll. 82–83 and n.

706–708 diuus ... explicet Hil. Liber de Patris et Filii unitate, Migne PL 10, 885 A5–C6.

709–710 Augustinus ... Christum Aug. De sermone Domini in monte, 2, 6, 20, CCSL 35, ed. A. Mutzenbecher, Turnhout, 1967, p. 110, l. 437.

710 atque ... vitat Aug. Retractationes 1, 19, 8, CCSL 57, ed. A. Mutzenbecher, Turnhout, 1984, p. 59, l. 110–p. 60, l. 119.

hoc tanto accidit viro, docendus eram, non obiurgandus, si mihi simile quippiam vsu venisset praesertim aliud agenti, maxime si tibi liquebat quid sentirem. Neque enim ego de Christi hypostasi aliud sentio atque tu. Atque haec excusarem si quid etiam excidisset quod vere reprehendi posset.

LB 31 Verum, vt ad alia pergamus, negas inter nos versari quaestionem vtrum forma serui in Christo siue homo assumptus parum vel multum sit imminutus a Deo, tuis enim verbis vtar, sed an Filius hominis imminutus sit a Deo et id etiam quippiam parum. Inter nos sane nulla quaestio versabatur, nec ego hominem assumptum dixi imminutum a Deo. Tuus iste sermo est, non meus, id quod modo satis declaratum est. Nam si imminutum sic accipias vt sit participium, diuinitas potius videri possit imminuta quae descendit ad hominem, quam humana natura quae euecta est ad consortium diuinitatis. Sin ita vt sit nomen et perinde valeat ac si dicas ‘inferior Deo’, non negabis, opinor, humanam naturam in Christo longe inferiorem fuisse diuina natura. Quod si donas, consequetur Christum quatenus erat homo longe inferiorem fuisse Deo Patre et, vt Augustinus audet loqui, etiam seipso quatenus erat Deus. Quod si multo fuit inferior, videbatur excutiendum quomodo prophetae dicatur ‘imminutus paululum’. Rursus si mihi dabis humanam naturam quatenus est doloribus et morti obnoxia, longe esse infra dignitatem ac felicitatem angelicam, consequetur Christum quatenus erat homo mortal is et naturae incommodis obnoxius, aliqua ex parte fuisse inferiorem angelis, certe iuxta corpus. Id si verum est, nimirum manet in vtraque lectione par difficultas, quam tuum agens negocium sic conor explicare vt $\beta\mu\chi\tau\iota$ ad tempus pertineat, non ad modum dignitatis. Quod si recipimus, vt receptum est ab orthodoxis aliquot et magni nominis theologis, nihil fuerit in vtraque lectione absurdum et liberum erit vtram voles sequi. Nec hic cuiquam praeceo nec hanc aut illam sententiam vel approbo vel reicio, quod tu tamen toties inculcas a me factum. Sive isto, inquis, minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quem posteriorem interpretandi modum approbare videtur Erasmus. Ac rursum, nam iuxta Septuaginta aeditionem ait: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quam etiam approbat interpretationem. Iam illud videbatur mihi parum prudenter abs te factum quod, quum $\beta\mu\chi\tau\iota$ ad temporis modum relatum omnem explicit difficultatem, tu perinde quasi iam euiceris eo referri non posse ita triumphum agis, ita nobis insultas. Atque id quidem post conaris oppugnare, sed quam efficaciter mox videbimus.

720 725 730 735 740

745 Certe quum hoc in ambiguo reliquisses, non erat cur huiusmodi conuiciis veluti prostrato iam et iacenti insultares. Subruetur igitur, inquis, propheta quomodounque siue a Deo siue ab angelis interpretetur, quare hic sermo seipsum elidit et falsum esse ex omni parte manifestat.

Iam illud magnis tragoediis exagitas quod scripseram Christum quum ob humanam naturam assumptam, tum ob humanae conditionis suscepta incommoda, non solum infra angelos, verum etiam infra abiectissimos homines fuisse deiectum. Atque hic tu miro supercilio: hunc, inquis, sermonem animose refutabimus tanquam impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum, tanquam Spiritui aduersantem et literae quae occidit adhaerentem.

750

755 Huiusmodi multa sunt, mi Faber, in tua ista praeclara et amica disputatione quae me compulerunt ad purgandam famam abs te tam atrociter petitam. Absit ut ego sciens quippiam in te scribam istiusmodi. Quod si quid humanitus

716–717 tuis ... vtar E BAS: deest in A–D.
740 prudenter B BAS: pudenter A C–E.

741 quod BAS: vt A–E.
749 quum B–BAS: deest in A.

711–712 si ... venisset Erasmus here seems to imply the possibility of his having made a mistake in the interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7.
712 aliud agenti What Erasmus means here is that he was not dealing specifically with the dogmatic issue of the relation between the natures of Christ; he was only writing some notes on the N.T. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 302–305.

713 Neque ... tu Cf. the present apologia, ll. 82–83 and n. Erasmus is stressing that he knows full well that the man Jesus Christ possessed divine nature.

hypostasi The person Christ, in whom both divine nature and human nature are united.

715–718 negas ... parum See appendix IV, ll. 121–124. After hominis, l. 717, Erasmus omits sive quod est apud Paulum, Christus Iesus qui exinanuit semetipsum formam seruici (accipiens) (Phil. 2, 7).

720 participium I.e., as a verbal form.

722 consortium “community”.
nomen I.e., an adjective.

725–726 etiam ... Deus Aug. Trin. 1, 7, 14. CCSI, 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, pp. 45–46.

727 prophetae I.e., David (in Ps. 8, 6).

727–729 si ... angelicam On this point Lefèvre did not agree with Erasmus, see the present apologia, ll. 462–470 and n. l. 463 and ll. 568–573 and n. ll. 568–569 and cf. Aquinas’ view, n. l. 370.

731 certe iuxta corpus This quite nearly amounts to a concession to Aquinas, who held that Christ had suffered with regard to his body, but not with regard to his spirit; for Aquinas’ opinion, see n. l. 370. In the Nou. Instr. of 1516, however, Erasmus contradicted Aquinas in the note at Hebr. 2, 7; see appendix III, ll. 10–18.

732 tuum agens negocium “to help you to solve the problem”. Erasmus is convinced that the reading a Deo, preferred by Lefèvre, necessarily raises the problem of how Christ, being God, could have been humiliated below God only a little by becoming a human being. In the last edition of the Annot. in NT, Erasmus even argues: “... is scrupulus grauius obstabit si legamus eum paulum diminutum

‘a Deo’ quam si ‘ab angelis’ ...” LB VI, 986
D. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 560–567.

733–734 vt ... theologis Lefèvre admitted this in his disputatio; see appendix IV, ll. 350–359. But according to Lefèvre, the theologians in question were misled by the LXX which reads ab angelis, a reading they assumed to be correct. Supposing that a humiliation of Christ below the angels was in fact impossible, they took $\beta\rho\alpha\chi\mu\tau\iota$ as relating to time, in order to make the period of the humiliation as short as possible. Cf. appendix III, ll. 29–32.

735 absurdum Erasmus is probably thinking of Lefèvre’s affront, see appendix IV, l. 106.

liberum ... sequi For Erasmus’ conviction underlying this idea of libertas, cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 291–292, ll. 299–300 and n., nn. ll. 304, 306–307, ll. 314–316 and n.

735–737 Nec ... factum Cf. the present apologia, ll. 283–296 and appendix IV, ll. 19–23.

737–738 Sive ... Erasmus See appendix IV, ll. 130–140.

738–740 nam ... interpretationem Ibid., ll. 144–145.

742 tu ... agis For Lefèvre’s arguments for not taking $\beta\rho\alpha\chi\mu\tau\iota$ as an adjunct of time, see the present apologia, n. l. 10.

746–748 Subruetur ... manifestat See appendix IV, ll. 146–148. Where Erasmus reads ex omni parte, Lefèvre has omni ex parte.

749 magnis tragediis Cf. the present apologia, ll. 75–77 and n.

749–752 Christum ... deiectum See appendix III, ll. 22–28.

752–754 hunc ... adhaerentem See appendix IV, ll. 132–136. After sermonem, l. 752, Erasmus omits: Christum scilicet non paululum immunitum fuisse a Deo, imo infra abiecissimos etiam homines.

755 praeclara This is an allusion to Lefèvre’s claims about the clarity of his disputatio; cf. appendix IV, ll. 28–33. See especially l. 29: aperta veritatis luce.

amica See appendix IV, ll. 28–29 and the present apologia, ll. 36–37 and n., and n. ll. 1160–1161.

756 quae ... petitam Cf. the present apologia, ll. 237–238 and n. and l. 770.

excidisset parum consentiens cum doctrina Christi, tuum erat amicum errantem amice monere. Nunc haec omnes prius scire voluisti quam me, quem nec epistolio nec per amiculum quempiam dignatus es submonere, quum tamen episcopus Parisiensis, quum hic regis sui nomine legatione fungeretur, inter colloquia narrarit audisse ex te quod, quum fatereris te multis in locis recte monitum a me, in nonnullis tamen scripto conflictaturus sis tecum. At si vera est typographi inscriptio iam tuum hoc opus erat aeditum.

Inscitiam, errorem aut si quid aliud est humanum, impingi mihi facile patiar, at impietatem et indignitatem in Deum caeteraque huiusmodi impingi mihi, pati nec possum nec debo. Neque tamen vices referam vt tam asperam criminationem criminatione repellam. Efficiam vt quod non minus scite quam pie | dixit optimus ille Cyprianus, pudor christianus potius quam dolor loqui videatur. Mihi in praesentia sat fuerit tantae impietatis crimen a me depulisse, nec luto repetam qui me luto conspersit, contentus absterrisse ne rursus aliam mihi labem contraham dum labem contumaciter eluo fiatque vt dignus etiam videar hac contumelia, si contumeliam contumelia retaliaro.

Equidem illud arbitrabar ad Christi gloriam pertinere si illius humilitatem quam sponte nostra causa subiit quam maxime exaggerassem, praesertim quum Paulus ausus sit dicere: exinanuit semetipsum et a propheta vermis siue, vt quidam vertunt, quorum est Ambrosius, scarabeus appellatur et huiusmodi habitu pingatur ab Esaia, et cum ipse in euangeliō dicat: vulpes foueas habent et volucres coeli nidos, Filius autem hominis non habet ubi caput suum reclinet, et alibi se comparet grano sinapis condendo in terram multaque id genus alia quae summam Christi humilitatem nobis declarant. Quicquid enim hic accumulatur, hoc nobis illius erga nos ineffabilem charitatem commendat.

Nec hoc sentio quod videris interpretari Christum aut simpliciter inferiorem aut ita fuisse angelis hominibus inferioriē vt esset deterior, sed tamen aliqua parte fuisse his inferiorem. Certe mihi videtur hoc nomine multum descendisse ac deieccisse sese infra angelos quod assumpserit corpus et animam morti, crucifixi doloribusque obnoxiam. Haec opinio si impia est, si Deo Christoque indignissima, si Spiritui aduersatur, si literae quae occidit adhaeret, vt tu praedicas, fateor errorem meum. Ita hactenus sensi, libenter tamen mutaturus opinionem ubi fuero meliora doctus.

Deinde quod non contentus nostram assumere naturam, Dei Filius omnes pene huius vitae calamitates in se recepit: labores, dolores, sudores, famem, sitim, lachrymas, taedium, probra, vincula, flagra, crucem, quum plurimi mortales his malis careant qui tamen his malis digni sunt, videbatur mihi aliqua ex parte descendisse et infra infimos homines, non quod interim desineret esse summus ac felicissimus, sed quod haec nostra mala sua sponte vt homo in se reciperet.

Nec enim arbitror ad rem pertinere si quae plurima de Christi dignitate congeris coner refellere. Latissimus erat campus omnia persecuti quae Christi declarant sublimitatem ac rursus recensere quae testentur eiusdem humilitatem siue, vt Paulus loquitur, exinanitionem. Scis plura esse in diuinis libris quae nobis Verbi

Dei inexplicabilem magnitudinem praedicent, verum si his quoque multo plura essent, nos tamen illius celsitudinem haud vñquam vel oratione vel animo possimus assequi. Sunt item innumera loca quae mire declarant quo se humilitatis 763 conflictaturus sis BAS: conflictatum A-E.

773 contumelia B-BAS: deest in A.

779 se A C-BAS: deest in B.

784 tamen E BAS: deest in A-D.

801 inexplicabilem A B E BAS: explicabilem C D.

758–759 amicum ... amice See ll. 36–38 and n.

759 Nunc ... me Cf. ibid., ll. 150–164 and n.

ll. 152–153.

759–760 quem ... submonere Cf. ibid., ll. 133–138, ll. 151–164 and n. ll. 159–164.

760–761 episcopus Parisiensis See ibid., ll. 146–147: Stephanus Poncherius, episcopus Parisiensis (1446–1525). He was bishop of Paris from 1503 to 1519, M.-M. de la Garanderie, Contemporaries III, pp. 111–112. Cf. Ep. 778, l. 25 and Ep. 522, l. 109, where Erasmus mentions him.

763–764 At ... aeditum This remark seems to be superfluous. Erasmus already argued at length in the present apologia that the typographi inscriptio of Lefèvre's book does not give the real date of publication. Cf. n. l. 14 and ll. 167–177.

765–767 Inscitiam ... debo Cf. ibid., ll. 234–238 and n. l. 234.

766 impietatem ... Deum See appendix IV, ll. 134–135, and cf. the present apologia, ll. 237–238 and n.

767 vices referam Ov. Ars I, 370.

769 Cyprianus ... videatur T.C. Cypriani epistolae, 59, CSEL III, 2, ed. G. Hartel, Vienna, 1871, p. 679, ll. 15–16: "... nec tam dolor apud nos debeat quam pudor loqui." Cf. Erasmus in Ep. 784, from Erasmus to <John Fisher>, <Louvain>, <c. 5 March 1518>, ll. 23–25: "Et tamen contraxi frena iusto dolori, multumque dedi vel amiciciae nostrae vel pudori Christiano."

770 Mihi ... depulisse Cf. the present apologia, ll. 755–757.

772 labem contumaciter eluo Cf. Cic. Leg. 2, 10, 24: "animi labes ... elui potest".

776 exinanivit semet ipsum Phil. 2, 7. Vg.: "... semet ipsum exinanivit ..."

776 propheta I.e., David.

776 vermis Ps. 21, 7.

777 scarabeus Ambr. Expos. in Luc. X, 113, CSEL 32, 4, ed. C. Schenkel, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1902, p. 498, ll. 2–3: "vermis in cruce, scarabaeus in cruce. et bonus vermis, qui hacsit in ligno, bonus scarabaeus, qui clamauit e ligno." (Cf. ibid., ll. 4–14.) Pace Erasmus, I have not found any passage in Ambrose replacing vermis with scarabaeus in a translation of Ps. 8, 6. But Ambrose does call Jesus a scarabaeus in Expos. in Ps. CXVIII, 3, 8, CSEL 62, 5, ed. M. Petschenig, Vienna and Leipzig, 1913, p. 45, l. 23.

778 Esaiā Erasmus is perhaps referring to such passages as Is. 50, 6, or Is. 52, 14. Lefèvre claims that one cannot conclude from these passages that Jesus was really humiliated. According to Lefèvre, these passages do speak of Jesus' humiliation, but he stresses that Jesus was only seemingly humiliated; see appendix IV, ll. 177–192.

778–779 vulpes ... reclinet Lc. 9, 58, cf. Mt. 8, 20.

780 grano sinapis In Mt. 13, 31, Mc. 4, 31, Lc. 13, 19, the Kingdom of God and in Mt. 17, 19 and Lc. 17, 6 faith is compared with a mustard seed. Jesus himself is not compared with a mustard seed in the Bible.

783–787 Nec ... obnoxiam For the way Erasmus understood Jesus' humiliation below the angels, cf. the present apologia, ll. 462–470 and n. l. 460.

786–787 animam ... obnoxiam These words imply that, in Erasmus' view, the souls of angels cannot suffer torments and pain. Perhaps Erasmus has in mind Lefèvre's remark in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 58–65, that angels can suffer more seriously from punishments than human beings, because the souls of angels are larger.

787–788 Haec ... adhaeret Cf. appendix IV, ll. 132–136.

794 videbatur mihi See Erasmus' Nov. Instr., appendix III, ll. 23–24; and for Lefèvre's indignant reaction, see appendix IV, ll. 132–148.

800 exinanitionem Phil. 2, 7.

803 quo se humilitatis "To what degree of lowness". Cf. l. 241–242: Vide quo me deieceris angustiae, and n.

Sermo diuinus nostra causa deiecerit, nec hanc partem vlla mens humana satis explicit aut etiam cogitatione percipiat.

Et quanquam vtrobique est mirabilis Christus, tamen haud scio an haec portio magis ad nos pertineat, quod illa magnitudinis admiratio potius ad futuram vitam pertinere videatur. Tibi placet Christi sublimitatem attollere laudibus, alii fortassis magis cordi est in humilitatis assumpta contemplatione versari et tamen difficile dictu sit vtrius studium magis pium sit, hoc fortasse fuerit interim salubrius. Et haud scio an ipse hac sese nobis spectari malit qua se nobis potissimum exhibuit, post maiestatis gloriam exhibuturus. Certe Paulus gloriatur se inter suos nihil scire nisi Iesum Christum et hunc crucifixum, hoc est non sublimem illum sed humilem.

Nec ob id ilico tuus erit aduersarius qui hac parte Christum contempletur, nec tu illius quem magis capit sublimitatis admiratio. Vterque vnum eundemque Christum veneramini sed alter altera ex parte. Nec tu, celsitudinis ac maiestatis admirator, officis humilitatis laudibus nec hic, humilitatis contemplator, quicquam illius sublimitati detrahit, quod vtraque res in Christum competit ob diuinam naturam in qua semper fuit Deus et ob humanam infirmitatem quam dignatus est assumere in tempore.

Infra angelorum naturam diminutum Christum ob corpus doloribus et morti obnoxium ausi sunt dicere ante nos viri probatae tum sanctitatis, tum | eruditio-nisi, a quibus tu primus et solus omnium dissentis, etiam si in causa simili illos excusas vt potes sed tamen, vt lapsos esse velis, me atrociter obiurgas quod non solum idem ausus sim dicere, verum etiam quod adiecerim infra abiectissimos etiam homines diminutum fuisse. Is sermo videtur grauiter offendisse tuas aures perinde quasi deroget celsitudini Christi, quum magis attollat illius sublimitatem quando bonitatem eius et sapientiam nobis exaggerat, quibus ille nobis non minus magnus est quam sua potentia. Tu clamas Christum, Dei Filium, infinitis partibus excellere omnem creaturam. Ego, quum istuc maxime fatear et amplectar, aio eundem Christum, virginis filium, aliquando infra angelorum sortem nostra causa descendisse, nec id solum, verum etiam infra multorum hominum sortem descendisse, qui non solum naturam assumpserit, siti, fami, lassitudini, probris, dolori mortique obnoxiam, verum etiam tot humanae vitae iniurias, hoc est nostris peccatis debitas poenas in se receperit.

Atque vt sic auderem loqui, diuu Paulus mihi fiduciam tribuit qui in epistola ad Philippenses videtur huiusmodi gradus in Christo subnotare, cum deiecti exemplum nobis proponens ait: qui quum in forma Dei esset non rapinam arbitratus est esse se aequalem Deo, sed semetipsum exinanivit formam serui accipi-ens, in similitudine hominum factus et habitu inuentus vt homo. Hactenus indicat quatenus infra angelos descenderit. Mox aperit quatenus se deiecerit infra homines: humiliauit semetipsum factus obediens vsque ad mortem, mortem autem crucis. Pauci homines ad mortem vsque se humiliant, pauciores ad mortem crucis.

Tu sic faues Christo vt nolis eum esse deicctum, nisi paululum idque a Deo, at Paulus exinanitum dicit vt vel ipso verbo statim intelligas eum multum esse deiectum. Deinde fatetur Paulus ob hoc ipsum exaltatum quod sese plurimum humiliauerit: propter quod et Deus exaltauit illum et donauit illi nomen supra omne nomen. Sic exaltatus est ut nihil accederet diuinae gloriae, sic humiliatus est ut eidem nihil decesserit et tamen vere humiliatus est, vere exaltatus est. Si qui semet humiliat, sese deiicit; et qui humiliatus est, aliquo modo inferior est; alioqui nec humiliatus dicetur. Et si ob id humiliatus dicetur quod veluti seruus obedierit vsque ad mortem et mortem crucis, et ad eas poenas descenderit quas 815 tuus A-C E BAS: tutus D.

826 idem A C-BAS: eadem Ac, deest in B; sim Ac B-BAS: sum A.

849 supra E BAS: super A-D.

853 nec A C-BAS: neque B.

854 obedierit A B E BAS: obediret C D.

804 Sermo diuinus In his Nov. Instr. of 1519 Erasmus had replaced "Verbum", the reading of the Vulgate in Ioh. 1, 1, with "Sermo". This alteration elicited many vehement objections. As a result, Erasmus altered the translation again in the Nov. Test. of 1522, restoring the Vulgate reading. The apologia he wrote in response to these objections, entitled Apologia de In principio erat Sermo, was first published by Martens in 1520. It was re-published by Hillen in the same year. Both editions appeared after the first four editions of the apologia against Lefèvre. Erasmus did not deem it necessary to replace "Sermo" with "Verbum" in this passage in the two editions of this apologia, E and BAS, which were published after the Apologia de In principio erat Sermo.

806–807 haec portio Jesus' humiliation is contrasted here with his magnitudo, ll. 807–808, which people will admire in life after death.

812 post "later on", adverb.

812–813 Paulus ... crucifixum i Cor. 2, 2.

815 aduersarius See this apologia, l. 342 and n., l. 347 and n., l. 1323, and n. l. 1328.

824 primus ... dissentis As early as 1516, Erasmus noticed that Lefèvre could use Jerome's text (Comm. in Ps.) to support the translation a Deo (see appendix III, ll. 7–10). But to weaken Lefèvre's position, he mentions in the present apologia, ll. 537–546 (see also the n. at ll. 542–546, cf. n. l. 497), that the Hieronymian authenticity of the Comm. in Ps. is uncertain and moreover that Jerome follows the reading ab angelis in his Comm. in Gal., a work whose authenticity is beyond doubt. Consequently, in Erasmus' opinion, Lefèvre could not use Jerome in support of the translation a Deo: Lefèvre's interpretation and translation contradicted the whole authoritative tradition. On the other hand, however, Erasmus asserts that his quoting Lefèvre for the interpretation a Deo (in 1516, appendix III, ll. 7–8) was a great honour to Lefèvre, since Erasmus could have confined himself to citing Jerome only. See the present apologia, ll. 320–324.

824–827 etiam ... fuisse Lefèvre did not agree that Erasmus, on the one hand, and Aquinas and the Church Fathers, on the other, were in a causa similis, and this for two reasons. First, Erasmus knew Hebrew, whereas the Church Fathers did not; consequently, they were not able to read Ps. 8, 6 in Hebrew. If they could have read it in Hebrew, they would, Lefèvre thought, have preferred the reading a Deo; see appendix IV, ll. 68–72, ll. 350–359, ll. 457–476. Secondly, Erasmus went further than the Church Fathers by contending that Jesus had been humiliated below the most abject of men; see appendix III, ll. 23–24. For Lefèvre's reaction to Erasmus' view on these matters, see appendix IV, ll. 132–136. Aquinas indeed does not literally say that Jesus had been humiliated below the most abject of men, but he does say that Jesus had been humiliated even below man; see the present apologia, n. ll. 369–370.

827 offendisse tuas aures Cf. Cic. Or. 44, 150: "offendant aures", although with a different meaning.

839–841 qui ... homo Phil. 2, 6–7.

841 similitudine The Vulgate has "similitudinem", but Erasmus also reads "similitudine" in his translation of Phil. 2, 7 in the Nov. Instr. (p. 97).

841–842 indicat ... angelos In fact, Paul does not speak of angels at all, let alone of Jesus' humiliation below the angels.

843–844 humiliavit ... crucis Phil. 2, 8.

846 Tu ... Deo See appendix IV, ll. 122–124.

849–850 propter ... nomen Phil. 2, 9. Where Erasmus reads supra the Vulgate reads "super".

853–854 Et ... crucis See Phil. 2, 7–8.

855 nemo mortalium aut passus est aut fortasse pati possit, quid habet impietatis hic sermo si dicatur infra abiectissimos etiam homines abiectisse se? Graue onus paupertas, ille voluit esse pauperrimus. Dura res dolor, ille summos in se recepit cruciatu. Acerbissima rerum mors et mors adacta, denique talis mors et hanc in se recepit. Morte quoque acerbior est ignominia; conspici et probris obrui voluit.

860 Quod humanam assumpsit naturam, hactenus aequalis fuit caeteris hominibus; quod pauper, quod in summis laboribus vixit, hactenus infra multos homines fuit; quod mortalis erat, hoc nobis erat aequalis; quod talem mortem pro nobis delegit, infra vulgus hominum sese deiecit. Nec ea res quicquam, opinor, detrahit dignitati Christi qua semper est Patri aequalis, non profecto 865 magis quam illius felicitati derogat siue, ut quidam loquuntur, beatificae fruitioni quod in anima pariter ac corpore summos pati voluit cruciatu. Nec enim ob id Christum facimus infelicem, quod et carere voluit his commodis quibus hominum vulgus se felices putant et nostrae conditionis incommoda perpeti, eaque perferre ob quae vulgus infelices vocat, etiamsi tuus Aristoteles ista partem 870 aliquam felicitatis et infelicitatis atque adeo plusquam dimidium facit.

Ac ne quid forte cauilleris, quum plerique recentiores humiliationem siue exinanitionem Christi non ad dolores susceptos sed ad naturam hominis assumptam referant, me perperam hoc de meo addidisse, primum vides ipsum Paulum insignite distinguere naturam a malis susceptis non solum hoc loco quem modo 875 citauimus, verumetiam in epistola ad Hebraeos quum ait: eum autem qui modicum quam angeli mino|ratus est, videmus Iesum propter passionem mortis gloria et honore coronatum. Ac paulo inferius: in eo enim in quo passus est ipse et tentatus potens est et eis qui tentantur auxiliari. Audis non naturae sed passionis mentionem.

880 Quod si quis attentius excutiat Ambrosianam interpretationem, comperiet hanc quoque humiliationem non tantum ad naturam assumptam, verumetiam ad susceptas naturae contumelias referre, siquidem hunc edisserens locum, quem paulo ante citauimus, ait: Christus igitur sciens in forma Dei se esse, aequalem se ostendit Deo sed ut humilitatis legem doceret; Iudaeis se comprehendentibus non solum non repugnauit sed semetipsum exinanivit, hoc est potestatem suam ab opere 885 traxit ut humiliatus ociosa virtute infrirmari videretur formam serui suscipiens dum tenetur et ligatur et verberibus agitur usque ad crucem factus obediens Patri cui se aequalem sciebat, non sibi defendit aequalitatem sed subiecit se. Hanc patientiam et humilitatem imitari nos docet ut non solum aequalibus nos non anteponamus verumetiam inclinemus nos, autoris nostri secuti exemplum. Ac mox: serui autem 890 formam accepisse dicitur dum quasi peccator humiliatur. Serui autem ex peccato fiunt sicut Cham, filius Noe, qui primus merito nomen serui accepit.

Atque hactenus quidem audis Ambrosium mecum haud obscure facientem. Is Christi humiliationem exaggerat quo insignius sit exemplum quod nobis in se expressit quodque nominatim iussit imitari: discite a me quod mitis sum et humili corde. Tu Christum paululum quiddam humiliatum esse vis, homo misericors, opinor, qui nolis Christum durius accipi. Iam quae sequuntur apud Ambrosium dilucidius etiam pro me faciunt. Non enim, inquit, mihi sicut quibusdam videtur, sic formam serui accepisse dum homo natus est. Ego ad vtrunque retuli Christum diminutum, iste tantum ad vitae nostrae contumelias referri vult.

900 Diuus Augustinus quanquam magis spectare videtur assumptam hominis naturam, tamen passionis mentionem adiungit quum ait: quem minutum paulo

858 hanc Ac B-BAS: deest in A.

859 est BAS: deest in A-E.

863 sese A-C E BAS: se D.

886 infirmari A B E BAS: informari C D.

895 quodque E BAS: quod A-D.

855–856 quid ... sermo For Lefèvre's accusation of impietas against Erasmus, see appendix IV, l. 134.

856 infra ... se See appendix III, ll. 23–24.

865 quidam Cf. Thomas Aquinas, Summa Theologica, pars tertia, quaestio 8,3, art. 5 ad 9: "Per calicem duo possunt significari: vno modo ipsa passio quae repraesentatur in hoc sacramento et secundum hoc, per partem in calicem missam significantur illi qui adhuc sunt participes passionum Christi. Alio modo potest significari fructus beatae quae etiam in hoc sacramento praefiguratur. Et ideo illi quorum corpora iam sunt in plena beatitudine significantur per partem in calicem missam." Cf. A Lexicon of St. Thomas Aquinas by R.J. Deferrari e.a. p. 449 ad "fructio": "... fructus beatae: the blessed enjoyment or the enjoyment of the blessed in heaven..."

869–870 etiamsi ... facit Erasmus seems to mean that, according to Aristotelian doctrine, misfortune is only the extent to which someone's fate is on the negative side of the mid-point between good fortune and misery. Erasmus may have thought that such a relativizing definition of misfortune was justified in light of Aristotle's arithmetical treatment of the notion of justice in Eth. Nic. V, 3–4, 1131a10–1132b21.

869 tuis Erasmus is alluding to Lefèvre's intensive Aristotelian studies; see the present apologia, n. l. 151.

871–873 plerique ... referant Petrus Lombardus, Magistri Petri Lombardi Sententiae in iv libris distinctae, Collegium S. Bonaventurae Ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata, Rome, 1981, iii, 6, 5, p. 58.

874 hoc loco Philip. 2, 7–9.

875–877 eum ... coronatum Hebr. 2, 9.

877–878 prius in ... auxiliari Hebr. 2, 18.

882–883 locum ... citauimus I.e., in the present apologia, ll. 839–844: Phil. 2, 6–8.

883–890 Christus ... exemplum Ambrosiaster Comm. ad Phil., cap. ii, v. 7–8, CSEL 81, 3, ed. H.I. Vogels, Vienna, 1969, p. 140, ll. 1–12. For traxit in l. 886, Vogels reads "retrahit" (variant reading: "retrahit"); for suscipiens, in l. 886, Vogels reads "accipiens"; for obediens in l. 887, Vogels reads "obaudiens" (variant reading oboediens); for aequalibus in l. 889, Vogels reads "coaequalibus".

886 ociosa "quiet", "without fierce emotions". Cf. Adag. 2858 (Ociosus esto), ASD II, 6, p. 537, ll. 518–527.

886 infirmari A, B, E and BAS have this reading, whereas C and D read "informari". These two different readings also occur in the textual tradition of this passage of Ambrosiaster. Perhaps the varia lectio in C en D can be explained from the textual variation in Ambrosiaster.

890–892 serui ... accepit Ambrosiaster, Comm. ad Phil., cap. ii, v. 7–8, CSEL 81, 3, ed. H.I. Vogels, Vienna, 1969, p. 140, ll. 13–15. For nomen serui in l. 892, Vogels reads "serui nomen".

895 nominatim "expressly".

895–896 discite ... corde Mt. 11, 29. Where Erasmus reads quod, the Vulgate has "quia". The word quod is probably due to a stylistic correction by Erasmus himself; it is not recorded as a variant reading in the apparatus of Wordsworth-White, ad loc.

896–897 Tu ... accipi See appendix IV, ll. 122–127.

homo misericors I.e., Lefèvre. Erasmus means that Lefèvre is merciful, because he does not want to believe that Jesus was humiliated very deeply. The phrase is ironic.

898–899 Non ... est Ambr. Comm. ad Phil., cap. ii, v. 7–8, CSEL 81, 3, ed. H.I. Vogels, Vienna, 1969, p. 140, ll. 15–17.

902–904 quem ... credidimus Cf. the present apologia, ll. 534–536, where Erasmus quotes this passage and its preceding context; see Aug. Enarr. in Ps. 8, 11, at 8, 6–7, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 54, ll. 10–11.

minus ab angelis per humilitatem carnalis generationis atque passionis audiuiimus et credidimus, quandoquidem carnalem generationem appellat naturam hominis assumptam, passionem naturae contumelias. Ac paulo superius: de quo propter infirmitatem carnis, quam sapientia Dei gestare dignata est, et passionis humilitatem recte dicitur: minuisti eum paulo minus ab angelis. Rursus duo coniungit, naturam assumptam et afflictionem, et passioni nomen humilitatis accommodat, quam tu vis exaltationem dici, etiam si non inferior Christi humilitatem esse gloriosam, quandoquidem, vt inquit Hilarius, illius humilitas nostra nobilitas est, illius contumelia honor noster est.

Vides mihi nec hac in parte scriptorum illustrium deesse patrocinium. Quo si maxime destituerer, non arbitror flagitium si quid ipse noui commentus fuisse, praesertim quum id probabiliter ex Pauli verbis colligatur et ad Christi gloriam faciat, non ad contumeliam, ad nostram salutem conducat, non ad perniciem. Proinde si sententiam meam tibi probaui, non arbitror aequum esse tantopere offendti te quod dixerim illum deiecssisse se infra abiectissimos homines. Et fortasse deiiciendi verbum tibi contumeliam sonat. Dicitur descendisse, dicitur humiliatus, dicitur diminutus, dicitur inferior, dicitur minor, denique Paulo dicitur exinanitus, et cur est quod nos offendat deiiciendi verbum aut si quod aliud est huic simile?

Neque puto te tam rudem Latini sermonis, vt existimes abiectos aut deiectos tantum dici qui suo merito malis obnoxii sunt. Quum enim ait Ouidius: quamuis abiectus et infra te quoque sim, non mores suos accusat, sed sortem duram et grauem indicat. Absit enim vt non dicam me, sed quemquam christianorum huc impietatis vel potius amentiae prolapsum existimes, vt Christo vitium aut indignitatem aut ignominiam ascribat et animi malis cum abiectissimis, hoc est scleratissimis hominibus conferat. An non laboriosos, pauperes, contemptos iuxta mundum abiectos dicimus? Et an non vere aliqua | in parte humiles abiectique sunt? Cum sic abiectis hominibus Christum similiter abiectum compono, nisi quod quae illi saepe adacti necessitate patientur, hic volens nostra causa tulit. Non eum cum latronibus confero, sed cum martyribus et si illum cum suis latronibus conferam, quod indigniora quam illi passus sit, cum illis vera crimina non opprobrarentur, hic innocens tot probris affectus sit, non opinor me impie facturum.

I.B. 35 At dicis: ista quae Christus in se volens recepit mala non sunt nec reddunt deteriorem sed potius meliorem, atque hoc loco nonnihil a Peripateticis tuis desciscens ad Stoicos prouocas. Si etiam philosophos, inquis, interrogemus an vir fortis ut victoriam pariat populi salutem, quod ad flagra, ad vulnera, ad ipsam denique mortem sciens volensque descendant, an, inquam, inferior abiectiorque habeatur, dicent procul dubio quod multo etiam superior multoque honorabilior. Et in eandem sententiam de martyribus philosopharis.

Primum ad quod genus malorum pertineant quae iuxta tuum Aristotelem non sinunt hominem adipisci perfectam felicitatem nihil mea refert, mihi satis est esse in aliquo malorum genere. Socrates nihilo deterior erat quum cicutam biberet, 950 quum compedes gestaret in carcere quam quum aureus staret in foro. Et tamen illic aliquo modo deiectus erat, hic euectus et honoratus. Si quis rex, mendici pannis tectus, famem, exilium, carcerem vltro subeat quo consulat reipublicae, nonne recte dixeris hunc a regia fortuna deiecssisse se infra abiectissimos etiam homines?

955 At hoc ipso maior est, inquis, quod ad ista descenderit. Si quo modo fateris descendisse, aliquo modo inferiorem fatearis oportet. Sed alia ratione inferior est, alia melior et honoratior. Si sortem et cruciatus attendas et cum pristina gloria conferas, multum se deiecit; si virtutem animi, multo seipso melior est. Martyr hac parte qua ad iussum regis ceruicem porrigit et tyranno se submittit, hac est

910 illius ... est E BAS: deest in A-D.

955 alt. hac B E BAS: hoc A C D.

905–907 de ... angelis Ibid., p. 54, ll. 2–5.

After propter Augustine reads “ipsam”.

908–909 quam ... dici See appendix IV, ll. 253–254, where Lefèvre, referring to Ioh. 12, 32, “et ego si exaltatus fuero a terra, omnia traham ad me ipsum”, asserts that Christ called his passio an exaltatio.

910–911 illius humilitas ... est Hil. Trin. 2, 25, CCSL 62, ed. P. Smulders, Turnhout, 1979, p. 61, ll. 16–17: “Humilitas eius nostra nobilitas est, contumelia eius honor noster est.”

916–917 tantopere offendit te See appendix III, l. 24, appendix IV, ll. 132–136.

917 quod ... homines See appendix III, l. 24.

920 exinanitus Phil. 2, 7.

922–923 Negue ... sunt Cf. appendix IV, ll. 247–277 and the Introduction pp. 28–30.

923–924 quamuis ... sim Ov. Trist. V, 8, ll. 1–2: “quamuis abiectus, vt infra te quoque sim”.

925–928 Absit ... conferat Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February 1518, ll. 180–183, “... ita lacesisset (i.e., Lefèvre) vt, nisi me defendarem, Augustinum, Ambrosium, Athanasium, Chrysostomum, breuiter ceteros orthodoxos omnes atque ipsum adeo Hieronymum in communi criminis fuerimus.”

926 impietatis See appendix IV, l. 134.

926 amentiae Cf. ibid. l. 515.

927 animi malis “on account of wickedness of heart”. malis is ablative of cause rather than an ablative of quality.

932–933 suis latronibus I.e., the two robbers or criminals crucified together with Jesus, Mc. 15, 27; Mt. 27, 38; Lc. 23, 32; Ioh. 19, 18.

933–934 cum ... opprobarentur “since they were not blamed for their real crimes”.

936–937 ista ... meliorem See appendix IV,

ll. 250–254 and 273–275.

937 Peripateticis tuis For Lefèvre’s study of Aristotle, see the present aplogia, n. l. 151.

938 ad Stoicos provocas Erasmus’ intention is explained by the next sentence. Obviously Erasmus means that Lefèvre’s view, according to which Jesus’ suffering and dying for others made him noble rather than ignoble, derives from Stoic philosophy.

938–941 Si ... honorabilior See appendix IV, ll. 261–264.

941–942 in ... philosopharis Ibid., ll. 264–268.

943–944 ad ... felicitatem According to Aristotle, one cannot be perfectly happy if one’s circumstances are not sufficiently favourable: in order to be happy, one has to be in good health, to have enough food and other indispensable goods, and to enjoy a certain degree of prosperity. See Eth. Nic. X, 8, 1178 b 34–1179 a 4. Moreover, one cannot be happy without leisure; if one has to make war or be politically active, one cannot be perfectly happy. See Eth. Nic. X, 7, 1177 b 4–17. The mala referred to in l. 943 thus are: bad health, hunger, poverty, and lack of leisure. Aristot. Eth. Nic. II, 7, 1107 a33–1108 b10.

946 aureus ... foro Cf. Adag. 715, LB II, 306 B–C, (Aureus in Olympia stato). Erasmus is thinking of a golden statue erected for someone of great merit. He used the same idiom in the Apolog. resp. Iac. Lop. Stun., ASD IX, 2, p. 202, l. 650; see n. l. 650.

949–950 infra ... homines In his Nov. Instr., Erasmus used this phrase to describe the position of Jesus during his passion, see appendix III, l. 24. For Lefèvre’s reaction in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 132–136.

inferior, cum pietate sit illo longe superior. Et quemadmodum martyr in suppliciis amore Christi et eius exemplo sese humiliat, ita eiusdem exemplo gloria et honore coronatur, vt qui socius fuerit deiecto, idem socius sit eucto et regnanti.

Neque tamen nos vsquam Christum abiectum aut abiectionem diximus, quod tu repetis in hac argumentatione, neque quisquam illi abiectionem aut improperium obiicit quod, vt ais, infidelium est ac Iudaeorum. Imo vtrunque in illo adoramus et exosculamur, et quod exaltatus est super omnia, et quod nostra causa sic sese deiecit. In altero videmus quid nobis sit imitandum, in altero quid sperandum. Adoramus sublimem sedentem ad dextram Patris et eundem adoramus vagientem in cunis, adoramus consputum, adoramus infami sententia damnatum, adoramus etiamnum crucis et plagarum pro nobis susceptarum seruantem vestigia.

Cur tibi solum placet exaltationis vocabulum, quum ne possit quidem exaltari qui non aliquo modo fuerit inferior? Si recte inferior dicitur in imo subsellio sedens vir optimus eo qui summo thoro recumbit nequissimus, an non aliquo modo inferior est qui tot humanae vitae iniurias in se recepit? Nec enim quisquis aliquo modo inferior est, statim et simpliciter est inferior.

Non loquor, inquis, de homine assumpto sed de Iesu Christo qui est Deus ac Filius Dei. Atque ego de eodem loquor homine, et hominis Filio et homine crucifixo tot mala pro nobis passo. Si Jesus Christus tantum est Dominus et Filius Dei, qui intelligitur diminutus? Si idem est hominis Filius et hactenus seipso minor, quid absurdii sit hoc referre diminutionem? Et haud scio an probabilius sit Christum et Christi nomen, sic enim loqueris, quum duas significet naturas, pro vna duntaxat accipi non pro duabus, vt tu vis, aut, quod est absurdius, e duabus composito, etiam si quum Filius hominis diminutus dicitur, quoniam comparatio ad duo refertur, sermo videtur ad vtranque naturam respicere, assumentem et assumptam.

Alioqui cum dico: Christus assumpsit humanam naturam, vtrum Christi vocabulum pro vtraque natura positum videtur an pro altera, nempe diuina? Et quum Augustinus ait: Dei Filius assumpsit Filium hominis, cum vtrunque sit hypostaseos vocabulum, tamen appetat vtrunque pro altera natura accipi. Proin tu videris an quaecunque aliquo modo duo significant, statim in enuntiationibus pro duobus accipientur. Nisi forte cum 'album' dico, quoniam ea vox substantiam significat simulque colorem inherentem, 'album' recte pro vtroque dicetur accipi. Aut quia 'Pater' in diuinis duas significat personas, alteram in recto, alteram in obliquo, protinus pro duabus accipietur. Aut quia 'caecus' significat oculis captum atque obiter etiam visum, pro vtroque accipietur.

Et tamen quod hactenus a me dictum est argumentando duntaxat, est dictum vt eo peruenirem quo tendebam, βραχύ τι ad tempus esse referendum. Tu perinde nos oppugnas quasi hic esset disputationis meae cardo. Sed operaepraecium est audire quanto molimine excusas quod Christus in Psalmis dixerit se vermem et non hominem, opprobrium hominum et abiectionem plebis, nam hunc forte locum adduxeram. Quasi vero periculum esset ne Christus crederetur vere fuisse vermis, nisi te famae suaे patronum esset nactus.

1000 Nihil offendit pias aures quod vermis dicitur, non magis quam quod lapis dicitur aut agnus aut leo aut vitis aut granum sinapis aut aliud simile. Atque hic putas 970 recumbit BAS: recumbat A-E.

971 iniurias Ac B-BAS: incurias A.

976 seipso BAS: se A-E.

978 duas A B E BAS: duas vtcunque C D.

979 vt tu vis, aut A B E BAS: aut vt tu vis C D.

957–958 gloria ... coronatur Cf. Hebr. 2, 9.

959–960 quod ... argumentatione See appendix IV, ll. 247–250.

960–961 abiectionem aut improprium Ibid., ll. 358–359.

961 vt ... Iudeorum Ibid., ll. 248–249 and 272.

962 exaltatus ... omnia Cf. Phil. 2, 9.

964 sublimem ... Patris Mc. 16, 19, Col. 3, 1, Hebr. 10, 12.

965 vagientem in cunis Although the image may be reminiscent of Lc. 2, 7, the language is Cicero's: Cato 23, 83 "in cunis vagire", Rep. 2, 11, 21 "in cunabulis vagientem", etc. consputum Mc. 14, 65; 15, 19, Mt. 26, 67; 27, 30.

965–966 infami sententia damnatum Mc. 14, 53–64, Mt. 26, 57–66.

966 crucis et plagarum Mc. 15, 15–25, Iob. 19, 18–23, Mt. 27, 26–35, Lc. 23, 33.

968 Cur ... vocabulum Erasmus asks this because of Lefèvre's formulation in appendix IV, ll. 253–254.

973–974 Non ... Dei Cf. appendix IV, ll. 96–97: neque de assumpto homine intelligimus ... sed intelligimus de Christo Domino qui est Filius Dei. The subject of loqueris is Lefèvre.

976–977 idem ... minor Erasmus probably has in mind Augustine's phrase, already quoted in the present apologia, ll. 725–726 and n. l. 726.

977 quid absurdum Cf. appendix IV, l. 106.

977–982 Et ... assumptam "It is probably less recommendable to take 'Christ' and (to use your words) 'the name of Christ', terms which signify two natures, to refer, rather than to only one nature, to two, as you do, or, what is still more absurd, to a composite of the two, in spite of the fact that the expression 'the Son of man was humiliated', implying a comparison of two aspects of Christ's being, seems to refer to both natures, the divine nature, which takes on humanity, and the human nature assumed by Christ's deity."

978 Christum ... loqueris See appendix IV, l. 110.

979–980 e duabus composito Cf. the present apologia, ll. 692–698, where Erasmus cites 979 quod est absurdius E BAS: deest in A-D.

991 accipietur B-BAS: accipi A.

992 visum A B E BAS: amissum visum C D; accipietur B-BAS: accipi A.

995 nos B-BAS: deest in A.

passages from Augustine in which he speaks about a mixtura of Jesus' natures.

985 Augustinus ... hominis Cf. Aug. Trin. 2, 6, CCSL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, p. 93, l. 132–p. 94, l. 16.

986 hypostaseos vocabulum "a name of the person" or "a word designating the person" (i.e., of Christ).

986–988 Proin ... accipientur "It is up to you, therefore, to consider whether all words that signify two things, when they are used in statements, should immediately be taken to refer to both of them." videtur is subjunctive of the perfect active. It expresses the idea that an action is left to someone else, or for another moment, to be executed. It has the value of a jussive. A. Ernout and F. Thomas, Syntaxe latine, Paris, 1953, 268, quote Cicero, Phil. 2, 118: "scd de te tu videris ..., à toi d'aviser ..." For the same phrase, see the present apologia, l. 1012: tu videris an. See also l. 1642 ipse videris and l. 2532 tu videris.

990 duas significat personas "Pater" can signify the person who speaks or acts, or the person to whom one speaks; that is, it can be a nominative or a vocative.

990–991 recto ... obliquo "nominative ... an oblique case."

992 oculis captum "someone bereft of his eyesight".

obiter ... visum "someone seen in passing", i.e., only vaguely.

995–999 Sed ... nactus See appendix IV, ll. 161–238.

997–998 nam ... adduxeram See appendix III, ll. 25–26.

999 vermis Ps. 21, 7.

1000 lapis l. Petr. 2, 7, Eph. 2, 20, Mt. 21, 42, Mc. 12, 10, Act. 4, II.

1001 agnus Iob. 1, 29 and 36; Ap. Iob. passim.

leo Ap. Iob. 5, 5.

vitis Iob. 15, 1–5.

granum sinapis Jesus himself is not called a mustard seed in the Bible; see the present apologia, n. l. 780.

tibi Tenediam bipennem repartam qua omnes huiusmodi nodos disseces, si omnia quae in hanc formam de Christo leguntur in diuinis literis non ad veritatem, sed ad Iudeorum pertineant existimationem siue, vt tu loqueris, aestimationem, visque totum illum psalmum qui derectionem, dejectionem et confusione sonat secundum aestimationem et iudicium sacerdotum, scribarum et pharisaeorum esse intelligendum. Atqui si sic accipi poterat, cur non mea verba sic interpretabar? Christum aestimatione Iudeorum fuisse diminutum infra abiectissimos homines? Minus est abiectum esse infra homines quam appellari vermem, quam probrum, quam reiectamentum? Et si haec pie possunt intelligi, cur in meis suspicaris impietatem?

Sed tamen tu videris an verum sit quod ais, totum illum psalmum ad existimationem Iudeorum pertinere, nisi forte quod inibi legitur, foderunt manus meas et pedes meos, item illud: omnes videntes deriserunt me et caetera existimationis sunt, non veritatis. Quid quod recentiores etiam theologi negant Christum moriturum fuisse, ni diuinitas humanum corpus aliquo modo dereliqueret. Quod si verum est, non opinione, sed re fuit derelictus.

Quum autem constet appellatione vermis nihil aliud significari quam summam Christi humiliationem, eaque humiliatio sita sit in malis quae nostra causa assumpsit, si vere mala nostra recepit et passus est, vere fuit humiliatus et hactenus vere vermis. Certe quod caesus est flagris, quod consputus, quod vincitus, quod accusatus, quod damnatus, quod probris affectus, quod inter sceleratos crucifixus, veritatis est, non existimationis Iudeorum et tamen ob haec vermis dicitur, ob haec dicitur humiliatus ac diminutus, ob haec exinanitus. Sed immerens ista tulit. Fateor, verum ista hoc sunt indigniora si accident immerenti.

Atque aliquanto inferius hoc agis vt quod vermis appelleatur ad nos pertineat, non ad Christum, quod vermis terrenus sit, Christus autem coelensis dicatur apud Paulum. Et tamen diuus Augustinus hunc enarrans locum ausus est ad ipsum Christum referre. Quare, inquit, vermis? Quia mortalis, quia de carne natus, quia sine concubitu natus. Atque haec cum vere in Christum competerent, non iuxta hominum existimationem, quomodo tibi existimatione tantum vermis dicitur? Tametsi hoc quidem in loco quod apud Augustinum sequitur mihi non admodum probatur, qui sic interpretatur non hominem dictum quod Deus esset. Quare, inquit, non homo? Quia in principio erat Verbum et Verbum erat apud Deum et Deus erat Verbum. Id enim argutius videtur dictum quam verius. Nec enim ideo Christus homo non erat quod Deus esset, nec absque tropo dictus est non homo. Tametsi sic propermodum | argutatur et Ambrosius enarrans apud Lucam Petri negationem, quasi sic dixerit Petrus non noui hominem quod Deum agnosceret.

Sed vt ad rem redeam, idem Augustinus edisserens primum caput euangeli Ioannis scribit hunc in modum: si enim ipse Dominus dicit: ego autem sum vermis et non homo, quis dubitat hoc dicere quod scriptum est in Iob: Quanto magis homo putredo et Filius hominis vermis, putredinis appellationem ad nos referens, vermis ad Christum? Neque vero Paulus ideo Christum coelestem vocat quod corpus 1045 terrenum non haberet, sed quod a contagio terreni Adae abesset, quandoquidem illic duos fecit Adam, alterum peccandi principem, alterum innocentiae principem. Certe diuus Augustinus non veretur Christo terreni cognomen tribuere epistola 147 ad Consentium: Dominus, inquiens, ad hoc terrenus factus est quem esset coelestis, vt eos qui terreni erant faceret coelestes. Quod si solus Christus 1050 coelestis est, caeteri omnes terreni, igitur vermis appellatio in martyres non iuxta existimationem malorum, sed vere competit iuxta tuam interpretationem. Quod si hic quoque valere vis $\chi\varphi\eta\sigma\varphi\gamma\epsilon\tau\omega$ opinionis, cur addis scribarum et pharisaeorum? An apud istos tantum passi sunt martyres aut apud hos tantum contempti?

1004 ad BAS: deest in A-E.

1005 visque A-E: vixque BAS.

1010 possunt BAS: possint A-E.

1013 inibi B-BAS: deest in A.

1018 significari A B E BAS: significare C D.

1027 dicatur B E BAS: dicitur A C D.

1036-1037 nec ... homo Ac B-BAS: deest in A.

1047-1049 Certe ... coelestes E BAS: deest in A-D.

1002 Tenediam bipennem Adag. 892, LB II, 345 F-346 D (Conueniet aut in eos qui nimium seuere iudicant ac puniunt aut qui celeriter expedient controvierias et litium ambiguitates).

nodos dissecet Cf. Adag. 6 (Nodus soluere), ASD II, 1, pp. 118-119.

1003-1007 omnia ... intelligendum See appendix IV, ll. 161-194.

1004-1005 aestimationem See appendix IV, l. 211.

1005-1007 totum ... intelligendum Ibid. ll. 234-236.

1008-1009 infra abiectissimos homines See appendix III, l. 24.

1009-1010 vermē ... reiectamentum Cf. Ps. 21,

7.

1011 imprietatem See appendix IV, l. 134.

1012 tu videris an See the present apologia, n. ll. 987-989.

1012-1013 ais ... pertinere See appendix IV, l. 211.

1013-1014 foderunt ... meos Ps. 21, 17.

1014 omnes ... me Ps. 21, 8. Vg.: "omnes videntes me deriserunt me ..."

1015-1016 recentiores ... dereliqueriset Petrus Lombardus, Magistri Petri Lombardi Sententiae in IV libris distinctae ..., Collegium S. Bonaventurae ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata, Rome, 1981, iii, 21, 1, pp. 130-134.

1021-1023 Certe ... crucifixus Cf. the present apologia, ll. 965-968 and nn.

1026-1028 hoc ... Paulum See appendix IV, ll. 219-228.

1026 vermis Ps. 21, 7. See Introduction, pp. 26-27.

1027 coelestis 1 Cor. 15, 48.

1028 hunc ... locum Ps. 21, 7.

1029-1030 Quare ... concubitu natus Aug. Enarr. in Ps., 21, 2, 7, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 125, ll. 6-7.

1034-1035 Quare ... Verbum Ibid. p. 125, ll. 7-9.

1036 tropo "Figure of speech", viz. synecdoche, or "amplificatio", i.e., an exaggerated description.

1037-1039 Ambrosius ... agnosceret Expos. in Lc. 10, 84, CCSL 32, edd. C. Schenkel and H. Schenkel, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1902, p. 487, ll. 16-19.

1038 non noui hominem Mt. 26, 72, cf. Lc. 22, 57.

1041-1043 si ... hominis vermis Aug. Tract. in Job. 1, 13, CCSL 36, ed. D.R. Willems, Turnhout, 1954, pp. 7-8, ll. 25-28.

1042-1043 Quanto ... hominis vermis Job 25, 6.

1044 coelestem 1 Cor. 15, 47-48.

1046 illic 1 Cor. 15, 47.

1048-1049 Dominus ... coelestes Aug. Epist. 205, 12, CSEL 57, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1911, p. 333, ll. 18-20.

1050 vermis Ps. 21, 7.

1051 competet "will apply".

1051 iuxta tuam interpretationem Cf. the present apologia, ll. 941-942 and n.

1052 hic quoque Also in Job 25, 6.

1052 $\chi\varphi\eta\sigma\varphi\gamma\epsilon\tau\omega$ "place of refuge", hence "resort", also "subterfuge". Erasmus used the same word in Apol. resp. Iac. Lop. Stun., ASD IX, 2, p. 132, l. 485.

1052-1053 scribarum et pharisaeorum See appendix IV, l. 167. Lefevre deals extensively with this subject in ibid., ll. 161-228.

Iam commentum quod adducis de non homo cum addis: vnuſ enim Deus et vnuſ mediator Dei et hominum, homo Christus Iesuſ, qui ſic homo eſt quod omnium hominum maxime homo et vere homo, quale ſit dispiciamus. Hic ſi tibi res eſſet cum homine ſophiſti, vide quo pacto tueri poſſis Christum omnium maxime vere hominem eſſe, quum iuxta tuum Aristotelem magis et minus non cadat in ſubſtantiam, vt Christus magis homo dici poſſit etiam ſi melior cunctis hominibus dici debeat. Non referam hoc loco par pari vt ſummo, quod aiunt, iure tecum contendam et de voculis cauiller, poſtequam mihi ſatis liquet quid ſenſeris.

Iam opprobrium hominum et abiectionem plebis cur vereris Christo accommodare, ſed in alios homines detorques, quum Paulus non vereatur eum peccatum et maledictum dicere? Haec verba ſi pie dicuntur de Christo, quae impietas eſt dicere Christum infra homines diminutum, modo id ſentiatur quod de Christo ſentire cum primis eſt pium? Si verbiſ offendari, hiſ magis offendendi oportuit, ſi ſententia, nihil hic eſt impium niſi ſi quis impie interpretetur. Si dixiſſem Christum humiliasse ſe infra humillimos homines, non abhorreter, opinor. Cur vociferarif impietatem ſi dixi abiectum infra abiectiſſimos homines, quum recte humiliatus dicatur qui ſe humiliarit et nihil aliud ſit abiectus quam humiliatus?

Quod ſi vocis nouitas ſola te offendit, vſus eſt ea ante nos de Christo Auguſtinuſ, hunc psalmi locum exponens: quare, inquit, ergo ſic ſe abiecit, vt diceret vermis? At dices: abiecit ſe oratione. Fateor, ſed vera tamen, opinor, non vana aut ficta, vnde conſequitur vere fuiſſe abiectum.

Iam quod ſcribiſ Christum opinione Iudeorum fuiſſe derelictum a Patre non ſolum frigidulum eſt, verumetiam ab omnium veterum interpretum ſententia diſſentiens, quaſi hoc Christus illic queratur Patri quod Iudei male de ſe ſentiant, pro quibus paulo ante orauerit. Et haud ſcio an praestiterit, mi Faber, hulcuſ hoc exiſtimationis in totum non tangere, ne cui minus incipiat diſplicere Marci cuiuſdam aut Marcionis, opinor, haereticus qui, vt autor eſt Auguſtinuſ, docuit Christum non vere ſed putatiue paſſum.

Iam quod me rogas, qui conueniat eum qui eſt primogenitus omnis creaturae et ſupra omnem creaturam dici vermem et eum dici non hominem, de quo dicit Apoſtoluſ: vnuſ enim Deus et vnuſ mediator Dei et hominum, homo Christus Iesuſ, recuſius ab ipſo prophetuſ ſcisciteriſ, imo ab ipſo Christuſ qui ſe per os prophetarum vermem dixiſ. Neque vereor ne ob id mihi ſuccenſeat Christuſ, ſi ipſius utrūq; verbiſ in eum ſenſum in quem ille dixiſ, ſi qua fides tot orthodoxis interpretib; Atque inter hos eſt diuinus Hieronymuſ, vnuſ multorum instat, qui exponens ſecondum caput epistolae Pauli ad Titum pallam Christum vermem appellat et amplius auſuſ peccatum et maledictum audet dicere.

Quod autem Pauli testimonio doces Christum hominem dici, fateor, riſi ſedulitatem tuam, quaſi vero periculum fuiſſet ne quis alioqui Christum negaſſet hominem niſi vnuſ Pauli locum nobis obiecſiſſes, quum ipſe tories in euangelio ſe vocet Filiuſ hominis. Porro quaesitam e diuinis libris docens Christum non fuiſſe vere derelictum, non minus faciunt pro me quam pro te. Non ſpreuit

1055

1060

1065

1070

1075

1080

LB 38

1091

1095

Deus neque despexit deprecationem pauperis. At qui deprecatur quoniam implorat opem, aliquousque videtur derelictus, alioqui quid implorat si nihil desiderat? Ac mox: et quum clamarem ad eum, exaudiuit me. Quid clamat qui nulla re destitutus est? Aut quomodo liberantur qui nullo pacto sunt derelicti?

1100

- 1056 quale sit dispiciamus BAS: deest in A C D, inspiciamus B E.
1074 non vana aut ficta Ac B D-BAS: deest in A C.
1075 consequitur A-C E BAS: sequitur D.
1081 aut Marcionis, opinor B-BAS: deest in A.

- 1054 non homo Ps. 21, 7.
1054–1056 vnu ... sic homo Appendix IV,
ll. 195–198.
1058–1059 quum ... substantiam Aristot. Categ.,
5, 3 b33–34.
1060–1061 Non ... cauiller Cf. Ep. 597, from Erasmus to Thomas More <Louvain>, cc. 10
July 1517>, ll. 35–36: “... cui (i.e., Lefèvre) mox edita epistola respondebo, sed stomacho temperans, ne contentio, non disputatio, videatur.”
1060 referam ... par pari Adag. 35, ASD II, 1, pp. 150–151. Cf. l. 262.
1060–1061 summo ... iure Cf. Cic. Verr. 2, 5, 2, §4: “non agam summo iure tecum”; and especially Cic. Caec. 23, 65: “... aequum et bonum habere quod defendant; si contra verbis et litteris, et, vt dici solet, summo iure contenditur.” Summo iure here means “applying the law with utmost rigor”. In l. 1061 it means: “(to fight against you) with utmost vigour.”
1063–1064 Iam ... detorques Cf. appendix IV,
ll. 161–167.
1064–1065 peccatum 2 Cor. 5, 21.
1065 maledictum Gal. 3, 13.
1065 quaes impietas See appendix IV, l. 134.
1067–1069 Si ... abhorres Lefèvre did indeed hold that Jesus descended to earth to be an example of true humility; see the S. Pauli epistole XIV, ad Phil. 2, 7, Paris, 1512, f°175v.
1070 voferaris... homines See appendix IV, ll.
132–136.
1072 vocis nouitas Cf. this apologia, l. 2192:
Neminem fere non offendit nouitas and n.
1073–1074 quare ... vermis Aug., Enarr. in Ps. 21, 2, 7, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and
I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 125, ll. 3–4.
1076 opinione Iudeorum See appendix IV,
ll. 248–249. Cf. ibid. ll. 168–172.
1076 derelictum a Patre See Mt. 27, 46.
1077–1078 ab ... dissentientis Erasmus tries to weaken Lefèvre’s position by claiming that

- 1089 qui B E BAS: deest in A C D.
1096 faciunt pro me BAS: pro me faciunt A-E.
1097 At qui Ac B-BAS: Atqui A.
1099 nulla re F BAS: nulla in re A-D.
1100 sunt BAS: sint A-E.

Lefèvre cannot cite authoritative authors in favour of his view. Erasmus used the same tactics in the present apologia, l. 824.

- 1079 pro ... orauerit Lc. 23, 34.
1079–1081 Et ... haeresis “and I fear, dear Lefèvre, that this argument concerning the Jews’ opinion may create the problem of leading some people to consider the heresy of a certain Marcus or Marcion less objectionable
...” The expression “tangit (h)ulcus”, which means “it touches the sore spot” (Adag. 579, LB II, 252 E–253 A) is constructed here with a dependent clause introduced by ne.
1081–1082 Marci ... passum The reference is to Marcus the gnostic. Aug. De haeresibus, XIV, CCSL 46, edd. R. Vander Plaetse and C.
Beukers, Turnhout, 1969, p. 296. On Marcus the gnostic, a pupil of Valentinus, active in the Rhône valley in the middle of the second century A.D., see ODCC, s.v. Marcosians, p. 871, and F. Dornseiff, Das Alphabet in Mystik und Magie, Leipzig and Berlin, 1925,
pp. 126–133.
1083–1085 qui ... Iesus Appendix IV, ll. 194–
197.
1086–1087 vermem Ps. 21, 7.
1090 vermem apellat This is not to be found in Jerome’s commentary on Tit., but in his commentary on Eph.: Hier. Comm. in Eph., ad 2, 10, Migne PL 26, 501 D 4–5.
1091 peccatum Hier. Comm. in Eph., ad 2, 1, Migne PL 26, 496 A 7.
maledictum Hier. Comm. in Tit., ad 2, 9–10,
Migne PL 26, 620 B 2.
1092 Pauli ... dici 1 Tim. 2, 5. See appendix IV,
ll. 193–198.
1094–1095 ipse ... hominis Jesus calls himself
“Filium hominis” in e. g. Mt. 8, 20 and 9, 6.
1095–1096 citas ... derelictum See appendix IV,
ll. 172–177.
1096–1097 Non ... pauperis Ps. 21, 25 Vg.
1099 et quum ... me Ps. 21, 25 Vg.

Et ne singula persequens fiam loquacior, et illud quod addis: nam et virgo Maria aderat et dilectus discipulus et Magdalene et mulieres Iesum sequutae, quae multa compassionem et Deo et angelis grata pietate flevant super eum, virginis autem cor gladio passionis eius confossum est et anima eius transuerberata pro nobis facit.

1105 Cui compatuntur? Quem misericordia prosequuntur? Nam id, opinor, dicis pietatem, licet vulgate magis quam erudit. Num Verbum Dei Patri semper aequale? An hominem pro omnibus dira patientem? Quem flevant? Num excelsiorem creaturis omnibus? An abiectum et infra latrones? Etsi idem vñusque est Christus in quem haec tam diuersa competit. Vides vt haec nostrae sententiae astipulentur etiam, non solum nihil officiant, vt ne illud excutiam, quod Christus apud Lucam seipsum viride lignum appellat, innocentiae magis esse quam dignitatis. Quod miror cur adducendum putaris, nisi forte periculum erat ne quis nostrum Christum scelerosum hominem iudicaret. Aut si propositum erat colligere quae illius dignitatem indicant, cur e tam multis paucula quaedam adducis? Si volebas refellere quaecunque Christi humilitatem sonare videntur, cur vix vnum aut alterum locum attingis? Vides igitur totum hunc locum tibi extra causam esse declamatum.

1110 1115

Post haec pergis excutere an quod ad haec mala descenderit Christus, ob id fuerit in se diminutus. Belle me hercle proponis, quasi a me vsquam sit dictum illum in se fuisse diminutum, quanquam hoc in se quid sibi velit non satis intelligo. Si in se accipis pro vere, dicam in se fuisse diminutum qui vere fuerit diminutus. Fateris assumpta natura humana susceptisque cruciatibus Christum fuisse diminutum. Vere autem eam assumpsit vereque fuit afflictus, vere igitur fuit diminutus. Sin quum in se dicis, sentis absolute, simpliciter et per se, fateor absolute summum et ne nihil videar ex tuis libris hausisse, plusquam infinite summum.

Iam nec illud satis intelligo quid sibi velit, quod negas Christum in euangelio seipsum dicere vermem, sed lucem mundi, sed viride lignum aliaque quae dignitatis sunt, nisi forte innuis prophetae verba non satis apud nos habere ponderis et par esse vt euangelicae cedant autoritati. An vt Christum credamus recte vermem dici, non satis est nobis quod a propheta vermis sit dictus? Quasi vero non bona pars euangelicae historiae Christi nobis humilitatem decantet aut quasi propheta non alias adoret ac stupeat eius sublimitatem quem hic vermem appellat et reiectamentum plebis. Quum legis cunas, quum praesaepe, quum legis vagientem, quum circumcisum, quum fatigatum, quum ob famem accurrentem ad ficum, quum assumptum ac tentatum a diabolo, quum legis Filiu hominis, quum legis non habentem vbi caput suum reclinet, quum interim nec vulpibus sua desint latibula nec auibus nidi, cum lachrymantem legis et infrementem, quum indigna audientem, denique quum totam passionis historiam recenses, quaeso, quid aliud legis quam Filiu Dei infra omnes homines diminutum vt supra omnia exaltaretur? Quum legis deformatum, despectum, nouissimum virorum, quum agnum coram tondente se obmutescerem, an paululum quiddam diminutum legis? Quae omnia quum Christo tribuantur non offensa illius ineffabili

LB 39 dignitate, qua semper fuit hominibus pariter atque angelis adorandus – neque enim, vt inquit Hilarius, potestatis dignitas amittitur, dum carnis humilitas adoratur, quod ob diuersas naturas diuersissima in eum competant – nihil erat cur celsitudinis admirator humilitatis commemoratione offendatur. Neque enim ideo non vere seruus dictus est quod vere Dominus fuerit omnium. Si minister est qui sordido etiam ministerio fungitur, ille lauans discipulis pedes aliquo pacto minister erat, at nihilo secius eorundem Dominus.

1145 ii50 Iam non video quid tibi velis quum collectionem meam calumniaris quasi parum argute ratiociner. Et quod, inquis, nulla proportio sit naturae humanae ad Deum, id non efficit quod inde dicatur vermis, alioqui et cherubim vermes appellandos quod nec ad hos vlla sit Dei proportio. Quaeso te, sic argumentor vsquam? Imo vt doceam infra abiectissimos homines diminutum Christum, ii55 1110 astipulentur A-C E BAS: adstipulent D.

1120 quid A-E: qui BAS.

1122 susceptisque cruciatibus E BAS: deest in A-D.
1123 vereque fuit afflicta E BAS: deest in A-D.
1124 Sin A C-BAS: Si B.

1137 interim E BAS: deest in A-D.
1139 recenses E BAS: deest in A-D.
1140 supra E BAS: super A-D.
1144–1146 neque ... adoratur E BAS: deest in A-D.
1149 aliquo pacto E BAS: deest in A-D.

1101–1104 nam ... transuerberata Appendix IV,
ll. 189–192. Erasmus reads Magdalene (l. 1102) where Lefèvre has “Magdalena” (appendix IV, l. 190).

1116 viride lignum Lc. 23, 31, cf. appendix IV
ll. 206 and 208.
1116 totum hunc locum i Tim. 2, 5. See the present apologia, l. 1092 Pauli testimonio,
l. 1094, vnum Pauli locum, and ll. 1083–1085
and n.

1116–1117 extra causam Cf. Cic. Caecin. 32, 94.

1118–1119 ob ... diminutus See appendix IV, ll.
246–247.

1127–1128 negas ... lignum See appendix IV, ll.
199–215.

1128 vermem Ps. 21, 7.

1128 lucem mundi Ioh. 8, 12; 9, 5.

1128 viride lignum Lc. 23, 31.

1129 prophetæ I.e., David.

1129 non ... ponderis Viz., for providing a conclusive argument in a theological debate.

1129 nos The theologians in general.

1131 vermis Ps. 21, 7.

1133–1134 reiectamentum plebis See Ps. 21, 7:
“abiectio plebis”.

1134 cunas Lc. 2, 7.

præsaepæ Lc. 2, 7–13.

vagientem E.g., Mt. 4, 18; 19, 1, Mc. 1, 16; 7, 24, 31, Lc. 7, 11; 13, 22; Ioh. 4, 4.

1135 circumcisum Lc. 2, 21.

fatigatum Ioh. 4, 6.

ob ... ficum Mt. 21, 18–9; Mc. 11, 12–13.

1136 assumptum ... diabolo Lc. 4, 1–13, Mt. 4, 1–11; Mc. 1, 13.

Filiū hominis E.g., Mt. 12, 32; 16, 13.

1137–1138 non ... nidi Mt. 8, 20; Lc. 9, 58.
1138 lachrymantem Ioh. 11, 35.

infremptem Ioh. 11, 33.

1138–1139 indigna audientem Mt. 27, 39–45,
Mc. 15, 29–33.

1141 deformatum (“deformare” h. l. means “to dishonor”), cf. e.g., Mt. 26, 67–68; 27, 27–31.
despectum Is. 53, 3.

nouissimum virorum Ibid.

1142 agnum obmutescerentem Is. 53, 7; Act. 8, 32

1144–1146 neque ... adoratur Although this precise formulation is not to be found in Hilary, Erasmus may be thinking of the words in Hilary cited in the present apologia, ll. 910– 911.

1146–1147 nihil ... offendatur Cf. the present apologia, ll. 815–821.

1148 seruus Phil. 2, 7.

Dominus ... omnium Rom. 10, 12; Act. 10, 36.

1149 lauans discipulis pedes Ioh. 13, 1–20.
1151–1154 collectionem ... proportio See appendix IV, ll. 237–239.

1152 naturae humanae Lefèvre’s text reads humanae naturae.

1155–1156 doceam ... testimonium Erasmus
(1516), appendix III, ll. 22–26. The testimo-nium is Ps. 21, 7.

adduco prophetae testimonium. Quid autem attinebat arguento probare quod ipse per prophetam loquitur Christus? Iam quod subiicio, nulla enim proportio humanae creaturae ad Deum, eo pertinet quod praecesserat, Christum non paulum imminutum a Deo, quod tu nolebas. Siquidem eas partes sic tracto, vt nunc ad hanc, nunc ad illam respiciam. Dic mihi, vñ τὸν φίλον, vtrum istuc est amice disputare cum amico, an cauillari potius? Verum his omissis, ad id quod erat institutum recurrat oratio.

Ad eandem rationem tuebor quod impugnas: humanae naturae ad diuinam nulla est proportio. At Christi, inquis, ad diuinam naturam est proportio, nempe identitatis et aequalitatis. Simulatque proportionis facta est mentio, video me plane τὸν ἔπιπον εἰς πεδίον prouocasse. Quare tecum hoc quidem loco non admodum pugnabo, cum homine in disciplinis mathematicis pene detrito. Verum vt demus aequalitatis esse proportionem aliquam, quis vnquam audiuuit proportionem identitatis? Aut quis vnquam proposuit proportionem infiniti ad infinitum? Etenim vt Aristoteles negauit finiti ad infinitum esse proportionem, ita sensit nec inter infinita duo esse proportionem, si quid credimus interpretibus.

Porro quod apud Paulum legimus Christum aequalem Deo, non opinor constitui proportionem, sed negari minorem ac maiorem potestatem. Sed vt haec arguta magis quam ad rem nostram facientia mittamus, vtere tuo arbitratu proportionem vel identitatis vel aequalitatis. Vtrum hanc solam in Christo vis esse an praeter hanc aliam quampiam? Si solam, nec a Deo fuerit diminutus Christus, quod tu tamen non negas, modo id sit paululum quiddam. At iuxta identitatis proportionem ne tantulum quidem fuit diminutus. Proinde qui verum est quod ipse dicit in euangelio, Pater maior me est? Vbi audis minor et maior, alia quaedam propositio sit oportet quam aequalitatis. Si tu ex euangelii loco, ego et Pater vnum sumus, recte colligis proportionem aequalitatis, qui minus ego ex euangelii loco, Pater maior me est, colligo proportionem inaequalitatis? Ea si sumitur ex comparatione rerum in infinitum inter se distantium, aut profer ex tua mathematica quaenam sit ista proportio, aut mecum fatere nullam esse proportionem.

Quod si iuxta hanc comparationem Christus dicitur minor Patre, aut finitis gradibus minor est aut infinitis. Non, opinor, dices finitis quum ipse fatearis inter creaturam et creatorem nullam esse proportionem. Sin infinitis, quomodo tu defendis eum paululum quiddam fuisse diminutum quum paulominus siue paulum contendas non ad temporis spaciun, sed ad dignitatis modum esse referendum? An tibi quod infinitum et immensum est paululum quiddam dicitur? Ego impius qui iuxta hanc rationem scripserim non paululum, sed plurimum imminutum a Deo?

Opinor si vnquam alias, hic te medium teneri, nec tamen vrgebo molestius nec insultabo capto, etiam si id mereri videbatur qui alteri de nihilo struit calumniam. Nec excutiam interim haec tua verba, ne te retaxare videar non me tueri, quibus agis Filii hominis ad Deum esse proportionem identitatis. Si Filii | hominis, quatenus est Filius hominis, ad Deum est aequalitatis proportio, cedo qua ratione minor est? Si quatenus Deus est, aequalis Deo dicitur, quid noui dicitur? Aut quis istuc negat?

1160

1165

1170

1175

1180

1185

1190

1195

LB 40

1200 Non enim digladior interim cum iis qui volunt in euangelio sic Patrem maiorem Filio dictum vt tamen Filius non sit Patre minor. Mihi satis est quod Augustinus non veritus est dicere: Filium Patre inferiorem et inferiorem seipso. Atque id sane cum aliis locis compluribus, tum in epistola tertia ad Volusianum. Ad hoc, libro de Trinitate primo, capite septimo. Rursum eiusdem libri capite vndeclimo atque iterum libri secundi capite nono.

1191 sed A-D BAS: sc E.

1198 dicitur A-C E BAS: dicatur D.

1200-1202 Non ... seipso B-BAS: deest in A.

1200 iis B E BAS: ii C D.

1203-1205 Atque ... nono E BAS: deest in A-D.

1156-1157 quod ... Christus Erasmus means Ps. 21, 7: "ego autem sum vermis et non homo".

1157-1158 nulla ... Deum See appendix III, l. 26.

1160 vñ τὸν φίλιον Cf. Pherecr. 96. The "friendly one" intended is Zeus, the god of friendship.

1161 amice ... amico See the present apologia, ll. 36-38, l. 755 and l. 1312 and nn.

1163-1165 impugnas ... aequalitatis See appendix IV, ll. 237-241.

1166 τὸν ... πεθόν Adag. 782, LB II, 327 F-328 B. "Quoties quis ad id prouocatur in quo plurimum valet quoque vel maxime gaudet".

1167 homine ... derrito In the field of mathematics, Lefèvre was indeed a prolific author. See Rice, Prefatory Epistles, pp. 543-545. In Ep. 607 (Louvain, 17 July <1517>), ll. 13-14 Erasmus writes to Cuthbert Tunstall about Lefèvre: "... homo mathematicus sed ita vt multum habeat τὸν ματατόν".

1170 Etenim ... proportionem Aristot. Cael. I, 6, 274 a 7, ibid. I, 7, 275 a 13.

1170-1171 ita ... proportionem Aristot. Phys. VIII, 1, 252 A 13

1172 aequalem Deo Phil. 2, 6.

1174-1175 proportione ... aequalitatis cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 1163-1165.

1179 Pater ... est Ioh. 14, 28.

1180-1181 Si ... aequalitatis See appendix IV, ll. 239-242.

1180-1181 ego ... sumus Ioh. 10, 30.

1183-1184 tua mathematica Cf. the present apologia, l. 1167 and n.

1186-1187 quam ... proportionem See appendix IV, ll. 239-240.

1187-1188 quomodo ... diminutum Ibid., ll. 128-130.

1188-1190 quam ... referendum Ibid., ll. 332-333.

1191 impius See Ibid., l. 134.

1193 medium teneri Adag. 396 (medius teneris); ASD II, 1, p. 472; cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 137, n. ll. 552-553, and p. 243, n. l. 262.

1193-1194 nec ... capto Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1060-1061 and n.

1194 de nihilo In contradistinction to Erasmus, Lefèvre believed that the dignity of Christ was at stake in their controversy. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 45-46 and n. and ll. 82-83 and n.

1200-1201 qui ... minor Erasmus means that there is no point in arguing with people who, like Lefèvre, admit that in his earthly life Jesus was made a little lower than God, but who at the same time refuse to accept that Jesus was humiliated, and try to prove that Jesus' power and dominion on earth were still divine. According to Erasmus, such a position is inconsistent and too paradoxical to be taken seriously.

1202 Filium ... seipso Aug. Trin. I, 7, 14, CCSL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1986, pp. 45-6.

1203 aliis locis E.g., Epist. 170, ed. A. Goldbacher, CSEL 44, 3, Vienna and Leipzig, 1903, p. 629: "proper quam serui forman non tantum patre verum etiam seipso et spiritu sancto minor factus est".

1203-1204 epistola ... Volusianum Erasmus is probably thinking of Augustine's second letter to Volusianus, now Epist. 137 in A. Goldberger, ed., CSEL 44, 3, Vienna and Leipzig, 1903, pp. 111-112: "Jesum Christum ... minorem ... patre secundum carnem, hoc est secundum hominem." In Goldbacher's edition there are only two letters to Volusianus, 132 and 137, not a third one.

1204 libro ... septimo Aug. Trin. I, vii, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, CCSL 50, Turnhout, 1968, p. 45: "... dicunt minorem filium esse quam pater est ... veritas autem ostendit secundum istum modum etiam seipso minorem filium."

1204-1205 eiusdem ... undecimo Aug. Trin. I, xi, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, CCSL 50, Turnhout 1968, p. 60: "secundum formam serui quam accepit et minor est patre ...; minor est se ipso quia de illo dictum est: semetipsum exinanuit."

Item quod scribis: ob id quod Verbum et Filius Dei diuinae est conditionis eiusdemque cum Deo naturae, nam creatura non est perinde ac neque Deus, hic rursus distinguis Filium Dei a Deo dicisque eum non magis esse creaturam quam ipsum Deum, opinor Patrem, vt Pauli modo loquutus vidcaris. Atqui Pater nullo modo creature est, Filius Dei, si nullo modo est creatura, consequetur nec hominem esse. Ad haec, si Filius Dei non est creatura, loquor iuxta communionem idiomaticum, quomodo dicitur diminutus Filius Dei? Quod ne tu quidem negas. At Ioannes non veretur dicere Verbum caro factum est. Et Paulus non veretur eum dicere factum ex semine Dauid. Et rursum, misit Deus Filium suum factum ex muliere, factum sub lege. Hic audis factum carnem, factum ex semine, et vereris aliquo pacto dicere creaturam?

Tametsi disputationis huius periculum nihil ad me pertinet. Ego enim Christum creaturam esse neque aio neque nego. Tu istuc de tuo addidisti. Sed, inquires, Augustinus, Hilarius et Ambrosius negant Christum esse creaturam. Quid si iidem alibi vocant creaturam? Quid enim sentit Augustinus cum ait in sermone natalicio: admirabile mysterium quia creator mundi voluit esse creatura. Rursus enarrans Christi sermonem in monte habitum: voluit esse creatura qui est creator. Idem epistola quinquagesima septima: Proinde quod ad Verbum attinet, creator est Christus, omnia enim per ipsum facta sunt, quod vero ad hominem, creatura est Christus.

Liberius etiam diuus Hieronymus edisserens eum Pauli locum qui est in epistola ad Ephesios, capite secundo: ipsius enim sumus factura, inquit, creati in Christo Iesu. Et quia semel ad nomen creaturae venimus, et sapientia in prouerbii Solomonis dicit se creatam initium viarum Dei multique timore ne Christum creaturam dicere compellantur, totum Christi mysterium negant et dicunt non Christum in hac sapientia, sed mundi sapientiam significari. Nos libere proclamamus non esse periculum eum dicere creaturam quem vermem et hominem et crucifixum et maledictionem, tota spei nostrae fiducia profitemur, maxime quum ex duabus versiculis qui praecedunt ipsa sapientia promittat se esse dicturam quae post secula sunt. Quum autem Christus secula fecerit et quae deinceps loquitur ea sint quae post secula dicturam se esse promiserat ad incarnationis mysterium, non ad naturam Dei referenda sunt quae sequuntur.

Hactenus Hieronymus. Audis Christum quatenus incarnatus est creataram recte dici. Simul illud obiter admonendus es Christum Hieronymo sic vermem dici vt dicitur homo et crucifixus, non opinione Iudeorum sed re ipsa, quod tibi videtur impium et blasphemum.

Itidem Damascenus: Christus, inquit, est creatus et increatus, passibilis et impassibilis. Atque idem rursus: non scandalizatur ad nomen creaturae qui se seruum aut vermem aut granum, natum de virgine nominat. Quid quod nec is qui congessit sententias theologorum tractans hanc quaestionem libro tertio, distinctione xi negat Christum recte dici creataram, sed simpliciter dici non vult, hoc est secundum hominem dici vult, secundum Deum non dici. Porro quod alias negant creaturam esse Christum quum aduersus Arianos dimicant, sic negant esse creaturam quemadmodum Arius esse volebat, qui solum Patrem verum 1250 Deum, solum Patrem vere increatum docebat.

Quid quod ipse tui oblitus quem hic creaturam negas, alibi creaturam facis
 LB 41 quum ais: hominis qui Christus est nulla intelligitur distantia, quum eam ad
Deum habeat approximatio|nem et vniōnem qua creaturae ad Deum nulla potest esse 1217 huius Ac B-BAS: deest in A.

1223 est A-C E BAS: erat D.

1223–1225 Idem ... Christus E BAS: deest in A-D.

1227 inquit B E BAS: deest in A C D.

1242 inquit B E BAS: deest in A C D.

1249 Arius BAS: Arrianus A-E.

1205 libri ... nono Aug. Trin. II, i, edd.
 W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, CCSL 50,

Turnhout 1968, p. 81: “dei filius ... non solum patre sed etiam spiritu sancto, neque hoc tan-tum sed etiam seipso minor inventus est.”

1206–1207 ob ... Deus See appendix IV, ll. 325– 326.

1207 creatura ... Deus “he (i.e., the Son of God) is just as little something created as God is”. Deus is a second subject, not the subject complement of a nominal predicate.
 The predicate is creatura non est. Erasmus criticizes the ambiguity of the clause; see ll. 1268–1271, and ll. 1879–1883, where Erasmus explains why the clause is ambiguous.

1211–1212 loquor ... idiomatum For Erasmus’ opinion about communicatio idiomatum, see above, ll. 588–594. Cf. ODCC, pp. 321–322
 “...the doctrine propounded by several of the Fathers, e.g. Cyril of Alexandria, that while the human and divine nature in Christ were separate, the attributes of the one may be predicated of the other in view of the union in the one Person of the Saviour.
 The doctrine received conciliair authority by its inclusion in the ‘Tome’ of St. Leo (449), but in later times it was sometimes understood in a heterodox fashion especially in some Lutheran circles”. Erasmus also refers to it in his Apolog. ad Leum, LB IX, 229 A–D.

1213 Verbum ... est Ioh. 1, 14.

1214 factum ... Dauid Rom. 1, 3 (“Factus est ei ex semine Dauid”).

1214–1215 misit ... lege Rom. 1, 3–4, 2 Tim. 2, 8.

1217–1218 Iametsi ... nego For Erasmus’ fundamental reluctance to pronounce upon dogmatic questions, see the present apologia, ll. 304–305 and n. l. 304, and ll. 1845–1849; ll.
 2077–2079 and ll. 2134–2135.

1221 admirabile ... creatura This passage does not occur in Augustine’s works.

1222–1223 voluit ... creator This passage does not occur in Aug. De sermone Domini in monte, ed. A. Mutzenbecher, CCSL 35, Turn-hout, 1967.

1223–1225 Proinde ... Christus Aug. Epist. 187,
 III, 8, CSEL 57, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vienna and Leipzig, 1911, p. 87, l. 22–p. 88, l. 2.

1226 locum Eph. 2, 10.

1227–1228 ipsius ... Iesu Hier. Comm. in Eph., ad 2, 10, Migne PL 26, 501 A 15–16.

1228–1237 Et ... sequuntur Ibid. 501 C 12–502
 A 4.

1229 Solomonis Jerome’s text in Migne reads “Salomonis”.

initium viarum Dei Cf. Prov. 8, 22.

1230 et dicunt Jerome’s text in Migne reads “vt dicant”.

1235 Christus secula Jerome’s text in Migne reads “saecula Christus”.

1235–1236 dicturam Jerome’s text in Migne reads “dicturam”.

1236 promiserat Jerome’s text in Migne reads “promiserit”.

1240 non opinione Iudeorum See appendix IV,
 ll. 248–249, cf. ibid. ll. 183–189.

1240–1241 quod ... blasphemum See appendix
 IV, ll. 132–136.

1242–1243 Christus ... impassibilis John of Damascus, De fide orthodoxa III, 4, Migne
PG 94, col. 998.

1243–1244 non ... nominat I have not found this passage in John of Damascus.

1244–1250 Quid ... docebat Petrus Lombardus, Sententiae in IV libris distinctae, III,
 xi, Collegium S. Bonaventurae ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata, Rome, 1981, vol. II,
 pp. 77–80.

1246 vult The subject is Petrus Lombardus.

1249–1250 quemadmodum ... docebat See
 A.M. Ritter in TRE 3, Berlin and New York, 1978, pp. 700–703.

1252–1254 hominis ... maior See appendix IV,
 ll. 404–405.

1253 ad Deum After Deum Erasmus omits et cum Deo.

1255 maior. Si Christus nullo modo creatura dicitur, quid agitur hoc sermone? Nisi forte naturam humanam creaturam esse fateris, Christum vt hominem creaturam esse non vis? Quod si tuo exemplo de verbis cauillandum est, quid sentis cum ais Christum unionem habere ad Deum? An Christus hic tibi naturam humanam significat? Et licebit ita loqui: Deus Christum assumpsit? Alioqui quomodo Christus vnitur Deo quum sit ipse Deus? Et vbi est in quo nos ridebas, qui vide-1260 mur Christi nomen pro altera natura vsurpare? Etiam atque etiam te rogo, Faber, vide quantam fenestram aperueris in te ipsum, qui sic odiose tecum de verbis cauilleris.

1265 Deinde quid sentis quum ais Verbum et Filium Dei diuinae esse conditionis, cum conditum esse negent omnes christiani, certe quatenus est Verbum et Filius Dei. Quis enim dixit Filium Dei conditum? Non quod interim me fugiat te conditionem pro ratione naturaque vsurpassa, sed ostendere volui quam facile sit de verbis in alium cauillari, si tuum mihi placeret exemplum. Atque hic rursum dissecas Filium Dei et Deum, quasi Filius Dei Deus non sit, vt ne quid notem omnino fugiendam amphibologiam, si vsquam erat fugienda, in hisce verbis quum ais: nam creatura non est perinde ac neque Deus. Videris enim dicere Fi-1270 lium nec creaturam esse, nec Deum.

1275 Quod si tu more rhetorum vel tuo potius tibi permittis de Deo loqui, cur nos tam moleste taxas circunspectius loquentes te? Sin a nobis recentium theologorum anxietatem exigis, cur tu nec veterum eruditionem nec recentium praestas argutiam? An ignorabas quam iniquam in sese legem statuat qui aliorum censor esse velit? Verum huiusmodi persecui nec animus est nec ocium.

1280 Fateor Christum quaedam esse et non esse, cum idem sit Patri aequalis iuxta diuinam essentiam, Patre minor iuxta naturam humanam. At quod minor est Patre aut, si pateris sic nos loqui, seipso, quaero vtrum finitis partibus minor est an infinitis? Non dices finitis, quod si infinitis, non impie dicemus, opinor, Christum iuxta naturam assumptam nullam habere proportionem ad diuinitatem. Quod si euinco, vbi est quod tu tantopere asseueras a solo Patre fuisse diminutum atque id sane perpusillum? Nisi forte sophisticis argutiis hic tecum acturus es, vt quemadmodum qui quinque nummos habet is et vnum habet, ita 1285 qui multum sit diminutus idem et paulum diminutus dici possit. Quod si libeat ad istum argutari modum, Christus nec exaltatus dicetur nec diminutus. Quid enim maiestatis accedit ei qui semper aequalis est Patri aut quid diminui potuit cuius diuinitati nihil decessit, humanitas etiam euecta est? Verum haec ad viuum exigere non est huius instituti, quum satis interim habeam impietatis notam a me depellere.

1290 Porro quantum e tua perpetua disputatione colligitur, nec tua magni refert vtrum Christus angelis dicatur inferior an hominibus, hoc est, vtrunque aequa putas impium, quod semper fuerit pro sua dignitate vtrisque pariter adorandus. Sed inferiorem angelis quantum ad humanam naturam et afflictionem fecerunt, vt ipse fateris, Athanasius, Chrysostomus, Theophylactus et Augustinus, nisi forte aliud censes immunitum esse, aliud inferiorem. Sed hos viros, quoniam non putasti conuiciis insectandos, sic excusas vt dicas eos Septuaginta interpretatione deceptos et ratos sic esse apud Hebraeos simpliciter errasse. Esto, nescierint quid legerent Hebrei, homines Graeci Latinique. Caeterum qui factum est vt tantam impietatem, quantam vis inessc in hac interpretatione, non senserint tanti christianaे religionis proceres?

Cur vnum ego male audio velut autor huius sententiae, qui eam nec primus protuli et tantum recenseo nec defendo? Imo qui diuersae sententiae magis fauere videor, si sum in alterutram propensior? An tantum admisi facinus quod non totus ac protinus iuerim in tuam sententiam et altera probata alteram exploram atque euerberem ac pene lapidibus insecter? Quid enim aliud quam lapides 1254 dicitur A C-BAS: dicitur est B.1265–1267 Non ... exemplum E BAS: deest in A–D.1270 Videris BAS: Videberis A–E.1280 dices A B E BAS: dicis C D.1287 quid BAS: qui A–E.1294 quantum ad BAS: quo ad A–E; humanam naturam B–BAS: carnem A.1295 Theophylactus BAS: Vulgarius A–E.1304 fauere videor E BAS: faueo A–D.1261 fenestram aperueris Adag. 303 (Fenestram aperire), ASD II, 1, pp. 410–411.1263 Verbum ... conditionis See appendix IV, ll. 325–326.1264 conditum ... christiani From the first century A.D. on, Christians denied Jesus' being created, cf. R. Seeberg, Lehrbuch der Dogmengeschichte, I, Leipzig, 1908, p. 95.1269 amphibologiam Erasmus will explain this ambiguity ll. 1879–1881. Cf. l. 1207.1270 nam ... Deus See appendix IV, ll. 326–327.1272 more rhetorum For a similar criticism of Lefèvre's rhetoric, see the present apologia, ll. 273–276 and n.1278–1279 At ... seipso This is a reminiscence of some passages in Augustine, already quoted by Erasmus in the present apologia; see ll. 725–726 and n. and ll. 1202–1205 and nn.1280 impie Erasmus probably uses this word because Lefèvre had accused him of impietas, see appendix IV, l. 134.1281–1282 Christum ... diuinitatem Erasmus stated something similar in appendix III, l. 26. Lefèvre did not reject this statement of Erasmus of 1516 (nor did he call it impious), but he replied ... licet id verum sit quod humanae naturae ad Deum nulla sit proportio, Filii tamen hominis de quo hic agitur sermo est proportio, nam identitatis et aequalitatis. See appendix IV, ll. 239–241.1282 euincō "demonstrate", "succeed in proving", cf. Hor. Serm. 2, 3, 250.1282–1283 tu ... perpusillum See appendix IV, ll. 123–124.1287 diminui Erasmus appears to use this verb here and elsewhere as a synonym of deminui; see n. l. 9.1288 cuius ... est This is a response to Lefèvre's remark of 1516/7, see appendix IV, ll. 197–198: Qui (i.e., Jesus) sic homo est quod omnium hominum maxime vere homo et perfectione humana supra omnem hominem et insuper hominum veritas.1288 eucta "taken away", "denied".1288 ad viuum Adag. 1313 (Ad vivum resecare, dixit pro eo quod est rem exactius quam sat est ac morosius excutere), LB II, 527 A–B. Otto 1933.1289–1290 quam ... depellere For Erasmus' intentions in writing the present apologia, see also l. 234 and n. and ll. 237–238 and n.1295 vt ipse fateris See appendix IV, ll. 350–361 and 464–473.1295–1296 Athanasius ... Augustinus Lefèvre explained in his disputatio that these Church Fathers were unable to interpret Hebr. 2, 7 correctly because they did not know Hebrew. If they had had the possibility to read the original Hebrew text, they would have preferred the translation a Deo; see the present apologia, ll. 733–734 and n. and ll. 824–827.1303–1304 tantum ... propensior This is a serious misrepresentation of Erasmus' discussion of ab angelis in the Nov. Instr. The same was the case in l. 320, see n.1306 lapidibus insecter Plaut. Capt. 593 ("nos insectabit lapidibus").

LB 42 loquitur, iuxta dictum Plautinum, qui istiusmodi verba intonat: Christo Deoque indignissimum et Spiritui aduersantem et prophetae mentem subruentem. Ac rursum illud: et sic, inquis, qui non litera sed spiritu ducuntur, exponunt fideles. Quid igitur? Qui secus exponunt, carne ducuntur et infideles sunt? Quis non metuat 1310 haec verba potius quam vlos lapides? Atqui huiusmodi dictis et his etiam atrocioribus oneras amicum tuum in hac beneuola tua disputatione, amico animo suscepta. Quis posteriorum mihi vitio vertisset, si saxis quibus immerentis 1315 caput impetis te relapidasse? Et tamen christiana modestiae memor admonuisse te sat habui, quanquam, vt dixi, non satis intelligo quid senseris quum ais Christo Deoque indignissimum. Si Deum Patrem intelligis, de hoc non sum loquutus, sin Filium, quomodo coniunctione separas Deum a Christo?

Si me stupidum, si lapidem, si beluam, si peponem, si bliteum, si quiduis 1320 aliud facias, nec admodum commouebor, nec admodum refragabor, ignosce mihi, vnum hoc conuiciorum genus ferre non possum. Quis enim ferat ea quae scribis in hunc modum, et si tum propter haec, tum propter alia improperia multa, non negem Christum Dominum multum abiectum et diminutum Iudeorum opinione et aduersarii sermone, cui mea sententia non pertinaciter haeret, non tamen itares in se habebat. Quocunque animo tu haec scriperis, quomodo putas interpretaturos, qui legent? Me amicum cum Iudeis male de Christo sentientibus 1325 coniungis, quum tu interim Christi defensor stes inter pios homines et ais Christum meo sermone deiectum ac diminutum ac, si pertinaciter haeream, videris denunciare periculum meque aduersarium appellas, qui hac in re pro te faciebam, nisi forte Christi facies aduersarium et, quo sit odiosius, satanam appellabis. 1330 Haec, mi Faber, non recenserem nisi quo liqueret omnibus quam inuitus ad hanc apologiam descenderim, cuius ingenium a nulla re magis abhorret quam ab huiusmodi conflictationibus.

Et addis: ecce suam passionem vocat exaltationem, non dejectionem, nec in malam notam humiliationem. Quorsum haec? (Pene dolor antevertens effutierat, sed reprimam me.) Egone dejectionem aut humiliationem in malam notam Christo tribui, quem vt fontem omnis gloriae adoro? Et huiusmodi beneuolis et candidis dictis tua disputatione respersa est. Quis vero non exosculetur tam amicam 1335 cum amicissimo conflictationem? Atque haec mea praeconia ne interciderent, mediis commentariis tuis admisquisti et, quasi id parum esset, ne verbulo quidem nos admonendos putasti, ne si rescissem, in tempore me purgarem, neu priusquam virus late serpsisset, adhiberem antidotum. Sic enim interpretabuntur posteri tua fortassis lecturi.

Non hic insectabor quam parum erudite, imo quam impie colligas Christum non fuisse humiliatum supplicio crucis quod corpore exaltatus sit a terra, 1345 hoc est, in crucem suffixus, quum Paulus hanc vocet humiliationem, quemadmodum ante demonstrauimus. Imo Filius sic humiliatus illustrauit Patrem et Pater vicissim resurrectione illustrauit Filium. Gloriam merebatur humilitas, etiam si nostra gloria crux est Christi, nisi forte quum Paulus ait: propter quod Deus exaltauit illum et dedit illi nomen supra omne nomen et caetera, rursum illum 1350 adegit in crucem.

Verum vt ad id quod coepimus redeamus, si Athanasium, Chrysostomum, Augustinum, imo doctores omnes excusatos haberi vis autoritatem Septuaginta,

- 1313–1315 Quis ... habui E BAS: deest in A–D.
 1315 vt dixi E BAS: deest in A–D.
 1326 stes BAS: stas A–E.
 1331–1332 cuius ... conflictionibus B–BAS: deest in A.
 1336 tribui BAS: tribuam A–E.

- 1342 tua B–BAS: nostra A.
 1343 imo quam impie E BAS: deest in A–D.
 1344 corpore E BAS: deest in A–D.
 1346 illustravit B–BAS: clarificauit A.
 1347 illustravit B–BAS: clarificauit A.
 1351 coepimus E BAS: cepimus A–D.

- 1307 iuxta dictum Plautinum Plaut. Aul. 152.
 1307–1308 Christo ... aduersantem With regard to this insulting language of Lefèvre's towards Erasmus, see appendix IV, ll. 134–136.
 1308 prophetae mentem subruentem Ibid., l. 137 and 146–147.
 1309 et ... fideles Ibid., ll. 328–329.
 1311 lapides Cf. the present apologia, l. 1306 and nn.
 1312 beneuola tua disputatione See the end of Lefèvre's disputatio: Et hic nostrae disceptationis cum viro quidem peramicō beneuole suscep-tae finem facimus; appendix IV, ll. 573–574.
 1312–1313 amico animo suscepta See the present apologia, ll. 36–37; l. 755 and ll. 1160–1161 and nn.
 1313 vitio vertisset For this formula, see the present apologia, n. l. 83.
 1316 Christo Deoque indignissimum See ll. 1307–1308 and n.
 1316–1317 Si ... Christo. This is of course nothing but sarcasm and rhetoric.
 1318–1320 Si ... possum Erasmus is not very consistent in mentioning the principal motives he has for writing his apologia; cf. ll. 237–238 and n.
 1321–1324 et ... habebat See appendix IV, ll. 247–250.
 1323 aduersarii sermone "in the language of an enemy (of Christ)." haeret The subject is Erasmus.
 1326 Christi defensor For this claim on the part of Lefèvre, see his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 31–33 and for Erasmus' feelings about it, the present apologia, l. 258 and ll. 338–340.
 1328 denunciare periculum Cf. Cic. Mil. 1, 3: "periculum ... denunciant".
aduersarium appellas Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's words just quoted: Christum ... diminutum Iudeorum opinione et aduersarii sermone, sec ll. 1322–1323 and appendix IV, l. 143 and ll. 248–249. Lefèvre, however, does not call Erasmus an enemy of himself at all, at least not directly, let alone of Christ. He only says that the language that Ps. 21

- uses to describe Jesus' humiliation is the language reflecting the view of an enemy of Christ, whereas Christ's "humiliation" was in fact an exaltation. Erasmus' suggestion that Lefèvre calls him "an enemy", whether of Lefèvre himself or (as Erasmus is suggesting in the next sentence) of Christ, is baseless. See n. l. 2227, and nn. ll. 342 and 347.
qui ... faciebam Again and again Erasmus depicts himself as unselfishly helping the man who has attacked him in such a horrible way. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 111–116, ll. 129–130, ll. 224–225 and ll. 317–319.
 1329 Christi That is, not of Lefèvre, but of Christ.
facies The object "me" must be taken from meque in l. 1328.
 1330–1332 quam ... conflictionibus. Cf. the present apologia, nn. ll. 72–73 and 75–77.
 1333–1334 ecce ... humiliationem See appendix IV, ll. 253–254.
 1336 beneuolis Erasmus uses this word because Lefèvre claimed to have written his disputatio "beneuole"; see appendix IV, l. 573.
 1337–1338 amicam ... conflictionem Cf. ll. 36–37, 755, 1160–1161 and 1312–1313.
 1339 medius Cf. l. 2181 in medio voluminis.
 1339–1341 ne ... antidotum Earlier in the present apologia, Erasmus already expressed his irritation about the fact that Lefèvre had published his criticisms directly without warning Erasmus in a letter, see ll. 21–33, l. 152 and n., ll. 133–164 and cf. ll. 2180–2182.
 1343–1344 Non ... crucis Cf. Lefèvre's accusations against Erasmus in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 132–136. For Erasmus' conviction as to the necessity of Jesus' deep humiliton, see the present apologia, ll. 489–491.
 1344 corpore ... terra The phrase is reminiscent of Ioh. 12, 32.
 1345 Paulus Phil. 2, 8.
 1346–1347 Filius ... Filium Cf. Ioh. 13, 31–2; 17, 1.
 1348–1349 propter ... nomen Phil. 2, 9–10.
 1351–1355 si ... recensem For the same argument, see the present apologia, n. ll. 824–827.

qui a Christo fuerunt alieni, sequuti sint, cur mihi blasphemiae crimen impingitur, qui virorum orthodoxorum sequar autoritatem, imo qui illorum sententiam tantum recensem? Si sacrilegum est dicere diminutum infra homines Christum quod hominibus semper fuerit adorandus, non aberit a sacrilegio Christum diminutum dicere infra angelos siue ab angelis – nihil enim hic refert quibus verbis rem eandem explicemus – quod his semper fuit adorandus. Quod si pie vereque dicitur ab angelis diminutus ob carnis nostrae fragilitatem et huius vitae incommoda quae nostra causa in se recepit, quod his nullus angelorum sit obnoxius, opinor haudquaquam impie dici Christum ad tempus infra plerosque, imo omnes homines diminutum, qui plus afflictionum in se receperit quam hominum quisquam vnum passus aut perpeti possit.

Quorsum vero pertinet illud, quod ex tribus vnum facis et Athanasium, Chrysostomum ac Theophylactum vnius hominis vice supputas? Finge solum Athanasium hoc dixisse, an vnius esset leuis autoritas? Quod si numero suffragiorum pondus accedit, hanc opinionem nemo non sequitur vno excepto Hieronymo, quanquam et ipse sequitur videlicet locum hunc subinde adducens iuxta aeditionem Septuaginta.

Tandem descendis ad illud quod proposita prius disputationis meae summa statim in initio labefactatum oportuit. Proinde mihi videtur, inquam, illud ‘paulo minus’, quod Graece est βραχύ τι, non ad dignitatis imminutae modum esse referendum, sed ad temporis modum quo versatus est Christus in terris, quasi dicas: ad breue tempus diminutus est ab angelis. Huc videlicet tendebat disputationis meae summa, vt docerem βραχύ τι, quod interpres reddidit paulominus, non ad humilationis, sed ad temporis modum esse referendum.

Id si tu non videbas, quid caecius? Sin videbas et dissimulabas, quid impudentius? Nam operae precium fuerit aliquantis per repetere quibus rationibus superius mecum egeris: nam ingenue colligitur, inquis, Filius hominis imminutus est infra abiectissimos etiam homines et abiectissimi homines imminuti sunt multum ab angelis, igitur et Filius hominis multo fortius imminutus est ab angelis. Si multum, non igitur parum, sunt enim haec pugnantia, quod nihilominus iuxta aduersantis sententiam intendit propheta. Nam iuxta Septuaginta aeditionem ait: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quam etiam approbat interpretationem. Et si multum imminutus ab angelis, tanto fortius multum a Deo. Subruetur igitur propheta quomodounque siue a Deo siue ab angelis interpretetur. Quare hic sermo seipsum elidit et falsum esse omni ex parte manifestat.

Hactenus tua recensuimus in quibus vt negligam sermonis ineptias et prodigiosam balbutiem, cogor non dialecticen modo, in cuius studio per omnem vitam tibi sudatum est, verum etiam sensum communem desiderare. Ego colligebam Christum non parum fuisse diminutum sed paulisper, hoc est multum sed ad breue tempus, atque ita lectionem vtranque constare siue legas a Deo siue ab angelis. Tu ex his nouo syllogismo ratiocinaris me sensum prophetae subruiisse, vtroque modo legatur.

Quis non miretur acumen istud plusquam Chrysippium, quis effugiat κεράτιον toutovl intento cornu vtrinque minantem? Quis non fateatur istam operam tot annis in dialectices studium pulchre tibi collocatam? Talibus argumentis doces amicum impie loquutum. Ob istam disputationem Deum e coelo deuocabas, ob eandem omnis lucis infusori gratias agis in secula seculorum.

Hic iterum atque iterum appello conscientiam tuam, mi Faber, quum haec tecum recognoscis, ecquid tui te pudet? Si ista tibi serio scripta sunt, non dicam: vbi est tua philosophia, cuius fortasse me rudem putas, sed vbi mens hominis? Si ioco, dic mihi per Gratias, siccine ludis in amicum? Si ex animo ad istum ratiocinaris modum, quid fingi potest delirantius? Si me derides, vbi est illa nostra peramica amicitia? Non eadem, opinor, decent Fabrum et circulatorem. Vsque adeo nihil referre putas quid chartis tuis illinas? Vsque adeo male sentis de huius seculi ingeniis vt istas ineptias vel ferant vel non sentiant? Quis hic non 1354 sequar B-BAS: sequor A.

1365 Theophylactum BAS: Vulgarium A-E.

1396 τοὐτῷ B-BAS: istum A.

1401 tibi A B E BAS; deest in C D.

1403 Si D BAS; sin A-C E.

1405 peramica B-BAS; deest in A.

1353–1354 cur ... impingitur Lefèvre accuses Erasmus of blasphemia in his disputatio; see appendix IV, ll. 132–136. See also the present apologia, l. 234 and n.

1354–1355 imo ... recensem This misrepresents Erasmus' discussion of a Deo in the Nov. Instr.; cf. l. 320 and n.

1355–1356 sacrilegium ... adorandus This is a faithful summary of Lefèvre's view; see appendix IV, ll. 252–255.

1356–1357 non ... angelis Cf. the present apologia, ll. 925–928 and n.

1358 bis I.e., angelis.

1364–1365 quod ... supputas See appendix IV, ll. 350–352.

1367–1369 vno ... Septuaginta In the Comm. in Ps., Jerome prefers the translation a Deo, but in the Comm. in Gal., he follows the translation ab angelis. Jerome's authorship of the Comm. in Ps. is doubtful, but the Comm. in Gal. are certainly his work; cf. the present apologia, ll. 537–546 and n. ll. 542–546.

1371–1374 Proinde ... angelis See appendix III, ll. 29–31, also cited by Lefèvre, see appendix IV, ll. 278–281.

1379–1387 nam ... manifestat See appendix IV, ll. 140–148. This long quotation is meant to show that Lefèvre ignores Erasmus' point, which is that "a little" should be taken as a predicate of time, not as "a little in dignity".

1390–1393 Ego ... angelis See appendix III, ll. 21–32.

1393–1394 Tu ... legatur See appendix IV, ll. 77–94 and 137–148.

1395 Chrysippum Chrysippus of Soli or Tarsus in Cilicia (282–209 B.C.), successor of Clean-thes as head of the Stoic school, gradually became the second founder of that school by elaborating its doctrines in hundreds of works. As a result it was said: Εἰ μὴ γάρ ἦν Χρύσιππος, οὐκ ἂν ἦν Στοῖ. Cf. F. Ueberweg, Grundriss der Geschichte der Philosophie des Alterthums, Berlin, 1867, p. 189. Erasmus' comparison of Lefèvre with Chrysippus must be understood as ironic, since the latter ranked as a truly great thinker and distinguished philosopher.

1395–1396 xeprátwov ... minantem "that horned creature which, with its raised horn, threatens its adversaries on both sides." xeprátwov is an adjective. It must mean here "horned", a meaning not recorded in Liddell-Scott. For Chrysippus and the 'horn dilemma' cf. Diog. Laert. VII, 187.

1397 in dialectices Lefèvre edited Georgius Trapezontius' work on dialectics in 1508. In 1517, when the present apologia was published for the first time, this edition had appeared four times. Cf. Rice, Prefatory Epistles, p. 555. Erasmus may also be referring here in general to Lefèvre's Aristotelian studies.

1398–1399 Ob ... seculorum Erasmus sneered at this earlier in the present apologia; see ll. 271–273 and nn.

1405 peramica amicitia Cf. the present apologia, ll. 36–38 and n.

1405 circulatorem "a mountebank". Said of noisy philosophers: Sen. Epist. 29, 7.

1406 chartis tuis illinas Cf. Hor. Serm. 1, 4, 36 "chartis illeverit".

fatebitur optimo iure tua verba in te ipsum retorquenda: quare hic sermo se ipsum elidit et falsum esse omni ex parte manifestat?

Verum interim hoc meo iure nolim vti, mihi sat est te tibi ostendisse ne pergas posthac ad eundem nugari modum. Si tamen hoc nugari est, huiusmodi verborum praestigiis amicum impietatis accusare et prophetici sensus facere subuersorem. Quid autem tibi vis cum ais: iuxta aduersantis, hoc est meam, sententiam prophetam in hisce verbis, minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, sensisse Christum multum ab angelis fuisse diminutum? Quum palam eloquar sensisse ad breue tempus fuisse diminutum. Porro multum an parum fuerit imminutus non hic | agebatur. Neque rursus simpliciter tibi donarim, quod tu ceu confessum assumis, abiectissimos homines infra angelos multum esse diminutos. Nam fieri potest, vt abiectissimus homo, vt hic accipio ‘abiectissimum’, sit aliqua ratione maior angelis.

Iam ipse finem facturus eram refellendi, si tu impetendi finem facere posses. Quasi hactenus parum ineptieris, pergis ac subiicis: et non minus eadem ratione propriae assertioni aduersatur id quod subnectit hoc modo: ne ab angelis quidem paululum fuit imminutus qui vsque ad famem ac sitim, vsque ad flagra, ad crucem, vsque ad mortem denique descenderit. Si non ab angelis paulum quidem fuit diminutus, quomodo approbat in propheta legendum esse: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Pugnantne ‘paulo minus’ et ‘non paulo minus’, ‘paululum’ et ‘non paululum’?

Vt hic gestis, vt exultas, vt tibi places, quam ridiculum te ipsum praebes dum me derides. Quis negat paulum et non paulum inter se pugnare? Istuc, opinor, non vidisses nisi tot annos versatus essem in Aristotele, quod vel caeco, vt aiunt, sit perspicuum. Atqui non pugnant alicubi paululum et diu; non pugnant diu et non multum. Neque enim haec coniungo, Christus paululum fuit diminutus et non paululum fuit diminutus, sed Christus multum fuit diminutus ab angelis, at non diu. Aut Christus paulisper fuit imminutus prae angelis, at non paululum.

Hoc erat tibi refellendum, priusquam istam iniures ouationem, ne quis Graecum illud posset obiicere πρὸ τῆς νίκης ἐγκώμιον. At tu perinde quasi tibi debelatum esset, incipis lasciuire facetiis, homo festiuus ac salsus. Verum id, inquis, libens tribuerim, Filium hominis non paulum fuisse diminutum ab angelis, quandoquidem ab angelis nullo pacto diminutus fuit. At non sentis interim, dum maxime negare vis Filiū hominis fuisse diminutum ab angelis, te fateri diminutum ab angelis. Si dixisses: Filius hominis non fuit diminutus paulum ab angelis, fortasse consistere poterat non omnino fuisse diminutum. Verum quum ais: non paulum diminutus est, propositionem reddis affirmatiuam, quod negatio non nihil agat in praedicatum, diminutus est, sed in aduerbium paulum. Neque enim refert hic quo loco sit negatio, sed quo referatur. Quod si contendis ad utrumque referri, reclamabunt tibi omnes qui Latine intelligunt. Nisi forte cum dico: ‘Petrus non parum te amat’, accipi possit te nec multum nec parum a Petro diligiri, aut si dicam: ‘hic non multum dedit’, accipi queat nihil dedisse. Secus esset si diceres: Christus ne paululum quidem fuit imminutus, negares enim vlo modo fuisse imminutum. Vides quam circumspectum esse oporteat qui paret alterum irridere, multo magis qui paret impietatis criminari.

Verum his tricis omissis redeamus ad id quod sero tandem incipis conuellere, nimirum illud quod scripseram $\beta\sigma\chi\gamma\tau\iota$ ad temporis modum referendum quo Christus versatus est in terris vsque ad resurrectionem. Ac primum vide, mi 1455 Faber, quam nec hic quicquam asseuerem, sed veluti tentans ac vestigans loquar. Proinde mihi videtur, inquam. Quam opinionem, vt dixi, demiror cur tantopere putaris impugnandam, quum adeo non officiat tuae sententiae vt adiuuet etiam, nisi forte libuit tibi tota hac disputatione nusquam a me non dissentire.

Siquidem vt iam euiceris legendum esse paulominus a Deo, non ab angelis, altera te circumstat difficultas et nihilo secius in vado haeres, quomodo paulum descendisse dici queat qui Deus ad humanam naturam et ad humanae naturae iniurias et, si mauis Hilarii verbum, contumelias descenderit. Quae difficultas si tibi non est animaduersa, acumen istud tuum solitum in te desidero, si dissimulas, ingenuitatem requiro. Impius tibi video, si scrupum hunc indico, si excludendum propono, qui nisi tollitur nec tua stabit interpretatio? Tot testibus, tot argumentis docui non paulum, sed multum fuisse diminutum.

1424 alt. ad A-C E BAS: vsque ad D.

1432 prius diu Ac B E BAS: non diu A, multum C D.

1444 non Ac B-BAS: non non A.

1446 hic A-C E BAS: deest in D.

1448 prius te B-BAS: deest in A.

1454 nimirum illud BAS: deest in A-E; referendum E BAS: esse referendum A-D.

1457 inquam B-BAS: deest in A.

1460 ab A-C E BAS: deest in D.

1462 qui A-C E BAS: quid D.

1408–1409 quare ... manifestat See appendix IV, ll. 147–148; cf. the present apologia, ll. 1386–1387.

1411–1412 verborum praestigiis Cf. Cic. Fin. 4, 27, 74 “praestigia verborum”, “deceptive use of words”.

1412 amicum See the present apologia ll. 36–38 and n. n.

1412 impietatis accusare Lefèvre accused Erasmus of impietas in his disputatio, see appendix IV, l. 134.

1412–1413 prophetici ... subuersorem Ibid. l. 137.

1413–1415 iuxta ... diminutum Ibid., ll. 143–145.

1413 aduersantis See appendix IV, l. 143, and cf. the present apologia, n. l. 1328.

1417–1420 Neque ... angelis Cf. appendix IV l. 141. This is a reaction to Lefèvre’s implicit assumption that terms as abiectissimus and diminutus had not only a negative social meaning but also an unfavourable ethical meaning, cf. the present apologia, ll. 1320–1337, cf Introduction pp. 30–31.

1422–1428 et ... paululum See appendix IV, ll. 149–154.

1431 vel caeco Adag. 793 (Vel caeco appareat), LB II, 331 B–E.

1434–1435 sed ... paululum Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1390–1393 and n.

1435 prae “compared with”.

1437 πρό ... ἐγκώμιον Cf. Adag. 655, LB II, 283 D–E.

1438–1440 Verum ... fuit See appendix IV, ll. 155–158. After Filiū hominis (the present apologia, l. 2054) Erasmus omits: de quo loquitur propheta, qui vsque ad famem ac sitim, vsque ad flagra, ad crucem, vsque ad mortem denique voluntarie pro omnium salute descendit, appendix IV, ll. 155–157.

1439 paulum Lefèvre’s text reads paululum.

1451–1452 Vides ... criminari Here Erasmus expresses a totally different view on Lefèvre’s intentions from the one mentioned earlier in this apologia; see ll. 39–40 and ll. 234–235.

1454 βράχι ... referendum See appendix III, ll. 29–31.

1456 quam ... loquar For Erasmus’ reluctance to pronounce upon dogmatic questions, see ll. 304–305, and n. l. 304, l. 1217, and ll. 1845–1849 and l. 2077.

1457 Proinde mihi videtur See appendix III, l. 29.

1458–1459 vt adiuuet etiam Erasmus makes the same claim to having supported Lefèvre rather than opposed him in ll. 114–116, l. 225 and ll. 342–348.

1461 in vado haeres Cf. Curt. IX, 9, 19: “in vado haerebat.”

1463 contumelias Erasmus refers to the aforesaid quotation from Hilary, see ll. 910–911 and n.

1465 ingenuitatem requiro See the present apologia, ll. 357–368 and n. l. 357.

1466–1467 Tot ... diminutum See appendix III, ll. 14–38.

At finge me praesidiis omnibus nudatum vno tantum telo tecum agere, quod ipse Paulus mihi porrigit dicens exinanuit semetipsum. Quo te vertes? Qua techna elaberis? An sic interpretaberis: exinanuit, id est: paululum quiddam humiliavit? At quis istam interpretationem non statim explodat, exhibet et tota Anticyra dignam iudicet, si quicquam omnino dignum Anticyra? Perinde quasi sermonem hunc, ‘voluptas extinguit animi vigorem’, sic interpretetur aliquis: ‘voluptas paululum minuit animi vigorem’, aut si quis internicionem exercitus paucorum interitum exponat. Quid sonet ‘exinanire’ Latinis satis est cognitum, Quintus Curtius usurpauit pro ‘exhaurire’. At Paulo dictum est ἐκένωσεν, id est ‘inaniuit’ et, vt ita loquar, ‘in nihilum redegit’, vt nullo verbo magis potuerit summam Christi humiliationem attollere et diminutionis hyperbolēn exprimere. Tu contra laboras vt quam minimum fuerit humiliatus, καὶ παντοῖος γενόμενος quicquid insignem humiliationem sonat ad hominum impiorum existimationem detorques. Ego contra vt exemplum humilitatis in Christo insigne esse volo, sic verissimum fuisse contendo. Quanquam nihil erat cur in his angustiis ipse te torqueres, si nostrum βραχὺ τι sequi quam calumniari maluisses, siquidem iste qui te vrgebat nodus propemodum explicatur hac mea, imo veterum Graecorum interpretatione.

Atque hic Graecorum simul et Hebraeorum praesidiis me aggrederis. De Hebreis mox videbimus, interim quod a Graecis aduersus opinionem meam cuiusmodi sit dispiciamus. Non crediderim, inquis, nam βραχύ τι apud Graecos et linguae quidem peritos Graecos non temporis, sed potius dignitatis aestimationisque modum dicit. Eustathius enim id Homericum exponens Iliados: δένα δὲ χρυσοῖο ταλάντα, ait, εἰ γὰρ περὶ τοῦ ταλάντου τῶν Ἐλλήνων ἔστι, βραχύ τι ἔστι. Atque hac autoritate satis existimas probatum βραχύ τι Graecis ad tempus referri non posse. Primum illud mihi subridiculum videtur te ad Eustathium, Homeri interpretem, confugere quo doceas βραχύ pro ‘pusillo’ poni, cum id ex quibusuis autoribus demonstrare sit promptissimum. Nec enim opinor id abs te factum ambitiosius, ne videlicet nesciremus te in Homeri rhapsodiis versari. Atqui Eustathius vt Homeri interpres legitur, non vt autor recte loquendi, perinde quasi ego docere volens Latine dici ‘fregit nauim’, exemplum proferam e Beroaldi aut Badii commentariis potiusquam e Cicerone aut Terentio. Quanquam quid omnino erat necesse probare quod nemo neque nescit neque negat? Caeterum vt obiter excusem accusantem, suspicor istud non lectum tibi sed aliunde ex annotamentis subiectum.

Sed qui consequitur βραχύ siue ‘pusillum’ si quando ad aestimationem pertineat, non posse idem ad tempus aut aliud quiduis accommodari? Vt si recte dicatur ‘paululum nummorum’, non possit recte dici ‘paululum temporis’? Aut si Latine dicamus ‘breuem vestem’, non possit Latine dici ‘breuem diem’? Sic enim tu ratiocinaris, qui me paulo post in Anticyras mittis, quod tibi parum dialectice colligere quiddam videor, qua de re suo dicetur loco.

Ego nec hic nec vsquam imitabor quod a christiana modestia videatur alienum. Tantum hoc loco dialecticam istam desidero quam tu annis, ni fallor, plus viginti vel didicisti vel docuisti, desidero mathematicum acumen. Et vide, obsecro te, charissime Faber, quo te calor iste disputationis abripuerit. Doces nos διδασκαλικῶς ceu sumpta ferula Graece loqui et leges nouas praescribens ais: si tempus significantum sit, potius dicendum ἐπ' ὀλίγον, sic enim fere loqui philosophos, aut μικρόν, quod etiam in euangelio tempori accommodatur.

1515 Vt ne cauiller quod philosophos recte loquendi autores facis, quis negat μικρόν et ὀλίγον temporis moram significare si χρόνον vel addas vel subaudias? Sed eadem ‘aurum’ aut ‘agrū’ aut, si maiis, ‘asinū’ significabunt si quid horum vel addas vel subaudias. Quaeso te, quid dicturi sunt eruditī grauesque viri qui haec in tuis libris legerint, praesertim eo in loco quo amicum impietatis reum facis? Quem nasum, quos ronchos, quas sannas tollent quidam, qui solent et bene dicta

1469 te A-C E BAS; deest in D.

1475 paucorum Ac B-BAS: pauciorum A.

1477 inanuit Ac B-BAS: exinanuit A.

1484 vrgebat A C-BAS: vrgeat B.

1497 non vt Ac B E BAS: vt non A C D.

1499 aut Badii E BAS: deest in A-D.

1500 Caeterum E BAS: Quanquam A-D.

1505 dicatur BAS: dicetur A-E.

1508 colligere A-C E BAS: colligi D.

1512 te A C-BAS: deest in B.

1469 exinanuit semetipsum Phil. 2, 7. The Vulgate reads “semetipsum exinanuit”.

1469 Quo te vertes? Cf. l. 474: Quo me ver tam? (Ter. Hec. 516).

1470–1471 exinanuit ... humiliavit Cf. Phil. 2, 7–8.

1471–1472 tota ... dignam “totally insane”. Lefevre used the same expression in his dis putatio, see appendix IV, l. 547 and n.

1476 Quintus ... exhauire Curt. IV, 13, 34.

1479 παντοῖος γενόμενος “you try everything (to present my words as the view of impious people)”. Cf. Plut. Mar. 30: παντοῖος γενόμενος ὑπὲρ τοῦ σῶσαι τοὺς ἄνθρακες (Plut. Vitae Paralleliae, ed. K. Ziegler, Leipzig, 1971, p. 241, r. 8).

1480–1481 quicquid ... detorques See appendix IV, ll. 161–215.

1481 vt ... volo Cf. the present apologia, ll. 82–83 and n. This is a very essential reason for Erasmus to prefer the translation ab angelis: Jesus’ admirable attitude in his suffering.

1488–1491 Non ... ἔστι See appendix IV, ll. 332–335.

1490 Iliados After Iliados Erasmus omits Iota.

1491 εἰ γαρ ... ἔστι Lefevre and Erasmus appear to be thinking of Eustathius ad Il. IX, 122, II, p. 673, ll. 2–3 van der Valk, but the text is from Etym. mag. 744, 46 sqq. Gaisford.

1498 Beroaldi Filippo (I) Beroaldo of Bologna (1453–1505) composed a commentary on The Golden Ass of Apuleius and a commentary on Suetonius, among other writings; A. Grafton, Contemporaries I, p. 135.

1499 Badii Josse Bade of Ghent (1461–1535) was a student of Filippo I Beroaldo. His oeuvre includes works on grammar, morality and Latin poetry; G. Guilleminot ibid., pp. 79–81.

1501 istud The note on βραχύ τι in Eustathius, but see n. l. 1491.

1507 in Anticyras mittis “you call me crazy”; see appendix IV, l. 547. Cf. Otto 117, and Adag. 752 (Nauiget Anticyras), LB II, 318E–319B. Cf. n. ll. 1920–1922.

1508 qua ... loco Erasmus does this in the present apologia, ll. 2106–2154.

1510–1511 Tantum ... docuisti For Lefevre’s exertions in this field, see the present apologia, l. 1397 and n.

1511 mathematicum See above, n. l. 1167. His first work on mathematics appeared in 1496. Thus, he had been working in this field for more than twenty years when Erasmus wrote this apologia.

1514–1515 si ... accommodatur See appendix IV, ll. 338–342.

1520 quo ... facis Ibid., l. 134.

1521 nasum “scorn”, “condescension”, see Adag.

581 (Odorari et similes aliquot metaphorae), LB II, 253 C. Otto 1198. For this expression, cf. the present apologia, l. 182.

ronchos ρύγγας, ρωχυός, “wheezing”, “sneering”, as an expression of disapproval; cf. Mart. III, 82, 30.

calumniari? Si quid huiusmodi priuatim ad me scripsisses, caelassem honoris tui gratia, nunc ceu rem lectu dignam et tibi gloriae futuram studio vulgasti.]

Nec his contentus pergis et ais: Septuaginta si tempus intelligi voluissent, dicturos fuisse ἡλάττωσας ταχύ, quod ταχύ sonet ‘paruam moram’. Quid ego audio? Qui senserit aliquem hominem ad breue tempus vixisse Graece dicet ταχύ εξησεν, hoc est ‘cito vixit’? An potius ‘cito mortuus est’? Sic enim tu vertendum putas minuisti eum cito ab angelis. Pudet horum, mi Faber, ita me Deus amet, vel tuo nomine. Et vtinam in istam arenam quae proprie, vt dixi, tua non est, aut non descenderes tam libenter aut non tantopere immorareris, fortassis in rebus maioribus felicior.

Fac Eustathium docuisse βραχύ ad tempus non pertinere, id quod non docuit, num existimas Athanasium aut Chrysostomum minus calluisse Graece quam Eustathium, viros vsque ad eloquentiae Graecanicae miraculum celebres? Ego nihil dubitem horum vtrumuis vel tribus Eustathiis opponere. Age, quid si tibi profero locum ex ipso Luca vbi palam βραχύ τι ad tempus refertur, num erit etiam quod tergiuerseris? En ipsum accipe sic loquentem in Actis apostolicis, capite quinto ἐκέλευστεν οὗτοι βραχύ τι τοὺς ἀποστόλους ποιήσαι. Num hic putabis ita vertendum: iussit foras apostolos paulominus aliquid facere? Nihil hic praetexi potest quin βραχύ τι ad breue temporis spacium pertineat, in quem sensum vetus interpres transtulit et nos vertimus: iussit vt paulisper secederent foras apostoli. Nec ipse sensus patitur alio detorqueri quam ad tempus. I nunc et praecipe nobis βραχύ τι Graecis ad tempus referri non posse, Septuaginta in eum sensum non vsurpare, Athanasium, Chrysostomum, Theophylactum, Augustinum atque ipsum adeo Hieronymum, nam hac quidem in parte nobiscum facit, βραχύ τι perperam ad tempus retulisse.

Vides, optime Faber, quanto consultius sit aliquoties prudenter dubitare quam fortiter asseuerare, quam in partem tu mihi nonnunquam aliquanto videre veherentior, plus satis abhorrens ab Academicis. Atque idem Lucas qui sine controversia scripsit Acta nonnullis creditus est huius interpres epistolae.

Quid quod hoc ipso in loco Paulus satis indicat se de temporis modo sensisse, quum subiicit: eum autem qui modicum quam angeli minoratus est videmus Iesum propter passionem mortis gloria et honore coronatum. Quod homo esse coepit, nunquam esse desiit, atqui cito desiit esse mortal is. An tibi paululum diminui videtur qui vsque ad supplicium mortis descendit? Quod si nec tu dicis, vt opinor, quo tandem referes βραχύ τι nisi ad tempus, quo tot tantique Graeci scriptores retulerunt? Neque enim tibi magnopere profuerit haec verba, propter passionem mortis, in tua translatione e suo loco in alium transtulisse, ne possent ad suum referri participium. Sic enim tu legis: videmus tamen Iesum, qui paulominus a Deo minoratus est, gloria et honore coronatum propter passionem mortis. Nihil enim non torqueas, nullum non moues lapidem quo filiam istam, tuam nouam opinionem, tuearis, atqui vide ne tuus partus tibi plus satis blandiatur.

Quid quod etiam, velut Aristarchus quispiam, loquendi regulam nobis praescribis, si Musis placet: caeterum, inquis, cum vocabula ‘multum’ et ‘parum’ et

1565 similia iunguntur vocabulis auctionem diminutionemue designantibus, nequaquam significare solent tempus. Hic autem ‘paulo minus’ iungitur vocabulo ‘minuisti’ quod imminutionem significat, secus autem eset si iungeretur particulae designanti tempus. Quod ego audio enthymema? Soloecismus igitur erit si dixerim: ‘extulisti me paulisper tuis laudibus’, quanquam ingenuus fateor Latinis quaedam peculiariter ad tempus pertinere, quod genus sunt ‘paulisper’, ‘aliquantisper’, alia non item ut ‘multum’, ‘parum’ nisi tempus addas. Atqui non est eadem apud Graecos distinctio et sicuti nobis addendum est temporis vocabulum, ita Graecis saepenumero

1570

1524 his Ac B-D BAS: is A, iis E.
1534 vsque BAS: vel vsque A-E.

1544 Theophylactum BAS: Vulgarium A-E.
1553 coepit E BAS: cepit A-D.

1524–1525 Septuaginta ... moram See appendix IV, ll. 342–349.

1529 istam ... est Regarding Lefèvre's former field of study, see the present apologia, l. 151 and n.

1529 arenam For Erasmus' use of this metaphor, see this apologia, n. l. 105. Cf. Apol. resp. Iac. Lop. Stun., ASD IX, 2, p. 210: “Stunica ... non versatur in sua harena”.

1533 Athanasium aut Chrysostomum See Introduction pp. 25–26.

1536 Luca Luke as the author of Act.; cf. ll. 1549–1550.

1538 ἐκέλευσεν ... ποιῆσαι Act. 5, 34, Textus Receptus. Modern critical editions read βραχύ instead of βραχύ τι.

1540–1541 vetus interpres The translator whose version we have in the Latin Vulgate.

1548 videre I.e., videris.

1549 Academicis I.e., the later Academy, which taught epistemological scepticism.

1550 nonnullis Clem. Al. apud Eus. H.E. VI, 14, 2–3. See also n. l. 2324, the preface to Hebr. which mentions Luke as the translator of Hebr.

1552–1553 eum ... coronatum Hebr. 2, 9.

1554 prius esse “exist”. Erasmus seems to mean that, in comparison with the eternal existence of Christ, Jesus' incarnation, passion and death lasted only a short time. Since, in Hebr. 2, 9, modicum quam angeli minoratus refers to Jesus' incarnation, passion and death, the adverb modicum (Vulgate: modice) is best taken, Erasmus is saying, as an adjunct of time. Although Erasmus' exegesis of modicum/-co is correct, his argumentation is of course not conclusive. Lefèvre would not have been impressed by it.

1559 participium I.e., minoratus.

1559–1560 videmus ... mortis Lefèvre indeed translated Hebr. 2, 9 this way (Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 56 v°). In this translation, Lefèvre tried to clarify the meaning of Hebr. 2, 9 by changing the order of the words. The Vulgate reads: “eum autem qui modico quam angeli minoratus est videmus Iesum propter passionem mortis gloria et honore coronatum.” Lefèvre's translation is: “videmus tamen Ihesum qui paulominus a Deo minoratus est, gloria et honore coronatum propter passionem mortis”. Erasmus holds that “propter passionem mortis” has to be taken with “modico quam angeli minoratus est”, and that Lefèvre had wrongly connected it, in his version, with “gloria et honore coronatum”. Erasmus argues that by transposing the words of Hebr. 2, 9 Lefèvre made this passage say that Jesus' suffering and death were the reason why he was exalted, whereas, according to Erasmus, Hebr. 2, 9 makes Jesus' suffering and death the events in which one can see his humiliation. Lefèvre's translation certainly expresses the meaning of Hebr. 2, 9 more faithfully than does the interpretation given here by Erasmus 1561 nullum ... lapidem Adag. 330 (Omnem mouere lapidem), ASD II, 1, pp. 429–430.

1561–1562 tuam nouam opinionem Erasmus often notes Lefèvre's disagreement with the tradition. See, e.g., the present apologia, n. l. 824.

1563 Aristarchus The great Alexandrian philologist, 216–144 B.C. Cf. n. l. 1605.

1564–1568 caeterum ... tempus See appendix IV, ll. 308–311.

1568 enthymema “A conclusion drawn from the contrary”. Cf. Erasmus, De conscr. ep., ASD I, 2, p. 389, ll. 4–11 and n. l. 10. See J. Chomarat Grammaire et rhétorique chez Erasme, II, Paris, 1981, p. 1122 and Erasmus' Ecclesiastes, ASD V, 4, p. 251 n. l. 121.

1569 ingenuus fateor Cf. above, l. 357 and n.

apponitur. Frequenter etiam subauditur quod nos quoque nonnunquam imitamur, ita loquentes: ‘breui veniam’, nimirum tempore. Non quod hoc factum velim in praesenti loco, ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν βραχύ τι, sed quod existimem nomen neurri generis aduerbii | vice positum eodem modo, sicut paulo ante ex ipsis Pauli verbis docuimus.

Iam quod ex Hebraeorum autoritate producis paucis excutiamus. Locos aliquot citas ex Hebraeorum libris, in quibus meat non ad temporis modum sed ad aliud quippiam referatur. Ingenue fateor me in hisce literis iudicem esse non posse, neque te puto eo progressum vt postules nos hac in re autoritati tuae cedere, nec Hebraei, nescio cuius, quem nobis obiicis, tam grauis est apud nos autoritas vt nefas sit ab eo dissentire. Et tu tot locis productis tantum doces ‘meat’ aliquando ad aliud quam ad tempus pertinere, at non doces ad tempus pertinere non posse. Neque mirum sit aut nouum vocem ad multa communem ad alia quoque nonnunquam referri quam ad vnum aliquod. Quid si quis tibi proferat locum vbi palam ad tempus refertur, quid facies tuae nouae regulae? En tibi psalmo trigesimo sexto, et adhuc pusillum et non erit peccator, Hebraeis est meat, nec potest accipi secus quam de breuitate temporis. Item psalmo centesimo octauo, fiant dies pauci, pro pauci Hebraeis est meatim. An negabis hic meat ad temporis breuitatem pertinere? Rursus psalmo secundo, cum exarserit in breui ira eius, an non Hebraeis est bimeat? Nec dubito quin triginta loca possint colligi, si cui vestigandi non desit ocium, quando haec e Psalmis duntaxat occurrerunt. Nam is liber Hebraice excusus mihi forte tum aderat, quamquam ad labefactandam praeceptionem tuam vel vnum sufficere possit locus.

Quod si conuenit tam anxie disputare de verbis, quaerendum erat quid Latinis sonaret ‘paulominus’; profecto nihil aliud quam ‘prope’ aut ‘propemodum’. Sic enim usurpauit Suetonius in Nerone: talem principem paulominus quatuordecim annos perpessus terrarum orbis, tandem destituit. Ac rursum in Tiberio: et cito mortem etiam obiturus quod paulominus evenit. Iterum in eodem: verum liberatus metu, ciuilem admodum inter initia ac paulominus priuatum egit. Vides autori tam graui paulominus nihil aliud esse quam ‘pene’ et consimili figura Apuleius dixit minimo minus pro ‘penissime’, quomodo Graeci dicunt μικροῦ δεῖν cum ‘paululum abesse’ significant quo minus fiat aliiquid.

Quum sis tantus sermonis Graeci et Hebraei Aristarchus vt loquendi leges praescribas mundo, quum sic offendaris voculis vt his Christum deiici dicas, demiror hanc vocem in tua interpretatione tibi non esse mutatam, quum omnem sensum prophetae inuertat. Nisi forte idem sonant ‘pene diminui’ et ‘paulum diminui’, quum hic aliquantulum intelligatur diminutus, illic intelligatur non fuisse diminutus etiam si parum abfuit vt diminueretur. An forte quemadmodum Augustinus negat Balaam diuinum ad asinae sermonem obstupuisse quod monstris assueisset, ita nec tu istiusmodi sermonis portentis quicquam offenderis?

Multa sciens praetereo ne bis molestus sim lectori, si res per se molestas et inamoenas prolixa disputatione reddidero molestiores, velut illud quod, quum indico Thomam propemodum sensisse cum Chrysostomo quod admoneat 1620 ‘paulominus’ bifariam accipi posse, vel vt pertineat ad quantitatem vel vt pertineat ad durationem, sic illum excusas quasi ego hoc in illius odium adduxerim. Et ni suspicionem hanc excluderet mihi spectata synceritas tua, subolebat non-nihil quum haec scribebas tibi Thomistam aliquem in consilio fuisse, qui Thomam aliquanto ciuius tractes quam Athanasium aut Chrysostomum.

1586–1595 Quid ... locus B–BAS: deest in A.
 1591 temporis breuitatem B E BAS: breuitatem temporis C D; psalmo secundo B E BAS: Psalmo ii vertit etiam Hieronymus ad modum temporis C D.

1593 quando B E BAS: quum C D; e C–BAS:
 deest in B.

1595 possit C–BAS: poterat B.

1576 paulo ante See ll. 2216–2233.
 1577 Pauli verbis i.e., Hebr. 2, 9.
 1578–1580 Iam ... referatur See appendix IV,
 ll. 297–320.
 1580 ingenue fateor Cf. above, l. 357 and n.
 1587 quid ... regulae “What are you going to do with that new rule of yours?” tuae ... regu- lae is dative; see Lewis and Short, s.v.
 “facio”, p. 717 under IIA, with examples from Cicero and Horace.
 1588 et ... peccator Ps. 36, 10 Vg.
 1590 fiant dies pauci Ps. 108, 8 Vg.
 1591–1592 cum ... eius Ps. 2, 13 Vg.
 1594 liber Hebraice excusus Erasmus is probably referring to the Psalter in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, included in Jerome’s Omnia
 Opera printed by Froben in Basel in 1516
 (see ll. 428–430), or to the polyglot Psalter edited by Agostino Giustiniani and printed at Genoa in 1516 (see ll. 423–427 and ll. 437–461) or to the Hebrew Psalter printed by Froben in Basel in 1516, with a preface by Conrad Pellican.

1598–1599 talem ... destituit Suet. Ner. 40, 1.
 1599–1600 et ... euenit Suet. Tib. 39. After paulominus Erasmus omits “vtrumque”.
 1600–1601 verum ... egit Suet. Tib. 26, 1. After paulominus Erasmus omits “quam”.
 1602–1603 Apuleius ... penissime Apul. Met. I,
 4, 4, ed. R. Helm, Leipzig, 1931, p. 4.
 1605 Aristarchus Cf. l. 1563. Erasmus means Aristarchus of Samothrace, the famous Alexandrian grammarian (216–144 B.C.). Cf. Adag. 457, ASD II, 1, pp. 530–534, see esp. 534
 ll. 354–368 (... hoc ipsum Aristarchi cognomen in proverbium abiit ...). In Adag. 457 Erasmus mentions the following classical sources for the proverbial use of the name of Aristarchus: Cic., Att. 1, 14, 3 and ibid. 16, 11, 1, Cic. Fam. 9, 10,
 1, Varro, Ling. lat. 8, 63 and Hier. Epist. 50, 1.

1607 hanc vocem i.e., paulominus.
 1611–1612 Augustinus ... assueuisset Aug.
 Quaestionum in Heptateuchum libri VII, IV, CSEL 28, 2, ed. I. Zycha, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1895, p. 356.
 1611 Balaam ... obstupuisse Num. 22, 28–30.
 1614–1617 quum ... durationem See appendix III, ll. 36–38. In this passage, however, Erasmus does not contend that Chrysostom too had said “paulominus” bifariam accipi posse.
 In ll. 31–32 of appendix III, Erasmus states that Chrysostom took paulominus as an adjunct of time.
 1617 sic ... adduxerim See appendix IV, ll. 42–72, particularly ll. 68–70. Cf. also ibid., ll. 350–359, where Lefèvre excuses Chrysostom and Theophylact for taking $\beta\alpha\chi\iota\tau\iota$ as a predicate of time and ll. 457– 473 where Lefèvre again excuses Aquinas for asserting that paulominus can be interpreted in two ways (ad quantitatem and ad durationem).

1618 spectata synceritas tua Regarding the basis for this ironic flattery, cf. the present apologia, ll. 48–49 and n. ll. 49–50. Cf. n. l. 1569.
 Erasmus is irritated by Lefèvre’s frequent claims to sincerity, for which see, e.g., appendix IV, ll. 25–30, l. 37, and ll. 578–579.

1619–1620 qui ... Chrysostomum Erasmus remarks that Lefèvre is less critical of Aquinas than of Athanasius and Chrysostom, as can be seen in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 459–460, where Lefèvre asserts:
 Thomas ... eo magis venia dignus quod magnos sequebatur authores. But Lefèvre excuses all the Church Fathers as well as Aquinas for misinterpreting Hebr. 2, 7, i.e., for reading ab angelis instead of a Deo, on the ground that they knew no Hebrew. See the present apologia, l. 1617 and n.

Verum vt ad reliquas apologiae, hoc est criminatio[n]is tuae partes respondeam, a[is] a me scriptum: sunt qui Lucam putent interpretem fuisse, quam opinionem si recipimus, is interpres in ius vocari non potest. Quid hic est, mi Faber, quod te offendit? An quod dixerim quosdam in hac fuisse opinione? An non id palam testatur praefatio quam in hanc epistolam habent nostri codices? Eam vt donemus non esse Hieronymi, certe, siue Bedae est siue Isidori siue alterius, apparet hominis esse non omnino indocti et publico christianorum vsu comprobatur, ne interim ex aliis argumenta proferam, quum idem quod in hoc argumeto legitur referat Eusebius, Ecclesiasticae historiae libro 6, capite II ex autoritate Clementis Alexandrini. Nec dissimulat Hieronymus in Catalogo scriptorum illustrium.

Atqui quum incertus sit interpres, qua fretus autoritate tanto supercilio pronuncias non esse Lucam? An quia sequutus est aeditionem Septuaginta? Quid mirum si hoc faciat Lucas interpres, quum idem aliquoties faciat Paulus, et in aliis epistolis in quibus ipse sui interpres est? Et tamen feci tibi liberum, vtrum eam opinionem recipere velles an non. Quod si non recipis, nihil est quod mecum litiges. Certe verum est, si ea vera est opinio, interpretem in ius non esse vocandum, nisi forte Lucam in ius trahendum putas. Et tamen subiicis: caeterum non oportet hic autoritatem scribentis, quicunque is fuerit, sed veritatem facere victoriām. Ex animo, ne Faber optime, tibi dicuntur ista an ioco? Quicunque fuerit autor aut interpres huius epistolae, nihil ne habebit momenti autoritas, ne si Paulus quidem ipse fuerit aut interpres Lucas? Quid hic senseris ipse videris, certe nulli obscurum esse potest quid his verbis expresseris. Verum hic non vrgebo te tuis dictis, quando satis coniecto te sensisse non magnopere referre quis fuerit interpres, quum tibi constet Lucam non fuisse.

Post haec illud exagitas quod ex annotationibus eorum qui literas Hebraicas profitentur indicarim, ‘Eloim’ apud illos vtroque numero poni, tum πολύσημον esse vocem. Idque tibi non omnino displicebat cum scriberes in hunc psalmum, quandoquidem pluralitatem numeri trahis ad tres personas, Patrem, Filium et Spiritum Sanctum. Hanc vero nouam regulam, quam, opinor, Hebraeus aliquis suppeditauit, nec approbo, nec refello. Certe nullus Hebraeorum negat ‘El’ proprium esse ‘Deo’, ‘Eloim’ nunc poni pro ‘El’, nunc pro ‘Deo’ adiuncto consortio, sicut in condendo mundo faciamus, inquit, hominem, nunc pro ‘angelis’, nunc pro ‘primatibus’ aut ‘iudicibus’, nunc pro ‘diis’. Hoc tantum volunt interesse inter ‘Eloim’ et ‘Malachim’, quod ‘Malachim’ dicantur angeli quoties ad functionem aliquam mittuntur, ‘Eloim’ quoties dignitas et eminentia declaratur. Ais autem Septuaginta quoties ‘Eloim’ usurpatur absque nota pluralitatis, semper vertisse ‘Deum’. Id si verum est, et hoc loco vertissent ‘Deum’, cum absit ea nota quemadmodum ais. Certe nomino quem hic sim sequutus et cui tu quoque, ni fallor, plurimum tribuis. At is eadem docet in operis nuper aediti libro tertio, citatis aliquot diuinæ scripturae testimonii.

Vide vero vt vere tuus sermo sese elidat. Ais Septuaginta sic vbique vertisse et hic fatere secus vertisse, perinde ac si dicas cygnum totum esse candidum et idem

- 1628–1631 quum ... illustrium BAS: deest in A–E.
 1645 constet A B BAS: constat C D E.
 1651 alt. nec A–E: ne BAS.
 1651–1656 Certe ... declaratur B–BAS: deest in A.
 1652 adiuncto B D–BAS: adiuncta C.
- 1622–1623 sunt ... potest See appendix III, ll. 41–42 (and n. l. 41), cited by Lefèvre in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 477–478, and criticized ibid., ll. 478–483.
 1625 praefatio This argumentum (mentioned by S. Berger, Les préfaces jointes aux livres de la bible dans les manuscrits de la Vulgate, Paris, 1902), occurs in Biblia integra, Basel, 1491, in 8°, GW 4269. Erasmus possessed a copy of this edition, see F. Husner, p. 257. See also Erasmus en zijn tijd, exhibition catalogue Rotterdam, 1969, no. 188: Biblia integra: summatia: distincta: superemendata: utriusque testamenti concordantij illustrata, Basel, Joh. Froben, 27 June 1491, 8° Bibl. GW 4269. ("Tradition has it that John Froben presented this Bible to Erasmus and that the latter used it ever since") The argumentum to Hebr. runs as follows: "Imprimis dicendum est cur apostolus Paulus in hac epistola scribenda non seruauerit morem suum, vt vel vocabulum nominis sui vel ordinis describerit dignitatem. Hec causa est, quod ad eos scribens qui ex circumcisione crediderant quasi gentium apostolus et non Hebreorum, sciens quoque eorum superbiam suamque humilitatem ipse demonstrans meritum officii sui noluit anteferre. Nam simili modo etiam Iohannes apostolus propter humilitatem in epistola sua nomen suum eadem ratione non praetulit. Hanc ergo epistolam fertur apostolus ad Hebreos conscriptam Hebraica lingua misisse, cuius sensum et ordinem retinens Lucas euangelista post excessum apostoli Pauli Greco sermone compositus. Explicit argumentum. Incipit epistola Pauli ad Hebreos."
- 1626 Bedae Bede the Venerable (672–735) wrote, among many other studies, several commentaries on the New Testament. Cf. H. Roiston Loyn, in TRE 5, Berlin and New York, 1980, pp. 397–402.
- 1626 Isidori Isidorus of Sevilla (died 636) wrote inter alia some exegetical works, e. g. In libros Veteris ac Novi Testamenti proemia, cf. R.J. Howard Collins in TRE 16, Berlin and New York, 1987, pp. 310–315.
- 1629–1630 Eusebius ... Alexandrinus Eus. H.E. VI, 14, 2.
- 1630–1631 Nec ... illustrium See Hier. and Genadius, De vir. ill., V, ed. C. A. Bernoulli, Freiburg im Breisgau and Leipzig, 1895, p. 10.
- 1653 consortio B E BAS: quasi consocio C D.
 1654 Iloc B E BAS: et hoc C D; volunt B E BAS: voluit C D.
 1660 At E BAS: Atque A–D.
- 1632–1633 tanto ... Lucam See appendix IV, ll. 478–483. Erasmus is suggesting that Lefèvre did not want to admit that Luke was the translator of Hebr. because Luke was the author of two New Testament books and as a canonical author could not be supposed to be responsible for a mistake in the translation of Paul's text of Hebr. 2, 7.
- 1638–1640 caeterum ... victoriam See appendix IV, ll. 481–483.
- 1640 Ex ... ioco? "Do you say this in earnest or in jest, my dear Faber?"
- 1647–1648 indicarim ... vocem See appendix III, ll. 42–49, partially quoted by Lefèvre in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 484–486.
- 1648–1650 scriberes ... Sanctum See appendix I, ll. 78–79: Et mysterium continet ea vocis pluralitas, non diuinitatis, sed diuinorum hypostaseon pluralitatem insinuans.
- 1648 hunc psalmum Ps. 8, 6.
- 1650 Hebraeus aliquis Erasmus means of course a converted Jew, to whom Lefèvre would be indebted for the Christian interpretation of the plural of elohim as referring to the Trinity. But the ascription of this interpretation to "some Jew" may be no more than an expression of Erasmus' contempt for the theory at issue, which he no doubt regarded as utterly baseless.
- 1653 faciamus ... hominem Gen. 1, 26.
- 1653–1654 nunc ... diis Cf. appendix III, ll. 42–49.
- 1654–1656 Hoc ... declaratur Erasmus probably received this information from Matthaeus Adrianus, professor of Hebrew at the Collégium Trilingue in Louvain from 1517 to 1519. See appendix V, ll. 268–272 and n. l. 268.
- 1657–1658 Ais ... 'Deum' See appendix IV, ll. 488–491.
- 1659 Certe ... sequutus I.e., Johannes Reuchlin (Erasmus means the note in: De rudimentis Hebraicis, Pforzheim, 1506, p. 55), see appendix III, ll. 48–49 and n. l. 49.
- Certe nomino* These words imply criticism of Lefèvre's vagueness with regard to his sources.
- tuus ... elidat* Erasmus chooses this expression because Lefèvre had used it against him in his disputatio; cf. appendix IV, ll. 147–148.

fatearis cygnum rostro esse nigro. Mirum vero non esset si nos pingues in huiusmodi subtilitatibus laberemur; te tantum dialecticum sic hallucinari mirum est, praesertim cum huiusmodi erratula in amici scriptis rigidus censor insecteris. Mihi igitur probabile est Septuaginta vidiisse et hic 'Eloim' posse numero multitudinis accipi, attamen, quoniam 'Deum' non sunt ausi dicere, nec visum est ponere 'deos', 'angelos' verterunt.

Existimo nihil a me praetermissum quod non diluerim argumentis clarissimis et in quo non tibi quoque satisfecerim. Verum quoniam omnis disputatio tua carebat ordine, quod singulas annotationis meae partes vt incidebant conuelleres, et mihi necesse fuit in respondendo tuum ordinem sequi, fortassis lectori sermo videbitur confusior et ob id parum dilucidus, non alienum fuerit ceu per epilogum rei totius summam in compendium contrahere.

Primum igitur demonstratum est de summa rei mihi tecum nullam esse controuersiam, imo dum mecum pugnas te tibi ipsi aduersari. Recenseo duplicum lectionem, quarum vtraque tantis nititur autoribus vt non putarim hanc aut illam contumeliose repudiandam et alias quoque probe vtranque consistere, si modo 'Eloim' Hebraicis vtriusque numeri est et modo 'Deum', modo 'deos', modo 'iudices', modo 'angelos' sonat, quemadmodum an|notatum est ab iis qui literas Hebraicas profitentur, quanquam id partim annotatum est et a Magistro sententiatarum, vt vocant, libro primo, distinctione tertia, si forsitan huius autoritas te magis commouet. Nam quod tu tantopere demiraris, quum 'Eloim' bis centies septuagies quinques ac rursum bis centies septuagies quater positum reperiatur numero singulari, qua fronte quis audeat posthac numero multitudinis accipere; vicissim ipse demiror qua fronte tu audeas ista praecipere. Quid enim vetat sic alicubi usurpari etiam si bis milies aliter sit usurpatum? Nisi forte quia 'puer' in literis diuinis plus sexcenties aetatem significat, nefas esse ducis eandem vocem pro 'famulo' usurpare.

Neque minus friuolum est quod addis de particula col quae nisi accesserit, negas 'Eloim' plurali numero posse intelligi, quod ea locis aliquot addatur. Atqui in eo Psalmorum loco quem ipse Christus adducit apud Ioannem, ego dixi dii estis, numero multitudinis vertit etiam Hieronymus et tamen 'col' abest hac certe in parte. Rursum Deus stetit in synagoga deorum. Item dii fortes terrae vehementer eleuati sunt. Iterum abiicite deos alienos. Sed quid ego haec? Toties legis in Veteri Testamento 'deos', nec apponitur tuum illud col, quam tu vis ita pluralitatis esse notam vt, ni adiiciatur, merito in ius trahendus sit qui 'Eloim' secus verterit quam 'Deum'. Perspicuum igitur est haec quae adducis, haud scio quem sed non optimum autorem sequutus, quisquis fuit, nihil obstare quo minus hoc loco Eloim numero multitudinis accipiatur et aliud sonet quam 'Deum'.

Caeterum quoniam obstabat in vtraque lectione aduerbum paulominus siue paululum, magis autem in ea quam tu solam vis esse, quod, vt donemus non multum esse interualli inter angelicam naturam et corpus mortale, tamen fatendum est inter diuinam naturam assumentem et humanam assumptam immensum esse discrimen, nec potest Christus minor Patre dici nisi iuxta harum inter-se comparationem, eam difficultatem amolior interpretans paulominus: ad breue tempus, vt plurimum diminutus intelligatur sed paulisper, maxime, si diminutionem siue humiliationem susceptis vitae nostrae malis metiamur, quod 1710 facit Ambrosius et mihi magis probatur. Porro βρχύ τι ad temporis modum referri posse, tametsi per se liquebat Graecae linguae gnaris, ex ipso Luca docui, imo ex ipso Paulo, atque adeo ex hac ipsa epistola docui, si tibi leuis est Chrysostomi caeterorumque Graecorum autoritas.

Atque hactenus quidem quae inter nos versantur ad summam causae pertinente, caetera aut de tuo addidisti aut arripuisti ex his quae obiter a me in ipso 1715 disputationis cursu sunt dicta vel augendae rei vel fulciendae gratia, quorum 1674 non B-BAS: fortasse non A.

1675 contrahere A B E BAS: trahere C D.

1707 ad E BAS: pro ad A-D.

1713 caeterorumque B-BAS: et A.

1716 augendae Ac B-BAS: agendae A.

1670–1675 Existimo ... contrahere Erasmus here announces a conveniently organized summary of the foregoing.

1670 clarissimis Possibly an ironic allusion to Lefèvre's claim to explain things clearly in his disputatio; see appendix IV, ll. 31–33.

1672 singulas ... conuelleres Erasmus here criticizes the misrepresentation Lefèvre gives in his disputatio of Erasmus' note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr. by attacking isolated parts of it. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 349–356 and nn.

1674 non alienum fuerit Here Erasmus' sentence becomes an anacoluthon.

1676–1677 de ... controversiam Unlike Erasmus Lefèvre was convinced that their controversy about the translation and interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 concerned the dignity of Christ; see ll. 45–46 and n. and ll. 82–83 and n.

1679 et ... consistere “and I think that otherwise, too, both readings fit well”.

consistere “apply”, “to be applicable”. Cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 89, n. l. 573; p. 153, n. l. 797b, p. 197, n. l. 549; p. 217, n. l. 860.

1682–1683 Magistro ... tertia The reference is not correct: tertia must be “secunda”: Magistri Petri Lombardi Sententiae in iv libris distinctae, lib. I, dist. ii, cap. 4, ed. Collegium S. Bonaventurae ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata, Rome, 1971, p. 65.

1684–1686 Nam ... accipere See appendix IV, ll. 495–499.

1691–1692 Neque ... addatur See appendix IV, ll. 491–494.

1691 col I.e., ↗.

1693 eo Psalmorum loco Ps. 81, 6.
apud Ioannem Ioh. 10, 34.

1694 numero ... Hieronymus I.e., at Ps. 81, 6 in the Psalterium iuxta Hebr. as well as in the Vg.

1695 Deus ... deorum Ps. 81, 1 Vg.

1695–1696 dii ... sunt Ps. 46, 10 Vg.

1696 abiicite deos alienos Gen. 35, 2.

1696–1697 Toties ... col See the present apologia, ll. 1686–1695 and nn. In Ps. 8, 6, too, “col” is lacking.

1699–1700 haud ... fuit Erasmus is suggesting that Lefèvre's grammatical observation at issue is not based on any authority in the field and is entirely unfounded.

1703 magis ... esse Consequently, in proposing to take βρχύ τι temporally, Erasmus actually supported Lefèvre rather than opposing him. See the present apologia, l. 732 and n.

1703 in ea I.e., the reading a Deo.
solan vis Erasmus disliked categorical decisions in exegesis. For Erasmus' opinion about the task of commentators, see the present apologia, ll. 290–305 and nn.

1703–1704 vt ... mortale In fact Erasmus thinks the distance between angels and human beings is very large; see appendix III, ll. 26–28 and the present apologia, ll. 7–8, and ll. 565–566.

1706 harum I.e., of the two natures of Christ; see ll. 1704–1706.

1709–1710 quod facit Ambrosius See ll. 880–900.

1711 ex ipso Luca See ll. 1536–1542. The reference is to Act. 5, 34.

1712 ex ipso Paulo See ll. 1551–1553. The reference is to Hebr. 2, 9.

1712–1713 si ... autoritas For the passages from these Church Fathers that Erasmus has in mind here, see the present apologia, l. 484 and nn.

illud erat praecipuum quod adieceram Christum et infra abiectissimos homines fuisse diminutum. In quibus verbis adeo nihil est quod Christo sit indignum, vt magnopere hic sermo faciat ad Christi gloriam, ad Pauli mentem cui dictus est exinanitus, ad prophetarum oracula quibus vermis et non homo dictus est, ad nostram salutem, quibus expediebat humilitatis exemplum quam maxime insigne minimeque fictum exhiberi per eum qui ipsa est veritas. Praesertim quum huiusmodi exaggeratio humiliationis nihil officiat illius celsitudini, quod vt idem mortalis et immortalis, afflictissimus et felicissimus dici potuit, ita summus et infimus dici potuit diuersa ratione, nimirum ob diuersissimas naturas in eadem hypostasi vnitas et maxime ob summos cruciatus, quos supra mortales omnes in se recepit. Ad quos ego sane iuxta diui Ambrosii sententiam quae de Christo exinanito dicuntur referri malim quam ad naturam assumptam, propterea quod, si haec ad carnem assumptam simpliciter referantur, quum et hodie Christus homo sit, iuxta hanc rationem dici possit in immensum a Deo diminutus.

Quae quum ita habeant, nemini potest obscurum esse contumelias quibus me petis cum ais: et hunc sermonem, videlicet indicans caeteros eiusdem esse notae, Christo Deoque indignissimum, literae quae occidit adhaerentem, Spiritui qui viuificat aduersantem, subuertentem prophetae intelligentiam, deiicientem Christum vna cum impiis Iudeis aliasque id genus, neque dignas esse quae vel abs te vel in me dicerentur, nec admodum sapere mitissimum illum Christi Spiritum qui viuificat, non lacinat et medetur erroribus humanis, non lacerat, praesertim pie et ex orthodoxorum patrum sententia loquentem.

Iam quod ea quae in propheticis literis eximiam Christi humiliationem declarant, partim ad impiorum hominum opinionem detorques, partim nobis accommodas, tum idoneis argumentis, tum grauissimis autoribus docuimus vere in ipsum Christum competere. Deinde quae verbosissime persequeris de dignitate Christi, demonstratum est nihil obstare summae eiusdem humiliationi. Neque enim ideo Christus non aliqua ratione minor angelis fuit quod ab angelis iubetur adorari, vt nec ideo nulla ratione parentibus ipse fuit superior quod eis subditus fuisse dicitur apud Lucam euangelistam. Quod si ideo non potest aliquo pacto angelis inferior dici quod nullus angelorum excitarit mortuos, sanarit aegrotos, vt interim taceam et per angelos aedita fuisse miracula, consequetur Christum discipulis suis fuisse minorem quod vt ipse facturos testatur maiora his fecerint.

Etenim quod adiicis de autoritate, Christus quoque suorum operum autoritatem Patri transscribit: opera Patris mei facio, vt mandauit mihi Pater, sic facio et sermo quem audistis non est meus sed eius qui misit me Patris et mea doctrina non est mea. Rursum quod negas Christum dici creaturam, etiam si nusquam a me dictus est, declaraui summis viris fuisse dictum creaturam.

Itidem quod aequalitatis proportionem asseris in Christo et ob id vermem dici non posse, euici in eodem et alteram esse proportionem iuxta quam non a me, sed a propheta dictus sit vermis. Etenim quod velut absurdissimum colligebas, cherubim quoque ad Deum collatos vermes dici posse, nihil equidem repugnarim, praesertim si hoc nominis illis tribuant prophetarum libri. Quanquam

1720

1725

1730

LB 50

1735

1745

1750

1755

1760 huiusmodi permulta in ipso disputationis cursu dissimulaui, quod genus illud, cruciatus corporis tantos esse posse ut non queant inueniri maiores. Quantumuis

1719 faciat A-C E BAS: facit D.

1735 id Ac B-BAS: id id A.

1735–1736 vel abs te vel BAS: abs te dicerentur neque quae A-E.

1717 infra abiectissimos homines See appendix III, l. 24. Lefèvre's criticism of these words can be found in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 132–137.

1718–1719 vt ... gloriam For this conviction of Erasmus, see the present apologia, ll. 774–782.

1720 exinanitus Cf. Phil. 2, 7.

ad prophetarum oracula Erasmus mentions this probably because Lefèvre had stated that Erasmus' view (i.e., Christum et infra abiectissimos homines fuisse diminutum) proorsus prophetae aduersatur, see appendix IV, l. 137. Moreover Erasmus may be responding here to Lefèvre's opinion that the characterization of Christ as a worm in Ps. 21, 7 reflected only the view of pharisees and scribes, not that of the prophet David or Christ himself. See appendix IV, ll. 183–185, 234–236.

vermis ... homo Ps. 21, 7.

1721 humilitatis exemplum See this apologia, l. 1481: exemplum humilitatis in Christo insigne esse volo. Cf. Introduction pp. 27–28 and 36–37.

1722 minimeque fictum What Erasmus means is that Christ's humiliation was not only interpreted as such by his adversaries; in Erasmus' view it was objectively a real humiliation.

1722 qui ... veritas Cf. Ioh. 14, 6: "Ego sum via et veritas et vita".

1722–1723 huiusmodi ... celsitudini Cf. the present apologia, ll. 797–821 where Erasmus argues that people who want to emphasize Jesus' humiliation and people who rather want to stress his glory need not regard each other as enemies, since Jesus' majesty is not diminished by emphasizing his suffering and humiliation. Moreover, Jesus himself wanted to be remembered as he was then, in those humiliating circumstances, for that is why he showed himself to the people as a humiliated man.

1727 iuxta ... sententiam For the opinion of Ambrose, see ll. 880–900.

1732–1734 et hunc ... intelligentiam See appendix IV, ll. 132–136.

1733–1734 Spiritu qui viuificat Cf. 2 Cor. 3, 6.

1734–1735 deicientem ... Iudaeis See appendix IV, ll. 347–349. For Erasmus' reaction to this accusation, see the present apologia, ll. 960–1011.

1737–1738 praesertim ... loquentem This clause

1737–1738 praesertim D-BAS: deest in A-C.

1746 apud Lucam euangelistam B-BAS: deest in A; ideo A C-BAS: deest in Deo B.

1749 facturos B-BAS: deest in A.

belongs to me in l. 1736, not to Spiritu in l. 1736.

1739 in propheticis literis Erasmus means Ps. 21, 7: "Ego autem sum vermis et non homo".

1740–1741 partim ... accommodas Lefèvre did this quite extensively, see appendix IV, ll. 161–250.

1741 idoneis argumentis I.e., in the present apologia, ll. 1018–1160.

grauissimis autoribus See ll. 1028–1091.

1743 demonstratum ... humiliationi See ll. 797–821.

1743–1745 Neque ... adorari These words of Erasmus' are of course in flagrant contradiction with what Lefèvre argued in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 283–292.

1744–1745 ab ... adorari I.e., according to Hebr. 1, 6.

1746 apud Lucam euangelistam Lc. 2, 51.

1746–1748 ideo ... aegrotos For this argument of Lefèvre, see his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 446–453.

1748 et ... miracula E.g., Act. 12, 6–10.

1749–1750 ipse ... fecerint Ioh. 14, 12.

1751 adictis de autoritate Lefèvre quotes a great number of passages from the Bible to prove Jesus' power and authority, see appendix IV, ll. 410–453.

1752 opera ... alt. facio Cf. Ioh. 14, 31. For similar phrases, see Ioh. 10, 25 and 10, 37.

1753 sermo ... Patris Ioh. 14, 24.

1753–1754 mea ... mea Ioh. 7, 16.

1754 negas ... creaturam See appendix IV, ll. 326–327.

1755 declaravi ... creaturam I.e., in the present apologia, ll. 1219–1250.

1756–1757 aequalitatis ... posse See appendix IV, ll. 237–241.

1757–1758 euici ... vermis See the present apologia, ll. 1154–1159.

1758–1759 colligebas ... posse See appendix IV, ll. 238–239.

1759–1760 repugnarim ... tribuant The subjunctives express "unreal cases": "I would not object, especially if the books of the prophets gave them this name"—which is not the case.

1762 cruciatus ... maiores Erasmus is probably referring to appendix IV, ll. 62–65; Hac igitur ratione passibilitatis parum colligitur Christum exaggeres corporis cruciatus, certe acerbiores reddentur si paribus animi cruciatibus conduplicentur.

1765 Porro quod vehementer execrabis hypostaseos nomina pro altera natura accipi, primum docui istud nusquam a me factum, nisi quod tu huc mea detorques ac deprauas, quod etiam sicubi fecisset veterum orthodoxorum exem-plo facturum fuisse. Nisi forte quum diuus Augustinus libro De Trinitate secundo, capite sexto scribit hunc in modum: quia non sic est assumpta creatura 1770 in qua appareret Spiritus Sanctus, sicut assumptus est Filius hominis, non accipit Filium hominis pro altera natura. Quanquam obiter et illud ostendi, tutius esse hypostaseos vocabula pro altera natura accipi quam quod tu vis, pro vtraque nimirum pro diuina humanae vnta, licet duas naturas significant. Ex superuacuo probatum est hoc quoque non solum de singulis naturis, verum etiam de quauis 1775 trium in Christo substantiarum, siue rerum, aliquoties posse enunciari, quod idem per hypostaseos vocabulum de Christo possit enunciari. Arbitror ex his liquere quam tu non satisficeris, quum abunde satisfecisse tibi videaris per syllogismos in quibus abunde multum est conuinciorum, efficacium argumentorum nihil. Sed reliqua persequamur.

1780 Iam in his quae sequuntur sic vrges nos ac premis, vt necesse habeam fateri cautius ac circumspectius fuisse loquendum si iudices tam iniquos eram sortiturus. Sed imposuit mihi primum argumentum humilius annotationum et in hoc genere veteribus semper vsurpata libertas. Non expectabam tam oculatum et iniquum cauillatorem. Arbitrabar haec non lecturos nisi mei similes.

1785 Verum vt simplicitatis crimen agnosco, ita amentiam quam impingis deprecor.
Primum enim in ea sum sententia vt existimem eos commentarios nec esse Hieronymi, nec ab vno homine collectos. Cur igitur, inquier, citas Hieronymi nomine? Aliquo | titulo citandi erant et illic aliud agebatur quam de illorum autore. Et scis Hieronymum Paulo tribuere huiusmodi quandam, vt ita 1790 dicam, vafriciem, quod quaedam ad suum torqueat negocium et nonnunquam apud illum pugnant verba sacrae scripturae quae suis locis non pugnant, quemadmodum in epistola ad Titum Epimenidis prophanum dictum ad Christi trahit negocium. Et in Actis quod Aratus de Ioue dixit, Paulus ad Deum trahit et ibidem prophanum et impium aiae titulum commutatis aliquot verbis detor-1795 quet in argumentum fidei. Etenim quum inscriptio sic haberet 'diis Asiae et Europae Africaeque', 'diis ignotis et peregrinis', tamen is ita torquet vt narret sibi conspectam aram quae titulum haberet 'ignoto deo', sicut autor est Hierony-mus enarrans epistolam Pauli ad Titum. Neque te fugit, opinor, quam veteres ferme omnes sibi indulgeant in allegoriis, praesertim Ambrosius, Origenes et 1800 Hieronymus, in quibus labi negant periculose si modo ad pios mores accom-modentur.

1805 Et tamen vide quanto alio tu mea verba detorques atque ego sensi atque etiam explicui, si quis Latine sciat. Non enim dixi haec non competere in Christum, sed non videri admodum probari Hieronymo quod proprie Christo tribuantur. Tu, vt appareat, proprie perinde valere putas ac si dixisset 'vere'. Ego sentio ea proprie-tribui Christo, quae sic tribuantur vt in neminem alium competant. Neque enim primus psalmus ideo non competit in quemuis hominem pium quod eum sacri doctores de Christo interpretentur. Quod ius si hic quoque nobis permittas, verum fuerit haec proprie non esse tribuenda Christo, quae iuxta tropologiam et in caeteros homines competant. Nihil autem est, mea quidem sententia, in eo

1810

1770 accipit A-C E BAS: accepit D.

1775 aliquoties B-BAS: deest in A.

1777-1778 per syllogismos B-BAS: deest in A.

1786 commentarios A C-BAS: in commentarios B.

1787 vno homine A-E: homine BAS; igitur E BAS: deest in A-D.

1790 nonnunquam Ac B-BAS: deest in A.

1794 arae BAS: curiae A-E.

1797 sicut E BAS: vt A-D.

minorem factum angelis et maxime quo ad passiones corporis ... cum poenae corporis tantae esse possint quantae eae quae sunt animae, quare neque tantae, quantarum angeli sunt capaces.

1765-1766 vehementer ... accipi See appendix IV, ll. 96-132.

1766 primum ... factum See the present apologia, ll. 826-841. There, however, Erasmus does not explicitly assert that he has never done this.

1766-1768 quod ... fuisse See ll. 582-599.

1769-1770 quia ... hominis Aug. Trin. II, vi, ll. 3-4, CCSL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, p. 93.

1773 Ex superuacuo "superfluously", cf. Liv. 2, 37, 8.

1775 trium ... substantiarum i.e., caro Christi, anima Christi and diuinitas Christi, see the present apologia, ll. 636-639. Erasmus is using here Augustine's term "substantia", see ll. 636-637 and n.

1778 conuiciorum "abusive language", "insults".

1782 imposuit "deceived".

1782-1783 in ... libertas See see nn. ll. 291-292 and 299-300.

1783-1784 tam ... cauillatorem For Erasmus' assessment of Lefèvre's attitude towards Erasmus as reflected in his disputatio, cf. ll. 159-164 and n.

1785 amentiam quam impingis See appendix IV, l. 515. According to Lefèvre it would be amentia to believe with Erasmus that Jeromè's words "hunc locum (i.e., Ps. 8, 5-8) Apostolus in epistola ad Hebreos super Christo interpretatur" imply that Jerome held that Ps. 8, 5-8 did not pertain to Christ. For the remark of Erasmus, see appendix III, ll. 54-55.

1786-1787 existimem ... collectos For the authority of the Comm. in Ps., see the present apologia, n. ll. 542-546.

1787 vno BAS does not include this word, but the editions A-E do. It seems better to include it.

1789-1798 Hieronymum ... Titum Hier. Comm. in Tit. ad 1, 12-14, Migne, PL 26, 605 C-609 C.

1790 vafriciem Cf. Erasmus, Ratio, ed. Holborn, p. 223, ll. 34 sqq. and Erasmus Annot., LB VI, 501 E: ("Ignoto deo) Et hic Hieronymus indicat Paulum pia quadam usum vafricie, quod nonnihil mutauit in titulo, non pauca omisit, quo commodius detineretur ad exordium praedicandi Christum ... Quam equidem civilitatem imitandam arbitror iis, quibus studium est ethnicos, aut principes mala educatione depravatos ad pietatem adducere ..." See also Erasmus, Spongia, ASD IX, 1, p. 154, l. 822. "Vafricies" is not recorded in Lewis-Short, nor in the Oxf. Lat. Dict. It is a synonym for "vafritia", "cleverness", "ingenuity". Cf. Hoven, Lexique, p. 376.

1792-1793 in ... negocium Tit. 1, 12.

1792 Epimenidis Epimenides, De oraculis or περὶ χερσοῦ. Cf. Erasmus, Annot. in N.T. at Tit. 1, 12, LB VI, 968 D.

1793 in ... trahit Act. 17, 28.

1793 Aratus i.e., in Phainomena 5.

1795-1797 Etenim ... deo' Cf. Act. 17, 23.

1797-1798 Hieronymus ... Titum Hier. Comm. ad Titum, ad Tit. 1, 12, Migne, PL 26, 607.

1798-1801 veteres ... accommodentur Erasmus is not referring to any particular passage in the Fathers mentioned, but characterizing their exegetical method in general.

1803-1804 Non ... tribuantur This is indeed what Erasmus argued, see appendix III, ll. 54-55.

1804-1805 Tu ... vere Erasmus is referring to appendix IV, ll. 507-517.

1810-1811 eo psalmo Ps. 8.

psalmo quod citra haeresim in omnes pios non possit accommodari. Videtur enim illic iuxta sensum infimum prophetarum singularem Dei erga nos beneficentiam, qui cum sit excelsior coelis, tamen hominum in terris agentium curam agat, tantoque dignetur honore ut hominem vniuersis animantibus praefecerit, ad verbum pene referens quod est in Genesi: replete terram et subiicie eam et dominamini piscibus maris et volatilibus coeli et vniuersis animantibus quae mouentur super terram, ac propemodum coelitus aequauerit rarissimi animi dotibus.

Etenim quum ait: quid est homo, videtur humilitatem humanae conditionis intelligere. Quum addit: minuisti illum paulum ab angelis, ostendit quo subiectus sit munere diuino. Nam quod nos interpretamur de homine diminuto, id illic appetat dictum in diuersum sensum. Minuisti eum paulo minus ab angelis, hoc est: pene illum aequasti angelis. Dices: somnium aduersus. Imo sic olim somnauit Arnobius, haud pessimus autor, qui totum hunc psalmum non ad Christum, sed ad Christi membra accommodat. Certe quod sequitur, omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, oves et boues vniuersas insuper et pecora campi, volucres et caetera, non videtur in Christum proprie competere sed in nos potius. Quid enim magni si Christus praefectus sit pecudibus, piscibus et volucribus? Et vides interpretem epistolae ad Hebreos hucusque adduxisse testimonium psalmi, omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, omissis iis quae non aequa commode faciebant ad id quod tum agebat, et absolutum fecisse quod illic commemoratione sequenti videtur adstringi oves et boues. Alioqui qui conuenit ut sentiens de imperio Christi, quo regnat super omnem creaturam terrestrem ac coelestem, ea tantum nominatim recenseat quae sint infima pars imperii? Neque vero me fugit haec ad allegoriam trahi ab interpretibus, nec eam sane reiicio, licet aliquanto coactiore nimirum a coactis.

Huiusmodi quippam quum id temporis cogitarem et hoc agerem ut omnia tentans et velut hostiatim pulsans lectori variam cogitandi commentandique materiam subministrarem, id quod annotatoris est officium, visum est hoc ciuiliter indicare. Sunt enim quaedam quae magis indicanda sunt quam explicanda, quod a vetustissimis theologis factitatum videmus. Ac ne recentiores quidem prorsus eadem loquuntur in scholis et inter eruditos priuatim, aut si eadem dicunt, non eodem dicunt modo. Caeterum huiusmodi exagitare verbis et apud imperitum ac malignum vulgus traducere mihi parum ciuale videtur, nedum amicum.

Quod si sermonis habitum animaduertas quo haec loquor, facile appetat quaerentis esse et tentantis, non asseuerantis. Videtur, inquam, non admodum probasse. Videntur quae non sunt eiusmodi, sed tamen speciem aliquam praebent. Atque hoc quoque mitigo, addens non admodum, hoc est ‘non usquequaque’. Sed, inquires, vbi species ista quae faciat ut hoc videatur? Primum sic autorem nominat ut pondus probationis in eum reiicere videatur. Deinde quid magni est si Paulus hunc locum super Christo interpretetur, quem ipse Hieronymus totum eum psalmum ad Christum trahat?

Id paucis ac cunctanter monui lectorem ut excuteret, si quid illic esset excutiendum. Neque vero illa dubitatio est an hic psalmus in Christum competit, 1855 sed an proprie, hoc est in solum Christum competitat sic vt ad caeteros homines accommodari non possit, quum tamen totus ille psalmus iuxta communem sensum ad humanum genus pertinere videatur, cui Deus subiecit quicquid rerum aut animantium terra producit et tamen is animi diuinitate coelestia contemplatur. Certe diuus Augustinus sic de Christo exponit vt nobis etiam attemperet, in Christo renatis. Magnum vero piaculum, si id duobus verbis lectorem admonitum esse volui.

1822–1824 Dices ... accommodat BAS: deest in A–E.

1829 omissis Ac B–BAS: amissis A.

1830 illic A–E: illi BAS.

1835 nimirum a coactis B–BAS: deest in A.

1843–1844 nedum amicum B–BAS: deest in A.

1858 is E BAS: deest in A–D.

1812 propheta I.e., David.

1815 referens This participle qualifies propheta (l. 1812).

1815–1817 replete ... terram Gen. 1, 28.

1818 ait I.e., propheta (see l. 1812).

1818 quid est homo Ps. 8, 5.

1819 minuisti ... angelis Ps. 8, 6.

1822 sommum “nonsense”. Otto 1674. Adag. 1062 (Somnum, rem futilem, inanem et nihil). LB II, 430 C.

1823–1824 Arnobius ... accommodat Arnob., Comm. in Ps., ad Ps. 8, CCSL 25, ed. K.-D. Daur, Turnhout, 1990, p. 10.

1824 Christi membra I.e., the Christians, cf. 1 Cor. 12, 27.

1824–1825 omnia ... volucres Ps. 8, 8.

1828–1829 omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8.

1829 omissis iis With iis Erasmus is referring to oues ... volucres (l. 1825).

1830–1831 absolutum ... boues “(you see that) he has given a general, unrestricted sense to what there, in the psalm, seems to be restricted by the subsequent mention of sheep and oxen”.

1833 recenseat In view of the clause “he mentions the lowest range of his dominion”, i.e., sheep and oxen, the subject of recenseat is the author of Ps. 8.

1833 haec Ps. 8, 8–9.

1834 interpretibus E.g., Ambr. Expos. in psalmos CXVIII, at Ps. 8, 8–9, CSEL 62, ed. M. Petschenig, Vienna and Leipzig, 1913, pp. 153–155. And Aug. Enarr. in Ps. at Ps. 8, 8–9, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and J. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1961, pp. 54–57.

1834–1835 licet ... coactis “although their allegorical exegesis is rather forced and far from being a strict interpretation.” Erasmus is playing with the opposite meanings of coactus: “forced” and “strict”, “accurate”; see Lewis–Short, s.v. “cogo”, p. 363, sub b and c.

1837 hostiatim pulsans “going from house to house, knocking on doors”. Quint. 5, 10, 122:

“neque ... scrutanda singula et velut ostiatim pulsanda”. “Exploring every single possibility, one by one.” hostiatim=ostiatim.

1838 quod ... officium For Erasmus’ view on the task of commentators, cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 290–292, ll. 297–307 and nn. ll. 299–300 and 306–307.

1842–1843 apud ... vulgus Erasmus often gives the impression that he thought that everyone was interested in this controversy; see the present apologia, ll. 72–73 and n. He also feared the reaction this controversy might elicit from adversaries of the humanist movement. Cf. this apologia, ll. 41–42 and n.

1844 amicum See appendix IV, ll. 28–29. Cf. above, ll. 36–37, 1160–1161, 755, 1312–1313, 1337–1338, 1404–1405, 1412 and 1931.

1845–1847 Quod ... probasse Cf. Ep. 1581, from Erasmus to Natalis Beda, Basle, 25 June 1525, ll. 777–780: “Videtis, opinor, inter Fabrum et me plurimum esse discriminis. Ille fortiter asseuerat, ego nihil aliud quam disputo, iudicium alii vbique deferens.” Cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 290–292, ll. 297–307 and nn. ll. 299–300 and 306–307.

1846–1847 Videtur ... probasse See appendix III, l. 53.

1850 autorem The author of Hebr.
nominat The subject is Jerome.

1858 is I.e., “homo”, man in general. It refers back to humanum genus in l. 1857; the grammatical incongruity is due to the fact that humanum genus paraphrases “homo” in Ps. 8, 5.

1858–1859 coelestia contemplatur A paraphrase of Ps. 8, 4: “videbo coelos tuos; opera digitorum tuorum, lunam et stellas quae tu fundasti”. This verse, Erasmus is suggesting, describes the greatness of man in general, not of Christ alone.

1859–1860 Certe ... renatis Aug. Enarr. in Ps., ad 8, 1, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and J. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 50.

Iam vt illud attingam obiter, admiscens huius versiculi interpretationem, quid est homo quod memor es eius aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum? Caeterorum, inquis, hominum non est nisi quaedam Dei memoria et, vt sic dicam, absentia quaedam quod id insinuat, quid est homo quod memor es eius? Siquidem memoria absentium est. Filii autem hominis, id est Christi, iam visitatio et praesentia vnionis et tantae quidem vnionis vt ea sit hypostatica et qua nulla maior esse potest. Quod et id insinuat, aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum, et huiusmodi Dei visitatio, praesentia, vnio, non hominem minuit, sed sic etiam eleuat super omnia vt paulo minutus sit a Deo et minui paulo minus a Deo est super omnia alia exaltari et omnia alia illi subiecta esse. In eo enim ait Apostolus: quod omnia ei subiecit nihil dimisit non subiectum ei, praeter eum qui subiecit ei omnia et de illa visitatione, vnione et a diuinitate apprehensione circa finem huius capititis subdit Apostolus: nusquam enim angelos apprehendit sed semen Abrahae apprehendit, quod quidem semen Abrahae alio loco interpretatur qui est Christus.

Hactenus tua recensuimus. Primum, quid sibi vult hic sermo, caeterorum hominum non est nisi quaedam Dei memoria? Vtrum sentis homines esse memor res Dei an Deum esse memorem hominum? Deinde vtrum sentis homines absentes an absentem Deum? Sed hac amphibologia periculosior est illa, quae tibi superius excidit, quum ais: Verbum et Filius Dei diuinae est conditionis eiusdemque cum Deo naturae. Nam creatura non est perinde ac neque Deus. Vtrumque enim potest accipi, Deum Patrem non esse creaturam aut Filium Dei non esse Deum. Ad haec cum ais: Filius hominis, id est Christi, esse visitationem, vtrum intelligis Christum visitasse hominem an visitatum a Deo? Quod si visitationem appellas assumptionem humanae naturae, quomodo Christum dicis visitatum? An quemadmodum pie dicimus ‘Deus assumpsit hominem’, ita recte dicemus ‘Deus assumpsit Christum’?

Atqui hic ipsissimus est sermo ob quem paulo ante vapulabam abs te, non quod sic loquutus sim, sed quod sic loquutum putaras. Rursus quum ais: non minuit hominem, nonne hominem, quod est hypostaseos vocabulum, pro humana accipis natura, quod ante fieri vetuisti? Ad haec quum ais de illa visitatione, vnione et apprehensione a Deo, demiror te in nostro sermone nodum, vt aiunt, in scyrpo quaerere, quum tibi permittas sic balbutire de rebus ineffabilibus. Quis enim sic vnquam locutus est, apprehensio a Deo, ne quid insecter intollerabilem vbique βαττολογίαν. Praeterea quum pergis et ais hac vnione Christum paulum imminutum a Deo, sed ita vt exaltatus sit super omnia, | si hoc erat exaltari super omnia, visitari a Deo et visitatus est qui assumptione vnitur, mox vt incarnatum est Verbum, Christus exaltatus fuit super omnia. Vbi est igitur, quod ait Paulus, Iesum paululum imminutum a Deo et mox ob passionem gloria et honore coronatum? Atque iterum, propter quod exaltauit illum Deus et dedit illi nomen et caetera, non ob natuitatem sed ob crucis supplicium exaltatum declarans.

Insuper quum ais: apprehendit semen Abrahae qui est Christus, nonne videris Christum apprehensum dicere? Opinor enim hic apprehendi tibi nihil aliud esse quam ‘assumi’. Item quod sequitur, sed nec ullum alium hominum apprehendit subaudis, opinor, ‘quam Christum’. Perspicis, vt puto, quanta sit cauillandi

1865

1870

1875

1880

1885

1890

1895

LB 53

1900

1905

materia, si quis tuo exemplo velit cauillari. Quanquam Augustinus, vnde istius interpretationis occasionem mutuatus es, non ait Christum visitatum a Deo sed ceu duos facit homines, veterem peccatorem cuius tamen meminerit Deus, huc quoque porrecta illius beneficentia qua prospicit et brutis animantibus, ac nouum ad pietatem renascentem atque in hoc dicit hominis esse visitationem.

Hic quoque sciens ac prudens ad multa conniveo, ne quod coactus facio, videar cupide facere. Sed iam plane iuxta Graecorum prouerbium ἐπὶ τὰ Μανδραβούλου res nostrae procedunt. Nam crimen vnum aliud crimen excipit et semper grauius, siquidem annotationis meae coronidem grauiter oppugnas in qua subieci: et de autore eius adeo fuit dubitatum ut sero recepta sit a Romana ecclesia,

1882 aut A-C E BAS: at D.

1888 Atqui A C-BAS: Atque B.

1889 sim B-BAS: sum A.

1891 accipis A B E BAS: accipit C D.

1903 tibi B-BAS: deest in A.

1905 sit B-BAS: deest in A.

1862–1863 quid ... eum Ps. 8, 5.

1863–1875 Caeterorum ... Christus See appendix IV, ll. 386–399.

1871–1872 quod ... subiectum ei Hebr. 2, 8.

1872 praeter ... omnia 1 Cor. 15, 27.

1873–1874 nusquam ... alt. apprehendit Hebr. 2, 16.

1874 semen Abrahae Lefèvre's text reads Abrahae semen.

1879 amphibologia Erasmus has already discussed this case of amphibologia ll. 1269–1271. Cf. n. l. 1207.

1880–1881 Verbum ... Deus See appendix IV, ll. 325–326.

1888–1889 non ... putaras For earlier instances of Erasmus accusing Lefèvre of misrepresenting his argument, see ll. 546–549 and ll. 559–567, ll. 715–720 and ll. 1802–1805.

1891 quod ... vetuisti See appendix IV, ll. 116–119.

1891–1892 de ... apprehensione See the present apologia, ll. 1872–1875. Lefèvre's text reads: de illa visitatione, vnione et a diuinitate apprehensione.

1892–1893 nodus ... quaerere Adag. 1367, LB II, 546 F–547 A. Cf. Plaut. Men. 247 and Ter. And. 941.

1893 ineffabilibus The word has a religious connotation. For a similar reproach of an irreverent way of speaking leveled at Lefèvre, see l. 1343 (... quam impie colligas ...). Cf. appendix IV, l. 134, where Lefèvre accuses Erasmus of impetas and for Erasmus' reaction on it, see l. 234 and n.

1895 βαττολογίαν βαττολογία, “repetitive talk”. Adag. 1092 (Battologia, βαττολογία Graecis multiloquium vocatur, a Batto quopiam inepto poeta qui hymnos quosdam conscripsit prolixos in quibus eadem crebrius iterabantur), LB II, 444 B–C. Cf. Erasmus, Lingua, ASD IV, lA, ed. J.H. Waszink, p. 39, n. l. 411: “Dans Annot. in Mt. 6, 7 (LB VI, 35 E) Erasme traite de la ‘battologia’, se référant au poète Battus ‘qui conscripsit hymnos, in quibus eadern subinde inculcauit’. Puis il cite Ov. Met. II, 702–703.” 1895–1896 ais ... omnia Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's words in appendix IV, ll. 391–394. For Erasmus' reaction on this, see also the present apologia, ll. 1343–1350.

1897 mox vt Here begins the main clause: “then Christ was exalted as soon as (mox vt) the Word was made flesh.”

1899–1900 Iesum ... coronatum Cf. Hebr. 2, 9.

1900 propter ... nomen Cf. Phil. 2, 9.

1902 apprehendit ... Christus See appendix IV, l. 397–399.

1904–1905 sed ... apprehendit See appendix IV, l. 399.

1906–1910 Augustinus ... visitationem Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1040–1049 and Aug. Enarr. in Ps. 8, ad 8, 10, CCSL 38, edd. D.E. Dekkers and I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, pp. 53–54. For the term visitare and its explanation, see ibid. p. 53, l. 23 and p. 54, l. 41.

1911 quod coactus facio For Erasmus' disinclination to write this apologia, see ll. 72–73, 75–77 and nn., and ll. 1330–1332.

1912–1913 ἐπὶ τὰ Μανδραβούλου Adag. 158 (Mandrabuli more res succedit ... hoc est, indies in peius labitur), ASD II, 1, p. 272. Leutsch-Schneidewin I, p. 77; II, p. 114. See also Ep. 785, l. 10: “valetudo indies ἐπὶ τὰ Μανδραβούλου προχωροῦσα.”

1913 excipit “follows after”, “succeeds”.

1914 coronidem “the conclusion”, “the end”.

1915–1918 et ... inveniantur See appendix III, ll. 56–59, quoted by Lefèvre in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 523–526.

quandoquidem in hanc vnam omnium nihil commentatus est Ambrosius et Hieronymus ait a nonnullis non fuisse receptam ob id, quod in ea nonnulla recitarentur quae apud Hebraeos non inueniantur. Hic vero trifariam me criminari. Primum stulticiae, qui haec adiecerim quum ad rem institutam nihil attinerent; deinde vanitatis, qui dixerim sero receptam quae semper fuerit recepta; tertio inscitiae imo, vt tu loqueris, insaniae et tantae insaniae vt totis Anticyris egeat, quod irata dialectica ridicule collegerim ideo sero fuisse receptam a Romanis, quod in hanc vnam nihil sit commentatus Ambrosius.

Verum vt ad singula paucis respondeam: si haec coronis ad id quod agebatur nihil pertinebat, cur tu meam stulticiam imitari voluisti, qui excutias quae ad tuam causam nihil attineant? Propositum erat tuam tueri sententiam, id iam absolueras, quorsum attinebat longius euehi? Nisi forte erat animus meas annotationes omnes excutere. Finge me subito mihi excidisse et superiorum omnium oblitem atque, vt Graecis est in proverbio, ab asino delapsum repente in alio, quod aiunt, fuisse mundo, quid istud ad tuam causam attinebat? Posteaquam euiceras quod volebas, erat tuae ciuitatis hanc amiculi tui delirationem dissimulare ac tegere, non saeuis verbis exagitare ac voluminibus vulgatis traducere.

Nullus est ferme mortalium, cui id aliquando non accidat. Nec deerant causae, quibus hoc ciuitatis datum oportuit, etiam si nostra non postulasset amicitia. Vnus geminum negocium sustinebam, Hieronymi castigationem et Noui Testamenti, vtrumque difficultimum. Res compluribus praelis accelerabatur et valetudinem meam non ignoras. Mirabantur illi me tantum potuisse scribere quantum vel legisse laboriosum fuisset. Mirabar ego vicissim illos e schedis notatis verius quam descriptis posse quicquam excudere. Et vides me in ipso statim opere pollicitum tumultuariae aeditionis recognitionem. Haec certe iudicem aequiorem promerebantur, praesertim te tam amicum, si quid alicubi delirassem.

Sed tamen ne me credas omnino delirasse quum illa subiicerem, existimabam nonnihil ad rem pertinere. Etenim proposita difficultate, quae vtrinque vrgebat, tentabam exitum, si qua liceret inuenire, ac videbar aliquam ostendisse rimam, si demonstrassem βραχύ τι ad temporis modum pertinere.

Quod si cui ista non satisfacerent ne quid intentatum relinquerem, et illud admonere volui, diu de huius epistolae autore fuisse dubitatum, praesertim apud Latinos. Quod si esset dubitatum et merito dubitatum, certe leuius torqueret nos eius autoritas et liberius esset ad eius interpretationem respondere, nec adeo necesse foret vniuersam culpam in miserum interpretem reiicere. Verum hic, scio, ita videbor stulticiae crimen deprecatus vt impietatis incurram, quasi studeam eleuare pondus epistolae cuius autoritas orthodoxis omnibus sacrosancta est. Bona verba, doctissime Faber. Imo magno emptum cupiam vt ecclesia Christi eiusmodi complures haberet epistolas, quocunque autore ad nos profecta est.

Quod si mihi penitus constaret quid ecclesia de ea censeret, promptissime accederem eius iudicio. Atque adeo nunc, si parum est certum mihi quo animo hanc epistolam receperit ecclesia, tamen illud certissimum est, quicquid illa

1920

1925

1930

1935

1940

1945

LB 54

1950

1955

1960 decreuit me toto pectore sequi velle et si quid etiam secus videretur, semper animi mei sensum illius iudicio submittere, modo ne protinus ecclesiae calculum interpreteris quicquid cuius theologo aut fortasse non theologo visum fuerit. Si vere iudicauit hanc esse Pauli atque ita nos iubet credere, credo et clamo esse Pauli. Sin recepit ut dignam quae legatur a christianis, cuiuscunque autoris sit,

- 1920 fuerit A-C E BAS: fuit D.
 1922 receptam A C-BAS: recepta B.
 1929 atque B-BAS: et A.
 1931 euiceras Ac B-BAS: vicas A.
 1933 aliquando non BAS: non aliquando A-E.

- 1941 tam A C-BAS: iam B.
 1943 subiicerem A-D BAS: subiicere E.
 1944 Etenim B-BAS: Etenim cum A.
 1949 leuius A-C E BAS: leuis D.

- 1918 trifarium The three corresponding sections of Erasmus' apologia begin on ll. 1924, 1947 and 2106 respectively.
 1918–1919 Primum ... attinerent I.e., in appendix IV, ll. 526–532. Erasmus in his turn accused Lefèvre of the same, see Ep. 607 from Erasmus to Cuthbert Tunstall, Louvain, 17 July 1517, ll. 6–8: "... non sat habet suam interpretationem tueri, sed nostram quoque subodiose insectatur, arrodens etiam quedam quae ad illius rem nihil attineant."
 1920 deinde ... recepta See appendix IV, ll. 533–538.
 1920–1923 tertio ... Ambrosius Ibid., ll. 538–547.
 1921 vt ... egeat "that it will need the whole of Anticyra to be cured"; Anticyra was an island that produced a herb used as a medicine against insanity, cf. ll. 2106–2112 and l. 1507.
 1922–1923 quod ... Ambrosius See the present apologia, ll. 1915–1916.
 1928 mihi excidisse "I lost control of myself". Lewis-Short, s.v. "excido", II, B, b.
 1928 superiorum omnium "all that precedes, all the above".
 1929 ab asino delapsum Adag. 630, LB II, 273
E. In Greek: ἀπὸ ὄνου καταπεσόντος, Leutsch-Schneidewin I, p. 47; II, p. 299.
 1929–1930 in ... mundo Adag. 197, ASD II, 1, p. 300: "de ... quibus omnia noua videntur".
 1931–1932 erat ... traducere Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 144–146: "Etiam si vere lapsus essem, erat hoc purae amicitiae tegere probrum amici et priuatis literis admonere."
 1931 amiculi Cf. above, n. l. 1844 and ll. 36–37 and nn.
 1932 saeuis verbis exigitare Erasmus is hinting at Lefèvre's vehement language in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 132–136; cf. this apologia, l. 234 and n.

- 1932 voluminibus vulgatis For Erasmus' anger about the publication and wide circulation of Lefèvre's insulting disputatio before he was informed about Lefèvre's criticisms, cf. ll. 152–153 and n.
 1935–1936 Vnus ... Testamenti Both Erasmus' Nov. Instr. and his first edition of Jerome's Opera Omnia were published in 1516; cf. Allen, introd. Ep. 326, introd. Ep. 396, introd. Ep. 373 and introd. Ep. 384.
 1935 Hieronymi castigationem Erasmus' edition of the works of Jerome.
 1936–1940 Res ... recognitionem This is an account of the printing of the Nov. Instr. in 1515–1516. Similar accounts of the same enterprise occur elsewhere in Erasmus' apologetics and correspondence, usually meant as an excuse for the shortcomings of the Nov. Instr. as "praecipitatum verius quam aeditum", see H.J. de Jonge, ASD IX, 2, p. 61, n. l. 24, cf. p. 173, n. l. 144; see also p. 92, ll. 647–649; p. 138, l. 573 and p. 199, n. l. 599.
 1936 praelis "presses".
 1937 illi The printers.
 1938 schedis "leaves", "sheets of paper".
 1939 excudere "to print".
 1939–1940 in ... opere In the introduction to the Annotationes on Mark, in the Nov. Instr. of 1516.
 1943–1944 existimabam ... pertinere In contrast to what Lefèvre said in reply to Erasmus' words to the same effect; see appendix III, ll. 56–59. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1918–1923.
 1944–1945 proposita ... vrgebat Cf. ll. 562–567.
 1946 rimam Cf. Adag. 2175 (Reperire rimam), LB II, 764 C–D. Otto 1542.
 1947 Quod si See n. l. 1918.
 1952 stulticiae crimen See ll. 1918–1919 and n.
 1952 impietatis incurram Lefèvre indeed accused Erasmus of impietas, see appendix IV, l. 134.

rem amplector, de autore nihil dispuo. Si vult huius autoritatem parem esse cum 1965 caeteris Pauli epistolis, nihil refragor, sequor lubens quocunque me vocarit ecclesiastica autoritas.

At impium est, inquis, de his dubitare quum iam vbique receptissima sit Pauli nomine. Si impium est conuellere, quod publicus ecclesiae comprobauit vsus, quid receptius, quid decantatus ea lectione quam tu vt falsam ac mendosam et Christo indignam insectaris, minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Tibi licebit 1970 errorem vocare quod tam multis seculis ecclesia legit et sequitur, quod omnium pene orthodoxorum autoritas magno consensu approbat et mihi non licebit ciuiliter addubitare quo animo ecclesia hanc epistolam receperit, praesertim cum eam serius ac contantius receperit? Obiicis mihi synodi autoritatem, profer syn-1975 odum quae nominatim hanc pronunciarit esse Pauli. Quod si feceris, tuo telo te repetam et locum hunc tibi vicissim impingam synodi autoritate comprobatum, quem tu non veritus es vt impium et Christo indignum incessere. Nihil est enim quod ad Hebraeos configlias vt donemus Hebraice scriptam. Certe nullus ausus est dicere se hanc Hebraice scriptam vidisse, quae Lucae tempore iam inter-1980 ciderat, vt complures autumant.

Quaecunque synodus hanc approbauit, eadem hanc approbauit lectionem quam tu falsam et impiam esse contendis. Nisi forte dicturus es synodo fuisse codicem emendatum in quo scriptum fuerit paulo minus a Deo ac postea subito libros omnes Graecos et Latinos fuisse deprauatos. Quod si tu possis ita perficere 1985 faciem vt haec dicas, haud tamen scio an quisquam tam stultus futurus sit vt credat. Ego de autore duntaxat aio dubitatum. Fieri potest vt paulina non sit et tamen paulinis etiam melior. Et addo contantius receptam a Romanis. Verum hoc tu fortiter reiicis et negas fuisse dubitatum.

Aequum est, mi Faber, mihi dari veniam hac in re diui Hieronymi ac diui 1990 Augustini autoritatem sequenti. Certe apud Hieronymum crebra huius rei men-tio, qui sic aliquoties adducit ex hac testimonia vt pene liberum faciat aduersus quem agit, seu velit recipere seu nolit.

Sed ad manum est interim vnum atque alter locus qui satis sit ad absoluendum 1995 me mendacii criminem. Is enim edisserens Hieremiae caput trigesimum primum, hoc, inquit, testimonio Paulus apostolus, siue quis alius scripsit epistolam, vsus est ad Hebraeos. Et tamen hic agit Hieronymus cum orthodoxis. Si constabat esse Pauli, ridicule adiecit siue quis alius scripsit epistolam. Idem in epistola ad Dardanum: illud, inquit, nostris dicendum est, hanc epistolam quae inscribitur ad
 Hebraeos non solum ab ecclesiis orientis, sed ab omnibus retro Graeci sermonis scrip- 2000 toribus quasi Pauli apostoli suscipi, licet plerique eam vel Barnabae vel Clementis arbitrentur, et nihil interesse cuius sit, cum ecclesiastici viri sit et quotidie ecclesiarum LB 55 lectione celebretur. Quod si eam Latinorum consuetudo non recipit inter scripturas canonicas, nec Graecorum quidem ecclesiae Apocalypsim Ioannis, eadem libertate suscipiunt. Et tamen nos utramque suscipimus nequaquam huius temporis consue-2005 tudinem, sed veterum scriptorum autoritatem sequentes, qui plerunque utriusque abutuntur testimoniis, non ut interdum de apocryphis facere solent, quippe qui et gentilium literarum non raro vtantur exemplis, sed quasi canonicis et ecclesiasticis.

Hactenus Hieronymi verba recensuimus. Nemo nescit quam violentus sit Hieronymus quum pugnat. Hic quum omnibus modis agat vt huic epistolae plurimum sit autoritatis, tamen fatetur suo seculo non fuisse receptam a Latinis inter canonicas, vt iam non solum de autore epistolae, verum de doctrina dubitarint.

2010 Quod si nullus de ea dubitauit praeter Ebionitas, Marcionitas et horum simili-2015 les haereticos, vt ais, consequitur Latinos ferme omnes haereticos fuisse et qui-dem pessimos.

Porro quod Hieronymus scribit se vtramque suspicere, quasi nec Latinus sit nec Graecus, non de synodi autoritate sed de scriptorum ordine loquitur, quibus hic mos est, vt quicquid liceat arripere ad suum trahant

- 1965 lubens A-C E BAS: libens D.
1972 mihi B-BAS: nihil A; licebit Ac B-BAS: libebit A.
1980 vt complures autumant BAS: deest in A-E.
1989 ac A B E BAS: aut C D.
1993 atque alter E BAS: deest in A-D.
1996 agit A C-BAS: ait B.
1997 epistolam A-D BAS: epistolam. Rursus

- Augustinus libro De ciuitate Dei sedecimo, capite vigesimo secundo E.
1997–2031 Idem ... notatus D-BAS: deest in
A-C.
2014 vt ais BAS: deest in D E.
2017 non de synodi autoritate, sed BAS: deest
in D E.

- 1967–1968 impium ... nomine Cf. appendix IV,
ll. 523–572.
1969 falsam ac mendosam Cf. appendix I, l. 93.
1970 Christo indignam See appendix IV, l. 134.
Lefevre thought it unworthy of Christ to say that Christ non paululum fuit imminutus
a Deo, imo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, as Erasmus said; see appendix III, ll. 23– 24.
1974 contantius I.e., cunctantius, cf. n. l. 1987.
1980 complures It is unclear to whom Erasmus is referring here. Possibly, the supposition of the complures is nothing but Erasmus' own conclusion drawn from the common argumen- tum to Hebr.; see ll. 2043–2049, esp.
2047–2049.
1984–1985 perfricare faciem “to rub one's face in order to make one's blushes disappear”, hence “to lay aside all sense of shame”, cf.
Quint. II, 3, 160. Adag. 747, LB II, 316 A–E.
Otto 631.
1986 Ego ... dubitatum I.e., in appendix III, ll.
56–59, see also n. ll. 58–59.
1987 Et ... Romanis Appendix III, ll. 56–57.
contantius I.e., “cunctantius”, “with delay”, cf.
n. l. 1974, and l. 2046.
1988 negas fuisse dubitatum I.e., in appendix IV, ll. 533–538. Cf. the present apologia, l. 1920.
1989 diui Hieronymi Jerome repeatedly records the existing doubts as to the canonical authority

- of Hebr. In Epist. ad Dard. 129, 3 he declares:
“The custom of the Latins does not accept it as being one of the canonical Scriptures of St. Paul”. “Very many rejected the Epistle to the Hebrews” (Epist. ad Paul. 53 (103), 8;
cf. De viris illustribus 5; Epist. ad Euang. 73
(126), 4; Comm. in Mt. 26, 8, 9; in Is. 6, 2;
8, 16–17). See further this apologia, ll. 1993–
2025 and nn.
1989–1990 diui Augustini Augustine leaves the question of the canonicity of Hebr.
uncertain in Inchoat. Expos. Epist. ad Rom., II. For Augustine's uncertainty about the authenticity of Hebr., see further the present apologia, ll. 2032–2034 and ll. 2036– 2040.
1995–1996 hoc ... Hebraeos Hier. Comm. in Hieremiam, ad 31, 31–34, CCSL 74, ed. S.
Reiter, Turnhout, 1960, p. 319.
1998–2007 illud ... ecclesiasticis Hier. Epist. 129, §3, CSEL 56, ed. I. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 1918, p. 169, ll. 7–19. Cf. this apologia, n. l. 1989.
1999 retro After retro Erasmus omits “ecclesiae”.
2007 non Hilberg's edition does not include this word.
2011–2012 de doctrina dubitarint This does not appear from the passage quoted.
2013–2014 nullus ... haereticos See appendix IV,
ll. 558–564 and n. l. 561.

negocium, quandoquidem in argumentorum agmine valent et apocryphorum et 2020 ethnicorum testimonia. Rursum cum ait: quasi canonicas, satis fatetur illas non vere canonicas fuisse.

Idem exponens Matthaei caput 26 ita scribit: nam et Paulus in epistola quae inscribitur ad Hebraeos, licet de ea multi Latinorum dubitant. Non dixit multi 2025 haereticorum, sed multi Latinorum. Item enarrans Esiae caput 50: dicitur, inquit, et in epistola quae fertur ad Hebraeos.

Origenes homilia in Matthaeum 26 sic adducit huius epistolae testimonium vt non ausit tamen ab aduersario flagitare vt Pauli videatur, ac propemodum remittit 2030 vt sit eo loco quo liber apocryphus qui inscribitur Secreta Esiae. Quod si tibi Origenes est haereticus, certe non hac parte notatus est ab Hieronymo quod libros canonicos reiecerit. At ecclesia comprobat Origenem in iis in quibus ab Hieronymo non est notatus.

Rursum Augustinus libro De ciuitate Dei 16, capite 22 citaturus hanc epistolam, praefatur in hunc modum: de quo in epistola quae inscribitur ad Hebraeos, quam plures apostoli Pauli esse dicunt, quidam vero negant et caetera.
 2035 Non dixit: orthodoxi dicunt esse apostoli Pauli, haeretici negant, sed: plures dicunt, quidam negant, numerum distinguens, non fidem. Atque idem Augustinus, quum alias Pauli testimonia solitus sit adducere cum honorifica eius nominis praefatione, ex hac ferme sic allegat: scriptum est in epistola ad Hebraeos, sic intellectum est in epistola ad Hebraeos. Et: de illo etiam in epistola legitur quae inscribitur ad Hebraeos, vt appareat nec Augustino de autore satis constitisse.

Tibi constat ab Apostolo scriptam, constat Hebraice scriptam, de solo inter-pretre non constat quod in hunc visum est omnem conferre culpam et istud impune fore putares. Atqui quisquis is fuit qui in hanc addidit argumentum, 2045 hanc, inquit, epistolam fertur Apostolus ad Hebraeos conscriptam Hebraica lingua misisse, cuius sensum et ordinem retinens Lucas Graeco sermone composuit. En quam hic contanter loquitur, quam suspenso incedit gradu. Cur e duobus quae pariter hic refert, alterum tibi constat, alterum reiicitur? Atque illud obiter adiiciam, si 2050 epistola Hebraice scripta extabat, quorsum addit cuius sensum et ordinem retinens Lucas. Si iam intercidérat Hebraica, mirum est tantam tantis de rebus epistolam tam cito intercidisse, quum Hierosolymis esset frequens ecclesia.

Vides omnino fuisse qui de huius autore dubitarint, nec admodum constitisse fuisse Hebraice scriptam. Nec mirum te nihil addubitat, hominem adeo credulum, 2055 vt insulsissimam rabulae cuiuspiam epistolam qua iubet versiculos gloria Patri et caetera accini singulis psalmis, plane credas esse diui Hieronymi tantum quod titulum habeat Hieronymi, qui Pauli ad Senecam inscriptas epistolas vere credas esse Pauli, qui frigide confictum ad Laodicenses epistolium adiunixeris reliquis illius epistolis ceu γνήσιον ac germanum. Caeterum parum tutum est his LB 56 credere qui tam | facile credunt. Malim ego iudicio ac delectu credere quam omnia credere. Atqui diuus, inquis, Hieronymus hanc citat Pauli titulo et alicubi 2060 contendit esse Pauli. Citat nomine Pauli quod a plerisque legebatur hoc titulo, nec erat vbiuis de autore digladiandum. Contendit alicubi esse Pauli, sed non hac in re tantum vafer et a seipso dissentiens Hieronymus, quem facile crediderim huic fauisse epistolae vt eruditae pariter ac piae et, vt non omnino abhorruit a

- 2020 canonicas E BAS: canonicas D.
 2032 Rursum BAS: Rursus A-D, deest in E; Augustinus ... 22 A-D BAS: deest in E.
 2038 ex hac Ac B-BAS: ex hoc A.
- 2053 iubet D-BAS: testatur A-C.
 2056 confictum Ac C E BAS: confectum A B D.
 2058 ac delectu B-BAS: deest in A.
- 2022–2023 nam ... dubitent Hier. Comm. in Mt., ad 26, 8–9, CCSL 77, edd. D. Hurst and M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1969, p. 247, ll. 1025–1027.
 2022 Paulus After Paulus Erasmus omits “apostolus”.
 2023 inscribitur The edition of Hurst-Adriaen reads “scribitur”.
 2023 de ea multi The edition of Hurst-Adriaen reads “multi de ea”.
 2024–2025 dicitur ... Hebraeos Hier. Comm. in Is., ad 50, II, CCSL 73A, ed. M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1963, p. 557, l. 15.
 2026–2028 Origenes ... Esiae Orig. Comm. in Mt., ad 23, 37–39, GCS, Origenes II, edd. E. Klostermann, E. Benz and U. Treu, Berlin, 1976, p. 50, ll. 26–28.
 2027 aduersario See ibid., p. 24, ll. 6–7: a possible opponent.
 2028 Secreta Esiae In reality, Origen is not referring to a specific book entitled Secreta Esiae, but to unspecified apocryphal books on Isaiah in general, which, according to Origen, might contain an account of Isaiah’s martyrdom as referred to in Hebr. II, 37. Such an account occurs indeed in the Ascension of Isaiah (2nd cent. A.D.), on which see ODCC, s.v. ‘Isaiah, Ascension of’, and H.D.F. Sparks, The Apocryphal Old Testament, Oxford, 1984, pp. 775–812.
 2032–2034 Augustinus ... negant Aug. Civ. XVI, c. 22, ll. 10–11, CCSL 48, edd. B. Dombart and A. Kalb, Turnhout, 1955, p. 524.
 2034 apostoli Pauli The edition of Dombart-Kalb reads Pauli apostoli.
 2038 scriptum ... Hebraeos Aug. Civ. XVI, c. 28, ll. 17–18, CCSL 48, edd. B. Dombart and A. Kalb, Turnhout, 1955, p. 533.
 2038–2039 sic ... Hebraeos Aug. Civ. XVI, c. 32, ll. 28–29, CCSL 48, edd. B. Dombart and A. Kalb, Turnhout, 1955, p. 536.
 2039 intellexum est After intellexum est Erasmus omits “et”.
 2039–2040 de ... Hebraeos Aug. Civ. XVI, 22, l. 10, CCSL 48, edd. B. Dombart and A. Kalb, Turnhout 1955, p. 524.
- 2039 illo I.e., Melchizedek.
 2042–2043 est ... putares The inconsistency in the use of tenses is remarkable.
 2044–2045 hanc ... composit For the source of this quotation, see the present apologia, ll. 1624–1625 and n. l. 1625.
 2046 contanter I.e., “cunctanter”. Cf. n. ll. 1974 and 1987.
 2046 suspenso ... gradu “he steps on tiptoe”, i.e., “most cautiously”. For the expression, see Ter. Phorm. 867; Ov. Fast. I, 246; in figurative speech, Sen. Dial. 7.25.7.
 2053–2054 vt ... Hieronymi Cf. J. Lefèvre d’Étaples, Quincuplex Psalterium, Facsimile de l’édition de 1513, Geneva, 1979, fo aiii “Prologus beati Hieronymi in Psalterium Romanum” and see S. Berger, Les préfaces jointes aux livres de la Bible dans les manuscrits de la Vulgate, Paris, 1902, p. 42, n. 81.
 2053 rabulae “a brawling, wrangling advocate”.
 2055–2056 qui ... Pauli Lefèvre even edited the correspondence of Paul and Seneca, see the table of contents in: Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli Epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512.
 2056–2057 qui ... germanum Lefèvre included the pseudo-Pauline epistle to the Laodiceans in his S. Pauli Epistolae XIV of 1512.
 2059 Atqui ... titulo See appendix IV, ll. 535–537.
hanc The epistle to the Hebrews.
 2060 Citat nomine Pauli Hier. Adv. Iov. I, Migne PL 23, 247 A7–8: “de quo Paulus apostolus in epistola ad Hebraeos plenissime docet”; Id., Comm. in Math. III, ad 21, 35, ll. 1575–1578, CCSL 77, edd. D. Hurst and M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1969, p. 197: “Legamus epistulam Pauli ad Hebraeos”. Also Comm. in Is. V, 24; VII, 14.
 2061 Contendit ... Pauli Erasmus is referring to Hier. Epist. 129, 3 ad Dardanum, CSEL 56, 3, ed. Is. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 1918, p. 169, ll. 14–15: “Tamen nos utramque suscipimus ...”; see the present apologia, l. 2004. In his Comm. in Gal. ad 1, 1, Migne PL 26, 336 B 3–13, Jerome takes Paul’s authorship of Hebr. simply for granted.

Platonis et Origenis sententia vulgus aliquando fallendum esse modo suo fallatur bono, ita voluisse credi Pauli quo maiori cum fructu legeretur. Caeterum quid apud se senserit incertum, imo si quis illius omnia legat attentius, non vsque adeo incertum. Origenes Ecclesiasticae historiae libro 6 non negat a multis assertum eam epistolam non esse Pauli, licet ipse dissentiat. Porro sermonis politiem alii putarunt additam a Clemente apostolorum discipulo et Romanae vrbis episcopo, alii rursus a Luca euangelista. Hieronymus in Catalogo scriptorum diligenter admonet multum esse congruentiae Clementis epistolae quam scripsit ad Corinthios et ei quae sub nomine Pauli fertur ad Hebraeos. In Caio vero haec scribit: epistolas, inquit, Pauli tredecim enumerans, decimam quartam, quae fertur ad Hebraeos dicit non eius esse. Huic Caii sententiae propemodum subscribens Hieronymus addit: sed et apud Romanos usque hodie quasi Pauli apostoli non habetur. Hactenus Hieronymus.

Ego sane de autore nihil interim pronuncio, mihi sat habeo, si non mentior olim de autore fuisse dubitatum et dubitatum a nonnullis orthodoxis, quosdam etiam negasse esse scriptam a Paulo quod modo tot autorum inter quos Augustinus ac Hieronymus testimonio docuimus, quum tu asseueres hoc nullos fecisse fidèles sed tantum Ebionitas, Marcionitas et id genus pessimorum haereticorum. Sic enim loqueris quasi parum esset haereticos dici nisi addidisses pessimos, vt ne quid interim cauiller de sermonis vicio quo quum volueris diuersum haereticorum genus intelligi, idem genus expressisti quum ais: id genus pessimorum haereticorum pro ‘id genus haereticos’, etiam si iam parum concinne cohaeret ‘pessimos’.

Eandem veniam merebar quum aio sero receptam a Latinis, et hac in re Hieronymum autorem sequutus qui, quod non nescis, alicubi scribit epistolam ad Hebraeos non recipi a Latinis nec Apocalypsim a Graecis. Quod si aetate Hieronymi non recipiebatur a Romanis, sero recepta est, vt pote post annos ferme quingentos. Tu fortiter asseueras ab orthodoxis semper receptam, a solis haereticis refutatam. Istuc facile auferes, si modo Hieronymus illic Latinorum nomine sentit haereticos tantum. Nec tamen protinus refutat qui non recipit, nam non recipit etiam is qui nondum pronunciat. Haeretici reiiciunt hanc epistolam ceu parum piám et fateor partim horum argumenta esse quae recitat Hieronymus, nam et hoc addis, quorum sententiae absit vt quisquam subscriptat christianus, etiam si fieri potuit vt ob locos aliquot prima sermonis specie suspectos, quasi quibusdam haereticis fauere videantur, etiam orthodoxis nonnullis aliquandiu suspecta fuerit.

Quod si tibi constat esse Pauli, si constat a sacra synodo comprobata, cur audes vel iota conuellere idque tum primus, tum solus mortalium? Interpretem, inquis, accuso, non autorem. Quasi vero synodus aliam viderit interpretationem quam hanc qua vtitur ecclesia. Quod si sic legit synodus et epistolam approbavit, mirum ni et hanc approbavit lectionem quam tu vt mendosam et impiam iubes eradi.

Porro crimen inscitiae, quod mihi extremo loco impingis, adeo leuiter commouit vt iuuerit etiam ac voluptati risuique fuerit. Variis salibus eludis hanc meam argumentationem. Ambrosius nihil in hanc epistolam commentatus est, igitur aut non est recepta aut sero recepta a Romana ecclesia. Sane, inquis, eodem iure dicam epistolam Iacobi, duas Petri et reliquas sero ab ecclesia Romana fuisse receptoras, 2110 2067–2076 Origenes ... Hieronymus BAS: deest in A–E.

2079–2080 tot ... Hieronymus BAS: Augustini A–E.

2087 Latinis D–BAS: Romanis A–C.

2089 Latinis D–BAS: Romanis A–C.

2092 Latinorum D–BAS: Romanorum A–C.

2064–2065 Platonis ... bono See, e.g., Plato, Rep. III 389 b-c and Orig. Contra Cels. IV, 9; I, 42, 13; III, 53; IV, 71. For Erasmus' view that it is sometimes better not to tell the truth, see Ep. 1119, Erasmus to Spalatinus, Louvain, 6 July 1520, l. 40 “Nec semper est proferenda veritas”; Ep. 1167, Erasmus to L. Campeggio, Louvain, 6 December 1520, ll. 164–173: “Siquidem, vt veritati nunquam phas est aduersari, ita celare nonnunquam expedit in loco ... Plato perspexisse videtur, multitudinem promiscuam et imperitam non posse contineri in officio nisi nonnunquam fuco doloque bono fallatur”. Cf. Ep. 1225, Erasmus to Barbirius, Bruges, 13 August, 1521, ll. 166–167: “Et mihi sane adeo est inuisa discordia vt etiam dispiceat veritas seditiosa,” and especially Spongia, ASD IX, 1, pp. 184–186, ll. 500–549.

2064–2065 suo ... bono “for their own advantage”.

2067 Ecclesiasticae ... 6 Eus. H.E. VI, 25, GCS, Eusebius II, 2, ed. E. Schwartz, Leipzig, 1908, p. 550, ll. 1–15. Here, Eusebius quotes Origen's comment on the Pauline authorship of Hebr.; see next n.

2068–2070 Porro ... euangelista Cf. W.G. Kümmel, Einleitung in das Neue Testament, 1978⁹, p. 346: “Origenes (bei Eusebius, KG VII, 25, II ff) hielt ihn für paulinisch, freilich nur mittelbar: ein Schüler (die Tradition nennt Clemens Romanus und Lukas) habe die Gedanken des Apostols auf seine Art erklärend niedergeschrieben ...”

2068 sermonis politiem “the refinement of the language”.

2068–2070 alii ... alii Their views are mentioned by Origen in Eus. H.E. VI, 25.

2070–2072 Hieronymus ... Hebraeos Hier. De vir. ill. 15, ll. 7–13, Sammlung ausgewählter kirchen- und dogmengeschichtlicher Quellenschriften, II, ed. C. A. Bernoulli, Freiburg im Breisgau and Leipzig, 1895, p. 17.

2072–2076 In ... habetur Ibid. 59, ll. 5–8, pp. 35–36. Bernoulli's edition reads: “... epistulas quoque Pauli tredecim tantum enumerans quartam decimam, quae fertur ad Hebreos, dicit non eius esse; sed apud Romanos vsque hodie quasi Pauli apostoli non habetur.”

2074 dicit I.e., Caius.

2080–2082 hoc ... haereticorum See appendix IV, ll. 558–564 and n. l. 561.

2088–2089 Hieronymum ... Graecis Cf. the present apologia, ll. 2002–2004.

2091 quingentos This number betrays the vagueness of Erasmus' chronology of the life of Jerome (ca. 350–420).

2091–2092 Tu ... refutatam See appendix IV, ll. 558–564.

2094–2096 Haeretici ... Hieronymus Jerome doubted both the identity of the author of Hebrews and the orthodoxy of the doctrine contained therein. For Jerome's arguments, see the present apologia, ll. 2011–2012.

2096 hoc addis See appendix IV, ll. 558–564.

2101 primus ... mortalium Although, in the Comm. in Ps., Jerome had already translated a Deo, Erasmus thinks he can say that Lefèvre was the only one to read a Deo because the authorship of the Comm. in Ps. is doubtful. Moreover, in the Comm. in Gal., which is undoubtedly by Jerome, Hebr. 2, 7 is quoted and read as “ab angelis”. For Erasmus' argument, see the present apologia, l. 824 and n.

2101–2102 Interpretem ... autorem Lefèvre indeed condemns the translator of Hebr. and maintains that by reading a Deo in Hebr. 2, 7, he does justice to Paul's intention; see appendix IV, ll. 10–12.

2106 Porro See n. l. 1918.

crimen ... impingis Lefèvre accuses Erasmus of ignorance in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 538–547, see the present apologia, ll. 2106–2112, and ll. 1920–1923.

2108–2112 Ambrosius ... Anticyra Apart from some slight alterations, these lines are a quotation from Lefèvre's disputatio; see appendix IV, ll. 542–547 For Anticyra, cf. n. l. 1921 and l. 1922.

quandoquidem Ambrosius nihil in eas est commentatus. Quam rem si hac ratione pertinaciter defendere voluero, | explodar, irridebor, tota dignus videbor Anticyra.

Excute omnes meas annotationes in quibus abs te dissentio et optimo iure dissentio et vide num vsquam eiusmodi salibus ludam in te. Vno tantum in loco vbi lapsus erat manifestarius ac plane pudendus, nisi tam esset omnium hominum commune labi, nihil aliud asscribo quam demiror ei viro tam profundum obrepisse somnum. Non aliud comperies vsquam dictum in te asperius. Atqui qui potui humanius quam manifestissimum lapsum somnum obrepentem appellare, nec omitto tamen interim honoris praefationem quo mitigem admonitionem addens ei viro.

Evidem non iacto dialecticam, etiam si puer eam vtcunque didici. Quod si nec Aristoteles mihi lectus fuisset nec Boethius, quorum vtrumque, ne quid aliud dicam, certe legi, tamen vel Ciceronis nostri Topica vel Quintiliani Institutiones me tantum docere poterant non consequi necessario: Ambrosius non est in eam commentatus, ergo Romana ecclesia non recepit. Neque enim tam stupide colligo quam tu proponis, declarans vere dictum a Terentio: nihil tam esse rectum quin male narrando possit deprauari. Sic enim a me scriptum est: et de autore eius adeo fuit dubitatum vt sero recepta sit a Romana ecclesia, quandoquidem in hanc unam omnium nihil commentatus est Ambrosius. Neque enim non esse receptam colligo ex eo quod Ambrosius in eam non scripsit, vt tu putas, sed conjecturam adglutino conjectuae iuxta prouerbium linum lino connectens quo firmior esset συναθροισμός.

Etenim vbi res a conjecturis pendet et desunt argumenta necessaria, coaceruatis probabilibus argumentis ratiocinari mihi fas est, opinor, praesertim quum nihil asseuerem. Sero fuisse receptam, vt docui, testatur Hieronymus, a Romanis, inquam. Siquidem hic Romanam ecclesiam voco, non catholicam omnium, vt nunc vocamus, sed ipsos Romanos, vt vocat Cyprianus. Item de autore dubitatum fuisse palam est et paulo ante significaram inesse locos aliquot qui nonnullos offendissent. Et ad caeteras conjecturas velut in aceruum adiicio Ambrosium Latinum, cum in omnes caeteras scripserit, in hanc vnam non scripsisse. Nec est simile 'Ambrosius non scripsit in epistolas Petri, ergo sero sunt receptae'. Et quum Ambrosius Latinus in omnes Paulinas epistolas scripserit hac vna praeterita, omnium maxima et disertissima, probabilius est et illum de autore dubitasse, quod ex aliis quoque argumentis colligitur. Verum illud fuerit similius: 'Dionysius nominatim recenset ac numerat ecclesiae sacramenta et vnius matrimonii non meminit, ergo probabile est aut matrimonium id temporis nondum inter sacramenta connumeratum aut Dionysium septimum sacramentum ignorasse' aut si quid his inferre potes probabilius, sit enim hoc exempli gratia propositum. Aut: 'si rex omnibus officiis suis donaret aliquid vno praeterito, certe εἰχός esset regem huic non perinde vt caeteris fauere'.

Haec argumentatio tametsi non colligit necessario, tamen vbi res a conjecturis ducitur, non est, opinor, vsque adeo explodenda vt totam Anticyram postulet, praesertim quum multae simul conjectuae sese vicissim fulciant. Sic enim iocaris in amicum, homo festiuus et meris leporibus ac gratiis concretus. Alioqui quis 2120 addens B-BAS: deest in A.

2113–2114 Excute ... te Erasmus was convinced that he had not criticized Lefèvre as sharply and sarcastically as Lefèvre had criticized him. Erasmus repeatedly emphasizes, on the contrary, that he had treated Lefèvre honourably. Cf. ll. 114–122 and nn. and Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 146–149: “Nec ipse vñquam ab illo dissensurus eram in Nouo Testamento, nisi iudicassem hic nullam illius gloriae labem aspersum iri. Etiam si ipse nec Iesus ac prouocatus amiciciam violauit; nec vñquam, quantum erit in me violaturus sum.”

2116–2117 demiror ... somnum Erasmus, Nov. Instr., at Tit. 1, 3, p. 578. For a more extensive treatment of Lefèvre's blunder at Tit. 1, 3, see the present apologia, ll. 2535–2546 and nn.

2121 Evidem ... dialecticam This is primarily a reaction to Lefèvre's remarks Id certe nullo argumento esse potest, ... Qua enim argumentationis lege efficitur ...?; see appendix IV, ll. 540–542. At the same time, however, Erasmus is mocking Lefèvre's dialectical method of argumentation in his disputatio and his earlier studies in the field of dialectics; cf. ll. 1396–1398.

2121 etiam ... didici This is true; see C. Augustijn, Erasmus, Baarn, 1986, p. 22.

2125–2126 Neque ... proponis See ll. 2108–2112 and nn.

2126–2127 dictum ... deprauari Ter. Phorm. 696–697: “nil est ... quin male narrando possit deprauari”, edd. R. Kauer, W. M. Lindsay and O. Skutsch, Oxford, 1973.

2127–2129 et ... Ambrosius See appendix III, ll. 56–57, quoted by Lefèvre in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 523–525. Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1915–1923 (and nn.), where Erasmus already complains about Lefèvre's criticism of this argument.

2131 linum lino connectens Adag. 759 (Linum lino necits), LB II, 321 B–E.

2132 συνθετοισμός “the combination”, “the cumulative argument”. The word occurs as a technical rhetorical term in Quint. 8, 4, 27, but with an entirely different meaning. Cf. ASD I, 6, p. 53 n. l. 515, p. 220 n. ll. 579–586 and ASD V, 5 pp. 64–65, n. ll. 253–256.

2133–2134 coaceruatis probabilibus argumentis Cf. Cic. Part. Or. II, 40.

2134–2135 praesertim ... asseuerem In the present apologia, Erasmus repeatedly asserts that as a matter of principle he avoids making dogmatic assertions. For this cliché in Erasmus, see ll. 1217–1218 and n.

2135 Sero ... Hieronymus See appendix III, ll. 56–59.

2135–2136 a Romanis, inquam Ibid., l. 56.

2137 Romanos ... Cyprianus Cypr. Epist., 60, 1, CSEL 3, 2, p. 692, 6–7: “Dum apud vos vñus animus et vna vox est, ecclesia omnis Romana confessa est.” Here Ecclesia omnis Romana is the Church of the city of Rome, not the Catholic Church.

2138–2139 paulo ... offendissent See appendix III, ll. 53–55, where Erasmus remarks that Jerome did not believe that Ps. 8, 5–8 applied directly to Christ, in spite of the way in which Hebr. 2, 6–8 applied it to Christ.

2139–2140 adiicio ... scripsisse See appendix III, ll. 56–57.

2140 hanc vnam Erasmus means Hebr.

2145–2146 Dionysius ... meminit In his Ecclesiastical Hierarchy, Pseudo-Dionysius deals with the following sacraments: baptism, eucharist, extreme unction, ordination to priesthood, monastic ordination, and consecrations and prayers for the deceased. Matrimony is not mentioned. See R. Seeberg, Lehrbuch der Dogmengeschichte, II, Leipzig, 1910, pp. 297–298.

2145 Dionysius Erasmus is probably using Dionysius the Areopagite as an example because of Lefèvre's naïve view of him: Lefèvre was convinced that the author of the works ascribed to Dionysius the Areopagite was really the convert of Paul, mentioned in Act. 17, 34. Moreover, Lefèvre worked extensively on Dionysius and held him in high esteem, see e.g., S. Dionysii Areopagitae opera omnia cum Iacobi Fabri scholiis, Paris, 1499. Cf. Hughes, Lefèvre, pp. 6–11 and Rice, Prefatory Epistles, p. xxi (intr.) and pp. 549–550.

2151 colligit “is conclusive”. This use of “colligere” is not in accordance with classical Latin usage.

2152 Anticyram See appendix IV, ll. 546–547. Lefèvre here says that if he defended Erasmus' way of reasoning, he would deserve to be sent to Anticyra, i.e., he would be crazy. Adag. 752 (Nauiget Anticyras), LB II, 318E–319B. Otto 117. Cf. ll. 1471–1472, 1507, 1921, and 2112, with the nn.

2154 amicum See the present apologia, ll. 36–37 and n. Cf. l. 1844 and n., and appendix IV, ll. 28–30.

2154 gratis “pleasantry”.

2155 feret istam collectionem quam recenset praeter rhetores et Boetius: 'qui potuit non amasse si rapuit?' Aut hanc: 'si mater est, diligit filium'. Aut qui ipse tueberis hanc, qua hoc ipso in loco vteris: haec aeditio fuit ante Hieronymum, ergo ante Hieronymum fuit recepta a Romanis. Quasi vero nihil interesset inter aedi et recipi. Aut hanc mox ibidem: vtitur hac Hieronymus aduersus haereticum, ergo recepta fuit a Romanis. Ista ratione sic colligam: 'vtitur testimonio euangeli Nazarenorum aduersus haereticos, ergo fuit ab ecclesia receptum' aut: 'Paulus vtitur Epimenidis et Arati testimonio, ergo recepti sunt horum libri ab ecclesia', 'theologi passim vtuntur Aristotelis libris aduersus haereticos, receptus est igitur ab ecclesia'.

2165 Coniecturae quas aliquot adduxeram satis erant idoneae non vt inde quicquam affirmem, sed vt lecto|rem admoneam esse quod excutiat. Quanquam, vt ingenu fatear, si tum aut monitus fuisse abs te aut ipse per ocium rem proprius atten-
LB 58 tiusque perspexisse, aut omissem hoc loco huius rei mentionem aut aliquanto circumspectius induxissem. Verum huiusmodi lapsus quos aut incuria fudit aut 2170 humana parum cauit natura, alias libenter sarciemus dabimusque sedulo operam ne quam ansam praebeamus calumniosis, quando video te quoque caetera tam candidum et humanum, haec tam odiose exagitare, idque quum ad tuam causam, vt ais, nihil attineant. Et tamen videri vis coactus ad hanc disputationem descendisse, quum totius rei summa in hoc sit quod legendum esse contendis a Deo et non ab angelis. Id quum ego non refellam, quid supererat quod te cogeret 2175 aduersus nos scribere? Deinde si maxime refellissem tuam sententiam, si minus ipse merebar istam ciuitatem, tamen tui ingenii fuerat ab atrocibus dictis temperare vel aliorum gratia, ne quis aut de tuis moribus aut de mea doctrina deterius sentiat. Atque vtinam mihi licisset hoc respondendi labore supersedere 2180 et hanc operam iucundioribus in rebus collocare. Nunc toties vrges dictis adeo saeuis idque in medio voluminis aediti, ne vel casu possit intercidere, vt silentium conscientiae crimen videri possit.

Stomacho vt potui temperauit et vt ingenu libereque meam defendi inno-2185 centiam, ita a contumeliis cohibus calatum perpetuo cohibiturus, si per te licebit. Quod si quid offendit hoc ipsum quod respondeo non mihi debes imputare, sed iis potius qui tui ingenii simplicitate ad hanc fabulam agendam sunt abusi, quo commissis nobis inter nos ipsi nostro dolore suam pascerent voluptatem. Scis verissime dictum ab Aristotele improbitati tantum occasione esse opus, neque nescis quanto plures sint improbi, quam probi, iuxta Graeci sapientis apophthegma. Complures hoc ingenio nati sunt vt vel gratis malis gaudеant alienis atque ita demum sibi melius esse credant si male sit aliis. Nonnullis omnes sunt inuisae literae, plerisque bonae. Neminem fere non offendit nouitas. Hi quo hoc D.

2157 qua hoc Ac B C E BAS: qua hac hoc A, 2183 Stomacho Ac B-BAS: Stomachum A.

2155 collectionem "argumentation".

Boetius Erasmus considered him a great authority in the field of dialectics; see l. 2122.

Erasmus probably takes Boethius as an example because Lefèvre had published studies on, and edited works of, Boethius; see Rice,

- Prefatory Epistles*, pp. 543–545 and Hughes, Lefèvre, p. 4. The examples of false syllogisms given by Erasmus in ll. 2155–2156 do not seem to occur in Boethius' extensive dialectical works included in Migne PL 64.
- 2156–2158 Aut ... Romanis See appendix IV, ll. 533–535.
- 2159–2160 vtitum ... Romanis Lefèvre used this as an argument to prove that Jerome believed in the authenticity of Hebr., see Appendix IV, ll. 535–538.
- 2160–2161 euan gelii Nazarenorum This book was presumably written in the first half of the second century. It was used by Syrian Christians. See W. Schneemelcher, ed., Neutestamentliche Apokryphen in deutscher Übersetzung I, Tübingen, 1990, pp. 128–138.
- 2161–2162 Paulus ... testimonio See the present apologia, ll. 1792–1793 and nn. There, too, Erasmus mentions Paul's use of pagan testimonies. Here Erasmus wants to prove that Jerome's use of Hebr. does not imply that it was previously accepted by the Western Church.
- 2163 theologi ... haereticos Erasmus uses this example for the same purpose, see previous note. He may also be referring to Lefèvre's earlier occupation with Aristotle; see n. l. 151. Lefèvre attributed an important educational role to the study of Aristotle; see Politicorum libri octo, ed. Lefèvre d'Etaples, Paris, 1506, fo 123v–124r, cf. Rice, Prefatory Epistles, pp. 535–541, 548–549, 552–555, 560–561, and Hughes, Lefèvre, pp. 27–28.
- 2165–2166 non ... excutias For this principle of Erasmus, cf. the present apologia, ll. 290–292 and n., ll. 299–300 and n., n. l. 304 and ll. 306–307 and n. and n. ll. 1455–1456.
- 2166–2167 vt ingenue fatear Cf. above, l. 357 and n.
- 2167 per ocium “at leisure”.
- 2173 vt ais I.e., in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 526–531, where Lefèvre notices that the uncertainty of the Pauline authorship of Hebr. has no bearing upon the subject in question, namely, the interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7.
- 2174–2175 totius ... angelis Lefèvre in appendix IV, ll. 528–531, states that the question at issue is whether or not the translator was right in translating the original text of Ps. 8, 6 by ab angelis, that is, whether one should read now ab angelis or a Deo.
- 2178 vel aliorum gratia Erasmus is saying that, in the interest of the whole humanist movement, Lefèvre ought to have tempered his anger, cf. the present apologia, l. 38 and n. But Lefèvre considered his indignation justifiable, because, in his view, Erasmus' interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 affected the dignity of Christ; cf. ll. 45–46 and n. and ll. 82–83 and n. Sec also l. 38: causa ... aliorum.
- 2180 hanc ... collocare In July 1517 Erasmus had undertaken the translation of De linguae Graecae institutione, liber secundus, of Theodorus Gaza. This project was interrupted by the composition of the present apologia against Lefèvre. Cf. Allen, intr. Ep. 771. See also Ep. 616 from Erasmus to Peter Gilles, <c. 1 August 1517>, ll. 11–12: “Dum cum Fabro litigo, dies perdi iam octo.”
- 2180–2182 Nunc ... possit For the reproach that Lefèvre published his attack without warning Erasmus beforehand, cf. the present apologia, ll. 150–164 and nn. and ll. 1931–1932 and nn. For in medio voluminis, cf. l. 1339 mediis commentariis tuis.
- 2181 ne ... intercidere “with the intention that there be no chance of it being lost.” Unlike a manuscript work, a printed book appears in so many copies that its content cannot be lost. The subject of possit is volumen.
- 2183 Stomacho ... temperauit For his intention to spare Lefèvre disrepute, often stressed by Erasmus, cf. the present apologia, ll. 260–262.
- 2186–2188 sed ... voluptatem For the alieno impulsu cliché, see l. 40. See also next n. and ll. 2604–2605 and n. For Erasmus' fear that opponents of the humanist movement could abuse this controversy, cf. the present apologia, l. 38 and n. and ll. 72–75.
- 2186 tui ingenii simplicitate See n. l. 40.
- 2188–2189 Scis ... opus Cf. Ep. 939, from Erasmus to Duke Frederick of Saxony, Antwerp, 14 April 1519, ll. 49–50: “Nam iuxta Graecorum proverbiū, improbis praeter occasionem nihil deest ...”. Adag. 1068 (Occasione duntaxat opus improbitati), LB II, 432 A–D. Cf. Allen, Ep. 939, n. l. 49.
- 2188 Aristotele Aristot. Rhet. I, 12, 23. J.E. Sandys, ed., The Rhetoric of Aristotle, Cambridge 1877, p. 238: ὥσπερ γάρ ή παρομία, προφάσεως δέῖται μόνον ή πονηρία.
- 2189–2190 plures ... apophthegma The Greek sage is Bias of Priene, one of the Seven Sages. According to Diogenes Laertius, he declared: “Most people are morally unsound”, οἱ πλεῖστοι κακοί. Erasmus did not include this saying in his Apophthegmata, although Bias figures there with four dicta.
- 2192 Neminem ... nouitas Cf. Ep. 407 from Erasmus to Willibald Pirckheimer, Basel, 12 May, 1516, l. 12: “... nouitatem omnem obnoxiam esse inuidiae.”

omnes ad occasionem inhiant, mi Faber, quo magis erat caendum ne ea a nobis illis porrigeretur et ex ipso, quod aiunt, boue lorum ministraretur.

2195 Quum enim vtilitatis publicae respectu prouinciam inuidiosam vtrique suscepimus, consultum erat parteis nostras concordia et syncretismo, quod aiunt, fulcire. Quod si senserint nos inter nos mutuis collidi dissidiis, non solum conduplicabimus inuidiam, verum etiam omnem studii nostri fructum tot vigiliis expetitum amitteremus. Etenim qui nunc magnis clamoribus insectantur quod in oratione dominica pro dimitte nobis debita nostra mutare sim ausus remitte nobis debita, quid dicturos existimas si conspexerint nos ceu par gladiatorum in harena commissos mutuis vulneribus inuicem confodere et Balatronem ac Nomentum referre, qui apud Horatium alternis dicteris in sese debacchantur ridentibus interim conuiuis. En, inquiet, egregios correctores, quibus autoribus 2200 oporteat nouari tot seculis comprobatam aeditionem. Qui fidemus illis si inter ipsos non conuenit? Ita fiet vt fabula mundi simus et in conciliabulis, in foris, in compotationibus, in aulis, in tonstrinis, in essedis et nauibus Erasmi Fabrique 2205 nomen obambulet. Tot exantlatis laboribus hoc praemii denique feremus.

Quare te rogo, charissime Faber, per amicitiam nostram, hactenus a me 2210 sincere pureque cultam, per studiorum amorem, quo communiter ambo ducimur, etiam si tu felicius, quoconque casu hoc accidit, redi ad tuum ingenium, redi ad tuos mores. Nos hactenus te non laesimus, ne sic quidem prouocati. Sine me mei similem esse. Id fiet si tu sis tui hac in parte dissimilis ac ve 2215 terem illum Fabrum praestes, quem hactenus et coram et literis omnibus praestitisti.

Quod factum est dissimulari non potest, liber est aeditus, excusari potest. Ipse modis omnibus fauebo purgationi, quemuis praetextum accipiam. Excidit vnum hoc parum attento, effluxit calore quodam, humanum est. Aut huc perpulit instigator improbus, impositum est simplicitati tuae. Quod si nihil horum placet vel in Aten aliquam huius mali causam reiiciamus, quemadmodum apud Homerum facit Agamemnon. Praestat recurrere quam pergere cursum male institutum.

Odi ipse, ita me Deus amet, hanc meam necessitatem vel potius infelicitatem qua coactus sum ad hoc scripti genus descendere. Non deerat quod agerem et quauis in re malim horas meas collocare. Si literis ad me priuatim scriptis effudisses stomachum tuum, aut dissimulassest aut priuatim me tibi purgassem; si ingenii crimen intendisses, neglexissest calumniam. Nunc quum libris euulgatis me tuum facis aduersarium vbi pro te facio et ita facis aduersarium vt tu Christi dignitatem attollas, ego deiiciam, tuus sermo sanctus ac pius sit, meus Christo Deoque indignissimus; tuus christianorum et eorum qui Spiritu ducuntur, meus Iudeorum et infidelium ac literae occidenti adhaerentium, quum haec non contentus semel dixisse toties inculces et infulcias tota disputatione: quid, 2202 mutuis A-D: mutis E, multis BAS.

2203 sese BAS: se A-E.

2206 fabula A C-BAS: in fabula B.

2230 et A B E BAS: ac C D.

2231 inculces BAS: inculcas A-E; infulcias

BAS: infulcis A-E.

- 2194 ex ... lorum Adag. 177, ASD II, 1, pp. 288–289 (Ex ipso boue lora sumere dicuntur qui, quo laedant quempiam, id ab ipso quem laedunt accipiunt).
- 2195–2196 prouinciam ... suscepimus Cf. Cic. Cael. 26, 63. Adag. 1241 (Capere prouinciam, Tradere prouinciam, Tradere prouinciam figura prouerbiali dicuntur qui negocium aliquod curandum committunt. Capiunt suscipiuntue prouinciam qui rei curandae onus in se recipiunt), LB II, 535 F–536 A.
- 2196 syncretismo “renewed friendship”, Adag. II, ASD II, 1, pp. 125–126.
- 2199–2201 qui ... debita In his Nov. Instr. Erasmus had ventured to alter Mt. 6, 12 “dimitte nobis debita nostra” into “remititto nobis debita nostra”. This new translation had been attacked by an anonymous Carthusian monk, now identified as John Batmanson, a deacon of the bishop of London. His attack on Erasmus was answered by Thomas More in a pamphlet of 1520. See H.J. de Jonge, in ASD IX, 2, p. 5; E. Rummel, Erasmus and his Catholic Critics I, Nieuwkoop, 1989, pp. 118–119; C.F. Gunderson and P.G. Bietenholz, “John Batmanson” in: Contemporaries I, pp. 99–100; and Erasmus, Ep. 541, ll. 85–86; Ep. 948, ll. 107–108, 114–115 and Allen, Ep. 1479, n. l. 40.
- 2201 quid dicturos existimas For this fear of the reaction of outsiders to this controversy, cf. the present apologia, ll. 41–47 and n. l. 41.
- 2202–2204 Balatronem ... conuiuis Hor. Serm. II, 8, ed. S. Borzsák, Leipzig, 1984, pp. 226–229.
- 2205 tot ... aeditionem That is to say: of the Latin Vulgate of the New Testament.
- 2206–2208 Ita ... obambulet For Erasmus’ idea that the whole world was interested in this controversy, cf. this apologia, ll. 72–73 and n.
- 2211–2212 redi ... mores For this appeal to Lefèvre to end the polemic and to resume his former disposition, cf. the present apologia, ll. 48–57 and nn.
- 2212 Nos ... laesimus Erasmus did not always spare Lefèvre: he sometimes used language that could damage Lefèvre’s reputation; see the present apologia, n. ll. 104–107. But in the passages of the Nov. Instr. where Erasmus criticizes Lefèvre’s views, he indeed does not offend him; see ll. 117–118 and n.
- 2213 tui ... dissimilis Cf. this apologia, l. 52 and n.
- 2214 coram et literis “in personal communication and in your works”. Cf. this apologia,
- ll. 244–245: … semper te virum literis ac pietate cum primis insignem esse iudicavi. omnibus is dative.
- 2216–2217 Ipse... accipiam In fact, however, Lefèvre never offered either apologies or a response; cf. the present apologia, n. l. 77.
- 2218–2219 instigator improbus See n. l. 40.
- 2219 simplicitati tuae For other references to Lefèvre’s naïvety, cf. ll. 39–40, ll. 234–235 and l. 2186. These allusions are inconsistent with other suggestions of Erasmus according to which Lefèvre had attacked him with cunning and malice; see e.g., ll. 159–164 and n.
- 2220 Aten ‘Ἄτη, the goddess of mischief, author of rash actions; the personification of infatuation or moral blindness.
- 2220–2221 quemadmodum ... Agamemnon Hom. Il. II, III and XIX, 88, 91.
- 2222–2224 Odi ... collocare Cf. the present apologia, ll. 1307–1332, where Erasmus enumerates the insults of Lefèvre which forced him to overcome his natural reluctance to write this apologia. Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 112–114: “Infelicitatem meam agnosco, qui in hoc certamen sim coactus descendere, a quo semper abhorrei, ...” Cf. l. 72 and n. and l. 77 and n.
- 2223–2224 Non ... collocare Erasmus prefers any other occupation to composing this apologia; cf. ll. 2179–2180 and n. l. 2180.
- 2226 libris euulgatis Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre’s second edition of Paul’s epistles, in which he had incorporated the disputatio against Erasmus as a note at Hebr. 2, 7.
- 2227 tuum facis aduersarium See above l. 342 and n., n. l. 347, l. 1323 and n. l. 1328.
- 2227–2230 ita ... adhaerentium See Lefèvre’s disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 132–136. Moreover Lefèvre called his disputatio a propheticae intelligentiae defensio (see appendix IV, l. 33). Cf. this apologia, ll. 332–340. See especially ll. 338–340: Si tu Hieronymiana interpretatio et propheticæ intelligentiae defensor es, necessum est ut sit qui oppugnet. Hunc igitur hoc loco me facis quum nihil sim minus.
- 2228 pius Cf. appendix IV, ll. 134–135 impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum.
- 2229 qui Spiritu ducuntur Cf. appendix IV, ll. 135 Spiritu aduersantem.
- 2230 Iudeorum Cf. appendix IV, ll. 163, 184–185, 188, 206, 211.
- infidelium* Cf. appendix IV, l. 193 infidorum.
- literæ ... adhaerentium* Cf. appendix IV, ll. 135–136 literæ quae occidit adhaerentem.

quaeso, factum oportuit? An debebam istas tuas notas tacitus agnoscere, praesertim quum ipse non solum nihil istiusmodi cogitassem, verum ne in verbis qui-dem lapsus essem?

2235 Quod si tibi videor liberius meam egiisse causam, cogita nihil esse liberius innocentia. Si qua videbuntur indulta dolori, cogita quam multa dolori non permiserim. Videor mihi satis moderationis praestitisse si contumeliam et talem contumeliam argumentis refello, non conuiciis. Meus stilus nullius ad huc cruento imbutus est, patere mihi hanc laudem esse perpetuam. Hactenus vtcunque frenos inieci iusto dolori. Homo sum, quid in posterum ferre possim, incertus. Furor fit laesa saepius patientia.

2240 Aut si tibi cordi est nos impetere, eiusmodi criminibus vrge in quibus dissimulandis aut excusandis lenitas laudi ducitur. Hoc eius generis est vt si me purgem, coger amicum laedere; sin obticescam, culpam agnoscere pro qua depellenda pulchrum est et mortem oppetere. Si ista est propria et ineuitabilis studiorum conditio, vt necesse sit aut excutiendis aliorum libris alienam famam incessere aut dum te purgas nunc cum hoc, nunc cum illo digladiari, valebunt mihi potius. Aut mutus dormio aut mihi cano et Musis. Quid enim est tam circunspecte scriptum quod non queas aliqua ex parte cauillari? Quid rursum est tam incogitanter scriptum quod non aliquo praetextu possit defendi? Quod si certum est omnia veterum scripta tueri pariter, omnia recentium ad istum calumniari modum, prorsus abstinendum est a calamo. At quanto rectius est, veteres sic reuereri vt non desit iudicium, recentiores sic excutere vt non absit candor. Quum homines hominum scripta legimus, ad multa conniuendum est, quaedam commodius interpretanda.

2245 Alioqui quid magni sit in meis, qui nihil sum, commentariolis reperire quod iniquus interpres ad calumniam detorqueat, quum plurima sint in Hieronymi, Ambrosii, Cypriani, Augustini et Gregorii scriptis quae sub iniquo iudice nullo pacto defendi possint? Nam quo tandem colore tueberis, ne nullum exemplum proferam, quod diuus Ambrosius excusans Petri negationem scripsit: nam qui dixit: nescio hominem, aequum erat vt interrogatus utrum esset ex discipulis hominis, diceret: non sum. Itaque non Christi discipulum se negauit, sed hominis negauit esse discipulum. Itaque et Petrus et Paulus hominem negauerunt quem Dei Filium fabantur. Obsecro, si scriptorem hic suis verbis vrgeas, quid magis impium dici poterat quam Christum non esse hominem idque autoribus Petro et Paulo? Huic affine est quod scribit Augustinus in psalmum octauum: Quare vermis? Quia mortalis, quia de carne natus, quia sine concubitu natus. Quare non homo? Quia in principio erat Verbum et Verbum erat apud Deum et Deus erat Verbum. Quis ferret ideo Christum negari hominem esse quod Deus sit? Rursum quod scripsit in 2250 opere De Trinitate, apostolos Christo ascensuro in coelum hoc tantum credidisse quod videbant, nonne blasphemia videatur in sanctos apostolos, quasi nondum Deum esse credidissent, quum Peſtrus tanto ante confessus sit Filium Dei viui et Thomas apertius Dominum ac Deum suum agnouisset? Haec et huiusmodi per multa si pie scripta credimus, si commode interpretamur in tantis autoribus, cur 2275 tam morosi et iniqui sumus in recentiorum libris? Balbutiunt vt possunt de rebus diuinis eloquentissimi et sermo noster ad vnguem exigitur? At non idem tribuimus, inquies, Erasmo quod Augustino. Certe quo ille maior, hoc mihi fortasse minus autoritatis, sed tamen plus veniae tribuendum erat. Quanquam hoc ipsum viris eruditis indignum arbitror, scriptorum autoritatem annis metiri, non rebus.

2280 Sed vt quo cooperat, perget oratio, si fidei synceritas constat, inhumanum est in verbis excitare tragedias. Quid quod non solum ab humanitate alienissimum est, verum etiam impium et cum christiana charitate pugnans, omissis tuis rebus in alienis scriptis obambulare et Momum quendam seu potius sycophantam agere, haud animaduertentem quam iniquam legem interim in teipsum statuas. Nisi forte putas omnia tibi tam circunspecte vbique dicta vt nihil omnino possit reprehendi, quum in hac vna disputatiuncula tam multa sint quae vel 2243 eius generis BAS: id generis A-E.

2256 Alioqui A-D BAS: Aliqui E.

2257 in A C-BAS: deest in B.

2264 hic A-C E BAS: his D.

2266 psalmum octauum A-D: psal. VIII E, psalmo octauo BAS.

2271 nonne BAS: non A-E.

2276-2281 At ... oratio D-BAS: deest in A-C.

2281 cooperat E BAS: ceperat D.

2245-2248 Si ... potius Cf. Ep. 826 from Erasmus to Henry Bullock, Louvain, 23 April <1518>, ll. 15-17: "Rixarum nullus est finis. Quod si hoc mali sic coniunctum est studiis vt distrahi non queat, mihi valebunt potius. Dormire prestat quam scribere."

2248 mutus dormio "I shall say and do nothing anymore".

2248 michi ... Musis Otto 1178, citing Hier. Epist. 50, 2. See also Erasmus Ep. 785, l. 9: "Postea propemodum est animus mihi canere et Musis" and cf. Adag. 2480 (Sibi canere), ASD II, 5, p. 336, l. 212.

2260-2264 nam ... fatebantur Ambr. Expos. in Luc., X, 84, CCSL 32, edd. C. Schenkel and H. Schenkel, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1902, p. 487.

2261 nescio hominem Mc. 14, 71; cf. Mt. 26, 72 and Lc. 22, 57.

2261-2262 interrogatus ... sum Ioh. 18, 17.

2266-2268 Quare ... Deus erat Verbum Aug. Enarr. in Ps. 21, 2, 7, CCSL 38, edd. D. E. Dekkers and I. Fraipont, Turnhout, 1956, p. 125, ll. 6-9.

2270-2271 apostolos ... videbant Aug. Trin. I, ix, ll. 1-3, CCSL 50, edd. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, pp. 53-54.

2272 Petrus ... viui Mt. 16, 16.

2273 Thomas ... agnouisset Ioh. 20, 28.

2276 ad vnguem "exactly", "perfectly", "in detail".

Cf. Hor. Ars, 294: "carmen decies castigare ad vnguem". Adag. 491, ASD II, 1, p. 562. Otto 1827.

2282 tragoedias For this recurrent metaphor for Lefèvre's treatment of Erasmus' note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nov. Instr., cf. this apologia, ll. 75-77 and n.

2283 impium Here Erasmus reproaches Lefèvre once again with impietas, in response to Lefèvre's accusation in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 132-136. Erasmus did so earlier; see ll. 1343-1345.

2283 cum ... pugnans For the argument that the tone of Lefèvre's disputatio is in conflict with Christian charity, cf. this apologia, ll. 1735-1738.

2284 Momum Adag. 474 (Momo satisfacere et similia, ... Hesiodus in Theogonia et Momi cuiusdam memenit, quem ait Nocte matre, Somno patre progenitum. Huic deo mos est ipsum quidem nihil operis accdere, sed aliorum deorum opera curiosis oculis contemplari et, si quid est omissum aut perperam factum, id summa cum libertate carpere), ASD II, 1, pp. 546-548. Otto 1129. Cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 187, n. l. 399.

2284-2285 sycophantam Cf. Adag. 1281, LB II, 515 F-516 D (sycophanta Convicium proverbiale in calumniatores, et quamvis pusilla de causa item mouentes).

aequum lectorem offendant. Nisi forte bellum tibi spectaculum videtur Hieronymus cum Ruffino tot libris dimicans aut cum Augustino conflictans, etiam si cum hoc postea rediit in gratiam, sed non prius quam omissa disputatione. Adeo nullus est qui velit ingenio cedere iuxta Martialis sententiam. Aut nisi magnificum facinus esse credis quod decem Pici conclusiones expugnauimus vel vexauimus magis ac tam felix ingenium a iuuandis sacris literis auertimus, ac probas pertinacem illam et odiosam insectationem qua iam annos complures aduersus Reuchlini libellum, nescio quem obscurum, belligerantur tot scholae theologorum totusque praedicatorum populus.

Mihi pro nostra amicitia vehementer molestum fuit quod te quoque a crabronibus istis impeti sentirem. Nam Basileae legi epistolam qua cardinalis Senogallensis tuam agebat causam aduersus eos qui calumniabantur te psalmo trigesimo annotasse ex sententia cardinalis Nicolai Cusae, animam Christi apud inferos passam esse cruciatus. Et sic agebat causam tuam ut satis haberet si te ab haereseos nota liberaret. Quin et ipse audiui viros eruditos ac magnos inquirentes in tuos commentarios, quosdam etiam annotasse quaedam calamo. Quod si probas istam morosam et iniquam diligentiam, queso quis erit aut finis aut fructus? Nusquam non erit quod calumnietur quisquis in hoc librum sumit in manus ut calumnietur.

Si nullus est veterum qui non alicubi cum venia legendus sit, in recentiores tam inique exquirere liuor est, non diligentia. Conniuemus ad id quod Hieronymus non fortiter solum defendit, sed contumeliose etiam propugnat, posse sacerdotem esse qui ante baptismum maritus, baptizatus priore defuncta, duxerit alteram; et eorum sententiam qui hoc defendant quod nunc et pontificum leges et theologorum scholae praecipiunt, cainam haeresim appellat, ut ex multis vnum locum exempli gratia proferam.

Non est fraudi sanctissimo viro Ambrosio quod enarrans prioris ad Corinthios epistolae caput septimum, affirmat viro ius esse repudiata vxore adultera ducere alteram, negans idem ius esse vxori. Ipsius verba subscribam: quia viro licet ducere vxorem si dimiserit vxorem peccantem, quia non ita lege constringitur sicut mulier. Caput enim mulieris vir est. Ridiculum vero planeque frigidum quod Sententiarum coaceruator sic excusat Ambrosium, ut dicat haec verba a falsariis esse subdita, cum et librorum summus consensus sit et congruat stilus.

2307–2372 Si ... nostros D–BAS: deest in A–C.

2308 Conniuemus D BAS: coniuemus E.

2315 viro D BAS: vno E; repudiata D BAS: repudiato E.

2318 enim E BAS: vnum D.

2288–2290 Hieronymus ... disputatione For an account of these conflicts of Jerome with Rufinus of Aquileia and with Augustine, see P. Nautin, "Hieronymus" in TRE 15, Berlin and New York, 1986, pp. 307–309. Cf. the present apologia nn. ll. 2288–2290 and 2289.

2288–2289 Hieronymus ... dimicans Rufinus of Aquileia (c. 345–410) is mainly important for his translations of Greek theological works into Latin. He translated, inter alia, Origen's De principiis, with the intention of proving Origen's orthodoxy. This translation involved Rufinus in a bitter polemic with Jerome, who

- criticized him in the Apologia adv. libros Rufini (401–402 A.D.).
- 2289 cum Augustino Jerome and Augustine polemized on the necessity of a new translation of the Old Testament from Hebrew into Latin; see Jerome's correspondence, ed. I. Hilberg, Epp. 56, 112, 114. F. Kaulen, Geschichte der Vulgata, Mainz, 1868, pp. 185–188; P. de Labriolle, The History and Literature of Christianity, London, 1924, pp. 356–360.
- 2291 ingenio ... sententiam Martial., Epigrammata VIII, 18, 10 edd. W. Heraeus and I. Borovský, Leipzig, 1976, p. 179.
- 2292 Pici conclusiones "Giovanni Pico della Mirandola, 24 February 1463–17 November 1494 ... Pico had written his nine hundred theses which he offered to debate with any challengers in the manner of the medieval quodlibetals. This was published by Eucharius Silber as Conclusiones sive theses DCCCC (Rome, 7 December 1486) ... On 20 February 1487 a papal commission ... was created and on 2 March it began to examine the Conclusiones. Thirteen of the nine hundred theses were found objectionable ... The condemnation was based on Averroistic statements and deviations from Church tradition inspired by the Cabbala ... Pico's reply, the Apologia, published 31 May 1487, defended his position. But on 31 July he declared his submission to the Church. However, Innocent VIII, who had been shown a post-dated copy of the Apologia, condemned all the theses on 5 August 1487 and published a bull of condemnation on 15 December." C. Trinkaus in: Contemporaries III, pp. 81–84. According to Guy Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Etaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976, p. 232, Lefèvre felt sympathy and perhaps also admiration for Pico. Possibly this was a reason for Erasmus to mention the problems Pico had to endure because of his writings.
- 2292 expugnauimus vel vexauimus Erasmus is referring to the condemnation of thirteen theses of Pico by the papal commission in 1487.
- 2293–2296 pertinacem ... populus Johann Reuchlin (1455–1522) published De rudimentis hebraicis in 1506. In 1509 the emperor issued an edict ordering the confiscation of all Hebrew books opposed to Christianity. Reuchlin protested in a long letter of 1510. This resulted in a polemic of the Dominicans and the Cologne theologians against Reuchlin. In 1511 Reuchlin published Augenspiegel as a defense. This work was condemned in 1514 by the faculties of Cologne and, finally, in 1520 by Pope Leo X. Cf. Guy Bedouelle, Lefèvre d'Etaples et l'intelligence des Ecritures, Geneva, 1976,
- pp. 83–84; H. Scheible, "Johann Reuchlin" in Contemporaries III, 145–150.
- 2298–2299 cardinalis Senogallensis Erasmus is referring to the Franciscan Marco Vigerio of Savona (1446–18 July 1516), cardinal-bishop of Senigallia, and author of an apologia in defence of Lefèvre. This apologia disappeared after Vigerio's death, cf. G. Bedouelle, Le Quincuplex Psalterium, un guide de lecture, Geneva, 1979, pp. 160–161. A. Renaudet, Préreforme et humanisme à Paris pendant les premières guerres d'Italie (1494–1517), Paris, 1916, p. 654, mentions a letter from Hummelberg to Beatus Rhenanus (in: A. Horawitz and K. Hartfelder, Briefwechsel des Beatus Rhenanus, Leipzig, 1886, Epist. 51, p. 78) Rome, 29 May 1515, in which Vigerio's apologia is mentioned: "Apologiam cardinalis Senogallienensis pro Fabro, nostro Stapulensi, non indignam putauit tua lectione ... Numerosa tamen cohors est illorum, qui quum ex sece nihil praestans edere possint, eruditis et primi nominis viris student oblectare Cujusmodi sunt, qui Fabrum haereseos insimulare conantur"
- 2302–2303 viros ... calamo Fierce criticisms arose, especially from the Louvain theologians, after the publication of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's epistles, because, in this book, Lefèvre dares to make corrections on the Vulgate, to assert that the Vulgate was not the work of Jerome, and to oppose Jerome and other Church Fathers occasionally in his commentary; see J.-P. Massaut, Critique et tradition à la veille de la réforme en France, Paris, 1974, pp. 49–50.
- 2308–2313 Conniuemus ... proferam Adag. 750, LB II, 317 C–D (Connivere). It is probably no coincidence that, in enumerating the Church Fathers who made serious mistakes, Erasmus mentions Jerome first, since Jerome was the only Church Father whom Lefèvre could cite in support of his interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7.
- 2309–2312 Hieronymus ... appellat Hier. Epist. 69, 1–2, CSEL 54, ed. I. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 1910, pp. 679–680.
- 2316–2318 quia ... est Ambrosiaster, Comm. in Cor. ad i Cor. 7, 10–11, CSEL 81, 2, ed. H.I. Vogels, Vienna, 1968, pp. 74–75, see especially p. 75, ll. 9–11.
- 2317 constringitur After constringitur Erasmus omits "vir".
- 2319–2320 Sententiarum ... subdita Petrus Lombardus, Sententiae in IV libris distinctae, lib. IV, dist. 35, c. iii, 2, ed. Collegii S. Bonaventurae ad Claras Aquas, Grottaferrata (Rome), 1981, t. II, p. 469.

Non officit Cypriani merito nobis sacrosanctae memoriae quod constanter censuerit rebaptizandos baptizatos ab iis quos inquinaret haereseos suspicio. Atqui haec vna res Donatistas et Rogatianos fecit haereticos, quum in caeteris essent orthodoxi vel ipso confidente Augustino.

Nullus Augustinum in ius vocat quod scripserit Iesu matrem ea nocte qua captus est et mox passus est filius, nonnihil in fide vacillasse, licet leuius caeteris apostolis. Locus est in quaestionibus Veteris ac Noui Testamenti, quaestione 73, si quis requiret. Si cui non vacabit, ipsius verba subscribam: quod autem, inquit, adiecit dicens: et tuam ipsius animam pertransibit gladius ut reuelentur multorum cordium cogitationes, hoc utique significauit quia etiam Maria per quam gestum est mysterium incarnationis Saluatoris in morte Domini dubitaret, ita tamen ut in resurrectione firmaretur. Nemo scribit illi dicam, quod Petro apostolorum principi, etiam post Spiritum Sanctum datum, tribuit maliciosa simulationem et peruersum onerandi gentes studium. Sic enim scribit enarrans epistolam ad Galatas: Petrus autem quum venisset Antiochiam obiurgatus est a Paulo, non quia seruabat consuetudinem Iudeorum in qua natus atque educatus erat, quanquam apud gentes eam non seruaret, sed obiurgatus est quia gentilibus eam volebat imponere. Idem libro De agone christiano, capite trigesimo factum hoc Petri superstitionem simulationem appellat et caeteris illius peccatis diffidentiae, pugnae et abnegationis admiscet. Atque adeo paulo post in eodem capite durius etiam prauam Petro tribuit simulationem: hos, inquiens, ecclesia catholica materno recipit sinu, tanquam Petrum post fletum negationis per gallicantum admonitum aut tanquam eundem post prauam simulationem Pauli voce correctum. Atque haec adeo non retractauit, vt post Hieronymum ad palinodiam prouocarit qui prauitatem noluerit Petro tribuere, quam ne tum quidem credibile est in eo fuisse cum Christi doctrinam nondum intelligeret. Quicquid enim vnquam peccauit Petrus, non destinata malicia peccauit, sed aut affectu sedulo, licet errante, aut subito terrore aut humana fragilitate. Quod idem de Paulo sentiendum existimo.

Nemo Chrysostomum in ius vocat quod virginis matri tribuerit eiusmodi affectum quo matrum vulgus imperiosum in liberos ex illis famam ac laudem captat. Is enim edisserens Matthaei caput duodecimum inter caetera scribit in hunc modum: quamuis et ex facto matris nonnihil importunitatis quoque accessit. Consydera igitur tam matris quam fratrum importunitatem. Nam cum debuissent intrare atque cum turbis simul audire aut saltem expectare foris sermonis finem ac demum accedere, ambitione quadam ac ostentatione commoti foras eum in praesentia omnium euocauerunt caeteraque quae sequuntur in hanc sententiam. Idem enarrans Ioannis evangelistae caput secundum, vt clarius ita durius eadem predicit hisce verbis de Maria proprie loquens: optabat enim ut iam hominum gratiam conciliaret et ipsa clarior filii gratia efficeretur et fortasse aliquo humano afficiebatur affectu, quemadmodum et fratres eius quum dixerunt: ostende te ipsum mundo, cupidi eius miraculis sibi famam comparare. Ac paulo post idem agens: siquidem non adhuc debitam de ipso opinionem habebant, sed more matrum Maria iure omnia se filio praecepturam censebat, quum tanquam Dominum colere et reuereri fas esset. Hactenus Chrysostomus.

2365 Iam vero quid commemorem id quod est omnium veterum commune, soli Christo tribuentium perpetuam immunitatem a peccato originis? Graue crimen, 2324 Augustino BAS: Augustino. Nemo insecuratur Hilarius quod Arrianos recusarit nisi rebaptizatos D E.

2339 alt. et BAS: deest in D E.

2340–2341 Petro tribuit BAS: deest in D E.

2345 quam E BAS: quamuis D.

2349–2350 affectum E BAS: quandam affectum D.

2356 sequuntur E BAS: subsequuntur D.

2362 habebant E BAS: habebat D.

2321–2323 Cypriani ... haereticos Under Cyprian's guidance, the Church decided that a valid sacrament could not be administered by a cleric in a state of sin. W.C.H. Freud, The Encyclopedia of Religion IV, edd. M. Eliade et alii, New York, 1987, pp. 420–422.

2323 Donatistas "Theologically the Donatists were rigorists, holding that the Church of the saints must remain 'holy'... and that sacraments conferred by tradidores were invalid The Church maintained that the unworthiness of the minister did not affect the validity of the sacraments, since, as Augustine insisted, their true minister was Christ. The Donatists, on the other hand, went so far as to assert that all those who communicated with tradidores were infected, and that, since the Church is one and holy, the Donatists alone formed the Church. Converts to Donatism were rebaptized, a proceeding repeatedly condemned by orthodox synods." ODCC, edd. F.L. Cross and E.A. Livingstone, Oxford, 1983², p. 419.

2323 Rogatianos By the end of the 4th century the Donatist movement fell apart in radical and more moderate elements. One of the more moderate leaders was Rogatus, bishop of Cartenna. His followers were the Rogatists or Rogatiani. See L. Ueding s.v. "Donatisten" in LThK 3 (1959), col. 505–506.

2323–2324 quam ... Augustino Cf. H. Chadwick, The Early Church, Middlesex, 1986, pp. 221–222.

2325–2332 Augustinum ... firmaretur Ps. Aug. Quaestiones Veteris ac Novi Testamenti LXXVII (LXXXIII), 2, CSEL 50, ed. A. Souter, Vienna and Leipzig, 1908, p. 131, ll. 12–16.

2330–2331 est mysterium Souter's edition reads "mysterium est".

2331 in resurrectione Souter's edition does not read in.

2335–2337 Petrus ... imponere Aug. Comm. in Gal. I, ad 2, II–16, Migne PL, 35, 2113, ll. 49–53.

2337 gentilibus The text in Migne reads "gentibus".

2338–2339 superstitiosam simulationem Aug. De agone christiano 30, 32, CSEL 41, ed. I. Zycha, Prague, Vienna, Leipzig, 1900, p. 135, l. 7.

2339 diffidentiae Ibid., p. 135, ll. 4–5.
pugnae Ibid., p. 135, l. 6.

abnegationis Ibid., p. 135, ll. 6–7.
2340–2341 prauam ... simulationem See the present apologia, nn. ll. 2340–2343.

2341–2343 hos ... correctum Aug. De agone christiano 30, 32, CSEL 41, ed. I. Zycha, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1900, p. 135, ll. 15–18.

2341 recipit Zycha's edition reads "recepit".

2344 post Adverb: "later".

palinodium Cf. Adag. 859 (Palinodium canere, Παλινόδεῖν, ... est diuersum ab his quae prius dixeris dicere atque in contrarium vertere sententiam), LB II, 356 A–D. Otto 1323.

2345 quam i.e., prauitatem.
in eo i.e., Petro.

2345–2346 cum ... intelligeret Erasmus means that Peter did not fully understand Jesus' teaching until after his resurrection; cf. Mc., 9, 9–10; Ioh. 2, 22.

2347 affectu sedulo "out of zeal, enthusiasm". See e.g., Ioh. 13, 9 and 18, 10.

2347 subito terrore Mc. 9, 6, Mt. 14, 30.

2348 humana fragilitate Mt. 26, 40.

2349–2356 Nemo ... euocauerunt Chrys. Hom. in Mt. 44/45, at Mt. 12, 46–49, Migne PG 57, 464, l. 46–465, l. 3.

2356–2361 Idem ... comparare Chrys. Hom. in Ioh. 20/21, at Ioh. 2, 3, Migne PG, 59, 129, l. 46–51 and 130, ll. 31–51.

2360 ostende ... mundo Ioh. 7, 4.

2361–2364 siquidem ... eset Chrys. Hom. in Ioh. 20/21, at Ioh. 2, 4, Migne PG 59, 131, ll. 7–11.

2365–2366 soli ... originis Erasmus himself considered it preferable to follow the conviction of the Church (after the Council of Basel in 1439) and to believe in the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary, see L.-E. Halkin, La mariologie d'Erasme, in: L.-E. Halkin, Erasme, sa pensée et son comportement, London, 1988, pp. 39–43.

si quidem hoc tam contumeliosum est in virginem matrem quam videri volunt Scotidarum familiae. Neque vero referimus haec hoc agentes vt veterum lapsus vulgo traducamus, sed vt declaremus quam sit iniquum in recentiorum scriptis nihil non excutere, detorquere ad calumniam quae simplici pioque dicuntur animo: hoc haeresim sapit, hoc male sonat, hoc scandalo esse posset, hoc suspectum est, hoc parum reuerenter dictum in magistros nostros.

Quin potius ea lex nobis placet inter omnes quam diuus Augustinus in omnibus scriptis suis ratam esse vult. Sic enim loquitur libro De Trinitate primo, capite tertio: proinde quisquis haec legit, vbi pariter certus est, pergit tecum; vbi pariter haesitat, quaerat tecum; vbi errorem suum cognoscit, redeat ad me; vbi meum, reuocet me. Ita ingrediamur simul charitatis viam tendentes ad eum de quo dictum est: quaerite faciem eius | semper, et hoc, inquit, placitum, pium atque tutum coram Domino Deo nostro, cum omnibus interim qui ea quae scribo legunt, et in omnibus scriptis meis, maximeque in his vbi quaeritur unitas Trinitatis.

Quanto consultius hoc, mi Faber, quam mutua reprehensione et nostrum et aliorum perdere studium, imo iuxta Paulum, dum inuicem mordemus et morde-mur, alium ab alio confici. Evidem arbitror ne Christo quidem esse gratum sic suam defendi dignitatem vt christiani famam indigne laceremus. Pacis autor est, concordia suorum potissimum oblectatur, siue quid est officii, siue quid est contumeliae in se admissum dicit quod in fratrem admiseris. E quamlibet leui scintilla dissidium nascitur, at semel natum late spargit incendium. Accurrunt hinc atque hinc qui fauent, qui amant, qui oderunt, qui inuident. Hic frigidam, vt aiunt, suffundit, ille oleum camino adiicit, bellum repente fit quod erat mono-machia, nec finis donec res in rabiem exeat. Fit interim iactura charissimae pos-sessionis, quam ego in amicis sitam arbitrор. Mihi succensent tui, tibi fortasse nonnulli meorum indignantur. Quanto placabilius erat communicatis inuicem amicis conduplicato lucro ditescere? Si fieri potest vt, quemadmodum ait Hieronymus, in scripturarum campo sine nostro dolore ludamus, age mutua con-flictatione vel doceamus aliquid vel discamus.

Sin hostis est tibi qui quoconque modo abs te dissenserit, si talibus saxis petitur, excedo campo, hac lege non congregior. Gladiatorum ista pugna est, non theologorum. Est humanus error, est et christiana correptio. Ego sic lapsus tuos correxeram vt gratiam etiam me sperarem initurum. Et apud me sane iniret qui sic admoneret. Neque vererer ipsum Hieronymum si viueret, si sic lapsus fuisse-set, itidem admonere, nec dubitarem quin is boni consulturus esset. Ignoscendum error si nimium bene de te sensi, siquidem tu maluisti regerere crimen quam emendare monitus erratum. Ego tantum adnotaram in voculis aliquot esse lap-sum te, nihil ultra exaggerans. Tu vbi nihil commissum est, impietatis crimen impingis. Sic charitatis officium officio pensas. Diuus Augustinus non designatur reuocari quum lapsus est. Tu quum nondum episcopus sis, imo nec in theologorum, opinor, senatum allectus, turpe putabas si proxima aeditione quaedam mutasses, ac maluisti tam multos tecum errare quam tuum errorem agnoscere?

Nondum contuli singula, sed tamen in aliquot incidi loca in quibus demiror quid tibi volueris, vt ex animo loquar, mi Faber.

- 2367 volunt D BAS: voluerit E.
 2373 inter omnes D-BAS: deest in A-C.
 2379 interim E BAS: inierim A-D.
 2384 defendi A-C E BAS: defendere D.
 2385 suorum potissimum A-C E BAS: potissimum suorum D.
- 2368 Scotidarum familiae “the various groups of Scotus’ followers (want it to be considered)”. Duns Scotus (ca. 1265–1308) was famous for his fervent defence of the doctrine of Maria’s Immaculate Conception. See ODCC, p. 431, s.v. “Duns Scotus”.
 2375–2380 proinde ... Trinitatis Aug. Trin. I, 3, CCSL 50, ed. W.J. Mountain and Fr. Glorie, Turnhout, 1968, p. 32, ll. 1–8.
 2377 meum i.e., errorem.
 2378 quaerite ... semper Ps. 104, 4; 1 Chr. 16, II.
 2379 cum omnibus This is an adjunct to ingradiamur simul in l. 2377.
 2382 iuxta Paulum Gal. 5, 15.
 2384 famam indigne laceremus See Sall. Iug. 38, 54.
 2384–2385 Pacis autor est Subject is Christ.
 2385 officii “a kindness”, “favor”.
 2385–2386 alt. sive ... admiseris Mt. 25, 40.
 2387 nascitur BAS reads “nescitur”. All other editions, A-E, read “nascitur” which is preferable. “nescitur” makes no sense in this context; see also natum, l. 2387.
 2388–2389 frigidam ... suffundit “aquam frigidam suffundere”, “to pour cold water on (someone)”, “to calumniate”, “inveigh against”. Cf. Plaut. Cist. 35. Adag. 951 (Frigidam aquam suffundere ... Plautus in Cistellaria videtur vsurpare pro eo quod est instigare clanculum), LB II, 382 B–E. See Otto 137 n. (Otto does not consider it a proverb but rather a metaphor).
 2389 oleum camino adiicit “oleum camino adicere”, “to add oil to the fire”, “to aggravate an evil”. Cf. Hor. Serm. 2, 3, 321. Adag. 109 (Oleum camino addere, pro eo, quod est: malo fomentum ac velut alimoniam suppeditare, quo magis ac magis augescat), ASD II, 1, p. 221. Otto 1283.
 2391 Michi succentur tui “Your friends have become angry with me”. Cf. n. ll. 250–251.
 2391–2392 tibi ... indignantur See, e.g., Ep. 601 from Thomas More to Erasmus, London, 16 July <1517>, ll. 34–36: “Sed illius alterius boni sensis non possum satis demirari sententiam, qui pius scilicet ac modestus tam immodeste dimicat pro gloria: qua si sic insisteret, totus excidet.”
 2394 Hieronymus ... ludamus Hier. Epist. 115, 1, CSEL 55, ed. I. Hilberg, Vienna and Leipzig, 2386 quilibet A C-BAS: qualibet B.
 2387 nascitur A-E: nescitur BAS.
 2396–2397 petitur A-E: petitus BAS.
 2402 te A C-BAS: re B.
 2406 sis A B D-BAS: es C.
- 1912, p. 397, ll. 4–5: “in scripturarum, si placet campo sine nostro invicem dolore ludamus.”
 2396–2397 saxis petitur Ps. Ov. Nux 2.
 2398 Est ... error Cf. Cic. Phil. 12, 2, 5: “cuiusuis hominis est errare”. Otto 821.
 2398–2399 Ego ... initurum Cf. the present apologia, ll. 111–122 and n. ll. 117–118, ll. 225–226 ll. 317–324, ll. 345–347. And cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budé, Louvain, 22 February <1518>, ll. 275–278: “... alii iudicant offensum illum, quod a se in Annotationibus meis locis aliquot ausus sim dissentire, hunc lolliginis succum in me vicissim effusisse; videlicet pro officio, pro quo par erat gratiam reponere, sumnam contumeliam rependisse.”
 2401–2402 Ignoscendum ... sensi “I deserve to be forgiven for my mistake, if I had too favourable an opinion of you”, that is, if Erasmus was wrong in assuming that Lefèvre would take his criticisms well. Cf. ll. 49–50 and n. and ll. 56–57 and ll. 244–245.
 2402 regerere “to retort”. Cf. Sen. Phaedra 720: “Regeramus ... crimen” and Seneca maior, Controversiae 7, praef. 6: “omnia crimina regereret”.
 2403–2404 Ego ... exaggerans Cf. the present apologia, n. ll. 117–118.
 2404 vbi ... est Unlike Erasmus, Lefèvre holds that Erasmus’ interpretation of Hebr. 2, 7 affects the dignity of Christ. Cf. the present apologia ll. 45–46 and n., ll. 82–83 and n., ll. 226–227, ll. 262–263 and n.
 2404 impietatis crimen For this accusation of Lefèvre against Erasmus, see his disputatio, appendix IV, l. 134 and for Erasmus’ feelings about it, see this apologia, l. 234 and n.
 2405 charitatis officium Cf. ll. 2398–2399 and n. officio is meant ironically.
 2405–2406 Diuius ... est For an example of this, see ll. 709–710 and nn. Of course, Erasmus is referring to Augustine’s Retractationes in general.
 2406–2407 nec ... allectus Lefèvre had no theological degree and had apparently never studied in a department of theology. Rice, Prefatory Epistles, intr., p. xiv.
 2409 contuli “I compared”.

In epistola ad Colossenses, capitulo secundo, indicaram te lapsum in verbo καταβραβευέτω, quumque rem Hieronymi et Graecanorum scholiorum, postremo et Ambrosii autoritate demonstrassem, subiicio: ex his satis liquet quantum absit a vero Iacobi Stapulensis, hominis alioqui erudit, hoc in loco sententia. Vide num qua sit hic insectatio, num quid simile tuis refutamus animose vt Christo Deoque indignissimum. Quin vltro excuso lapsum tuum addens: verum hunc in errorem induxit Valla qui putat καταβραβεύειν esse 'ad brabium euocare' siue 'brabium ostentare'. Et tamen ne sic quidem admonitus putasti locum hunc mutandum, etiamnum legitur in tua translatione: nullus vos ad brabium vocet volens. Adhuc mordicus tenes tuam coactissimam enarrationem ab omnium veterum interpretatione dissentientem. Tantum addis in examinatione: nemo vos brabio frustret aut nemo vos ad brabium vocet. Sunt enim qui vocabulum καταβραβευέτω hic positum hoc potius significare putant, iuxta quorum intelligentiam interpretati sumus. Primum nihil interest vtrum 'frustrare brabio' dicas an 'interuertere brabium'? Deinde tantum valet apud te Laurentii autoritas vt hunc vnum quam theologos veteres omnes et in his Hieronymum sequi malueris? Praesertim quum Valla nullius autoritate confirmet quod dicit. Iam illud mihi vide, te rogo, quum ista tractares, quum publicam mundi lectio[n]em mutare velles, indignum tibi visum est dispicere quid legeret Ambrosius, quid annotasset Hieronymus, harum rerum haud quaquam incuriosus, quid prodidissent Graeci interpres? An res tam seria tibi tam leui brachio neglectimque videbatur agenda? Nec haec dixerim, optime Faber, quo te criminor sed vt in posterum reddam attentiores, quandoquidem et in commentariis quos in Psalmos aeditisti, mallem paulo diligentius obseruasses quid sensissent superiores interpres, quorum maxima turba est.

Rursus in epistola ad Ephesios, capitulo quarto, vbi pudendo lapsu ex κυβείᾳ κυκείᾳ nescio quam feceras, quoniam nullo modo poteras tergiuersari, in translatione quidem pro turbatione reposuisti nequitiam, caeterum in expositione reliquisti turbationem nec mutas ridiculam et coactam interpretationem. In examinatione vero pristinam annotationem sustulisti nec tamen exponis quid sibi velit κυβεία, perinde quasi nequitia Graecam vocem exprimat. Si nihil hic erat annotandum, cur annotaras in priore aeditione? Si erat, cur hic praetermittis? Si non placebat quod ego adduxeram, quin tu melius aliquid adferebas?

Iam non postulo vt agnoscas monitorem sed in docendo requiro ingenuitatem, etiam si hic magis eram tibi nominandus quam illic, vbi nihil ad te pertinent quae scribo. Quid istuc, quaeso, pudoris est, ne dicam supercilii? Vsque adeone turpe putas παλινωδεῖν?

2415 quid B-BAS: aliiquid A.

2417 errorem A-C E BAS: errore D.

2443 aliiquid D-BAS: deest in A-C.

2411 In ... secundo Col. 2, 18.

2411-2413 indicarim ... demonstrassem Erasmus
Nov. Instr., p. 546.

2411 te lapsum Lefèvre had not understood the meaning of the word καταβραβευέτω: he translated: "nullus vos ad brabium vocet volens", Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 44r°. In his commentary Lefèvre wrote: "vocabulum hic positum potius significat excitare et vocare ad brauum", ibid., f° 185v°.

- 2412 καταβραβευέτω καταβραβεύω “to deprive one of the prize”, “deprive one of one’s right”, Col. 2, 18.
- 2412 Graecanicorum scholiorum I.e., Pseudo-Oecumenius, whose Comm. ad Col. is included in Migne PG 119. Cf. ASD IX, 2, p. 195, n. l. 539.
- 2413–2414 ex ... sententia Erasmus Nou. Instr., at Col. 2, 18, p. 546.
- 2414 hoc in loco In the Nou. Instr., p. 546, Erasmus wrote “in hoc loco”.
- 2415–2416 refutamus ... indignissimum See appendix IV, ll. 134–135. Lefèvre’s text reads: animose refutabimus tanquam impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum.
- 2416–2418 verum ... ostentare Erasmus Nou. Instr., at Col. 2, 18, p. 546.
- 2417 Valla For the reference, see the present apologia, n. ll. 2426–2427.
- 2419–2420 nullus ... volens Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris 1516/7, f° 42v°.
- 2420–2421 Aduic ... dissentientem Nor did Lefèvre alter it in his third edition, Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 35 e3v°.
- 2420 mordicus tenes Adag. 322 (Mordicus tenere), ASD II, 1, p. 426.
- 2421–2424 nemo ... sumus Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 177v°. Lefèvre retained this addition in the third edition, Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae, Paris, 1517, f° 145 t1r°.
- 2426 Hieronymum Jerome did not write a commentary on Col. Erasmus is referring to the translation of Col. 2, 18 in the Vulgate, although neither Erasmus nor Lefèvre believed that the translation in the Vulgate is Jerome’s.
- 2426–2427 Praesertim ... dicit Laurentius Valla, In Nouum Testamentum ex diuersorum vtriusque linguae codicum collatione annotationes cum primis vtilis, ed. Des. Erasmus, in: Laurentius Valla, Opera Omnia I, Torino, 1962, reprint of Basel 1540, p. 880.
- 2428–2432 quum ... agenda It is not the first time in this apologia that Erasmus reproaches Lefèvre for having consulted too few or none of the authorities; see ll. 391–394.
- 2431–2432 leui ... agenda “leui” (or “mollī”) “bracchio agere aliquid”, “to do something superficially, negligently”. Adag. 327 (Molli brachio, leui brachio), ASD II, 1, p. 428. Otto 270.
- 2436 in ... quarto Eph. 4, 14. Here the Vulgate has “nequitia”. In 1512, Lefèvre replaced this by “turbatione”, defended this reading in his exposition, and in a note in the “examinatio” of the passage. In 1516/7, after Erasmus had criticized the change, Lefèvre restored “nequitia” to the text, retained “turbatione” in the exposition, and dropped the note from the “examinatio” without replacing it by something else, and without mentioning Erasmus.

- 2436 pudendo lapsu Lefèvre made this translation error in his S. Pauli epistolae, Paris, 1512, f° 38v°. In his “examinatio” he noted: “Vulgata aeditio: in naequitia hominum, potius: in turbatione hominum”, ibid., f° 169r°. All editions of this apologia have κυβεία in the nominative, not in the dative as one might expect after ex.
- κυβεία “game of dice”. Eph. 4, 14: ἐν τῇ κυβείᾳ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, “by the trickery of men”.
- 2437 κυκείαν κυκεία, “confusion”, “disturbance”.
- 2437–2438 translatione ... nequitiam Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 36v° (“in nequitia hominum”). At this point the third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 30v°, follows the second.
- 2438 nequitiam “vileness”, “wickedness”.
- 2438–2439 expositone ... interpretationem Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 160v° (“in turbatione hominum”). The same information is given in the third edition, id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 131 r3v°.
- 2439–2440 examinatione ... sustulisti Lefèvre removed the note from the commentary in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 161v° (“in turbatione hominum”), and also omitted it in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 132 r4v°.
- 2444–2446 Iam ... scribo Cf. Ep. 607, from Erasmus to Cuthbert Tunstall, Louvain, 17 July, <1517>, ll. 2–8: “Faber Stapulensis nobis nouum peperit negocium, qui suos commentarios in Paulum rursus edidit, multis locis emendatis ex nostro admonitu, nec vsquam villa nostri mentio, nisi vno in loco, nempe in secundo capite Epistolae ad Hebraeos, vbi non sat habet suam interpretationem tueri sed nostram quoque subodiose insectatur, arrodens etiam quedam quae ad illius rem nihil attinebant.”
- 2444 ingenuitatem Erasmus uses this word as an allusion to the vain id ego ingenuus fateor of Lefèvre in his disputation. Erasmus ridiculed this formulation excessively. See the present apologia, l. 1580 and n.
- 2445 illuc Hebr. 2, 7. Cf. ll. 1918–1919 and 1924–1925.
- 2447 παλινφεύειν Cf. Adag. 859 (Palinodium canere, Παλινφεῦν, ... est diuersum ab his quae prius dixeris dicere atque in contrarium vertere sententiam), LB II, 356 A–D. Otto 1323.

Ad haec in epistola ad Philippenses, capite secundo, vbi pro παραβουλευσάμενος vertisti ex deliberatione positurus est animam, quum ego citra tui nominis notam indicarim Graeci participii vim, tu tamen pertinaciter adamas tuum illud ex deliberatione positurus. At primum, quis vnquam dixit 'ex deliberatione' pro 'consulto'? Deinde quum Graece sit παραβουλευσάμενος participium indefinitum, qui possit esse positurus? Magis vertendum erat 'tradita' siue 'periculo exposita vita'. Rursus quis hominum dixit 'ponere' pro 'periculo exponere'? Nam quod Christus ait: ego animam meam pono, 'ponere' dixit 'deponere'.

Sed quemadmodum in annotationibus meis prudens plura dissimulaui, quo paucis annotatis te redderem cautiorem, plura indicaturus si fors hoc a me literis tuis flagitasses, ita non est animus hic omnia persecui. Sed tamen erat tuae fidei quum rursus euulgares opus, eradere quaedam quae docti nec sine risu nec sine stomacho lecturi sunt. Quod genus est illud in epistolae ad Ephesios capitulo sexto, aduersus spiritualia nequitiae in coelestibus, vbi doces legi posse in coelentes, id est aduersus coelestes, cum Graece sit ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, quasi vero praepositiō ἐν vlo pacto Graecis sonarc possit 'aduersus', quemadmodum facit εἰς. Haec, mi Faber, quum scribis, quid aliud quam te ipsum pueris quoque deridendum propinas? Huic simile est quod κατ' ὀφθαλμοδουλείαν vertis ad oculum seruitio, quasi non multo latinius interpres vertisset: ad oculum seruientes.

Item quod in epistolae prioris ad Corinthios capite septimo παράγει γὰρ τὸ σχῆμα τοῦ κόσμου et vertis et annotas decipit figura huius mundi, non attendens παράγει neutrum esse verbum, quod vel ex aliis locis poteras colligere, praesertim quum toties legas in Euangeliō ὑπαγε δπίσω, vade retro. An non istud erat mutandum, praesertim quum id solus produxeris omnibus retro scriptoribus tuae sententiae refragantibus? Et tamen vides quam nec hic exagitem te in annotationibus meis, quum optimo iure possim.

Rursum eiusdem epistolae capite 5 συναχθέντων, reclamantibus omnibus tum Graecis, tum Latinis atque ipsa etiam Graeca grammatica, vertis et annotas vertendum esse: condolentibus vobis, pro congregatis vobis. Quid hoc lapsu foedius et tamen hoc loco vide quam honorifice quamque reuerenter abs 2455 deponere A C-BAS: pro deponere B.

2460 capitulo BAS: capite A-E, cap. E.

2462 est A C-BAS: deest in B.

2467 Item D-BAS: Iterum A-C.

2470-2471 erat mutandum A-C E BAS:
mutandum erat D.

2473 possim D-BAS: possem A-C.

2474 omnibus Ac B-BAS: deest in A.

2476 vertendum Ac B-BAS: verendum A.

2477 foedius A B E BAS: verius C D; tamen Ac B-BAS: tum A; quam Ac B-BAS: deest in A; quamque B-BAS: quam A.

2448 epistola ... secundo Phil. 2, 30. In the Nou. Instr. the note on this passage has been placed at the beginning of caput three, p. 539, but the Greek text and translation, as usual at the end of caput 2, p. 98. Erasmus did not name Lefèvre in this passage, on p. 539. Lefèvre has not altered his translation and his n. ad locum in the second and third edition.
2448-2449 vbi ... animam Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 41v^o.

παραβουλευσάμενος παραβουλεύματι, "to venture, to risk". The verb occurs in the textus receptus of Phil. 2, 30. Critical editions read παραβολ-. See H.J. de Jonge, Ein Konjektur Joseph Scaligers zu Philipper II 30, in: Novum Testamentum 17 (1975), pp. 297-302.
2449-2450 quum ... vim Erasmus, Nou. Instr.,

- p. 539: "Tradens animam suam: παραβουλευσάμενος. Ambrosius Graecam vocem proprius expressit: in interitum tradens animam suam. Est autem παραβουλεύσθαι male consulere et non habere rationem alicuius. Sentit enim Paulus illum ope diuina seruatum fuisse. Alioqui ipse se praecepitauerat in exitium vitae."
- 2449–2450 citra ... notam Cf. the present apologia, l. III, citra famam tui dispendium and l. 346, citra tui notam.
- 2450–2451 tu ... positurus Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 40r^o. He retained this translation in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae, 1517, p. 33 ev^o.
- 2452 indefinitum "aoristi".
- 2455 ego ... pono Ioh. 10, 15: "Et animam meam pono pro oibuis meis". Cf. Ioh. 10, 17.
- 2456 in ... dissimulauit Cf. for the same preterition, the present apologia, ll. 117–118 and n.
- 2460–2461 epistolae ... sexto Eph. 6, 12.
- 2461 aduersus ... caelestibus In discussing Eph. 6, 12 in his Nou. Instr., Erasmus does not criticize Lefèvre's opinion.
- 2461–2462 vbi ... coelestes Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 173r^o. Lefèvre corrected this neither in his second edition, see id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 165v^o, nor in his third edition, id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, p. 135v^o. But in the translation in all three editions, he translates "in coelestibus": p. 39v^o, p. 38^o and p. 31v^o, respectively.
- 2465 propinas "deliver", "give". Cf. Ter. Eunuchus 1087: "hunc ... vobis propino ... deridendum".
- quod ... seruitio* Eph. 6, 6; Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 39v^o. Erasmus mentions neither Lefèvre nor his remark on the phrase at issue when dealing with Eph. 6, 6 in the Nou. Instr., p. 534. Lefèvre's translation remained unaltered in his second edition, id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 38^o and in his third edition, id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, p. 31v^o.
- 2466 ad ... seruientes This is the wording of the Vulgate. interpretes refers to the translator to whom these words in the Vulgate are due.
- 2467 epistolae ... septimo 1 Cor. 7, 31. Erasmus criticizes Lefèvre's note on this passage in the Nou. Instr., p. 467.
- 2468 vertis Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 16v^o.
- annotas* Ibid., p. 118r^o: "Vulgata aeditio: praeterit enim figura huius mundi, potius decipit enim figura mundi huius".
- 2469 neutrum "intransitive". Cf. Erasmus' note in the Nou. Instr., at 1 Cor. 7, 31, p. 467: "Praeterit enim figura. παράγει. Faber Stapulensis emendat: 'decipit', quod ipsa vox videatur ita sonare, παράγειν, quasi 'seducere' siue 'a via abducere'. Verum huius verbi composita saepenumero et neutralia usurpatur, vt ὑπάγω, et magis quadrat ad Pauli sententiam."
- 2470 toties ... retro This phrase occurs e.g., in Mt. 16, 23 and Mc. 8, 33.
- 2470–2471 An ... mutandum Lefèvre did not alter his translation of 1 Cor. 7, 31 in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 16v^o, nor in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, p. 13 b5 r^o, nor did he correct his annotation, S. Pauli epistolae, Paris, 1516/7, p. 112v^o and S. Pauli epistolae, Paris, 1517, p. 43 m5r^o.
- 2471–2472 praesertim ... refragantibus Erasmus is suggesting once again that Lefèvre's opinion conflicts with orthodox tradition, cf. the present apologia, ll. 399–404, ll. 542–546 and n., ll. 822–824 and n. l. 824 and n. ll. 1077–1078. Cf. also Ep. 765 from Erasmus to Edward Lee, <Louvain>, <c. January 1518>, ll. 2–6 and Ep. 766 from Erasmus to Henry Glareanus, Louvain, 18 January 1518, ll. 22–37. In these two letters, Erasmus emphasizes that Lefèvre's opinion that Christ resurrected after three days, not within three days, conflicts with the orthodox tradition.
- 2471 retro "of former times".
- 2472–2473 quam ... possim For this benevolence of Erasmus towards Lefèvre, cf. this apologia, ll. 117–122.
- 2474 eiudem ... 5 1 Cor. 5, 4.
- 2475 ipsa ... grammatica Erasmus is referring here to Greek grammar in general. In the Versandliste (F. Husner, p. 242, nr. 317), however, a "Grammatica Chrysolorae grae." is mentioned. Chrysoloras (c. 1350–c. 1414), a Byzantine humanist and diplomat, composed inter alia a Greek grammar. Information about the declension of the participles of ἀπάγειν occurs in Ἐρωτήματα τοῦ Χρυσολώρᾳ, Venice, 1528, p. 116.
- vertis* Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 15r^o.
- 2475–2476 annotas vertendum esse Ibid., p. 113 r^o: "Vulgata aeditio: in nomine Domini nostri Iesu Christi congregatis vobis et meo Spiritu. Potius dicendum: condolentibus aut contrastatis vobis et meo Spiritu ... verbum enim ἀχθομαι tristor significat, cuius compositum συναχθομαι". Lefèvre's proposal represents a serious mistake of course, συναχθέντων being the participle passive aorist of συνάγομαι, "to meet".
- 2476–2480 Quid ... potuit For the same claims, cf. ll. 114–130 and nn.
- 2477–2478 hoc ... dissentiam I.e., in Erasmus, Nou. Instr., p. 462. For the note at issue, see the present apologia, ll. 2483–2485.

te dissentiam. Nihil hic in homine tui studiosissimo desiderare potes, nisi quod tecum non sentit et quod tui nominis mentionem facit, quando alioqui nec amantius nec honorificentius fieri potuit. Et tamen ut fieret, res ipsa compellebat. Id ita esse facile perspiciet cordatus lector qui tua cum meis attentius contulerit. Atque adeo, quoniam non est quibuslibet copia voluminum, mea subscribam: Faber, inquam, Stapulensis, amicus noster, hunc locum mutauit volens συναγθέντω deduci a τυπάχθομαι, cuius in hac quidem parte non subscrivo iudicio, etiam si alias eruditissimo pariter ac diligentissimo viro lubens assentior. Hactenus 2485 annotatio mea. Lapsus excusari non potest ac ne tegi dissimulariae possit abs te ipso curatum est.

Et quanquam in diuinis libris nullus error non magnus est, huius voculae mutatio, praeterquam quod inanem et frigidum sensum inducit, tollit id quod graues probatique interpretes annotandum duxerunt, nempe Paulum quum esset apostolus ab ipso Christo institutus haud tamen sibi sumere ut solus veluti suo nomine sententiam pronunciet, sed eam a communi ecclesiae consensu vult proficisci; secus quam hodie faciunt episcopi quidam, meram tyrannidem exercentes in suos, cunctaque gerentes non ex publico consilio sed ex animi libidine.

2495 Deinde monebat hic locus propalam conuincendum et emendandum, si quis id forte commeritus fuerit, non priuatim aut clanculum, partim ut huius vnius exemplo caeteri deterreantur a peccando, partim ne quis oppressum aut iniuste damnatum queat calumniari. Hanc tam salubrem admonitionem sustulit tuum condolentibus. Ergo cum operaे precium esset indicare lapsum tuum et id publica suaderet vtilitas, qui fieri potuit amantius aut honorificentius aut syncerius quam a me factum est?

I nunc et tuam istam beneuolam disputationem, si libet, cum mea reprehensione componito, si modo haec reprehensio dici debeat. Nihil hic aceti, nihil puris, nihil stomachi, nihil ostentationis. Sic medeor errori ut foueam amicum, quum tu amicum nec lapsum, nec contra te facientem toties acetum perfundas in vnicā disputatiuncula. Neque vero tanta erat tua autoritas ut hanc meam ciuitatem aliquis possit metum interpretari, aut tanta felicitas ut praemii spe videri possim adulatus. Charitatis erat hic pudor, non assentationis aut timor.

Sed ut pergamus, in epistola ad Corinthios secunda, capite sexto, quis, oro te, latus est voces istas nihil omnino significantes ‘secundorum et aduersorum’? Et tamen nec admonitus mutasti. Rursum eiusdem epistolae capite decimo, quum 2478 homine A C-BAS: nomine B.

2480–2481 compellebat A C-BAS: compellabat B.

2485–2486 Hactenus annotatio mea BAS: deest in A-E, Qui potui temperantius? Hactenus annotatio mea M, sed Erasmus ipse verba Qui potui temperantius? deleuit.

2491 sumere B-BAS: sumit A.

2497 oppressum A B D-BAS: oppressam C.

2499 indicare A B D-BAS: iudicare C.

2481–2482 qui ... contulerit For this emphasis on the contrast between Erasmus' benevolence and generosity towards Lefèvre and Lefèvre's harshness and intolerance towards Erasmus, cf. the

- present apologia, ll. 114–130 and nn., ll. 159–164 and n., ll. 342–348, l. 1328 and n., ll. 1458–1459, ll. 2113–2114 and n. and ll. 2499–2501.
- 2483–2485 Faber ... assentior Erasmus, Nou Instr., p. 462.
- 2485–2486 Hactenus annotatio mea As appears from the critical apparatus, these words were added in BAS. They occur also as a manuscript note in the margin of a copy of E², now in Cambridge, where Erasmus himself wrote: “Qui potui temperantius? Hactenus annotatio mea”. Erasmus crossed out “Qui potui temperantius?”, but left the phrase “Hactenus annotatio mea”. For this addition see Intr. p. 56.
- 2486–2487 ne ... est “and you yourself are responsible for the fact that it cannot be covered up or ignored”, since Lefèvre himself called attention to his alteration in the translation by devoting an explanatory note to it. Lefèvre did not correct his translation in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 15^r, nor in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 12 b4^r. Erasmus does not mention and probably did not notice that Lefèvre had corrected his rendering in his expositio, id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 107^r. This correction was taken over in the third edition: S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 89 mir^o. In his examinatio, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 107v^o–108r^o, Lefèvre stated: “Vulgata aeditio: ‘in nomine domini nostri Ihesu Christi congregatis vobis et meo Spiritu’. ‘Congregatis vobis’: sic probe stat a verbo συνάγομαι quod ‘congregor’ et ‘conuocor’ significat, vt amicus noster Erasmus diligenter annorauit. Et hac in parte libens eius sub-scribo iudicio.” The same passage appears in the third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 89 mir^o.
- 2489 tollit “destroys”, “abolishes”.
- 2490 interpretes E.g., Ambrosiaster, Comm. in Epistolas Paulinas, CSEL 81, 2, ed. H.I. Vogels, Vienna, 1968, ad 1 Cor. 5, 5: “nam omnium consensu et praesentia, sed et virtute domini Iesu, id est sententia, cuius legatione fungebatur apostolus, abiendum illum de ecclesia censuit”.
- 2490–2491 Paulum ... institutus Gal. 1, 12.
- 2491–2493 haud ... proficiisci 1 Cor. 5, 4.
- 2493–2494 secus ... libido For criticism of the bishops’ selfishness and lust for power, cf. Enchir., ed. Holborn, p. 13, ll. 19–22; p. 18, ll. 4–5: “Episcopos mox ambitionis et auaritiae morbus corripuit”; Moria, ASD IV, 3, pp. 170–172, ll. 739–752.
- 2495 monebat I.e., Paulus (see l. 2490). hic locus 1 Cor. 5, 4–5.
- 2499–2500 id ... utilitas For Erasmus’ sense of responsibility with regard to the spread of both the correct reading and the correct interpretation of the biblical text, cf. the present apologia, ll. 89–90 and n. and ll. 108–111.
- 2500–2501 qui ... est Erasmus is convinced that his behaviour towards Lefèvre was much more courteous than that of the latter towards Erasmus; cf. ll. 2481–2482 and n.
- 2502 benevolam Erasmus uses this word because, towards the end of his disputatio, Lefèvre claimed he had composed his apologia in a friendly spirit (benebole): Et hic nostrae discep-tationis cum viro quidem per amico benebole sus-ceptae finem facimus, appendix IV, ll. 873–874.
- 2503 aceti Adag. 1252 (Acetum habet in pec-tore), LB II, 506 C–D; Otto 9.
- 2504 puris “pus” used as a metaphor of malice. stomachi Otto 1697 (stomachus). Here used by Erasmus in the sense of “irritation, anger.” Cf. Adag. 2894 (Tacite stomachari), ASD II, 6, p. 548.
- 2509 epistola ... sexto 2 Cor. 6, 7. Lefèvre had translated διὰ τῶν ὅπλων τῆς δικαιοσύνης τῶν δεξιῶν καὶ ἀριστερῶν, “per arma iustitiae secundorum et aduersorum”; see his S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 27r^o. In his examinatio he wrote, ibid. f° 142v^o: “Vulgata aeditio: ‘per arma iustitiae a dextris et a sinistris’. Sic ex Paulo ‘per arma iustitiae dextrorum et sinistrorum’, verum quia perinde est ac ‘secundorum et aduersorum’ et haec forte clariora, loco ‘dextrorum et sinistro-rum’, maluimus dicere ‘secundorum et aduer-sorum’”.
- 2510 voces istas I.e., δεξιῶν καὶ ἀριστερῶν.
- 2511 nec admonitus mutasti Indeed, Lefèvre did not alter his translation of 2 Cor. 6, 7 in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV (Paris, 1516/7, f° 27^r), either in the translation proper or in his examinatio (ibid., f° 136v^o). Nor did he correct his mistake in his third edition, either in his translation or in his examinatio; see S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 21v^o, and f° 112r^o respectively. admonitus Erasmus Nou. Instr., at 2 Cor. 6, 7, p. 491: “a dextris et a sinistris”: Faber Stapu-lensis hoc loco mutat pro ‘dextris ac sinistris’, ‘secundorum et aduersorum’. Quod, quid sibi velit prorsus non intelligo”
- eiudem ... decimo* 2 Cor. 10, 16: εἰς τὰ ὑπερέκεινα ὑμῶν εὐαγγελίζεσθαι (Authorized Version: “to preach the gospel in the regions beyond you”).

ridicule ex vno aduerbio, siue mauis praepositione, ὑπερέκεινα duas voces feceris, ὅπερ ἐκεῖνα – neque enim aliter dicitur ὑπερέκεινα quam ἐπέκεινα, quod ἐπί saepe polleat idem quod ὅπερ – verterisque quae supra illa vestra sunt. Non mutas versionem, tantum in examinatione quod ante magis arridebat, quae ultra illa vestra sunt, vertis in quae ultra vos sunt et Graece loquendi regulam de ὅπερ, quoniam aliquis, opinor, admonuit palam esse falsam, cum ὅπερ κεφαλῆς Graeci dicant pro ὑπεράνω τῆς κεφαλῆς, omisisti in proxima aeditione. Quod omisisti laudo, quod unguibus ac dentibus alterum illud retines, quum plane ridiculum sit omnibus qui Graece sciunt, non laudo.

Atque item in epistolae ad Ephesios capitulo quinto, quum vnu omnium et Graecorum et Latinorum ex luxuria facis insalubritatem, nonne ex Apostolo medicum facis? Ac ne id quidem admonitus mutandum putasti. At finge ἀσωτίαν dici a σῶος, etiam si iuxta etymologicos a σέσωται dicitur, non continuo significabit ἀσωτός ‘insalubre’ sed ‘perditum’; et perdisti luxu dicuntur etiam Terentio. Tu videris ‘luxuriosum’ pro ‘libidinoso’ siue ‘effoeminato’ accipere. Deinde versus ad iocos certamen vocabuli relinquis grammaticis, quasi cum haec excutis non sumas tibi partes grammatici, et addis bellam facetiam, grammaticos diligentius exquirere vocabulorum origines quam philosophi caput Nili, opinor, vt eximas te a grammaticorum numero et in philosophorum ordinem asseras. An grammatici te in suum recipient gregem, nescio et an philosophi de Nili capite torqueant sese, tu videris. Vnum hoc scio magis ad rem pertinere, an Paulus hic intellexerit ‘luxum’ ‘frugalitati’ et ‘sobrietati’ contrarium, an insalubritatem medicorum curam, quam vnde Nilus caput suum proferat.

Rursum in epistola ad Titum ἐν αηρύγματι δὲ ἐπιστεύθην ἐγώ quod tu vertis: cui creditus siue commissus sum ego, non solum monitus non corrigis tam pudendum errorem, verum etiam conduplicas in posteriore aeditione, testans te reliquise veterem translationem et addens idem pollere ‘quae credita est mihi’ et ‘cui creditus sum ego’. Hic appello, mi Faber, conscientiam tuam, quum ista scriberes, non cogitabas quo risu lecturi essent erudit? An idem pollet Graecis δὲ ἐπιστεύθην et φῷ ἐπιστεύθην? Atqui ipse legis δὲ ἐπιστεύθην? Quanquam etiam si quis legat φῷ ἐπιστεύθην, ostenderam tamen eundem esse sensum sed Graecis duntaxat. Aut nihil refert Latinis vtrum dicas ‘commissus est mihi Petrus’ an 2518 dicant A B E BAS: dicunt C D.

2525 etiam B-BAS: et A.

2525–2526 Terentio A C-BAS: a Terentio B.
2534 medicorum curam B-BAS: deest in A.

2541 Atqui D-BAS: Atque A-C.

2541–2542 etiam ... legat BAS: si legatur A-E.

2542–2543 eundem ... duntaxat BAS: Graecis sensum hic eundem esse A-E.

2512–2513 duas ... ἐκεῖνα Lefèvre's annotation of 1512 runs as follows: “Vulgata aeditio: ‘etiam in illa quae ultra vos sunt euangelizare’. Abundat ‘etiam’ et potius dicendum: ‘supra illa quae vestra sunt’ quam ‘quae ultra vos sunt’ ... Praepositio enim ὑπέρ cum ‘supra’ significat accusatio iungitur, non genitio.”

Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 146v^o.

2514 verterisque ... sunt I.e., in: Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 29v^o.

2514–2515 Non mutas versionem Lefèvre changed his translation neither in his second - edition, Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 29r^o, nor in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 24r^o.

- 2515–2516 tantum ... sunt I.e., in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 140v^o and in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 115 p3r^o.
- 2515 tantum in examinatione This is not entirely correct: in his second and third edition Lefèvre also altered his expositio on this passage, see S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 140r^o and S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 115 p3r^o. But Lefèvre did not correct his translation; see n. ll. 2514–2515, Non mutas versionem.
- 2516 Graece ... ὑπέρ Lefèvre stated: “Praepositio enim ὑπέρ cum ‘supra’ significat, accusatiuo iungitur, non genitiuo”, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 146v^o.
- 2518 omisisti ... aeditione In his second edition, Lefèvre indeed omitted the rule about ὑπέρ (cf. n. l. 3608); see S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 140v^o. The third edition conforms to the second, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 115 p3r^o.
- 2519 vnguis ac dentibus Cf. Adag. 323 (Toto corpore, omnibus vnguiculis), ASD II, 1, p. 426: “A feris sumpta metaphora, quae dentibus, vnguis totoque corpore retinere solent, quod nolint extorquei”, with a reference to Lucian. Dial. mort. II, 4 ὁδοῦσι καὶ ἔνυξι.
- 2519 alterum illud I.e., the wrong translation, see the present apologia, l. 2514.
- 2521 epistolae ... quinto Eph. 5, 18.
- 2522 ex ... insalubritatem Lefèvre indeed translated ἀσωτία this way, see S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 39r^o. In his examinatio he wrote, ibid., f° 171v^o: “Vulgata aeditio: ‘Et nolite inebriari vino in quo est luxuria’. Sunt qui aeque dici malunt: ‘in quo est insalubritas’. Paulus καὶ μὴ μεθύσκεσθε οἴνῳ, ἐν ᾧ ἔστιν ἀσωτία. Siquidem ἀσωτία sit [sic, subjunctive] a nomine σῶς quod ‘saluus’, siue σῶς quod et ‘saluus’ et ‘sospes’ significat, recte ‘asotus’ ‘insaluber’ et ‘asotia’ ‘insalubritis’ interpretabitur”
- 2523 ne ... putasti Indeed, Lefèvre did not correct his translation in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 37v^o, nor in his third edition, Paris, 1517, f° 31r^o. Lefèvre expanded the note in his examination, see n. l. 2522, as follows: “An translatiūm sit, cum illud [i.e., ἀσωτος] ‘luxuriosum’ et hoc [i.e., ἀσωτία] ‘luxuria’ interpretatur? quod luxuriosi elonguidi et morbidi esse soleant, quippe qui cum in proprium corpus peccant, propriam substantiam prodigunt et dissipant. Sed hoc de verbulo certamen. Siue ‘luxuriam’, siue ‘luxum’, siue ‘insalubritatem’ proprie significet missum faciamus grammaticis, qui curiosius origines vocabulorum quam philosophi Nili caput inquirunt.” Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 164r^o. He retained this addition in the examinatio in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 134v^o.
- admonitus* Erasmus corrected Lefèvre in his Nov. Instr. on p. 533.
- 2525–2526 perditi ... Terentio Ter. Ad. 760 “adolescens luxu perditus”.
- 2529 caput Nili The expression “quaerere caput Nili” was proverbial for “searching for the solution of an insoluble problem”; see Lucan. II, 68; Hor. Od. IV, 14, 45; cf. Tibul. I, 7, 23–24. R. Häussler, Nachträge zu Otto, Darmstadt, 1968, p. 25. The source of the Nile was a problem of natural philosophy since antiquity; see e.g., Hdt. II, 28–34; Plin. Nat. Hist. VI, 181–182; Strabo XVII, 880, and H.W. Helck, s.v. “Nil” in Kleine Pauly IV, p. 129. The problem was only solved by discoveries in the 19th century.
- 2535 epistola ... ἐγώ Tit. I, 3.
- 2539 cui ... ego Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 55v^o.
- 2536–2539 non solum ... ego Lefèvre translates the passage in the same way in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 53v^o and in his third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 44 f4v^o.
- 2536 monitus Erasmus Nov. Instr., p. 578: “Quae credita est mihi: ὃ ἐπιστεύθην ἐγώ, quod Faber Stapulensis ita vertit: ‘cui commissus sum’. Demiror autem ei viro tam profundum obrepisse somnum, ut non agnosceret figuram Graeci sermonis, qua ita loquuntur: ‘hanc rem ego commissus sum’, quoties sentiunt ‘haec res commissa est mihi’, praescritim cum haec loquendi formula toties sit obvia in Paulo. At coniicere mihi videor, quid imposuerit Fabro nostro nimirum φ articulus postpositiuus, dandi casu positus, cum accusandi casus magis conueniret. Verum id factum est ob nomen quod antecessit eodem casu κηρύγματι, cum quo concordat φ, iuxta Graeci sermonis idioma, dissidens a suo verbo.”
- 2537–2539 testans ... ego Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, f° 212r^o–v^o; third edition: id., S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, f° 172 y4r^o.

‘commissus sum Petro?’ Sic enim doces. Quod tam insignite lapsus esses, ego somnum obrepentem vocau. Caeterum quod amice monitus ista non corrigis, rogo quo tandem appellabo nomine?

Iam eodem in loco carmen illud, gnosius vsque loquax, mala bestia, viscera pigra, profecto demiror tibi tam obstinate placere.

Praeterea in epistola ad Corinthios priore, capite duodecimo, quid opus erat annotare καὶ οὓς μὲν ἔθετο ὁ Θεὸς ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ verti posse et suos quidem posuit Deus in ecclesia? Quum palam sit οὓς illic usurpatum pro τούς, non pro οὗν, qui sermonis typus, quum plus decies sit obuius in Nouo Testamento, non debebat tibi videri nouus.

Huiusmodi permulta cum essent in tuis commentariis et quaedam indicassem, erat tuae vigilantiae in posteriore aeditione caetera ex te ipso perpendere et ridendi materiam adimere nasutis. Atque ista qui indicat et indicat amice putas hostem et tali dignum gratia qualem mihi in tua disputatione retulisti. Atque vitinam in totum ab ista vertendi annotandique prouincia temperasses, quae, vt dixi, non erat tui negocii. Maiora poteras, haec quantumuis humilis est, tamen vtriusque linguae peritiam poscebat. Qua quidem in re quantum valeas nihil attinet dicere, quum scripta tua palam testentur.

Rursum in epistola ad Philippenses, capite primo admones οἱ μὲν ἔξ ἐριθεῖς, οἱ δὲ ἔξ ἀγάπης potius vertendum fuisse ‘qui’ quam ‘quidam’. Nec animaduertis esse articulum praeposituum distribuentem, non οἱ postposituum accedente tono, vt ne dicam interim nullum omnino sensum existere si legas qui.

Iam illud tibi perpetuum est in examinationibus quod, quicquid codex tuus Graecus habuit, Paulo incontanter adscribis, quasi vero non alicubi varient Graeci codices aut nusquam depravati sint, quum in bellissimo quodam exemplari 2551 sit E BAS: deest in A-D.

2556 ista qui A-C E BAS: qui ista D.

2544–2545 ego ... vocau Erasmus, Nov. Instr., p. 578; for the whole text of this correction, see the present apologia, n. l. 2536.

2547 eodem in loco I.e., Tit. 1, 12, cf. Epimenides, De Oraculis, see H. Diels, Die Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, Berlin-Grunewald, 1951, I, pp. 27–37, especially pp. 31–32, no 1. For Erasmus' note on this passage, see his Nov. Instr., p. 580.

2547–2548 gnosius ... pigra In 1512 Lefèvre translated Tit. 1, 12 in accordance with the Vg version: “Cretenses semper mendaces malae bestiac ventres pigni”, Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, f° 56r^o. But in his expositio (ibid., f° 220r^o) and in his examinatio (ibid., f° 221r^o) he translated: “Gnosius vsque loquax, mala bestia, viscera pigra” (“Gnosius”, i.e., “Cnosius”, “Cretan”). Erasmus reacted to this in his Nov. Instr., p. 580:

“In quo sane demiror Stapulensem laborasse vt carmen carmine redderet, idque ad hunc modum: ‘Gnosius vsque loquax, mala bestia, viscera pigra’. Nec enim idem est loquacem esse et mendacem. Et vt hominem cibo dedidit ‘ventrem’ dicimus, non item ‘viscera’ dicimus.” In Lefèvre's second edition (S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7) he does not correct the note either in his expositio (f° 212r^o) or his examinatio (f° 213r^o), but now he even incorporates into the main text the modified translation of Tit. 1, 12 that he had proposed in his expositio and in his examinatio and to which Erasmus objects in this apologia, ll. 2547–2548 (ibid., f° 53v^o). All this remained unaltered in Lefèvre's third edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1517, translation: f° 44 f4v^o, expositio: f° 172 y4r^o, and examinatio: f° 172 y4v^o.

- 2549 epistola ... duodecimo 1 Cor. 12, 28. Erasmus deals with this passage in the Nov. Instr., p. 475.
- 2550–2551 annotare ... ecclesia Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 126r^o: "Vulgata aeditio: 'Et quosdam quidem posuit Deus in ecclesia'. Legi potest: 'et suos quidem posuit Deus in ecclesia' ... vocabulum enim ὅς quo hic vitur Paulus pro 'qui' et 'suus' vsurpari solet." Lefèvre did not alter this in the second edition, but he added: "alioqui cui id non placet, sequatur interpretis sententiam. Nolim enim in re tantilla contentiosus videri." Iac. Faber Stapulensis, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 120v^o.
- 2552 qui ... typus I.e., ὅς as a demonstrative pronoun. As a possessive pronoun ὅς is Homeric and poetic, but it does not occur in this function in the New Testament.
- 2556 nasutis "scorners, sarcastic critics". Cf. Adag. §81 (Odorari ac similes aliquot metaphorae), LB II, 253 C.
- amice* This is an allusion to Lefèvre's promise to deal in a "friendly" manner with Erasmus. See the present apologia, ll. 36–38 and n., and appendix IV, l. 573.
- 2556–2557 putas hostem Cf. l. 342 Aduersarium facis. In reality, however, Lefèvre had not called Erasmus his enemy at all. Lefèvre had only argued that the unfavourable terms in which Ps. 8 speaks of Christ, and which Erasmus took as an adequate description of Jesus' humiliation, were in fact labels applied to Jesus by his adversaries. See n. l. 1328; n. l. 2227; n. l. 347 and l. 1323.
- 2557 tali dignum gratia Erasmus is convinced he deserved thanks for the friendly tone of his criticism of Lefèvre in the note on Hebr. 2, 7 in his Nov. Instr., cf. ll. 114–122, ll. 196–199, ll. 317–324. Erasmus also found he had helped Lefèvre by solving the problem raised by Lefèvre's translation; see ll. 342–348; ll. 551–558; ll. 560–567 and ll. 731–735 and n. l. 732.
- tali ... retulisti* Erasmus received small thanks, he means, for his pains; see ll. 159–164 and ll. 471–478.
- 2558 ab ... temperasses "had abstained from".
- 2562 epistola ... primo Phil. 1, 16–17. Erasmus did not criticize Lefèvre's translation and explanation of this passage in his Nov. Instr.
- 2562–2563 admones ... quidam Lefèvre indeed said this in his examinatio, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1512, p. 174v^o. He translated: "Qui autem ex contentione ... qui vero ex dilectione", ibid., p. 40v^o. He did not correct this in his second edition, S. Pauli epistolae XIV, Paris, 1516/7, p. 39r^o and p. 167r^o, nor in his third edition, p. 32v^o and p. 136v^o.
- 2565 accidente tono "accentuated".
- 2567 codex tuus Graecus In his commentary on Paul, Lefèvre cites several readings from Greek manuscripts, without identifying them precisely. In 1752 these Greek witnesses were listed as a single item in the list of Greek New Testament manuscripts drawn up by J.J. Wetstein, Novum Testamentum Graecum II, Amsterdam, 1752, p. 12, nr. 13. Lefèvre's Greek sources were included in the same way in F.H.A. Scrivener, A Plain Introduction to the Criticism of the New Testament, Cambridge 1883, p. 264: "Manuscripts of St Paul's Epistles", no 13, and in C.R. Gregory, Textkritik des Neuen Testaments, Leipzig, 1900, p. 295, no 13. In 1908, however, Lefèvre's Greek manuscripts were removed from the list of New Testament textual witnesses, because they had not been identified; see C.R. Gregory, Die Griechischen Handschriften des Neuen Testaments, Leipzig, 1908, p. 187, no (13 in p). They are not recorded any more in K. Aland, Kurzgefasste Liste der griechischen Handschriften des Neuen Testaments, Berlin, 1963, except as "aus der Liste gestrichen", pp. 321–322. The task of identifying Lefèvre's Greek manuscripts of Paul seems feasible (he must have relied on manuscripts that were in Paris), but is still outstanding.
- 2568 incontanter I.e., "incunctanter", immediately.
- 2569–2572 quum ... ἡλπίσαμεν Cf. Erasmus' note in his Nov. Test. of 1519 ad 2 Cor. 8, 5: "Et non sicut sperauimus καὶ οὐ καθὼς ἡλπίσαμεν, id est, multo amplius quam sperare audebamus, ne putemus id accidisse Paulo praeter spem. Proinde nos vertimus 'quatenus'. Hoc loco ridiculum quiddam incidit in exemplari Corsendonensi, codice alioqui perquam eleganti, sed pulchro verius quam emendato. Scriptor, vt facile licet coniicere, cum reperisset a studioso quopiam annotatum quiddam in spacio marginali, credens a scriba praetermissum, transtulit in medium versum ad hunc modum, δέξασθαι ἡμᾶς, ἐν πολλοῖς τῶν ἀντιγράφων οὗτως εἴηται, καὶ οὐ καθὼς ἡλπίσαμεν. Siquidem is indicans ἡμᾶς in plerisque non addi, in aliis rursus addi, ascriperat haec: 'In plerisque exemplaribus sic inuenitur'. Ea verba scriptor inductus medio Pauli sermoni admiscuit." The Greek manuscript to which Erasmus is referring is minuscule 3 of the Greek New 2570 sic compererim scriptum in epistola ad Corinthios secunda δεόμενοι ἡμῶν τὴν χάριν καὶ τὴν κοινωνίαν τῆς διακονίας τῆς εἰς τοὺς ἄγιους δέξασθαι ἡμᾶς, ἐν πολλοῖς τῶν ἀντιγράφων οὕτως εύρηται, καὶ οὐ καθὼς ἡλπίσαμεν, videlicet compluribus verbis ex marginali spacio in medium contextum translatis ab illiterato scriba. Quod quo perspicuum sit et his qui Graece nesciunt, vertam: orantes ut gratiam et communicationem ministerii in sanctos acciperemus nos, in multis exemplaribus sic inuenitur, et non quemadmodum sperauimus. Palam est haec verba, in multis exemplaribus sic inuenitur, ab alio quopiam in margine fuisse annotata.

LB 66 Parum igitur tutum statim fidere codici tuo, nec protinus | erat pronunciandum nisi circumspectis omnibus.

2580 Haec, mi Faber, atque huiusmodi innumera si curasses proxima aeditione corrigenda, consuluisses honori tuo atque interim meo quoque, vel quod amicorum communia sint omnia, vel quod in simili negocio tam insignis error tuus mihi quoque fidem abrogat apud imperitiores. Nunc adeo nihil horum tibi curae fuit, vt videri possis non ob aliud istam aeditionem accelerasse nisi vt amicum incesseres. Sic enim omnino video quosdam interpretaturos. Quid ni enim huc torqueant reprehensionem tuam tam verbosam et accuratam, qui laudes etiam meas, quibus me in calce disputationis ornas vel potius meum caput demulces, sinistre interpretantur? En, inquiunt, tribuit vigilantiam, tribuit eloquentiam, linguarum peritiam, sedilitatem erga literarum studiosos; bonum virum nusquam audet dicere, hoc est, industriam et ingenium modo praedicat, cum praecipua laudum pars sit vita moresque laudati.

2590 Postremo non theologum me vocas sed theologiae professionis assertorem. Quid aliud est, inquiunt, theologiae professionem asserere quam arrogare sibi ac vindicare? Atqui nihil est quod mihi minus asseram quam theologiae professionem, etiam si pridem ita perpellentibus amicis quibusdam nomen dedi ordini theologicō. Vbi in scriptis iacto nomen theologi? Quis vnquam vel in familiaribus colloquiis audiuīt me mihi hoc nomine placentem? At tuas laudes quam plena, vt aiunt, manu effundo? Quam non parce? Quam candide? Sed tu fortasse metuebas ne praestare cogereris quod mihi tribuisses, iuxta vetus prouerbium ἐγγύα πάρα δ' ἀτην.

2600 Verum hic ipse nihil queror, plus satis est quod largiris, tantum molestum est istis datam esse ansam, vt huiusmodi nobis obganniant. De laudibus meis non soleo gloriari, nostram amicitiam in omnibus literis, in omni confabulatione iactare soleo. Hanc, vt appareat, gloriam aliquis mihi inuidit, cuius oratio te ad amicam istam disceptationem incitauit. En, inquiunt, fruere tuo Fabro, habes amicum cuius synceritatem, cuius modestiam, cuius sanctimoniam nunquam satis praedicasse tibi videbaris. Tot tuas annotationes vnica notatione retaliauit vere, vt ipse inquit, abunde.

2610 Sed expostulationis et querimoniarum iam finis esto. Quod factum est, his rationibus infectum fieri non potest. Superest vt vtrique communi malo quantum licet medeamur. Si tibi dolet quod responderim, mihi magis dolet quod huc sim coactus. Malebam hanc operam vel falsis laudibus ornando amico impendere quam veris rationibus refellendo. Et me duntaxat purgauī, non sum

2563 ἐρθεῖας BAS: ἐρθεῖας et A-E; fuisse A-C
E BAS: fuit D.
2565 accedente A B D-BAS: antecedente C.

2569 sint A C-BAS: sunt B.
2610-2611 quantum BAS: quod A-E.

Testament, now in Vienna, National Library, Gr. suppl. 52. It contains the four Gospels, Acts, the Catholic Epistles and Paul's Epistles. It belonged once to a convent at Corsendonck near Turnhout and was lent to Erasmus for his second edition in 1519, as he testifies on the first leaf; see F.H.A. Scrivener, A Plain Introduction to the Criticism of the New Testament, Cambridge 1883, p. 179; C.R. Gregory, Textkritik des Neuen Testaments, Leipzig, 1900, p. 128. Cf. J.J. Westerstenuis, ed., Nouum Testamentum Graecum, Amsterdam, 1751-2, II, p. 197 and H.J. de Jonge, ASD IX, 2, p. 191, n. l. 461.

2570 epistola ... secunda 2 Cor. 8, 4-5.

2579 nisi circumspectis omnibus Theoretically, a correct requirement; in practice, however, unfeasible, given the great number of mss. of Paul, many of which were still unknown and inaccessible in the 16th century. Erasmus himself used four mss. of Paul for his first edition (1516), namely minuscules 1, 2 (now 2815), 4 (now 2816) and 7 (now 2817), and one further ms. for his second edition (1519), viz. min. 3. Previously, he had used min. 69 in England.

2581-2582 amicorum ... omnia Adag. I, ASD II, 1, pp. 84-86.

2584-2585 videri ... incesseres For this suggestion, cf. this apologia, ll. 159-164 and ll. 471-478.

2586 verbosam The reproach that Lefèvre was verbose in his criticism is inappropriate, in light of the fact that the present apologia of Erasmus is about five times as long as Lefèvre's disputatio. Cf. this apologia, l. 264, where Erasmus already blamed Lefèvre for using too many words.

2587 meum caput demulces Adag. 1037 (Demulcere caput ... pro blandiri), LB II, 725 D-E. Cf. Ter. Heaut. 762.

2589 bonum virum "a man morally good".

2592 Postremo ... assertorem See appendix IV, ll. 576-577. Lefèvre, however, meant these words as a compliment and as a conciliatory gesture.

2594 nihil ... professionem Erasmus repeatedly dissociated himself from the ordo theologorum, usually because he disliked their ignorance and lack of education. Yet he often called himself a theologian, thus, e.g., in the dedicatory letter to More, preceding the Laus

Stultitiae, ASD IV, 3, p. 68, l. 23. See also Ep. 305 (the address), Ep. 497, l. 2, Ep. 507 (the inscription) and Ep. 1126, l. 200. On the whole subject, see H.J. de Jonge, in ASD IX, 2, p. 205, n. l. 685 and p. 143, n. ll. 619-620.

2594-2597 nihil ... placentem Cf. this apologia,

ll. 304-305 and n. l. 304.

2595-2596 pridem ... theologico Erasmus took his doctorate in theology in Turin on 4 September 1506. That he took it at the instigation of friends, as Erasmus suggests both here and in a letter to the prior of Steyn (Ep. 200, ll. 8-9), is nothing other than apologetics and false modesty.

2596 Vbi See the passage mentioned in n. l. 2594.

2597-2598 tuas ... candide Cf. the present apologia, ll. 49-50 and n. and ll. 56-57 and ll. 114-130 and nn.

2597-2598 plena ... manu Adag. 1016, LB II, 413 B-C. Otto 1050.

2598-2600 Sed ... ἄτη "But perhaps you were afraid that you would be forced to stand by and substantiate the praise you might have given to me, according to the old proverb 'make a vow, but the bane is nigh'".

2599-2600 ἐγγύα πάρα δ' ἄτη Proverb in Thales, Stob. III, 1, 172. Diog. Laert. I, 73. Adag. 597 (Sponde, noxa praesto est), LB II, 260 E-261 A. Leutsch-Schneidewin I, p. 394; II, 70. The paroemiographical sources read ἔτιχα, not ἄτη; see also the previous note.

2601 largiris Used ironically.

2604-2605 Hanc ... incitauit For this instinctu alieno cliché, cf. l. 40 and n., nn. ll. 2186-2188 and 2218-2219 and n. l. 2186.

2605-2608 En ... abunde Erasmus did receive such reactions; see the present apologia, l. 48 and n. But the way Erasmus is here flouting his feeling of being wronged is not exactly an edifying spectacle.

2608 ut ... abunde See appendix IV, l. 583.

2611-2612 Si ... coactus Cf. the present apologia, n. l. 77.

2612-2613 Malebam ... refellendo Cf. Ep. 627 from Erasmus to Louis Ber, Louvain, 23 August 1517, ll. 15-16: "Dispeream ni maluissem ingens volumen illo laudando quam refelendo occupare."

2613-2614 me ... tua Erasmus is suggesting that, unlike himself, Lefèvre had gone further than was necessary to "clear himself". Cf. ll. 27-33 and ll. 2235-2241.

insectatus tua, qua quidem in re, mi Faber, nolim te quid possim experiri. Si 2615 posthac sensero te talem qualem semper tum habui, tum praedicaui, casum hunc vnum vel fatis vel Eridi vel Atae Homericæ vel alii cuilibet deorum aut hominum imputabo. Sin pergis incessere amicum non amice, cogar et ipse meam de te mutare sententiam.

Sed bona verba potius. Confido te facturum quod et ipse opto maxime et 2620 magis ex re vtiusque, denique Christo longe gratius futurum est. In hanc partem habebis me per omnia facilem ac fauentem, in altera qualis sim futurus nescio.
 Bene vale, Faber eruditissime et, si pateris, etiam amicissime.

Louanii, nonis Augusti, anno MDXVII.

2625

APOLOGIAE AD IACOBVM FABRVM FINIS

2625 APOLOGIAE ... FINIS E BAS: Apologiae finis A B, Apologiae Desiderii Erasmi Rote-rodami ad insignem philosophum Jacobum Fabrum Stapulensem finis C D.

2614 nolim ... experiri For this threatening attitude of Erasmus towards Lefèvre, cf. ll. 755–756 and n. l. 755 and ll. 2219–2241.

2615 qualem ... praedicaui Erasmus indeed spoke of Lefèvre appreciatively; cf. ll. 49–50 and n. and ll. 56–57.

2616 Atae Homericæ See ll. 2219–2221 and nn.

2616 cuilibet deorum Cf. l. 78 deus aliquis.

2619–2620 quod ... est The grammar of this clause is surprisingly poor: Erasmus first uses quod in the accusative as the object of opto but then continues by using the same quod as the subject of est, as if it were a nominative.

2620 denique ... est For this conviction of Erasmus, cf. ll. 61–64 and nn. and ll. 1736–1738.

2621 nescio Cf. l. 2240 quid in posterum ferre possim, incertus.

APPENDIX I
ANNOTATIO IACOBI FABRI STAPVLENSIS
IN PSALMVM 8,6 (1509)

5 Sexto versu, minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, Hieronymus ex Hebreo: minues eum paulominus a Deo. In ceteris tralationibus habetur ab angelis, in Hebraica autem, quemadmodum et Dauid scripsit, a Deo. Hic recte, illic perperam.

10 Sed septuagintaduo interpres dicentes ab angelis veriti sunt dicere a Deo, ne plus homini quam par est tribuerent, non intelligentes hunc locum non intelligi debere de simplici homine, sed de Deo homine. Simili errore lapsus est qui epistolam Pauli ad Hebreos Hebraico sermonem scriptam, vertit in Grecum. Vtebatur enim vocabulo Paulus quo et Dauid, et a Deo dicebat.

SIGLA

1509 first edition, Paris, H. Estienne, 1509.

1513 second edition, Paris, H. Estienne, 1513.

1515 third edition, Rouen, P. Olivier for M. Angier, bookseller in Caen, 1515.

This annotation of Ps. 8, 6 is to be found in the first edition of Lefèvre's Quincuplex Psalterium, Gallicum, Romanum, Hebraicum, Vetus, Conciliatum, Paris, 1509, f° 14, and in the second edition of this work which was published in Paris, 1513, f° 10 (reprint Geneva, 1979). A third edition appeared in Rouen, 1515. In what follows, I will refer to these editions by their year of publication.

1513 and 1515 show only eight slight differences with 1509 (see the apparatus criticus). In two cases out of these seven it can be proved that the third edition, 1515, depends on the first, 1509, and not on the second, 1513. In these passages (ll. 30 and 67 in this appendix) 1515 follows the reading of 1509 and not that of 1513 (see the apparatus criticus). In the other cases, the deviation of 1515 is not sufficiently significant to contribute anything to the establishment of the relationship between 1515 and the earlier editions. It may be concluded that 1515 and 1513 both depend directly on 1509.

4 sesto versu i.e., of Ps. 8.

Hieronymus ex Hebreo i.e., in the Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos 8, 6, see Sancti Hieronymi Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos, ed. H. de Sainte Marie, Rome, 1554, p. 15; cf. Hier., Comm. in Ps., CCSL LXXII, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

9–10 qui ... Grecum The view that Hebr. was first written in Hebrew and subsequently translated into Greek was widely current in the middle ages. It can be found in, e.g., the Glossa Ordinaria, see K. Hagen, Hebreus Commenting from Erasmus to Bèze 1516–598, Tübingen, 1981, p. 21. It was, however, rejected by Erasmus, ibid., p. 7. Cf. Lefèvre (1512), appendix II, ll. 4–9.

11 dicebat The subject of dicebat is Paul.

Quomodo enim ab angelis diceret, cum hunc locum vbiique intelligat de Christo? Et de eo ad Hebreos dicat: sedet ad dexteram maiestatis eius in excelsis, tanto melior angelis effectus quanto pre illis differentius nomen hereditauit. Et cum 15 introducit primogenitum in orbem terre dicit: et adorent eum omnes angeli Dei. Quomodo igitur legendum est minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Sed quia cum in forma Dei esset non rapinam arbitratus est se esse equalē Deo, exinanuit semet ipsum formam serui accipiens. Idcirco recte dicitur minoratus paulominus a Deo.

Preterea ad Ephesios de Patre et eo locutus, constituens, inquit, ad dexteram suam in celestibus super omnem principatum et potestatem et virtutem et dominacionem. Quomodo 20 igitur minoratus iure scribetur ab angelis qui constitutus est super omnem principatum et potestatem et virtutem et dominationem? Sunt enim principatus, potestates et virtutes angelis superiores. Adde quod adiungit: et super omne nomen quod nominatur non solum in hoc seculo, sed etiam in futuro, ne credas eum 25 minorem thronis cherubim aut seraphim.

Ceterum Ioannes de Christo loquens: qui de sursum venit super omnes est et Pater diligit Filium et omnia dedit in manus eius. Qua igitur ratione qui super omnes est et cui Pater dedit omnia, minor asseraetur angelis?

Ad hec, si Paulus in epistola ad Hebreos scripsit minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, qui fit vt dicat omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, in eo enim quod omnia ei subiecit, nichil dimisit non subiectum ei? Et ad Corinthios: omnia ei subiecit sub pedibus eius. Cum autem dicit: omnia subiecta sunt ei, proculdubio preter eum qui subiecit ei omnia. Vides igitur non velle eum minoratum paululum ab angelis (alioqui ruit eius argumentatio), sed vbiique legendum esse a Deo. Quid enim 30 absonum ei qui paulominus a Deo minoratus est, subiecta esse omnia preter eum qui subiecit ei omnia, id est Patrem et diuinitatem ipsam, et qua paulominus 35 minutus est ab eo qui subiecit ei omnia, illi subiectum esse?

Vides etiam quomodo non passibiliter, non carnaliter diuinus Paulus intelligit 40 oues et boues et quod sequitur, sed viuifice et intellectualiter, vt par rationabileque est pro celestibus, terrestribus et infernis. Alioqui non colligat ex hac prophetia omnia ei subiecta esse, preter eum qui subiecit ei omnia.

At dicit forsitan quispiam contentiosus: minutus est paulominus ab angelis secundum humanitatem. Verum illum nosse oportuit Filium hominis hypostaseos et persone nomen esse, non nature. Sic apud Mattheum Dominus de se: 45 Dominus enim est Filius hominis, etiam sabbati. Et in Marco: vt autem sciatis quia Filius hominis habet potestatem in terra dimittendi peccata, ait paralytico: tibi dico, surge, tolle grabatum tuum et vade in domum tuam. Et statim surrexit ille et sublato grabato abiit inde coram omnibus. Et in Luca: et tunc videbunt Filium hominis venientem in nube cum potestate magna et maiestate. Et in Ioanne de se dicit ad 50 Nicodemum: nemo ascendit in celum nisi qui descendit de celo Filius hominis qui est in celo.

Si ergo puram naturam dicit, non hypostasin, quomodo dicit Filius hominis qui est in celo? Cum secundum humanitatem et in terra esset et loqueretur in terra et nondum concendisset in celum. Et cum se nominat Filius hominis, nos

55 illuminat ad intelligendas scripturas et prophetias Filium hominis continentis, non de puro homine, sed de se intelligi debere. Certum est igitur Filium hominis de persona intelligi debere et nullo pacto quadrate posse quod dicitur minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis.

60 Sed et de natura vide ne etiam id, paulominus ab angelis, non congruat. Legimus enim in Apocalypsi: dignus est qui occisus est accipere virtutem et diuinitatem et sapientiam et fortitudinem et honorem et gloriam et benedictionem et omnem creaturam que in celo est, et super terram et sub terra et que sunt in mari et que in eo. Omnes audiui dicentes: sedenti in throno et agno benedictio et honor et gloria et potestas in secula seculorum. Quid enim per sedentem in throno nisi diuinitas; et per agnum nisi humanitas designatur? Cui nichilominus omnis creatura in celo, in terra et mari dat benedictionem, honorem, gloriam et potestatem.

65 Qui fit igitur ut aliter quam Spiritus sanctus per prophetam locutus est, dicamus: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, qui adoratur ab omnibus angelis, et non potius dicamus, ut veritas habet, minuisti eum paulominus a Deo?

30 qui fit ut dicat 1509 1515: quomodo quadra-bit quod subiungit 1513.
34 alioqui 1509 1513: alioquin 1515.

40 Alioqui 1509 1513: Alioquin 1515.

67 Qui fit igitur 1509 1515: Quomodo igitur fiet 1513.

13–14 sedet ... hereditauit Hebr. 1, 3–4.

13 eius Lefèvre has added eius to the text of the Vulgate.

14 pre illis differentius The Vulgate reads: differentius pre illis.

14–15 Et ... Dei Hebr. 1, 6.

14 cum After cum Lefèvre omits “iterum”.

16 minuisti ... angelis Ps. 8, 6; Hebr. 2, 7.

16–18 cum ... accipiens Phil. 2, 6–7.

17 se esse The Vulgate reads “esse se”.

17–18 exinaniuit semetipsum The Vulgate reads: “sed semetipsum exinaniuit”.

18 paulominus a Deo Ps. iuxta Hebr. 8, 6.

19 locutus I.e., Paul.

19–21 constituens ... dominationem Eph. 1, 20–21.

21 ab angelis Hebr. 2, 7; Ps. 8, 6.

23 adiungit The subject is Paul.

23–24 omne ... futuro Eph. 1, 21.

25 cherubim ... seraphim These are types of angels.

26 qui ... est Ioh. 3, 31.

27 Pater ... eius Ioh. 3, 35.

27–28 super omnes est Ioh. 3, 31.

28 cui ... omnia Cf. Ioh. 3, 35.

asseraetur I.e., asseretur.

angelis Hebr. 2, 7; Ps. 8, 6.

29–30 minuisti ... angelis Hebr. 2, 7.

30–31 omnia ... ei Hebr. 2, 8.

31–32 omnia ... eius 1 Cor. 15, 26.

31 ei The Vulgate reads “enim” in stead of ei.

32–33 Cum ... omnia 1 Cor. 15, 26.

32 proculdubio The Vulgate reads: “sine dubio”, not proculdubio.

35 subiecta ... omnia 1 Cor. 15, 26. The Vulgate reads: “cum autem dicat omnia subiecta sunt”.

35–36 preter ... omnia 1 Cor. 15, 26.

37 qui ... omnia ibid.

37 illi subiectum esse Cf. 1 Cor. 15, 26 and 28.

38 diuinus Paulus Lefèvre means that when Paul wrote, in 1 Cor. 15, 26, that God subjected everything under Christ’s feet, he was giving a spiritual interpretation of oues et boues in Ps. 8, 8.

39 oues et boues Ps. 8, 8.

40 celestibus ... infernis A circumlocution for “omnia”, borrowed from Phil. 2, 10.

41 omnia ... subiecta 1 Cor. 15, 26–27.

preter ... omnia ibid.

45 Dominus ... sabbati Mt. 12, 8.

45–48 vt ... omnibus Mc. 2, 10–12.

48–49 et ... maiestate Lc. 21, 27.

50–51 nemo ... celo Ioh. 3, 13.

57–58 minuisti ... angelis Hebr. 2, 7; Ps. 8, 6.

60–64 dignus ... seculorum Ap. Ioh. 5, 12–13.

After dignus est, ll. 88–89, Lefèvre omits “agnus”.

68 minuisti ... angelis Hebr. 2, 7; Ps. 8, 6.

qui ... angelis Cf. Hebr. 1, 6: “et cum iterum introduci primogenitum in orbem terrae dicit: et adorent eum omnes angeli Dei”.

69 minuisti ... Deo Ps. 8, 6.

70 At forte rursum insurges: vbi habemus angelis, Hebraice Elohim habetur, quod nomen Dei plurale est. Quare 'diis' potius quam Deo erit dicendum. Nosse etiam oportet consuetudinem esse translatorum, siue vnice siue pluratiue nomen Dei ponatur, per singularem numerum transferre, vt psalmi 44 versu 9: propterea unxit te Deus, vbi Deus Elohim; psalmi 50 versu 11: cor mundum crea in me Deus; 75 psalmi 66 versu 6 post benedicat nos continuo duobus in locis subiungitur Elohim et psalmus 71: Deus iudicium tuum regi da, ab illo vocabulo incipit. Vides igitur quomodo Elohim singulariter transferunt, non pluraliter.

80 Et mysterium continet ea vocis pluralitas, non diuinitatis, sed diuinorum hypostaseon pluralitatem insinuans. Quo quidem sacramento nichil fuerit ab orthodoxe fidei integritate alienum, si hoc in loco exinanitus paulominus a pluribus, Patre scilicet et Spiritu Sancto, Filius designetur, quorum neuter carnem assumpsit, sed solus Filius.

85 Vnde insanii heretici Noetiani et Sabelliani et qui Patrem, Filium et Spiritum Sanctum in vnam hypostasin confundunt et eque Patrem et Spiritum Sanctum vt Filium natum et passum volunt, redarguuntur et eorum retunditur insania. Nam alioqui et Pater et Spiritus imminuti essent formam serui accipientes, aut Filius non esset parumper imminutus ab eis.

90 Quid igitur vetabit quo minus legere audeamus: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo, vt et veritas habet et Spiritus Sanctus per prophetam intonuit? Quare vos per Ihesum et hoc dulce et benedictum nomen oro, vt a modo in ecclesiis et congregationibus sanctorum psallatis sapienter: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo, gloria et honore coronasti eum et constituisti eum super opera manuum tuarum. Mendas codicum eluite et ad incudem locum beatissimi Pauli ad Hebreos revo- 95 cante, legentes: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo et paulopost: et eum autem qui modico a Deo minoratus est videmus, Ihesum propter passionem mortis gloria et honore coronatum. Audete, nichil vereamini, facessat vetus error. Ei vero qui lar- gitus est intelligentiam omnis honor et gloria per immensa secula. Amen.

FABRI ANNOTATIONIS FINIS

83 Sabelliani 1509 1513; Scabelliani 1515.

86 alioqui 1509 1513; alioquin 1515.

73–74 propterea ... Deus Ps. 44, 8.

74 cor ... Deus Ps. 50, 12.

75 benedicat nos Ps. 66, 7

76 Deus ... da Ps. 71, 2

80 exinanitus Cf. Phil. 2, 7.

83 Noetiani These heretics are named after Noëtos of Smyrna, who lived at the end of the second century. He is the father of patri-passionism. His doctrine came to Rome via the deacon Epigonus. B. Kotter in LThK VII, Freiburg 1962, col. 1018.

Sabelliani So named after Sabellius, an early 86 prius et 1509 1513; deest in 1515.

97 secula 1509; seculorum secula 1513 1515.

third-century representative of Monarchianism, a movement which attempted to maintain the unity of God but denied the independent subsistence of the Son. See ODCC, p. 929, sub 'Monarchianism', and p. 1218, sub 'Sabellianism'.

88–89 minuisti ... Deo Ps. iuxta Hebr. 8, 6.

91–92 minuisti ... tuarum Ps. 8, 6–7.

93–94 ad incudem ... reuocate "Put it back on the anvil (incus)", i.e., "renew its form", "reshape it".

94–96 eum autem ... coronatum Cf. Hebr. 2, 9.

APPENDIX II
ANNOTATIO IACOBI FABRI STAPVLENSIS
IN HEBRAEOS 2, 7
(1512)

Vulgata aeditio: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis. Sic habet interpres Pauli.
5 Verum id ex Septuaginta desumpsit et non interpretatus est quod dicebat Paulus.
Nam certum est Paulum hanc epistolam Hebraice scripsisse et in forma verbum hymnologiae Dauiticae adduxisse vbi Deus habetur, vt in expositione Pentapli psalterii super octauum psalmum, quantum Deus concessit, monstrauimus. Ergo quod dicitur ab angelis interpretis est, non Pauli, sed Pauli a Deo. Quare senten-10 tiam Pauli seruantes a Deo diximus.

SIGLA

1512 first edition, Paris, H. Estienne, 1512.

1516/7 second edition, Paris, H. Estienne,
1516/7.

1517 third edition, Paris, F. Regnault et J. de la Porte, 1517.

7 Dauiticae 1512: Dauidicae 1516/7 1517.

This annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 occurs in the first edition of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of the epistles of Paul, Paris 1512, f° 233 v°. The text of this annotation was not only altered in several places but also considerably expanded in the second edition of Lefèvre's commentary (Paris 1516/1517). In the third edition, Paris, 1517, the text of this passage as printed in the second edition was left unaltered. The longer text will be given in full in appendix IV. In the present appendix the text of 1512 is reproduced with, in the apparatus criticus, the changes that were introduced in this text, as far as extent in 1512, in the editions of 1516/1517 and 1517.

4 minuisti ... angelis Hebr. 2, 7 and Ps. 8, 6. Ps.
8, 6 iuxta Hebr. reads "minues eum paulomininus a Deo".

interpres The person who translated Hebr. from Hebrew into Greek. For further information about this interpres, see Lefèvre (1509), appendix I, n. ll. 9-10.

5 Verum ... desumpsit Cf. Erasmus, Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. ll. 14-15.

6 Hebraice scripsisse The view that Hebr. had been written in Hebrew was widely held in the middle ages. It can be found in, e.g., the Glossa ordinaria, K. Hagen, Hebrews Commenting from Erasmus to Béze 1516-1598, Tübingen, 1981, p. 21. It was rejected, however, by Erasmus, ibid., p. 7.
in forma "correctly".

7-8 Pentapli psalterii I.e., Lefèvre's Quincuplex Psalterium, Paris, H. Estienne, 1509; for the note on Ps. 8, 6, see f° 14; this note is reproduced in our appendix I.

Adde quod et pugnare videtur quod omnia subiecerit sub pedibus eius et quod nihil dimiserit Deus non ei subiectum et minor sit angelis. Et tota Pauli ex interpretatione subruitur ratiocinatio. Non igitur recte interpretatur. Dirigendus igitur hic interpres, etsi aeditio LXX interpretum causam erroris praebuerit excusabilem.

15

Interpres Pauli: ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν βραχύ τι παρ' ἀγγέλους, vbi potius vertendum fuerat παρὰ τὸν Θεόν.

FABRI ANNOTATIONIS FINIS

12–13 interpretatione 1512: interpretatione ab angelis 1516/7 1517.

13 interpretatur 1512: videtur interpretatus 1516/7 1517.

11 omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8. The Vulgate reads: “omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius”.

12 nihil ... subiectum Hebr. 2, 8. The Vulgate reads: “nihil dimisit non subiectum ei”.

14 causam 1512: causam ei 1516/7 1517.

13 interpretatur The subject is the translator (interpretes Pauli), mentioned in l. 4.

14–15 etsi ... excusabilem Cf. this appendix, l. 5.

16 Interpres See this appendix, n. l. 4.

APPENDIX III

ANNOTATIO DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI IN SECUNDVM CAPVT EPISTOLAE AD HEBRAEOS EX IPSIVS OPERE DECERPTA 5 QVAM IACOBVS FABER STAPULENSIS IMPVGNAT

(March 1516)

Minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis. Admonet hoc loco Iacobus Faber Stapulen-sis apud Hebraeos haberi minuisti eum paulominus a Deo. Atque ita prorsus indicauit Hieronymus psalmo octauo pro angelis, qui illis vocantur מַלְאֳכִים, 10 malachim, haberi אֵלֹהִים, heloom. Thomas refert hunc locum ad humanitatem Christi qui minor angelis factus sit non iuxta animum, sed iuxta corpus assumptum per quod mortalis et doloribus obnoxius erat, cum angeli nullis malis attingi possint.

15 Cuius equidem sententiam approbo, nisi quod prudenter accipiendum est quod dixit Christum secundum animam humanam non fuisse inferiorem angelis.

This annotation appeared in Erasmus' Nov. Instr., Basel 1516, Annotationes, pp. 585–586. In later editions the passage was altered and expanded. The changes will not be recorded here. For these changes, see A. Reeve, Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament. Galatians to the Apocalypse, Leiden, 1993, pp. 706–713. The title and final sentence of this appendix are taken from BAS, in which this passage was included as background information to illustrate Erasmus' apologia against Lefèvre; see vol. IX, P 58. It has also been published in LB IX, 67–68.

5 quam impugnat I.e., in Lefèvre's disputatio, i.e., the note on Hebr. 2, 7 in Lefèvre's second edition of his translation of, and commentary on, the Pauline epistles. That note is included in appendix IV.

7 Minuisti ... angelis Hebr. 2, 7.

7–8 Admonet ... Deo Lefèvre did so already in his note on Ps. 8, 6 in the first edition of his Quincuplex Psalterium of 1509. That note is given in appendix I, see ll. 9–10. He made the same observation in his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the first edition of his translation of, and commentary on, the Pauline epistles, of 1512. This note is given in appendix II.

8–10 Atque ... heloom Hier., Comm. in Ps., CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout 1959, p. 191.

10–13 Thomas ... possint S. Thomae Aquinatis... Super Epistolas S. Pauli Lectura, vol. II, ed. P. Raphaelis Cai, Turin and Rome, 1953, pp. 361–362. See also Erasmus, Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. l. 370.

Nam si nullus doloris sensus ad villam animae partem pertinebat, non potuit esse acerbissimus in Christo dolor, quem ipse tamen Thomas vult proximum fuisse cruciatibus damnatorum apud inferos.

Ac Faber hoc loco dissentiens a Thoma multis argumentis contendit a Deo legendum esse, non ab angelis, quae recensere longius sit nec admodum necessarium, cum liber extet formulis semel atque iterum excusus. Verum siue legas a Deo siue ab angelis, videtur idem manere scrupus. Etenim si de assumpto intelligentias homine, quemadmodum necesse est, non paululum fuit imminutus a Deo, imo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, quemadmodum ipse de se testatur in psalmis: ego autem sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectio plaebis. Nulla enim proportio naturae humanae ad diuinitatem. Ne ab angelis quidem paululum fuit diminutus qui vsque ad famem ac sitiim, vsque ad flagra, ad crucem, vsque ad mortem denique descenderit.

Proinde mihi videtur illud paulominus quod Graece est βραχύ τι, non ad dignitatis imminutae modum esse referendum, sed ad temporis modum quo versatus est Christus in terris, quasi dicas: ad breue tempus diminutus est ab angelis, quemadmodum interpretatur Chrysostomus et Vulgarius.

Neque vero refellit huius partis sensum id quod sequitur: gloria et honore coronasti eum, omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, oves et boues etc. Siquidem prius illud pertinet ad Iesu vitam actam in terris et passionem, hoc posterius ad glorificationem ad quam vt homo subiectus est. Neque vero prorsus hoc refellit Aquinatem, qui indicat paulominus bifariam accipi posse, vel vt pertineat ad quantitatem, sic enim loquitur, vel vt pertineat ad durationem.

Stapulensis in ius trahit interpretem epistolae, qui quidem quisnam fuerit incertum est, vt parum probabile sit ipsam epistolam a Paulo fuisse conscriptam. Sane sunt qui Lucam putent interpretem fuisse. Quam opinionem si recipimus, is interpres in ius vocari non potest, praesertim cum apud Hebraeos haec vox ἀλλοιμ, heloom, πολύσημος habeatur, quippe quae vtrouis numero singulari aut plurali Deum aut deos declarat, nonnunquam angelos aut homines etiam admiratione dignos. Interdum principes aut iudices vt illic: principi populi tui non maledices, et Exodi capite vicesimo primo: offerat eum dominus diis et applicabitur ad ostium, quo loco Hebrei diis interpretantur iudicibus. Et Chaldaica interpretatio sic extulit: adducat eum magister suus ad iudicem, quemadmodum annotauit et Capnion noster in Rudimentis Hebraicis.

Verum haec ad praesens institutum proprie non attinent, nisi quatenus exigit lectionis ratio. Proinde paucis indicasse sat esse duximus. Alioqui erant in hac epistola diligentius exutienda permulta quae non nisi verbosa disputatione possint explicari. Vnum illud addam, Hieronymum videri non admodum probasse quod haec proprie tribuantur Christo cum ait: hunc locum Apostolus in epistola ad Hebraeos super Christo interpretatur.

Et de autore eius adeo fuit dubitatum vt sero recepta sit a Rhomana ecclesia, quandoquidem in hanc vnam omnium nihil commentatus est Ambrosius. Et Hieronymus ait a nonnullis non fuisse receptam ob id, quod in ea nonnulla citarentur quae apud Hebraeos non inueniantur.

ERASMI ANNOTATIONIS FINIS

21 cum ... excusus This is an exaggeration: when Erasmus wrote this, the book in question had appeared only once, in 1512. Lefèvre's second edition appeared shortly after the publication of the Nou. Instr.

24 infra ... homines Thomas Aquinas, too, points out that Christ had been made lower even than people of the lowest sort, loc. cit., this appendix, n. ll. 10–13 and adds the same biblical proof-text, Ps. 21, 7, as Erasmus in the present passage, ll. 25–26, ego ... plaebis, by way of illustration.

32 Chrysostomus I.e., in his Enarr. in Epist. ad Hebr., ad Hebr. 2, 7, Migne PG 63, 38 B 1–7.

32 Vulgarius I.e., Theophylact (cf. H.J. de Jonge, ASD IX, 2, p. 92, n. l. 643), see his Expos. in Epist. ad Hebr., ad Hebr. 2, 7, Migne PG 125, 208 B12–C9.

33–34 Neque ... etc. Erasmus is referring to the passage in Lefèvre (1512), appendix II, ll. 11–13.

33 sequitur I.e., in Hebr. 2, 7 and Ps. 8, 6.

33–34 gloria ... eum Ps. 8, 6, Hebr. 2, 7.
omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8.

omnia ... boves Ps. 8, 8.

34 prius illud I.e., Ps. 8, 6a: “minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis”.

35 hoc posterius I.c., Ps. 8, 6b and 8: “gloria ... eum” and “omnia ... boves”. See this appendix, ll. 33–34.

36–38 Aquinatem ... durationem Aquinas, loc. cit. (see this appendix, n. ll. 10–13).

39 Stapulensis ... epistolae Lefèvre (1512), appendix II, passim.

41 Sane ... fuisse Erasmus mentions this theory because Luke is the author of two books of the Bible. He cannot be supposed, therefore, to have made a translation error. Erasmus' point here is that, on the supposition that Luke translated Hebr., the reading “lower than the angels” in Hebr. 2, 7 cannot be taken to be an error. That Luke translated Hebr. from Hebrew into Greek is a view of Clem. Alex. quoted by Eus.

H. E. VI, 14, 2. This theory was common knowledge in the sixteenth century because it was mentioned in the “argumentum” preceding Hebr. (incipit): In primis dicendum est cur ... in many editions of the Vulgate, e.g., that of Froben, Basel, 1491, and those of which Albertus Castellanus was the editor, e.g., Venice, 1511 and Lyon, 1524, cf. Erasmus, Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1622–1631 and nn.

45 illic Ex. 22, 28.

46–47 offerat ... ostium Ex. 21, 6.

47 Hebrei E.g., Abraham ibn Ezra (1089–1164), ed. A. Weiser, Perushe ha-Tora le-rabbenu Abraham ibn Ezra, Jerusalem, 1976, vol. 2: Shemot; and Gersonides (R. Levi ben Gereshom, 1288–1344), Commentarius in Pentateuchum, Venice, 1547, f° 81b.

47–48 Chaldaica interpretatio Both the Babylonian Targum (i.e., Onkelos, editio princeps Bologna 1482) and the Palestinian Targum (version, the Ps.-Jonathan as well as version, the Neofiti 1, the latter still unknown in the 16th century) on the Pentateuch interpret elohim in Ex. 21, 6 as “judges”, see J. Drusius, in J. Pearson et alii, edd., Critici Sacri, Amsterdam, 1698, I, col. 468, on Ex. 21, 6, and R. le Déaut, Targum du Pentateuque, t. II, Paris, 1979 (SC 256), p. 173, where Ps.-Jonathan on Ex. 21, 6 is translated as follows: “son maître le conduira devant les juges ...”

49 Capnon Johann Reuchlin of Pforzheim, Baden (1454/5–1522). In 1506 he published an Hebrew grammar with a dictionary, De rudimentis Hebraicis, Pforzheim, 1506; see H. Scheible in: Contemporaries, III, pp. 145–150. The note referred to can be found in De rudimentis Hebraicis, p. 55.

54–55 hunc ... interpretatur Hier. Comm. in Ps., CCSL LXXII, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

58–59 Hieronymus ... inueniantur Comm. in Is., lib. III, CCSL LXXIII, ed. M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1963, p. 92, ll. 47–49.

APPENDIX IV
DISPVTATIO IACOBI FABRI ADVERSVS
SVPERIOREM ANNOTATIONEM
DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI
EX EIVSDEM FABRI COMMENTARIIS
IN SECVNDVM CAPVT EPISTOLAE AD HEBRAEOS
(after November 1516 and before July 1517)

Vulgata aeditio: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis. Sic habet interpres Pauli. Verum id ex Septuaginta desumpsit et non interpretatus est quod dicebat Paulus. Nam certum est Paulum hanc epistolam Hebraice scripsisse et in forma verbum hymnologiae Dauidicae adduxisse vbi Deus habetur, vt in expositione Pentapli Psalterii super octauum psalmum, quantum Deus concessit, monstrauimus. Ergo quod dicitur ab angelis interpretis est, non Pauli, sed Pauli a Deo. Quare sententiam Pauli seruantes a Deo diximus.

10 Adde quod et pugnare videtur quod omnia subiecerit sub pedibus eius et quod nichil dimiserit Deus non ei subiectum et minor sit angelis. Et tota Pauli ex interpretatione ab angelis subruitur ratiocinatio. Non igitur recte videtur interpretatus. Dirigendus igitur hic interpres, etsi aeditio LXX interpretum causam ei erroris praebuerit excusabilem.

15 Interpres Pauli ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν βραχὺ τι παρ' ἀγγέλους, vbi potius vertendum fuerat παρὰ τὸν θεόν.

Verum hanc sententiam nostram hoc in loco non acceptat amicus noster Erasmus. Neque beati Hieronymi sexti versus octaui psalmi, quem sic interpretatur: minues eum paulominus a Deo, gloria et decore coronabis eum, approbat interpretationem. Sed tralatio Septuaginta, quae sic habet: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, magis ei placet et rectius hic haberet ab angelis quam illic a Deo. Quanquam in annotationibus illius psalmi plurimas rationes adduximus quas credidimus posse sufficientem eius rei facere fidem, nichilominus nulla malevolentia sed sola tutandae veritatis gratia sententiam fouentes.

20 Dominum nostrum, ob cuius honorem hoc defensionis munus suscipimus, supplices orabimus quo sic dicendis aspiret vt noster sermo sine offensione currens amico amicabiliter ac vere respondeat, et aperta veritatis luce omnibus proposit ad pietatis aedificationem.

Scripta eius in annotationibus huius loci interdum subiiciemus quo facilius legentes et eius mentem et meae assertionis et Hieronymiana interpretationis, immo propheticae intelligentiae defensionem intelligent. Quod si negotii arduitas nos cogat esse prolixiores non satis annotationis habita ratione, boni consulant lectores id necessitati tribuentes.

Primum igitur dicit me admonuisse apud Hebraeos haber: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo. Id ego ingenuo fateor. Deinde subdit: atque ita prorsus indicauit Hieronymus psalmo octauo pro angelis, qui illis vocantur Malachim, haber Elohim. Apertius Hieronymus, cuius verba sunt haec: in Hebraeo pro eo quod est ab angelis, qui dicuntur Malachim, Deum habet, hoc est Elohim. Et id tribuimus amico et sic habet veritas.

Mox subnectit: Thomas refert hunc locum ad humanitatem Christi qui minor angelis factus sit, non iuxta animum sed iuxta corpus assumptum per quod mortalis et doloribus obnoxius erat. At Faber hoc loco dissentiens a Thoma multis argumentis contendit a Deo legendum esse.

SIGLA

- 1512* first edition, Paris, H. Estienne, 1512.
1516/7 second edition, Paris, H. Estienne, 1516/7.
1517 third edition, Paris, F. Regnault and J. de la Porte, 1517.
1531P fourth edition, Paris, F. Regnault, 1531.
1531C fifth edition, Cologne, Eucharius Cervicornus, 1531.

- 9* Dauidicae 1516/7 1517 1531P 1531C: Dauiticae 1512
15 ab angelis 1516/7 1517 1531P 1531C: deest in 1512.
15–16 videtur interpretatus 1516/7 1517 1531P 1531C: interpretatur 1512.
16 ei 1516/7 1517 1531P 1531C: deest in 1512.
19–585 Verum ... Amen 1516/7 1517 1531P 1531C: deest in 1512.

This disputatio was published for the first time in the second edition of Lefèvre's translation, paraphrase and annotations of the Pauline epistles, Paris, Henry Estienne, after November 1516 and before July 1517, fo. 225v°–229v°. The title and the final sentence of this appendix are taken from BAS, in which this exposition was taken over; see vol. IX, f° 59–68. It was also reprinted in LB IX, 67–80.

In 1517, F. Regnault and J. de la Porte (Paris) published the third edition of Lefèvre's work on Paul. It contains the long addition directed against Erasmus in practically the same form as the edition of 1516/7 has.

In 1531 two new editions of the book were published, one in Paris, by F. Regnault, and the other in Cologne, by Eucharius Cervicornus. Both are only based on the third edition (1517). Readings in which the third (1517) and later editions (1531) differ from the second edition (reproduced in this appendix) are recorded in the apparatus criticus.

6–18 Vulgata ... θεόν This passage is almost identical with Lefèvre's annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 of 1512, given in appendix II.

- 6 minuisti ... angelis* Hebr. 2, 7, Ps. 8, 6. Ps. 8, 6 iuxta Hebr. reads "minus eum paulominus a Deo".
7 Verum ... desumpsit See Introduction pp. 25–26.
8 in forma "correctly".
13 omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8. The Vulgate reads: "omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius".
14 nichil ... subiectum Hebr. 2, 8. The Vulgate reads: "nihil dimisisti non subiectum ei".
16–17 aeditio ... excusabilem See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. ll. 14–15.
20 interpretatur I.e., Jerome.
21 approbat I.e., Erasmus.
36 dicit See appendix III, ll. 7–8.
37–38 atque ... Elohim Ibid., ll. 8–10.
39–40 in ... Elohim Hier., Comm. in Ps., CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout 1959, p. 191.
42 Thomas refert S. Thomae Aquinatis ... Super Epistolas S. Pauli Lectura, vol. 2, ed. P. Raphael Cai, Turin and Rome, 1953, pp. 361–362. See Erasmus, Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. l. 370.
42–44 Thomas ... erat See appendix III, ll. 10–12.
44–45 Faber ... esse Ibid., ll. 19–20.

Neque id inficias eo me contendisse multis argumentis a Deo legendum esse et probe mea sententia. Et quid Thomas sentiret neque me contempsisse neque tunc consuluisse, sed quid sentire viderentur eloquia. Neque ego in placita Thomae iuraui neque Erasmus ipse, vt qui toties eum coarguat, imo et eo in loco quem hic citat, qua ratione Thomae videretur Christus animo impassibilis nullisque doloribus obnoxius fuisse, quod nequaquam putat Erasmus neque equidem puto. Nam illi assertioni id aduersatur: tristis est anima mea usque ad mortem. Immo et id falsum arbitror angelos nullis malis attingi posse, quia iuxta eloquium et in angelis suis reperit prauitatem et illi dant aut daturi sunt poenas, vt et clamant in Matthaeo: quid tibi et nobis Ihesu Fili Dei, venisti huc ante tempus torquere nos? Et Petrus: angeli fortitudine et virtute cum sint maiores, non portant aduersum se execrabile iudicium.

Sed et angeli aeterna Dei visione beati si auersi fuissent, poterant enim, et ipsi obnoxii poenarum acerbitati fuissent, et maiorum quidem quam sint mortalium animae capaces. Et hanc contra se durissimam tulissent sententiam: discidete a me maledicti in ignem aeternum qui paratus est diabolo et angelis eius.

Hac igitur ratione passibilitatis parum colligitur Christum minorem factum angelis et maxime quo ad passiones corporis, de quibus ait Thomam dumtaxat locutum, cum poenae corporis tantae esse possint quantae eae quae sunt animae, quare neque tantae, quantarum angeli sunt capaces.

Quod igitur piaculum contraxissem si dissensissem a Thoma, nisi telis valentioribus vso? Quanquam et ipse non dissensi vt quem nunquam hac in re legissem, sed in eius sententiam non incidi. Neque Thomam arguo. Nam ex suppositione commentabatur legendum esse minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, sicque putabat Hebraice haberi. Verum illi qui Hebraice norunt, etsi alioqui Thomae addicti, non solum ratione doctrinae sed et habitus et vitae professione, ab eo hoc in loco dissentunt et Hieronymo et deinde nobis accedunt. Quod manifestissime is intelliget cui curae fuerit illam Psalterii nobilem octaplam legere, quam insignis vir multarum linguarum vtpote Latinae, Graecae, Hebraicae, Caldaicae et Arabicae gnarus, Augustinus Iustinianus, episcopus Nebiensis ordinis praedicatori, hac nostra tempestate aedidit.

Subsequenter adiicit Erasmus: verum siue legas a Deo siue ab angelis, idem manet scrupus. Sed quomodo? Si certe constet et definitum sit legendum esse a Deo, nullus amplius relinquitur scrupus, nequaquam legendum esse ab angelis. Nam si parum minutus est a Deo, angeli autem multum, sicut scriptum est: quis enim in nubibus aequabitur Domino? aut quis similis erit Deo in filiis Dei?, recte fit vt is qui parum minutus est a Deo, non minutus sit ab angelis neque quidem parum neque multum, immo multo maior, quandoquidem angeli multo minores sunt Deo. Quod et de Christo veteres Hebrei super id Esaiae, ecce intelliget seruus meus, exaltabitur et eleuabitur et sublimis erit valde, fatentur exponentes id de Messiah, id est de Christo Domino, hoc pacto: ecce prosperabitur seruus meus Messiah, exaltabitur plusquam Abraham et eleuabitur plusquam Moses et sublimis erit valde plusquam angeli superiores. Dilucidum igitur est non idem esse, si legatur paulominus a Deo aut ab angelis.

90 Sed attendamus qua ratione dicat eundem manere scrupum. Videtur, inquit, idem manere scrupus. Etenim si de assumpto homine intelligas, quemadmodum necesse est, non paululum fuit imminutus a Deo, immo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, quemadmodum ipse de se testatur in psalmis: ego autem sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectio plebis.

95 Id primum quod dicitur, etenim si de assumpto homine intelligas, quemadmodum necesse est, refutamus. Nam neque de assumpto homine intelligimus neque intelligi necesse est, sed intelligimus de Christo Domino qui est Filius Dei, quemadmodum sacer Paulus statim in principio dicit: multifariam multisque modis olim Deus loquens patribus in prophetis, nouissime diebus istis locutus est nobis in Filio.

100 Et de eius imminutione alio loco ait: exinanuit semetipsum formam serui accipiens et habitu inuentus ut homo, quemadmodum et ipsem Dominus ait, apud Ioannem, Nicodemo hoc pacto de seipso loquens: nemo ascendit in coelum nisi qui descendit de coelo, Filius hominis, qui est in coelo.

105 Ergo cum dicitur: quid est homo quod memor es eius aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum. Minuisti eum paulominus a Deo, absurdum esset Filium hominis aliter accipi quam sacra continent eloquia et relatum eum illic Filium hominis bis referentem, non accipi pro hypostasi sed pro natura vna hypostaseos, pro homine, inquam, assumpto, quem beatissimus Paulus formam serui appellat.

110 At quis vnumquam Christum et Christi nomen pro natura vna accepit? Etsi eorum quae de ipso enunciantur, quaedam ei ratione vnius naturae competant et 50 qua 1516/7 1517 1531P: quod 1531C.

64 possint 1516/7: non possint 1517 1531P 1531C.

111 enunciantur 1516/7 1517 1531C: enunciatur 1531P.

46 inficias eo "I deny".

52–53 tristis ... mortem Mt. 26, 38; Mc. 14, 34.
53 angelos ... posse Aquinas, loc. cit. (see the present appendix, n. l. 42).

54 et ... prauitatem Job 4, 18.

55–56 quid ... nos Mt. 8, 29. The Vulgate reads: "quid nobis et tibi ..."

56–57 angeli ... iudicium 2 Petr. 2, 11.

60–61 discidite ... eius Mt. 25, 41.

66 si ... Thoma See the present appendix, ll. 42–45 and nn.

73 illam i.e., editionem.

75 Augustinus Iustinianus Agostino Giustiniani of Genoa (c. 1470–1536) published his Psalterium octuplex: Psalterium Hebraeum, Graecum, Arabicum et Chaldaeum cum tribus Latinis interpretationibus et glossis in November 1516 (cf. R.G. Hobbs in: Contemporaries, II, pp. 102–103 and Allen, Ep. 810, n. l. 356). On p. B ii Agostino Giustiniani quotes Lefèvre's annotation on Ps. 8, 6 with approval.

77–78 verum ... scrupus Cf. appendix III, ll. 21–22. Erasmus writes: ... videtur idem manere scrupus. Some lines further down, in the present appendix ll. 90–91, Lefèvre quotes this passage of Erasmus correctly.

80–81 quis ... Dei Ps. 88, 7.

84–85 ecce ... valde Is. 52, 13.

86–88 ecce ... superiores Midrash Tanchuma, Toledot 14, edition, translation and commentary by Ets Josef and Anaf Josef, Wilna and Grodno, 1831, reprint Jerusalem 1974, p. 37b.

90–94 Videtur ... plebis See appendix III, ll. 21–26.

93–94 ego ... plebis Ps. 21, 7.

98–100 multifariam ... Filio Hebr. 1, 1–2.

101–102 exinanuit ... homo Phil. 2, 7. The Vulgate reads: "semet ipsum exinanuit formam serui accipiens, in similitudinem hominum factus et habitu inuentus ut homo".

103–104 nemo ... coelo Job. 3, 13.

105–106 quid ... Deo Ps. 8, 5–6.

106 Minuisti ... Deo Cf. the present appendix, n. l. 6.

107 relatuum The pronoun (eum).

109 formam serui Phil. 2, 7, see the present appendix, n. ll. 101–102.

quaedam alterius ratione. Vt id apud Ioannem: ego et Pater vnum sumus, ratione diuinae. Id vero apud Marcum: oportet Filium hominis pati multa et reprobari a senioribus et summis sacerdotibus et scribis et occidi et post tres dies resurgere, ratione humanae.

Si igitur in illo Psalmorum loco Filium hominis et id quod ipsum refert, intellexeremus de homine assumpto et non de hypostasi contra consuetudinem diuinorum scripturarum et intelligentiam Spiritus, irrationabiliter facheremus, quod nequaquam est admittendum.

Caeterum quod subnectitur: non paululum fuit imminutus a Deo, immo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, non versatur quaestio vtrum forma serui in Christo, siue homo assumptus, parum vel multum sit imminutus a Deo, sed an Filius hominis, siue, quod est apud Paulum, Christus Ihesus, qui exinanivit semetipsum formam serui accipiens, imminutus sit a Deo et id etiam quipiam parum. At quid Filius hominis, quid Christus Ihesus nisi Dei Filius, Deo coaequalis atque consubstantialis, qui, vt inquit Apostolus, cum in forma Dei esset non rapinam arbitratus est esse se aequalem Deo?

Quis igitur non dicet eum paululum imminutum fuisse a Deo ob formam serui acceptam in qua humiliavit semetipsum semper manens quod erat, vere Deus semper existens et insuper vere homo, quod non erat. Quomodo igitur stabit quod in contrarium adductum est, non paululum imminutum fuisse a Deo, immo infra abiectissimos etiam homines? Nequaquam sane id fieri potest. Verum et hunc sermonem, Christum scilicet non paululum imminutum fuisse a Deo, immo infra abiectissimos etiam homines, animose refutabimus tanquam impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum, tanquam Spiritui aduersantem et literae quae occidit adhaerentem.

Caeterum id prorsus prophetae aduersatur quomodo cunque ipsum interpretemur siue hoc modo, minuisti eum paulominus a Deo, siue isto, minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quem posteriorem interpretandi modum approbare videtur Erasmus. Nam ingenue colligitur: Filius hominis imminutus est infra abiectissimos etiam homines et abiectissimi homines imminuti sunt multum ab angelis, igitur et Filius hominis multo fortius imminutus est ab angelis. Si multum, non igitur parum, sunt enim haec pugnantia, quod nichilominus iuxta aduersantis sententiam intendit propheta. Nam iuxta Septuaginta aeditionem ait: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quam etiam approbat interpretationem. Et si multum imminutus ab angelis, tanto fortius multum a Deo. Subruetur igitur propheta quomodo cunque siue a Deo siue ab angelis interpretetur. Quare hic sermo seipsum elidit et falsum esse omni ex parte manifestat.

Et non minus eadem ratione propriae assertioni aduersatur, id quod subnectit hoc modo: ne ab angelis quidem paululum fuit diminutus qui vsque ad famem ac sitim, vsque ad flagra, ad crucem, vsque ad mortem denique descenderit. Si non ab angelis paululum quidem fuit diminutus, quomodo approbatur in propheta legendum esse: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Pugnantne paulominus et non paulolum, paululum et non paululum?

155 Verum id libens tribuerim, Filium hominis de quo loquitur propheta, qui vsque ad famem ac sitim, vsque ad flagra, ad crucem, vsque ad mortem denique voluntarie pro omnium salute descendit, non paululum fuisse diminutum ab angelis, quandoquidem ab angelis nullo pacto diminutus fuit, sed vt propheta ait 160 et cum propheta verus huius loci interpres Hieronymus: imminutus fuit et id quidem parum a Deo.

Sed id, inquit, de seipso testatur in Psalmis cum ait: ego sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectio plebis. Nequaquam id vult hic obiicitur, quod nec etiam ipsi Iudaei de puro homine psalmum intelligentes tribuerunt, qui id exponunt, ego sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectio plebis aestimatione hominum dictum, vt totum psalmum, vbi derelictionem, dejectionem et confusionem Christi sonare videtur, secundum aestimationem et iudicium sacerdotum, scribarum et pharisaeorum intelligamus.

Et cum Christus in cruce clamat: Deus meus, Deus meus, vt quid dereliquisti me, id aestimatione scribarum et pharisaeorum dictum est, quemadmodum scriptum est: quia dixerunt inimici mei michi, et qui custodiebant animam meam, consilium fecerunt in unum dicentes: Deus dereliquit eum, persequimini et comprahendite eum, quia non est qui eripiat. Ecce aestimatione eorum derelictus erat a Deo. Sed se revera non fuisse derelictum aperit in eodem psalmo, dicens: timeat eum omne semen Israel, quoniam non spreuit neque despexit depreciationm pauperis. Nec auerterit faciem suam a me et cum clamarem ad eum, exaudiuit me. Rursum cum in eodem psalmo ante dicebat: in te sperauerunt patres nostri, sperauerunt et liberasti eos. Ad te clamauerunt et salui facti sunt, in te sperauerunt et non sunt confusi. Si ex hoc intelligunt eum se dicere confusum, id etiam iudicio et aestimationi hominum tribendum est. Quod ex Esaia cognoscitur in eius persona dicente: corpus meum dedi percutientibus et genas meas vellentibus. Faciem meam non auerti ab 127 esse se 1516/7 1517 1531C: esse 1531P.

112 ego ... sumus Job. 10, 30.

113–114 oporet ... resurgere Mc. 8, 31.

116 illo Psalmorum loco Ps. 8, 5–6.

120–121 non ... homines See appendix III, II. 23–24.

123–124 exinanierunt ... accipiens Phil. 2, 7, see the present appendix, n. ll. 101–102.

126–127 qui ... Deo Phil. 2, 6.

129 humiliavit semetipsum Phil. 2, 8.

131–132 non ... homines Cf. the present appendix, ll. 120–121 and n.

135 literae ... occidit Cf. 2 Cor. 3, 6.

137 prophetae I.e., David.

138–139 minuisti ... angelis Cf. the present appendix, n. l. 6.

143 quod I.e., parum.

aduersantis I.e., of Christ.

144 ait The subject of ait is Erasmus.

150–151 ne ... descenderit See appendix III, ll. 26–28.

161–162 ego ... plebis Ps. 21, 7. The Vulgate reads: 'ego autem sum ...'.

163 Iudaei E.g., D. Kimchi, see The Longer Commentary of R. David Kimchi on the First Book of Psalms, edd. R.G. Finch and G.H. Box, London, 1919, pp. 97–99.

168–169 Deus ... me Mt. 27, 46; Mc. 15, 34.

170–172 quia ... eripiat Ps. 70, 10–11.

173 eodem psalmo This is not correct, see the following note.

173–175 timeat ... exaudiuit me Ps. 21, 25.

176–177 in ... confusi Ps. 21, 5–6.

179–182 corpus ... confusus Is. 50, 6–7.

increpantibus et conspuentibus in me. Dominus Deus meus, auxiliator meus et ideo non sum confusus.

Quis igitur non videt id quod versus illos 21 psalmi continuo sequitur: ego sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectione plebis, aestimatione illorum perfidorum Iudeorum dictum fuisse, de quibus continenter subiungit: omnes videntes me locuti sunt labiis et mouerunt caput, sperauit in Domino, eripiat eum quoniam vult eum. Et non omnino vniuersaliter hoc intelligitur, sed vniuersaliter de illis, Christo Deoque odibilibus Iudeis, tam perfidis scribis quam phariseis eorumque complicibus qui aderant. Nam et virgo Maria aderat, dilectus discipulus, Magdalena et mulieres Ihesum secutae quae multa compassionem et Deo et angelis grata pietate flebant super eum. Virginis autem cor gladio passionis eius confossum est et anima eius transuerberata.

Manifestum est igitur ratione infidorum illorum qui Christi crucifixores fuerunt, illa fuisse dicta. Et quomodo conuenit eum qui est primogenitus omnis creaturae et supra omnem creaturam dici vermem et eum dici non hominem, de quo dicit Apostolus: vnuus enim Deus et vnuus mediator Dei et hominum, homo Christus Ihesus? Qui sic homo est quod omnium hominum maxime vere homo et perfectione humana supra omnem hominem et insuper hominum veritas.

Neque Christus sua sententia in euangelio loquens se dicit vermem et non hominem, sed inquit: Niniuitae surgent in iudicio cum generatione ista et condemnabunt eam, quia poenitentiam egerunt in praedicatione Iona et ecce plusquam Iona hic. Regina Austri surget in iudicio cum generatione ista et condemnabit eam, quia venit a finibus terrae audire sapientiam Salomonis et ecce plusquam Salomon hic. Et apud Ioannem: ego sum lux mundi.

Et procedens ad passionem mulieribus flentibus super eum comparabat se ligno viridi, Iudeos autem et filios eorum ligno arido, dicens: filiae Hierusalem, nolite flere super me, sed super vos ipsas flete et super filios vestros. Et subdit: quia si in viridi ligno haec faciunt, in arido quid fieri? Et iterum apud Ioannem: nunc autem quaeritis me interficere, hominem qui veritatem vobis locutus sum. Hic ex sententia et in veritate se dicit hominem.

Aestimatio igitur erat humana et caecorum Iudeorum quod dicitur: ego sum vermis et non homo, qui eum non pluris aestimabant quam vermem, non pluris quam non hominem, cum esset plusquam Iona, plusquam Salomon, lux mundi, etiam angelis superior et homo caeteris etiam hominibus simul et verior et melior.

At esto, quispiam contendat haec verba, ego sum vermis et non homo, de salvatore dici et commiserationem erga Patrem praetendere. Haec certe commiseratio erga Patrem potius pro genere humano efflagitaretur ab eo quam pro seipso, qui haec volens pro omnibus redimendis patiebatur. Oblatus est enim, ut ait propheta, quia ipse voluit. Et nomenclature haec, vermis et non homo, magis humano generi quam Christo competit, nisi hae sumantur iuxta Dionysium Areopagitam secundum diuinam quandam anagogem et transcendentem intelligentiam in qua nichil infimum, nichil humile cogitari potest. Et quod nuncupatio vermis magis humanum genus deceat, dilucidum est. Nam et terrenum est et e limo terrae, de quo et vermes, plasmatum et rediens in terram depastio vermium. At Christus non terrenus. Primus, inquit eloquium, Adam de terra terrenus et secundus de coelo coelestis. Sed nec redit in terrae corruptionem et in vermium depastionem, sicut scriptum erat: nec dabis sanctum tuum videre corruptionem.

Et quod non homo magis etiam humano generi accommodabile sit, non ab re videtur. Nam quid est homo nisi in carne creatura ad imaginem et similitudinem Dei efformata. Faciamus, inquit, hominem ad imaginem et similitudinem nostram. Modo vniuersi, saltem quos praeuia benedictio non protexit, imaginem Dei et similitudinem in se corruerunt. Quare iam quodammodo non homines, comparati iumentis insipientibus et illis iam facti similes et ideo Deo dissimiles. Ergo si Christus haec ad commiserationem dicebat, potiore iure pro suo futuro corpore quam pro seipso, qui corporis sui caput est, dicebat.

Et quod nulla proportio sit humanae naturae ad Deum, id non efficit quod inde dicatur vermis aut non homo. Nam ea ratione et cherubim et seraphim vermes dicantur, cum ipsorum ad Deum nulla sit proportio. Et licet id verum sit quod humanae naturae ad Deum nulla sit proportio, Filii tamen hominis de quo hic agitur sermo, est proportio, nam identitatis et aequalitatis. Ego, inquit, et 193 est igitur 1516/7 1517 1531P: igitur est 1531C;

Christi 1516/7 1517 1531P: Christo 1531C.

206 Hierusalem 1516/7 1517 1531P: Ierusalem
1531C.

183–184 ego ... plebis Ps. 21, 7. The Vulgate reads: “ego autem sum ...”.

185–187 omnes ... eum Ps. 21, 8–9. The Vulgate reads: “omnes videntes me deriserunt me, locuti sunt labiis et mōuerunt caput, sperauit in Domino, eripiat eum, saluum faciat eum quoniam vult eum”.

187 hoc See the present appendix, ll. 185–187
omnes ... eum.

189–190 Nam ... secutae Ioh. 19, 25–26, Mt.
27, 55–56.

191–192 gladio ... transuerberata Cf. Lc. 2, 35.

194–195 primogenitus omnis creaturae Col. 1, 15.

196–197 vnum ... Ihesus 1 Tim. 2, 5.

196 et vnum mediator The Vulgate reads: “vnum et mediator”.

199–200 vermem ... hominem Ps. 21, 7.

200–203 Nineuitae ... hic Mt. 12, 41–42.

204 ego ... mundi Ioh. 8, 12.

206 ligno viridi Lc. 23, 31.

ligno arido See ibid.

206–207 filiiae ... vestros Lc. 23, 28.

207–208 quia ... fiet Lc. 23, 31.

208–209 nunc ... sum Ioh. 8, 40.

211–212 ego ... homo Ps. 21, 7, see the present
appendix, n. ll. 183–184.

213 plusquam Iona ... mundi Cf. ll. 199–204
and nn.

219–220 Oblatus ... voluit Is. 53, 7.

221–222 Dionysium Areopagitam According to Lefèvre, the works ascribed to him were by the first-century disciple of Paul, see Act. 17, 34. In reality, the works ascribed to Dionysius the Areopagite are fourth- or fifth-century forgeries. For the theology of Dionysius the Areopagite, see Gerard O’Daly, TRE 8, pp. 774–776.

222 anagogen A mystical mode of interpretation.

226–227 Primus ... coelestis 1 Cor. 15, 47. The Vulgate reads: “primus homo de terra terrenus, secundus homo de coelo coelestis”.

228 nec ... corruptionem Ps. 15, 10.

230 ad ... similitudinem Gen. 1, 26. Cf. Gen.
1, 27.

231 Faciamus ... nostram Gen. 1, 26.

237 nulla ... Deum See appendix III, l. 26. Erasmus used this as an argument for the immensity of the distance between God and the earthly Jesus.

238 cherubim et seraphim Types of angels; see e.g., Hebr. 9, 5; Is. 6, 2. They are frequently mentioned together in liturgical texts.

241–242 Ego ... sumus Ioh. 10, 30.

Pater unum sumus. Et alibi Apostolus: qui cum in forma Dei esset non rapinam arbitratus est esse se aequalem Deo, sed semetipsum exinanuit, formam serui accipiens in similitudinem hominum factus et habitu inuentus ut homo.

245 Sed nunc id videamus: vtrum quod usque ad famem ac sitim, usque ad flagra, ad crucem, usque ad mortem denique descenderit, sic in se Dominus deiectus et diminutus fuerit. Et si tum propter haec, tum propter alia improperia multa non negem Christum Dominum multum abiectum et diminutum Iudeorum opinionem et aduersarii sermone cui, mea sententia, non pertinaciter haeret, non 250 tamen ita res in se habebat. Verum ut ipse opera faciens quae omnes videntes conuertebant in stuporem, non ideo erat maior, sic nec omnia illa patiens ideo erat minor, sed et forte dicendus maior. Oportet, inquit, exaltari Filium hominis. Et si exaltatus fuero, omnia traham mecum. Ecce suam passionem vocat exaltationem, non dejectionem, nec in malam notam humiliationem. Sed cum haec pateretur, nunquid minus erat rex angelorum ac hominum? Quemadmodum Pilato dicenti: ergo rex es tu, ipse respondere dignatus est: tu dicas, quia rex sum ego. Verum haec omnia pro nobis miseris iuxta oracula pati debebat, et videri admirandus super omnes et videri abiectus et humiliatus, quemadmodum in Esaia scriptum est: sicut obstupuerunt super te multi, sic inglorius erit inter viros aspectus eius et forma eius inter filios hominum.

260 Si etiam philosophos interrogemus an vir fortis ut victoriam pariat populique salutem, quod ad flagra, ad vulnera, ad ipsam denique mortem sciens volensque descendat, an, inquam, inferior abiectiorque habeatur, dicent procul dubio quod multo etiam superior multoque honorabilior. Et an gloriosi martyres in tormentis crudelissime excogitatis poenas acerbissimas fortissime tolerantes, ideo minores erant et infra abiectissimos etiam homines? Immo maiores et gloriosiores ipsis regibus purpura, ostro, auro gemmisque fulgentibus, quorum iussu torquebantur.

270 Quid igitur dicendum putabimus de gloriissimo inuictissimo rege nostro, qui sua fame, siti, flagris, cruce et denique morte maximam omnium fecit victoriam et potestates hominiibus superiores deuicit, captiuauit elisitque funditus, qui et omnes homines saluos fecit se sequi volentes? Iudei et infideles illa ei improperant ut eius abiectionem et improperium. Nos autem qui misericordia eius fideles sumus nequaquam, sed exaltationem et gloriam ducimus et vere quidem ducimus. Nos autem, inquit diuinus Paulus, praedicamus Christum crucifixum, Iudeis quidem scandalum, gentibus autem stultitiam, ipsis autem vocatis Iudeis atque Graecis Christum, Dei virtutem atque sapientiam.

280 At nunc sequentia videamus. Subdit itaque: proinde michi videtur illud paubominus, quod Graece est βροχύ τι, non ad dignitatis imminutae modum esse referendum, sed ad temporis modum quo versatus est Christus in terris, quasi dicas: ad breue tempus diminutus est ab angelis. Sed quo pacto ad temporis modum quo Christus versatus est in terris; et eo tempore quo versatus est in terris diminutus est ab angelis? Cum Paulus dicat: et cum iterum introducit primogenitum in orbem terrae, dicit: et adorent eum omnes angeli Dei. Si omnes angeli iubentur adorare

285 eum in orbem terrarum introductum, non igitur eo tempore quo versatus est in terris diminutus est ab angelis. Et nonne etiam angeli ipsum in paupere tugurio existentem et in praesepe supra pauxillum foeni iacentem, vocant Dominum, vt ait, apud Lucam, angelus ad pastores: nolite timere. Ecce enim euangelizo vobis gaudium magnum quod erit omni populo, quia natus est vobis saluator, qui est Christus Dominus. Et hoc vobis signum: inuenietis infantem pannis inuolutum et positum in praesepio. Non erat ergo imminutus ab angelis quo tempore versatus est in terris, vt qui adoratur ab angelis et Dominus appellatur.

290 Sed an vocabulum quod paulominus Latinus interpres vertit apud Hebraeos et, quemadmodum propheta scripsit, notet tempus, inquirendum est. Illic veritas et Hebraica litera vocabulum habet meat, quod nequaquam significare tempus solet.
Vt alibi apud eundem prophetam psalmo 36: melius est modicum iusto super diuitias peccatorum multas. Vbi hic dicitur modicum, Hebraice habetur meat, quod opponitur ad multum et id quod dicitur diuitias multas, et perspicuum est non significare tempus. Et cum in Geneseos 24 dicitur: pauxillum aquae michi ad sor-bendum preabe de hydria, et 43: reuertimini et emite nobis pauxillum escarum, et eodem numero: deferte viro munera modicum mellis et modicum resinae, vbi his in locis dicitur pauxillum et modicum, semper Hebraice habetur dictio meat nequaquam tempus significans.

305 Manifestum igitur quod et in illo octauo psalmi versiculo, quem iuxta aeditionem Septuaginta verterunt minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, eadem dictio meat non significat tempus. Quare neque $\beta\alpha\chi\mu$ τι neque paulominus, quae dictionem 259 inglorius 1516/7; ingloriosus 1517 1531P 1531C.

263 habeatur 1516/7 1517 1531C: habetur 1531P.
284 adorent 1516/7 1517 1531C: adorant 1531P.
284–285 adorare eum 1516/7 1517 1531C: adorare

1531P.
302 dictio 1516/7 1517 1531C: dicti 1531P.
306 neque paulominus 1516/7 1517 1531C: paulo-minus 1531P.

242–244 qui ... homo Phil. 2, 6–7.
245–246 usque ... descenderit See appendix III,
ll. 27–28.
249 cui ... haeret The meaning of this clause is not clear. One possible reading is: “to which, in my opinion, he (Erasmus) does not keep consistently”. Erasmus himself, in his Summa of this apologia, see appendix V, ll. 138–139, interpretes Lefèvre's words as follows: pericu-lum denunciat si meis dictis pertinaciter haer-erem.
252 Oportet ... hominis Ioh. 3, 14. The Vulgate reads: “exaltari oportet Filium hominis”.
253 Et ... traham Ioh. 12, 32. The Vulgate reads: “et ego, si exaltatus fuero a terra, omnia traham ad me ipsum.”
256 ergo ... tu Ioh. 18, 37.
 tu ... ego Ioh. 18, 37.
259–260 sicut ... hominum Is. 52, 14.
275–277 Nos ... sapientiam 1 Cor. 1, 23– 24.

277 virtutem atque sapientiam The Vulgate reads:
“virtutem et Dei sapientiam”.
278–281 proinde ... angelis See appendix III,
ll. 29–31.
283–284 et ... Dei Hebr. 1, 6.
287 Dominum See the present appendix, II.
289–290 and n. ll. 288–291.
288–291 nolite ... praesepio Lc. 2, 10–12.
289–290 vobis ... hoc. The Vulgate reads: “vobis hodie saluator qui est Christus Dominus in ciuitate Dauid. Et hoc”.
294 propheta I.e., David.
295 meat I.e., $\beta\alpha\chi\mu$, meat, “a little”.
296–297 melius ... multas Ps. 36, 16.
299–300 pauxillum ... hydria Gen. 24, 17.
300 reuertimini ... escarum Gen. 43, 2.
301 deferte ... resinae Gen. 43, 11. The Vulgate reads: “... modicum resinae et mellis”.
306 quae I.e., “dictiones”. The feminine gender of this supposed noun explains the feminine gender of the following illa and ista.

illam meat, illa apud Graecos, ista apud nos interpretantur, tempus indicabunt. Caeterum cum vocabula 'multum', 'parum' et similia iunguntur vocabulis auctionem diminutionem designantibus, nequaquam significare solent tempus. Hic autem paulominus iungitur vocabulo minuisti quod imminutionem significat. Secus autem esset si iungeretur particulae designanti tempus.

Sed et interpres Hebraeorum nichil in expositione huius versus de temporis conditione intelligunt, ut Daud Quinchi, commendatus apud eos expositor, exponens id, minuisti eum paulominus ab Elohim. Ab Elohim, inquit, id est ab angelis, ob id quod hominis anima angelicae conditionis est. Nam corpus non est, perinde ac neque angeli. Et imminutio ipsa prouenit quia cum corpore est. Ecce, quomodo haec imminutionis paucitas, Hebraeorum etiam sententia, non tempus, sed dignitatis imminutae modum respicit. Et inter Hebraeos eius sententia, qui circa linguae Hebraicae et vocabulorum Hebraicorum proprietatem suo tempore probatur fuisse vigilantissimus. Verum ipse carnaliter et passibiliter de simplici homine hunc locum intelligebat. Quem si viuificasset gratia Christi et intelligentia Spiritus ut hunc octaui psalmi sextum versiculum de Verbo et Filio Dei imminuto ob carnis, id est humanitatis assumptionem, intellexisset, non interpretatus fuisset hic: Elohim, id est Malachim, sed potius ita in analogia dixisset: minuisti eum paulominus ab Elohim, id est a Deo, ob id quod Verbum et Filius Dei diuinae est conditionis eiusdemque cum Deo naturae. Nam creatura non est perinde ac neque Deus. Et imminutio ipsa prouenit, quia cum humanitate est atque in eadem hypostasi cum creatura. Et sic qui non litera sed Spiritu ducuntur, exponunt fideles.

At Septuaginta dicentes ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν βραχύ τι παρ' ἀγγέλους id volunt et βραχύ τι, quod dicimus paulominus, significare temporis modum paruumque tempus. Non crediderim, nam βραχύ τι apud Graecos et linguae quidem peritos Graecos non temporis, sed potius dignitaris aestimationisque modum dicit. Eu-statius enim id Homericum exponens Iliados Iota: δέκα δὲ χρυσοῖ τάλαντα, ait, εἰ γὰρ περὶ τοῦ ταλάντου τῶν Ἐλλήνων ἔστι, βραχύ τι ἔστι. Si, inquit, de talento Graecorum est, exiguum quippiam est. Ecce brachy ti, quid exiguum aestimatione, valore, dignitate significans.

Et equidem arbitror Septuaginta si tempus indicare voluissent, potius dixisse επ' ὀλίγον, quod apud philosophos frequenter paucum tempus significat, aut μικρόν, quod manifeste in sacris literis paruum tempus significare dinoscitur, ut id apud Ioannem: modicum et non videbitis me et iterum modicum et videbitis me. Ecce in hoc loco, vbi dicitur μικρόν, nos habemus modicum. Aut dixissent ἡλάττωσας ταχύ, quod quidem vocabulum ταχύ cognoscitur paruam moram designare, ut psalmo 36: sicut foenum velociter arescent et quemadmodum olera herbarum cito decident. Quod hic dicitur velociter et cito, Septuaginta dicunt ταχύ. Si autem dixissent ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν ταχύ παρ' ἀγγέλους, sic verti potuisset: 'minuisti eum cito ab angelis', atque ita praebuissent temporis intelligentiam. Verum nec sic dixerunt, nec temporis intelligentiam insinuare voluerunt, quam nec apud Hebraeos inueniebant.

350 Sed quid dicemus de Chrysostomo et Vulgario? Id sane: optimum et doctissimum Chrysostomum sequutum fuisse Athanasiū; Vulgarium vero sequutum vtrumque, qui tres non nisi vñus sunt, et Septuaginta praebuisse erroris causam, cum dixerint ab angelis vbi a Deo fuerat dicendum. Athanasius et deinde Chrysostomus et Vulgarius crediderunt sic, id est ab angelis, ex Hebraeo haberi et accommodarunt vtcunque potuerunt literae Septuaginta interpretum intelligentiam. Et cum illam imminutionem ab angelis, vt dignitatis modum dicit, accommodate Christo non possent, pressi difficultate intelligentiae ad id, vt dictio βραχύ τι breue tempus significaret confugerunt, vt Christus diminutus ab angelis breui tempore, vt quo mortalem degeret vitam, diceretur. Quod neque oportebat neque verum est, vt iam quoque supra ostensum est sufficienter. Et aperte insuper euangelia et prophetae declarant. Nam Christus versatus in terris nunquam dixit ullum se maiorem, nisi Patrem. Vado, inquit, ad Patrem, quia Pater maior me est. Vt vel sic intelligamus eum dumtaxat imminutum et parum quidem a Deo, non autem ab angelis. Et Ioannes, praecursor Domini, de Christo cum in terris versaretur dicebat: qui de sursum venit super omnes est, qui de terra est de terra loquitur. Si super omnes, certe super angelos et nequaquam imminutus ab angelis. Et Esaias: parvulus enim, inquit, natus est nobis et filius datus est nobis et factus est principatus super humerum eius et vocabitur nomen eius admirabilis, consiliarius, Deus, fortis, pater futuri saeculi, princeps pacis. Et iterum: ecce virgo concipiet et pariet filium et vocabitur nomen eius Emmanuel quod interpretatur Matthaeus nobiscum Deus.

365

370

Ecce igitur nomina Christi vel in cunis vagientis ex primo oraculo, consiliarius, Deus, fortis, pater futuri saeculi, princeps pacis, et ex secundo, filius virginis et 312 interpretes 1516/7 1517 1531P: interpres 1531C.

313 Quinchi 1516/7 1517 1531C: Quimihī 1531P.

327 ac neque 1516/7 1517 1531C: atque 1531P.

330–331 volunt et 1516/7 1517 1531C: volunt 1531P.

340 dinoscitur 1516/7: dignoscitur 1517 1531P
1531C.

341 et iterum 1516/7 1517 1531C: iterum 1531P.

367 Esaias 1516/7 1517 1531P: Isaias 1531C.

313–316 David ... est David Quinchi (Kimchi, c. 1160–1235), op. cit. (the present appendix, n. l. 163), p. 52.

320 ipse Kimchi.

327 perinde ... Deus “no more than God (is a creature)”.

330 ἡλάττωσας ... ἀγγέλους Ps. 8, 6 in the Septuaginta.

334–335 δέκα ... τι ἔστι. See Eust., Comm. in Hom. II. I. I. 122, ed. M. van der Valk, vol. 2, Leiden, 1976, p. 673, ll. 1–6.

341–342 modicum ... me Iob. 16, 16.

341 modicum et non The Vulgate reads: “modicum et iam non”.

344–345 foenum ... decident Ps. 36, 2.

350 Sed ... Vulgario Cf. appendix III, ll. 31–32 and n. Cf. Erasmus, Annot. in NT, ad Hebr. 2, 7, LB VI 988 F: “... Vulgarium et Athanasium duos facit cum commentarii in epistolas Pauli, qui circumferuntur versi a quodam priore S. Balbinac, Vulgari sint, seu potius Theophylacti Bulgariensis Episcopi, non Athanasi. Quod protinus deprehender qui Graeca contulerit.” 351 Athanasium Expos. in Ps., viii, Migne PG 27, 81 C4–8.

352–353 Septuaginta ... dicendum See the Apol. ad Fabr. Stap., n. ll. 14–15.

356 dicit The subject is Erasmus.

362–363 Vado ... est Iob. 14, 28.

365–366 qui ... loquitur Iob. 3, 31. The Vulgate reads: “qui desursum venit supra (super) omnes est, qui est de terra de terra est et de terra loquitur”.

367–369 parvulus ... pacis Is. 9, 6.

369–370 ecce ... Emmanuel Is. 7, 14.

371 nobiscum Deus Mt. 1, 23.

nobiscum Deus. Non est igitur nomen eius in terris id: minor angelis siue minutus ab angelis, sed Deus nobiscum et angelorum Deus ac Dominus cui sit honor et gloria. Quod autem insuper adiicitur: neque vero refellit huius partis sensum id quod sequitur: gloria et honore coronasti eum, omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, siquidem illud pertinet ad Ihesu vitam actam in terris et passionem, hoc posterius ad glorificationem ad quam ut homo subiectus est, etsi secunda particula illi intelligentiae etiam non aduersaretur, veritas tamen, vt iam abunde monstratum est, illius particulae eam intelligentiam quam nichilominus praetendit defendere, id est Christum in hoc mundo minoratum fuisse ab angelis, prorsus eliminat penitusque refellit. Et si quis diligenter perpendere velit, autumo et sequentem et praecedentem particulam illi intelligentiae qua diceretur Filius hominis imminutus ab angelis aduersari, praecedentem quidem qua dicitur: quid est homo quod memor es eius aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum. Nam caeterorum hominum non est nisi quaedam Dei memoria et, vt sic dicam, absentia quaedam, quod id insinuat: quid est homo quod memor es eius, siquidem memoria absentium est. Filii autem hominis, id est Christi, iam visitatio et praesentia vnionis est et tantae quidem vnionis vt ea sit hypostatica et qua nulla maior esse potest. Quod et id insinuat, aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum. Et huiusmodi Dei visitatio, praesentia, vno, non hominem minuit sed sic etiam eleuat super omnia vt paulominus minutus sit a Deo. Et minui paulominus a Deo est super omnia alia exaltari et omnia alia illi subiecta esse. In eo enim, ait Apostolus, quod omnia ei subiecit, nichil dimisit non subiectum ei praeter eum qui subiecit ei omnia.

Et de illa visitatione, vnone et a Diuinitate appraehensione circa finem huius capititis subdit Apostolus: nusquam enim angelos appraehendit, sed semen Abrahae appraehendit, quod quidem Abrahae semen alio loco interpretatur qui est Christus. Sed nec vllum alium hominum appraehendit, proinde dicit Paulus ad Galatas: Abrahae dictae sunt promissiones et semini eius, non dicit: et seminibus, sed quasi in uno et semini tuo qui est Christus. Et cum Deus angelos nusquam appraehenderit, neque ea sit ad eos diuinac visitationis appropinquatio qua maior esse non potest, intelligitur iam quaedam Dei ab angelis distantia, hominis autem qui Christus est nulla, cum eam ad Deum habeat approximationem et vnionem qua creaturae ad Deum et cum Deo nulla potest esse maior. Praecedens igitur particula manifeste declarat iis qui Spiritus intelligentiam sequi possunt, non esse consequenter legendum minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, sed legendum a Deo.

Sed etiam si in hoc mundo gloria et honore coronatus est et omnia ei subiecta fuerunt, nonne secunda particula illius octaui versus etiam primae particulae refellit intelligentiam qua interpretaretur minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Sed nonne is qui a Deo in hoc mundo rex gentium, haeres et possessor terminorum terrae constituitur gloria et honore coronatur? Cum autem Christus in hoc mundo talis fuerit (ego, inquit, constitutus sum rex ab eo super Sion montem sanctum eius, praedicans praeceptum eius), certe in hoc mundo gloria et honore p[re]a omnibus etiam regibus terrae a Deo coronatus est.

Cui enim regum terrae aliquando dixit Deus: postula a me et dabo tibi gentes haereditatem tuam et possessionem tuam terminos terrae? Quod si tunc mortalium oculorum infirmitas cognosci non permittebat, cognoscebant tamen angeli et prophetae et sancti Dei. Exulta satis, inquit Zacharias, filia Sion, iubila, filia Hierusalem. Ecce, rex tuus veniet tibi, iustus et saluator. Et Ioannes: et vidimus gloriam eius, gloriam quasi vngeniti a Patre. Qui pauper aspectui hominum apparet, sed diues super omnes aspectibus angelorum ac sanctorum. Quem ut vidit Petrus in sua gloria aut potius gloriae suae adumbratione transfiguratum, facie tanquam sole fulgida et vestimentis candidioribus niue, prae admiratione gloriae in ἐκστάσει factus dixit: Domine, bonum est nos hic esse. Si vis, faciamus hic tria tabernacula, tibi vnum, Moysi vnum et Heliae vnum. Et cum Christus in terris clamaret: Pater, clarifica nomen tuum, venit vox de coelo dicens: et clarificauit et iterum clarificabo. Quae vniuersa gloriam et honorem eius in terra significant, exuperantem etiam omnem gloriam et omnem honorem omnium regum terrae. Et cum fuerit rex a Deo constitutus in tanto honore, clarificatione et gloria, quid nisi intelligamus constitutum fuisse super opera manuum eius et omnia fuisse ei in terra subiecta? Quod satis innuit diuinus Christi praeco apud Ioannem dicens: Pater diligit Filium et omnia dedit in manu eius. Et Paulus in hac epistola: non enim, inquit, angelis subiecit Deus orbem terrae futurum de quo loquimur, sed vult orbem terrae futurum ei subiectum esse, de quo scriptum est: omnia subiecisti sub pedibus eius, et is procul dubio est Christus. Et orbis terrae futurus intelligitur orbis a Christi Domini aduentu, ut ait Esaias, et vocabitur princeps pacis, pater futuri seculi.

Et non solum orbis terrae subiectus fuit Christo, sed et omnia illi fuisse subiecta ipse mirificis in terra operibus declarauit, caecos a nativitate illumina-

405 cum Deo 1516/7 1517 1531C: Deo 1531P.

419–420 Hierusalem 1516/7 1517 1531P: Ierusalem

1531C.

426 Moysi 1516/7 1517 1531C: Mosi 1531P.

376–379 neque ... est See appendix III, ll. 33–36.

377 gloria ... eum Hebr. 2, 7; Ps. 8, 6.

377 omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8; Ps. 8, 8.

377–378 eius, siquidem illud Erasmus writes: eius, oves et boues etc. Siquidem prius illud (appendix III, l. 34).

381 praetendit The subject is Erasmus.

385–386 quid ... eum Ps. 8, 5.

394–395 quod ... subiectum ei Hebr. 2, 8.

395 praeter ... omnia 1 Cor. 15, 27.

397–398 nusquam ... appraehendit Hebr. 2, 16.

398–399 qui est Christus Gal. 3, 16.

400–401 Abrahæ ... Christus Gal. 3, 16,

400 seminibus, sed The Vulgate reads: “semib-nibus quasi in multis, sed”.

405–406 Praecedens ... particula Ps. 8, 5;
Hebr. 2, 6 “quid est homo quod memor es eius aut Filius hominis quoniam visitas eum”. Cf. the present appendix ll. 385–386.

407 minuisti ... Deo Cf. n. l. 6.

408–409 gloria ... fuerunt Hebr. 2, 7–9; Ps. 8, 6–8; 1 Cor. 15, 27.

409 secunda ... versus Lefevre refers to the words
“gloria ... ei” in Hebr. 2, 7–8 and Ps. 8, 6–8.
octauai versus i.e., of Ps. 8; cf. ll. 454, 521–522,
and 528–529.

411–412 haeres ... terrae See the present appendix, ll. 416–417 and n.

413–414 ego ... praeceptum eius Ps. 2, 6, Vg.:
“Ego autem constitutus ...”

416–417 postula ... terrae Ps. 2, 8.

419–420 Exulta ... saluator Zach. 9, 9.

420–421 et vidimus ... Patre Ioh. 1, 14.

422–426 Quem ... vnum Mt. 17, 1–9; Mc. 9,
1–8; Lc. 9, 28–36.

425–426 Domine ... Heliae vnum Mt. 17, 4.

427–428 Pater ... clarificabo Ioh. 12, 28.

427 venit vox The Vulgate reads: “venit ergo vox”.

432 praeco John the Baptist.

433 Pater ... eius Ioh. 3, 35.

433–434 non ... loquimur Hebr. 2, 5.

435–436 omnia ... eius Hebr. 2, 8; Ps. 8, 8.

437–438 et ... seculi Is. 9, 6. Cf. the present
appendix, n. ll. 367–369.

440–441 caecos ... illuminando See Ioh. 9, 1–7.

nando, surdis auditum reparando, claudis gressum, mortuos suscitando et imperiosa voce Lazarum ab inferis reuocando, naturas rerum transmutando vt aquam in vinum, quatuor milia hominum praeter paruulos et mulieres ex panibus septem et paucis pisciculis saturando, daemonia subiiciendo, mari et ventis imperando et in omnia se habere potestatem manifestando.

445 Et haec quidem omnia, dum versabatur in terra. Quis angelorum caecos natos illuminauit, quis illuminare potest, mortuos suscitare, creaturas transmutare, imperare inferis, propria autoritate legem dare mari, ventis ac procellis, quis septem panibus et duobus pisciculis tantam hominum multitudinem saturare? Nullus certe neque hominum neque angelorum, sed solus Christus qui haec omnia in terris potuit et fecit, vt vel sic intelligatur pro eo tempore quo versabatur in terris non fuisse imminutus ab angelis, sed angelis superior, cui a Patre omnia tradita sunt eique subiecta omnia.

455 Pugnat igitur posterior illa sexti versus octaui psalmi particula illi prioris intelligentiae qua diceretur minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis. Legendum igitur et vere legendum a Deo.

Quod subiungit: neque vero hoc fefellit Aquinatem qui indicat paulominus bifariam accipi posse, vel vt pertineat ad quantitatem, sic enim loquitur, vel vt pertineat ad durationem, Thomas, mea quidem sententia, eo magis venia dignus quo magnos sequebatur authores, Athanasium, dico, atque Chrysostomum. Ex quorum lectione hanc sibi effinxit duplicum vocabuli acceptiōnem, quamuis eam nulla ratione fulserit. Effinxit autem, similiter et alii, vt huius loci minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, quem sic omnino haberi apud prophetam putabant, ingentem et pene inextricabilem effugerent expositionis difficultatem. Verum, vt iam dilucide ostensum est, non modo non effugerunt, sed noua se difficultate implicuerunt. Et quid aliud potuisse Thomas, alioqui vir bono ingenio qui ea temporum infoelicitate natus est in quibus bonaē literae omnes et Latinae et Graecae et Hebraicae tanquam sepultae et emortuae ignotae iacebant. In tanta tamen temporum caligine pleraque non aliis sui temporis deterius, immo melius et vero vicinus vidit. Si vero et Athanasius, Chrysostomus et Thomas intellexissent prophetam in propria Hebraicaque lingua habuisse minuisti eum paulominus a Deo, non ita maligno erant ingenio quin toto animo amplexati fuissent Deo ex corde de tam magnifica Deoque digna intelligentia gratias exsoluentes. Vt et suscipiunt alacriter omnes qui intelligentiae Spiritus sunt amatores, qui et Christo Deoque pro tam magnifica dignaque prophetae intelligentia gratias ex corde similiter agunt.

475 Adiicit praeterea: sunt qui Lucam putent interpretēm fuisse, quam opinionem si recipimus, is interpres in ius vocari non potest. Non sane recipimus Lucam fuisse huius epistolae interpretem, cum omnes hanc sentiant incerto authore fuisse translatam, tum quia Lucas spiritualis erat, quem minime latebat sensus Spiritus, cui vt Spiritum Dei habenti et euangelium commissum est exscribendum. Caeterum non oportet hic autoritatem scribentis, quicunque is fuerit, sed veritatem facere victoriam.

485 Sed dicit: interpres in ius vocari non potest, praesertim cum apud Hebraeos haec vox Elohim habeatur quippe quae utrouis numero singulari aut plurali 'Deum' aut 'deos' declarat.

490 Non eo inficias apud Hebraeos vocabulum 'Elohim' homonymum esse, quod πολύσημον καὶ πολλαχῶς λεγόμενον iure dici potest. Sed et vocabulum habemus homonymum atque polysemum ei respondens: Deus et dei. Loco cuius qui bene vertunt si simpliciter et sine pluralitatis nota dicatur, semper ponunt 'Deum' aliquo casu singulari. Cum vero sumitur cum pluralitatis nota ut col Elohim, semper efferunt pluratiue ut 'omnes dii' aut 'omnes deos', quemadmodum id psalmo 95: quoniam omnes dii gentium daemonia et psalmo 94: quoniam Deus magnus Dominus super omnes deos.

495 Cum igitur sine nota pluralitatis inueniatur a propheta Dauid positum in Psalmis bis centies septuagies quinques et bis centies septuagies quater interpretatum inueniatur singulari numero 'Deus', qua fronte igitur in hoc octauo psalmo Elohim sine pluralitatis nota repertum non vertit singulari numero 'Deus' ac dixit a Deo? Quomodo is interpres in ius vocari non potest? Cur toties alibi in Psalmis 500 vbiique Deus, nusquam autem 'dii' aut 'angeli', hic vero ab angelis? Certe a Deo dicere debuerat, nisi merito vellet in ius vocari.

505 Et quod translatio Chaldaica, quae verius paraphrasis quam translatio dici posse videtur, habeat ab angelis, nichil obest neque id sufficienti argumento est, cum pleraque alia aut errore paraphrastae aut posteriorum depravatione a fidei reiicienda, peruersa aut viciata contineat et cum iam lucida veritate perspectum sit legendum esse a Deo, non ab angelis.

443 paruulos 1516/7: paruos 1517 1531 P 1531C.

447 quis 1516/7 1517 1531C: qui 1531P.

464 effugerent 1516/7 1517 1531P: effingerent 1531C.

473 digna 1516/7 1517 1531C: digno 1531P.

474 intelligentiae 1516/7 1517 1531P: intelligentia 1531C.

492 id 1516/7: in 1517 1531P 1531C.

504 fidei 1516/7 1517 1531C: fidei 1531 P.

441 surdis ... reparando See Mt. 9, 32–34; Mc. 9, 16–28.

claudis gressum See Mt. 15, 30.

mortuos suscitando See Lc. 7, 11–17; Mc. 5, 41–42.

441–442 imperiosa ... reuocando See Ioh. II, 43–44.

442–443 aquam in vinum See Ioh. 2, 1–11.

443–444 quatuor ... saturando See Mt. 15, 29–39.

444 daemonia subiiciendo See, e.g., Mc. 1, 34, 39; 3, 15.

444–445 mari ... imperando See Mt. 8, 23–27.

452–453 a ... sunt Mt. 11, 27; Lc. 10, 22.

453 subiecta omnia 1 Cor. 15, 27–28.

455–456 minuisti ... Deo Cf. the present appendix, n. l. 6.

457–459 neque ... durationem See appendix III, ll. 36–38

457 vero hoc Erasmus wrote: vero prorsus hoc.

Aquinatem Loc. cit. (the present appendix, n. l. 42). See Erasmus, Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. l. 370.

477–478 sunt ... potest See appendix III, ll. 41–42.

484–486 interpres ... declarat Ibid., ll. 42–44.

487 eo inficias "I contest".

488 πολλαχῶς λεγόμενον Cf. Aristot. Top. 158 b 10 and Pol. 1276 a 23.

491 col Elohim I.e., כָּל אֱלֹהִים, kól Elohim, "all gods (or: lords)".

493 quoniam ... daemonia Ps. 95, 5.

493–494 quoniam Deus ... deos Ps. 94, 3

494 super The Vulgate reads: "Dominus et rex magnus super".

502 translatio Chaldaica I.e., of Ps. 8, 6. See appendix III, n. ll. 47–48.

Dicit insuper: vnum illud addam, Hieronymum videri non admodum probasse quod haec proprie tribuantur Christo, cum ait: hunc locum Apostolus in epistola ad Hebraeos super Christo interpretatur. Immo equidem oppositum crediderim: eo ipso scilicet quod sacer Hieronymus dicit, hunc locum Apostolus in epistola ad Hebraeos super Christo interpretatur, ipsum sacrum ecclesiae doctorem admodum et omnino approbasse quod haec proprie Christo tribuantur. Nunquid enim credi consentaneum est, quia Apostolus hunc locum de Christo interpretatur, 510 siccirco Hieronymum sensisse hunc locum non proprie Christo esse tribuendum? Id profecto credere amentia esset. Et si id non sentiret Hieronymus propter Apostolum, sentiret tamen hunc psalmum proprie de Christo esse ex ipsis Christi testimonio ex hoc psalmo prophetiam super se citantis.

Cum enim pueri Hebraeorum clamarent in templo ac dicerent in laudem saluatoris: osianna filio Dauid et principes sacerdotum et scribae indignati dicebant ei: audis quid isti dicunt? Ihesus dixit eis: vtique, nunquam legistis quia ex ore infantium et lactentium perfecisti laudem? Qui est tertius huius octaui psalmi 520 versus. Is autem de quo agitur eiusdem est sextus.

Et calci annotationis suae adiungit: et de authore eius adeo fuit dubitatum vt sero recepta sit a Romana ecclesia, quandoquidem in hanc vnam omnium nichil commentatus est Ambrosius. Et Hieronymus ait a nonnullis non fuisse receptam ob id, quod in ea nonnulla citarentur quae apud Hebraeos non inueniantur. Id, inquam, 525 calci adiectum ad id quo de agitur momenti nichil habet. Nam id in quaestione non versatur, quisnam fuerit epistolae author, sed an prima particula sexti versus octauii psalmi probe fideliterque reddita sit ab interprete sic efferente: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, an potius vertere debuerit: minuisti eum paulominus a Deo. Quem sane posteriorem modum debuisse, si fidelis esse voluit interpres, iam 530 satis superque monstratum est.

Et quanquam ita est, non tamen satis constat id verum esse, sic de hac epistola addubitatum fuisse vt sero recepta sit a Romana ecclesia. Nam ea Latina tralatio 535 qua vtitur ecclesia, Hieronymi praecessit tempora. Et Hieronymus aduersus Iouinianum de Enoch citat in hac epistola Apostolum dicens: de quo Paulus apostolus in epistola ad Hebraeos plenissime docet. Quae si non fuisset recepta, non vtique aduersus haereticum reuincendum ipsius vteretur testimonio. Sero, inquit, recepta est a Romana ecclesia, quandoquidem in hanc vnam omnium nichil commentatus est Ambrosius. Id certe nullo arguento esse potest, ipsam epistolam sero fuisse a Romana ecclesia receptam, siue commentatus fuerit Ambrosius, quod nescitur, siue non commentatus. Qua enim argumentationis lege efficitur: Ambrosius nichil est in hanc epistolam commentatus, ergo non est recepta aut sero recepta 540 a Romana ecclesia? Sane eodem iure dicam epistolam Iacobi, duas Petri et reliquias sero fuisse a Romana ecclesia receptas, quandoquidem nichil in eas Ambrosius est commentatus. Quam rem si hac ratione pertinaciter defendere voluero, explodar, irridebor, tota dignus videbor Anticyra.

Verum etiam certo cognoscitur arguento ante Ambrosium receptam ab ecclesia fuisse, quoniam Ambrosius in suis scriptis eius vtitur testimonio vt in 550 epistola 82, quae est ad Versellensem ecclesiam, circa medium inquit: vnde nos

555 apostolus Paulus eorum vult esse imitatores, qui per fidem et patientiam possederunt re promissiones Abrahae. Et ad Clementianum circa principium de apostolo loquens: et licet, ait, ad Hebraeos ipse dixerit, quia testamentum non valet nisi mors intercedat testatoris. Hoc epistolae ad Hebraeos capite 9, illud capite 6. Et innu-mera epistolae ad Hebraeos tunc in ecclesia receptae ac approbatae, reperiantur testimonia, tum in Ambrosii, tum in Hieronymi opusculis et etiam in primitiva ecclesia, vt in Dionysii Diuinis nominibus, si desiderantur antiquiora.

Et si fuerunt aliqui qui hanc refutantes epistolam diffiterentur esse Pauli, nequaquam ii fuerunt Ambrosius, Hieronymus, Augustinus, quandoquidem 560 huius epistolae vtuntur auctoritate, non Athanasius, non Chrysostomus qui in eam commentarii sunt, non vlli fideles. Sed illi fuerunt Ebionitae, Martionitae et 521 lactentium 1516/7 1517 1531C: lactantium 1531P.

527 calci 1516/7 1517 1531P: in calce 1531C.

534 tralatio 1516/7: translatio 1517 1531P 1531C.

507–509 vnum ... interpretatur See appendix III, ll. 53–55.

510–511 Hieronymus ... interpretatur Hier., loc. cit. (see the present appendix, n. ll. 39–40).

519 osianna filio David Mt. 21, 15.

519–520 principes ... ei Cf. Mt. 21, 15–16.

520–521 audis ... laudem Mt. 21, 16,

520 Ihesus dixit The Vulgate reads: “Iesus autem dixit”.

523–526 et de ... inueniantur See appendix III, ll. 56–59.

525–526 Hieronymus ... inueniantur Hier. Comm. in Is., lib. 3, CCSL 73, ed. M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1963, p. 92, ll. 47–49.

529–531 minuisti ... Deo Cf. the present appendix, n. l. 6.

536–537 de ... docet Hier., Adv. Iov., I, Migne PL 23, 247 A7–8.

538–540 Sero ... Ambrosius See appendix III, ll. 56–57, cf. the present appendix, n. ll. 523–526.

538 inquit The subject is Erasmus.

540 Ambrosius I.e., Ambrosiaster, cf. H.J. de Jonge in ASD IX, 2, p. 144, n. ll. 664–665. The objection in ll. 544–546 is inadequate, because Ambrosiaster wrote his commentary only on the Pauline epistles.

547 tota ... Anticyra “I shall seem to be crazy”. Otto 117, Adag. 752 (Nauiget Anticyras), LB II, 318 E–319 B.

548 recepitam I.e., epistolam ad Hebraeos.

550–552 vnde ... Abrahae Ambr. Epist. 14, CSEL 82, ed. M. Zelzer, Wenken, 1982, p. 261.

551 fidem ... possiderunt The text of Ambrosius reads: “fidem, inquit, et patientiam possident”. Ambrosius is referring to Hebr. 6, 12–13.

553–554 et ... testatoris Ambr., Epist. 75, Migne PL 16, 1312 C8–11. Ambr. is referring to Hebr. 9, 16–17.

556 Ambrosii See e.g., the present appendix, n. ll. 552–554.

Hieronymi See e.g., Epist. 17, Migne PL 30, 186 B4–5.

557 Dionysii Diuinis nominibus See e.g., Migne PG 3, 836 D14. Lefèvre regarded the works of Dionysius the Areopagite as genuine and as written in the first century A.D. Cf. this appendix, n. ll. 221–222.

558 Augustinus See e.g., Epist. 177, CSEL 44, 3, ed. A. Goldbacher, Vicenna and Leipzig, 1904, p. 680.

560 Athanasius Lefèvre is referring to Theophylact, translated into Latin by Porsena, cf. H.J. de Jonge, ASD IX, 2, p. 131, n. l. 437; see e.g., Athanasius, ... commentarii in epistolas Pauli ... quae omnia ... Latina facta Christophoro Porsena ..., Paris, 1519. The note on Hebr. 2, 7 can be found on p. CCXIX Diii. It is indeed a translation of a note in Theophylact, Migne PG 125, 208 B12–C9. In Porsena's translation, however, the text quoted from Hebr. 2, 6–7 includes also the final clause of v. 7: “constitueristi eum super opera manuum tuarum”. Chrysostomus See his Enarr. in Epist. ad Hebr., Migne PG 63.

561 Ebionitae A sect of Jewish Christians in the early centuries of the Christian era. Some of them did not believe in the virgin birth of Christ. They are said to have rejected the Pauline epistles. H. Chadwick, The Early Church, Middlesex, 1986, p. 23. ODCC, pp. 438–439.

562 Martionitae Followers of Marcion (ca. 150 A.D.) who denied the identity of the New Testament God and the Creator God revealed in the Old Testament. Marcion also rejected the real incarnation of Christ. He accepted only ten epistles of Paul, H. Chadwick, op. cit., pp. 38–39; ODCC, pp. 870–871.

id genus pessimorum haereticorum, quorum nonnulli negabant Christum fuisse Deum, alii vero negabant fuisse hominem, quorum omnium ex hac epistola manifeste conuincebatur insania, qui et falso calumniabantur. Non autem Hieronymus, qui illorum verba recitat: quod nonnulla in ea citarentur quae apud Hebraeos non inueniantur. Nam si non iniuria interpretis id factum sit, nichil prorsus autumno in ea citatum quod apud Hebraeos inueniri non possit et omnium fide probari, ut nullus posthac diffidat hanc sanctam et diuinam epistolam, etsi solum per interpretem eam habeamus, ex Paulo fuisse et eminentissimam vitae atque Spiritus continere intelligentiam, omni populo fideli et toti mundo vel maxime necessariam. Quam et sacrosanctae synodi et canones ecclesiastici approbauere.

Et hic nostrae disceptationis cum viro quidem peramicō beneuole susceptae, finem facimus. Quam eo libentius suscepī quo materia ipsa discussione visa est dignissima et ad eum virum qui michi charissimus est. Et quod auget dilectionis affectum, qui doctissimus est, vigilantissimus, eloquentissimus et clarus theologiae professionis assertor, plurium linguarum probe gnarus ac de re literaria vniuersa quam optime meritus. Qui, puto, boni consulet quod ad plenius agnoscendam veritatem, et eam quidem veritatem in qua errare periculosum et probe nosse pulcherrimum est, nostra hactenus cura insudarit, praesertim cum ipse nobis stimulum respondendi addiderit. Quem etiam oratum velim ut pro foecundiore ingenio et dicendi gratia ad nostra adiiciat, si illi non satisfecisse videbor. Quamuis et rear hac in parte fecisse satis vel abunde. Idque praestante Domino nostro Ihesu Christo veri lucisque infusore, qui magnus est super omnia Deus. Cui sit honor et gloria in saecula. Amen.

IACOBI FABRI STAPVLENSIS DISPVLTATIONIS IN ANNOTATIONEM
DESIDERII ERASMI ROTERODAMI FINIS

565–566 quod ... inueniantur Cf. appendix III, ll. 58–59) and cf. the present appendix, n. ll. 525–526. In fact, however, Jerome does not assert in this passage that the reason why heretics rejected Hebr. was because it contains elements not found in the Hebrew text of the Old Testament. Elsewhere Jerome does write that some of the heretics did not accept Hebr.; see his Comm. in Epist. ad Tit., lib. i, prologus, Migne PL 26, 589 B1–C5. But in that case, he does not say that they rejected Hebr.

because it contains elements missing in the Hebrew Old Testament.

580–581 ipse ... addiderit Erasmus did this request not in the annotation of Hebr. 2, 7 in Erasmus' Nov. Instr., but in letters which he sent to Lefèvre before publishing his Nov. Instr. In these letters, which are not extant, Erasmus expresses his disagreement with several statements that Lefèvre made in the first edition of his translation, paraphrase and annotations of Paul's epistles. See Erasmus' Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 135 and 137 with nn. and ll. 142–144.

APPENDIX V
SVMMA TOTIVS DISPVTATIONIS CONTRACTA
IN ARTICVLOS, ADDITIS DVOBVS VERBIS EORVM
QVAE OBIICIVNTVR SOLVTIONIBVS

(1518)

Ex hoc loco Faber Stapulensis, vir cum primis probus ac doctus, ansam arripuit 5 conflictandi mecum, siue id fecit instinctu alieno, siue quo meum animum exploraret, siue affectu quodam humano, vt nullus adhuc hominum extitit qui omnibus horis sapuerit. Sed quoniam illius insectatio commentariis intermixta passim legitur, neque commodum est visum nostram apologiam, qua illi copiosius respondeo, in hunc infulcire locum, capita rerum duntaxat annotabo lectori.
10 Primum, quod facit me reliquientem suam sententiam ac Hieronymianam interpretationem, res ipsa declarat longe secus esse, cum vtranque recenseam, nec

This Summa totius disputationis appeared in the fourth edition of Erasmus' Apolog. ad Fabr. Staph., printed by Martens in Louvain in 1518, fol. m4r°-o3r° (i.e., 15 pp.). It was inserted after the apologia. It is announced on the title page of the book as a whole, which reads: Apologia Erasmi Roterodami ad eximum virum D. Iacobum Fabrum. Cui additum est compendium argumentorum, quibus Faber aduersus eum est usus, adiectis solutionibus.

Subsequently, Erasmus incorporated this Summa in the Annotat. in Nov. Test., ad Hebr. 2, 7, printed by Froben in Basel in 1519. He appended it to the note on Hebr. 2, 7 that had already appeared in the Nov. Instr. This annotatio was included in its entirety (i.e., the note on Hebr. 2, 7 as occurring in the Nov. Instr., enlarged with the Summa) in all subsequent editions of the Nov. Test. from 1519 onward, without changes of any importance. The minor alterations introduced in 1519 and in later editions of the Annotat. in Nov. Test. will not be recorded here. For these alterations, see A. Reeve (ed.), Erasmus' Annotations on the New Testament. Galatians to the Apocalypse, Leiden, 1993, pp. 707–713.

4 hoc loco Hebr. 2, 7.

4–5 Faber ... mecum Lefèvre did this in his disputatio, i.e., his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the second edition (1516/7) of his translation and paraphrase of, and commentary on Paul's epistles. For Lefèvre's note on Hebr. 2, 7, see appendix IV.

4 ansam Adag. 304 (Ansam querere et consimiles metaphorae), ASD II, 1, pp. 411–413.

5 instinctu alieno For this suggestion, and for the identity of the persons Erasmus may have suspected, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Staph., l. 40 and n.

7 omnibus horis See Adag. 1329, LB II, 532 B–D.

9 in hunc ... locum I.e., in the Annotat. in N.T., ad Hebr. 2, 7.

10–11 facit ... interpretationem Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's words in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 19–22. For a more elaborate reaction of Erasmus on this passage, see his Apolog. ad Fabr. Staph., ll. 283–331 and nn.

hanc nec illam reiiciens, sed tantum indicans scrupulum qui videatur in vtraque lectione obstopere. Eumque conor amoliri, per hoc et Fabri parteis adiuuans, nam is scrupulus grauius obstabat, si legamus eum paulum diminutum a Deo quam ab angelis.

15 Deinde, quod hanc disputationem mecum susceptam vocat propheticae intelligentiae defensionem, ad me certe non pertinet, cum ego propheticam intelligentiam pro virili adiuuem, non impugnem. Nec hic sine contumelia me facit intelligentiae propheticae aduersarium, etiamsi constaret prophetam hoc sensisse 20 quod ille vult, cum nec Fabro aduerseret Hieronymianam annotationem nominatim etiam adducam.

Deinde, quod dixeram illum in parte a Thoma dissentire, id ita defendit quasi criminis vice intentarim, cum nihil tale sit in scriptis meis. Solus Hieronymus admonuit de Eloim, caeteri omnes, tum Graeci, tum Latini legunt ab angelis. Cum his consentit Thomas, nisi quod addit distinctionem de corpore et anima Christi. Id quoniam habebat peculiare, nominatim illius feci mentionem. Quid enim magni erat, si dixisset Fabrum hic dissentire a Thoma, vbi dissentit ab omnibus orthodoxis, imo ab ipso Paulo, quem putat huius autorem epistolae, et a publica ecclesiae lectione tot seculis recepta comprobataque?

30 Quarto loco, sic mecum argumentatur, quasi iam constaret ac definitum esset legendum a Deo, non ab angelis, cum id versetur in quaestione, imo maxime vertatur in dubium, quod ille veluti certum et confessum assumit, an legendum sit a Deo, quod semel duntaxat annotauit Hieronymus et vnum et paucis verbis, nec improbans tamen receptam lectionem, et aliis locis adducens hunc psalmum 35 iuxta id quod nos vulgo legimus.

Quinto loco, velut impie dictum reiicit ac refutat quod obiter scripserim, id quod in psalmo legitur, minuisti eum paulo minus ab angelis, de homine assumpto intelligendum, perinde quasi his verbis distraxerim Christi hypostasim aut quasi Christi vocabulum pro vna duntaxat natura usurparim, cum nihil tale sermo meus habeat, qui neque a Latinae linguae consuetudine, nec a veterum scriptis, nec a sacris literis abhorret, nisi palam calumniari velis. Quod diminutus dicitur Christus, vtique pertinet ad naturam humanam assumptam, iuxta quam diminutus est. Et tamen ostendo ex superuacuo non absurde aliquid posse enunciari de altera naturarum quae sunt in Christo. Sed haec copiosius disseruntur in apologia, nam paucis annotari non possunt.

40 Sexto, quod ille velut absurdum execratur, Christi vocabulum pro vna accipi natura, demonstro recte accipi iuxta vulgatam scholarum opinionem, nempe pro diuina vnitate humanae, etiamsi negem id a me factum, idque doceo clarissimis argumentis.

50 Septimo, quod ille toties infulcit, homo assumptus fuit imminutus a Deo, constat Fabri sermonem esse, non meum.

Octavo, quod diximus Christum non solum infra angelos descendisse sed infra abiectissimos etiam homines, Faber atrociter eum sermonem refutat, tanquam impium et Christo Deoque indignissimum, tanquam Spiritui aduersantem et literae

55 quae occidit adhaerentem, tanquam prophetae repugnantem, cum ego multis modis demonstrem hunc sermonem cum primis esse pium, concincentem oraculis

12–13 scrupulum ... obstrepere I.e., the problem that Jesus, who had been humiliated so deeply, was said to have been humiliated only a little, cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 562–567: ... palam explicem in hoc esse scrupum quomodo Filius Dei dici possit paululum imminutus a Deo, quum humanae naturae cuius assumptione diminutus dicitur ad diuinam assumentem nulla sit proportio, aut quomodo paululum imminutus ab angelis, quum non mediocre sit interuallum inter angelos immortales et carnem morti obnoxiam iuxta quam Christus dicitur exinanisse se.

13 Eumque conor amoliri Erasmus had tried to solve the problem in his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr. by proposing to interpretē βραχύ τι as an adjunct of time instead of as an indication of the degree to which Jesus had been humiliated; see appendix III, ll. 29–31.

14–15 is ... angelis If βραχύ τι is taken to refer to distance and dignity, as Lefèvre took it, it is more problematic to say that Jesus was humiliated only a little below God, than that he was humiliated only a little below the angels.

16–17 Deinde ... defensionem Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's own description of his disputatio as a propheticae intelligentiae defensio; see appendix IV l. 33. For Erasmus' opinion on this, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 332–348 and nn. By "prophetica intelligentia", Lefèvre has in mind the "meaning of Ps. 8, 6a according to its author, the prophet David".

22–29 Deinde ... comprobataque This section summarizes the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 369–410.

22 dixeram ... dissentire Erasmus observed this in his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr., see appendix III, ll. 19–20.

23–24 Hieronymus ... Eloim Hier. Comm. in Ps., ad 8, 6, CCSL 72, ed. P. Antin, Turnhout, 1959, p. 191.

25–26 Cum ... Christi S. Thomae Aquinatis ... Super Epistolas S. Pauli Lectura, vol. II, ed. P. Raphaelis Cai, Turin and Rome, 1953, pp. 361–362.

30–31 sic ... angelis Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's formulation in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 6–11. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 479–526.

32–35 quod ... legimus Erasmus also deals with this in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 527–546.

36–39 velut ... usurparim Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's wording in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 95–97 and 116–119: ... quod dicitur, etenim si de assumpto homine intelligas, quemadmodum necesse est, refutamus. Nam neque de assumpto homine intelligimus neque intelligi necesse est, sed intelligimus de Christo Domino qui est Filius Dei ... Si igitur in illo Psalmorum loco Filium hominis et id quod ipsum refert, intelligeremus de homine assumpto et non de hypostasi contra consuetudinem diuinarum scripturarum et intelligentiam Spiritus, irrationabiliter faceremus, quod nequaquam est admittendum. Erasmus reacts more extensively to this in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 615–647.

43–45 ostendo ... possunt Erasmus deals with this subject in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 586–594.

46–47 quod ... natura Erasmus refers to Lefèvre's disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 110–115.

47–49 demonstro ... argumentis I.e., in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 586–594.

50 quod ... Deo Erasmus refers to Lefèvre's awkward wording in his disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 121–122.

51 constat ... meum Erasmus deals with this blunder of Lefèvre more extensively in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 715–722.

52–55 quod ... repugnantem Erasmus reacts at great length to this accusation of Lefèvre in the Apolog. ad. Fabr. Stap., ll. 749–773, ll. 783–790, and ll. 1731–1738.

52–53 diximus ... homines Erasmus wrote this in the note on Hebr. 2, 7 in his Nou. Instr., see appendix III, ll. 22–24.

53 Faber ... refutat I.e., in his disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 120–148.

53–55 tanquam ... repugnantem See Lefèvre's disputatio, ibid., ll. 132–137.

55–56 cum ... pium Erasmus argued this in his note on Hebr. 2,7 in the Nou. Instr. appendix III, ll. 24–26 and in the Apolog. ad. Fabr. Stap., ll. 774–782 and ll. 825–870.

56–57 concincentem oraculis prophetarum Erasmus is thinking of Ps. 21, 7: "ego autem sum vermis et non homo, opprobrium hominum et abiectio plaebis", quoted in his note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr., see appendix III, ll. 24–26. In his Apolog. ad. Fabr. Stap., l. 778, Erasmus also refers to Isaiah for this image of the earthly Jesus, probably meaning Is. 50, 6 or Is. 52, 14 or Is. 53.

prophetarum, congruentem cum interpretatione orthodoxorum, cum primis consentientem cum verbis Pauli. Praesertim si modum dejectionis aestimemus non iuxta naturam hominis assumptam duntaxat, verum etiam iuxta naturae cor-ruptae iniurias plerasque, potissimum autem iuxta speciem hominis nocentis 60 quam nostra causa gessit ad tempus iuxta quam crucifixus est inter duos facinorosos, velut et ipse damnatus ob scelera sua. Nam iuxta hunc sensum potissimum placet Ambrosio intelligi quod ad Philippenses scribit Paulus, exinanuit semet-ipsum, et caetera.

65 Nono, quod inibi ratiocinatur Faber, si propter naturam humanam assumptam paulum est imminutus a Deo, cum Deus esse perseuerarit, non consistit abiectum fuisse infra abiectissimos homines, palam est omnibus non agere Fabrum dialectice, dum assumit aduersum me βραχύ τι hic referri ad modum dignitatis, vt opponatur ‘multum’, cum ego doceam referri ad tempus, vt 70 opponatur ‘diu’. Neque pugnant ‘plurimum esse diminutum’ et ‘paulisper esse diminutum’.

Decimo, quod in calce huius particulae adiicit me intendere hunc esse sensum prophetae, Christum non paulum fuisse imminutum ab angelis ac tanto minus a Deo, et ex his consequi multo magis a Deo diminutum si multum fuit diminu-75 tus ab angelis, atque ita denique prophetae sensum vtroque modo subrui, siue legamus a Deo, siue legamus ab angelis, satis opinor ex superioribus liquet hoc illi non sine causa, verumetiam sine mente in me dictum esse. Eiusdem farinae est illa clausula, quare hic sermo seipsum elidit et falsum esse omni ex parte manifestat. Nulla enim pugna in meo sermone, sed in iis quae Faber ex sese comminis-80 citur, tota haec pugna est.

Porro, quod undecimo loco subiicit non consistere sermonem quo scribo Christum ne ab angelis quidem paululum fuisse diminutum, qui ad mortem vsque crucis descenderit, nemo non videt ita dictum, vt aut ipse non perpenderit quid diceret aut amicum voluerit irridere. Si non ab angelis, inquit, paulum qui-85 dem fuit diminutus, quomodo approbat in propheta legendum esse minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis? Pugnantne paulominus et non paulominus, paululum et non paululum? Non animaduertit Faber hanc enunciationem, ne ab angelis quidem paululum fuit diminutus, affirmatiuam esse, non negatiuam, quae significat diminutum, sed non paulum, imo multum. Secus esset si dixisset: ‘ne paululum qui-90 dem fuit diminutus’. Liquet igitur nihil hic esse quod secum pugnet.

Duodecimo loco, quae nos adduximus e Psalmis, ego sum vermis et non homo, similiaque Christi testantia humilitatem, negat vere in Christum competere, sed tantum iuxta aestimationem impiorum. Atqui cum interprete Augustino, imo veteribus omnibus haec Christo tribuantur ob humanam naturam assumptam et 95 naturae nostrae iniurias, postremo ob afflictiones, quas vt homo nocens perpessus est, ne haec quidem in illum vere competent. Imo quia Christi humiliatio nobis humiliatis exemplum praescribit, opinor magis conuenire vt hoc exemplum vt summum ita verissimum esse credamus. Quod si appellatio vermis et in membra Christi competit, non statim consequitur in ipsum non competere.

100 Decimo tertio, quod adducit Mariam, matrem Iesu, dilectum discipulum, Magdalenam ac reliquas multa compassione fleuisse Christum, magis pro me facit. Etenim si nihil in illo erat non magnificum ac felix, quid super illo flebant?

105 Decimoquarto, quod rogat qui conueniat eum dici vermem, qui sit primogenitus omnis creaturae et superior est omnibus creaturis, vicissim eum rogabo, qui conuenerit olim Christum dici Deum et hominem, mortalem et immortalem, Filium hominis et Filium Dei, mortuum et viuum? Quis enim non videt diuersissima in eundem competere ob naturarum diuersitatem, quas eadem hypostasis complectitur.

110 Decimoquinto, quod dicit Iesum ita fuisse hominem vt omnium maxime vere fuerit homo, nihil ad me pertinet. Mihi satis est quod ipse sese vocat non hominem. Neque enim quisquam ita insanit vt accipiat illum non fuisse vere hominem, sed quemadmodum quae contemptissima sunt, dicuntur non esse, ita deiectissimos homines non homines dicimus. Porro an Christus magis fuerit 57 congruentem ... orthodoxorum See Erasmus' note on Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nov. Instr., appendix III, ll. 29–32, where Erasmus mentions Chrysostom and Theophylact as authors who took βραχύ τι in Hebr. 2, 7, as an adjunct of time.

58 consentientem ... Pauli The reference is to Hebr. 2, 7b–8, see appendix III, ll. 33–36 and nn.

62–64 iuxta ... semetipsum Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 774–777: Equidem illud arbitrabar ad Christi gloriam perinere si illius humilitatem quam sponte nostra causa subiit quam maxime exagerassem, praesertim quum Paulus ausus sit dicere: exinanuit semetipsum et a propheta vermis sive, vt quidam vertunt, quorum est Ambrosius, scarabeus appelletur. ... For the reference to Ambrose, see Ambr., Expos. ev. Lc. X, 113, CSEL 32, 4, ed. C. Schenkel, Prague, Vienna and Leipzig, 1902, p. 498, ll. 2–3: “vermis in cruce, scarabaeus in cruce, et bonus vermis, qui haesit in ligno, bonus scarabaeus, qui clamauit e ligno.” (Cf. ibid., ll. 4–14). Ambrose also calls Jesus a scarabaeus in Expos. Ps. CXVIII, 3, 8, CSEL 62, ed. M. Petschenig, Vienna and Leipzig, 1913, p. 45, l. 23.

63–64 exinanuit semetipsum Phil. 2, 7. Vg.: “... semetipsum exinanuit ...”

65–67 quod ... homines Erasmus is referring to Lefèvre's disputatio, see appendix IV, ll. 128–132.

66 consistit “it applies”, “it is applicable”; cf. H.J. de Jonge in ASD IX, 1, p. 89, n. l. 573; p. 153, n. l. 797; p. 197, n. l. 549; p. 217, n. l. 860.

68–71 assumit ... diminutum See appendix IV, ll. 149–154. For a more detailed reaction on this, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1421–1435.

72–76 quod ... angelis See appendix IV, ll. 137–147. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1378–1409.

77 non sine causa In BAS this phrase has been corrected to “non modo sine causa”.

78–79 quare ... manifestat Appendix IV, ll. 147–148. Erasmus himself adduced this very sentence against Lefèvre in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1408–1409.

81 consistere See n. l. 66.

84–87 Si ... paululum Appendix IV, ll. 149–154.

91–93 quae ... impiorum Appendix IV, ll. 161–179. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1320–1329.

93 interprete Augustino Erasmus quotes Augustine more extensively in support of his own conviction that Jesus was humiliated and suffered in his incarnation, in his Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 901–911.

100–101 quod ... Christum See Lefèvre's disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 189–191. Erasmus also reacts to this in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1101–1108.

103–104 eum ... creaturis See appendix IV, ll. 194–197.

103–104 primogenitus ... creature Col. 1, 15.

106–108 diuersissima ... complectitur For Erasmus' discussion of this subject, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 797–911.

109–110 quod ... homo Appendix IV, ll. 197–198. Erasmus gave his opinion about this statement of Lefèvre more clearly in the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1054–1062.

110–111 ipse ... hominem I.e., in Ps. 8, 6.

115 homo quam caeteri, dialecticis disputandum relinquo. Ego vt summmum hominem fuisse profiteor, ita non ausim affirmare maxime omnium fuisse hominem.

Decimosexto, quod Christus, vt ait in euangelio, non ascribit sibi nomen vermis, sed ea potius quae sunt dignitatis, primum mihi satis est quod se in propheta vermem dixerit. Neque vero quae in sacris literis testantur Christi dignitatem, derogant illius assumptae humilitati, vt neque retrorsum quae declarant humilitatem, derogant celsitudini.

120 Decimoseptimo, negat Christum vermem dici posse, quod terrenus non sit sed iuxta Paulum caelstis. Imo et caelstis erat et terrenus. Iuxta illud dicitur Filius Dei, iuxta hoc Filius hominis, siue Adae. Porro quod addit de proportione identitatis aut aequalitatis, an vlla talis sit, ipse viderit. Sed si hanc solum ponit in Christo, non erit vlo pacto imminutus a Deo, quod tamen fatetur Faber. Quod si iuxta assumptam naturam dicitur inferior Deo Patre, proferat ille si quam nouit proportionem inter creatorem et rem creatam.

125 Decimo octauo, quod ratiocinatur et seraphim ad Deitatem collatos vermes dici posse, nihil ad me pertinet. Neque vero sic argumentor, inter hominem et Deum nulla est proportio, igitur homo vermis est. Verum ita colligo, Christus se vermem dicit et non hominem, opprobrium et reiectamentum plebis, igitur non fuit paululum ab angelis diminutus, sed plurimum, etiam infra vulgus hominum.

130 Decimonono, quaestionem mouet an ob iniurias susceptas Christus fuerit in se diminutus. Exponat quid dicat in se et nihil fuerit negotii illi respondere. Neque ratio vetat Christum, quo plura passus est, hoc merito fuisse maiorem et tamen interim vere humiliatum. Vt dissimulem hic quod me facit aduersarium suum, qui pro ipso faciam, quod meum sermonem coniungit cum opinione Iudeorum, qua Christus multum fuit diminutus, quod periculum denunciat si meis dictis pertinaciter haererem. Ego vero mea facile recantabo, si prior recantet Paulus quod scripsit, exinanuit semetipsum.

135 Vigesimo loco, negat mortem Christi dicendam humiliationem, sed magis exaltationem, cum ipse dicat: cum exaltatus fuero a terra, omnia traham ad me. Eadem ratione latrones poterant dici exaltati. Imo Paulus ipse Christi passionem diminutionem interpretatur in hac ipsa epistola, exaltationem resurrectionis et immortalitatis gloriam. Atque hoc loco videtur sibi parum constare Faber. Cum enim omnibus machinis hoc agat Faber ne Christus dicatur vere humiliatus fuisse, sic concludit passionem illius non vocandam humiliationem in malam notam. Fatetur igitur esse humiliationem in bonam notam, atqui in optimam notam nos illi tribuimus. Quis enim aliter tribuat Christo nisi prorsus impius?

140 Vigesimo primo, ait Christum cum ista pateretur, nihilo secius fuisse regem angelorum, velut absurdum sit dicere illum humiliatum infra angelos, qui rex sit angelorum. Atqui ea ratione non fuit inferior Deo, cum fuerit Deus. Et tamen hoc certe dat Faber.

145 Vigesimo secundo, sic ait: verum haec omnia pro nobis miseris iuxta oracula pati debebat, et videri admirandus supra omnes et videri abiectus et humiliatus, nimirum innuens non humiliari qui immeritus affligitur, imo hoc magis se deiecit quo magis innoxius pro indignis ea pati voluit. Et, ni fallor, sicut vere visus est admirandus, ita vere visus est abiectus et humiliatus, non simpliciter, sed, quod mihi satis est, aliquo modo.

160 Vigesimo tercio, quod proponit de martyribus, pro me facit. Humiliantur illi cum ceruicem praebent lictori, exaltantur gloriose mortis tum memoria, tum praemio.

165 Vigesimo quarto, negat βραχύ τι ad temporis modum posse referri, quo Christus versatus est in terris, cum eum mox iubeantur adorare omnes angeli. Mirum vero, si iubentur adorare qui Deus est. Nec tamen ideo consequitur non aliqua parte fuisse inferiorem qui fuerit mortalis, cum illi sint immortales.

170 Vigesimo quinto, fortiter negat apud Hebraeos 'meat' sonare spatium temporis, sed quantitatis siue magnitudinis, et locis aliquot productis putat se rem factam habere. Quasi vero consequatur, vt si 'meat' alicubi sit usurpatum apud Hebraeos vt non declareret breuitatem temporis, non possit vsquam ad temporis significationem accommodari. Certe psalmo tricesimo sexto, adhuc pusillum et non erit peccator, Hebraeis est meat. Item psalmo centesimo octauo, Fiant dies eius pauci, rursus est meatim. Rursum psalmo secundo, cum exarserit in breui ira eius, est bimeat. Nec dubito quin centum loca produci queant, si quis hoc agat. Vide 175 quid est, rem dubiam vt exploratam asseuerare.

Vigesimo sexto, quis non videt praeceptionem nihil ad rem pertinere qua docet haec vocabula, 'multum' ac 'parum' similiaque quoties iunguntur vocabulis auctionem diminutionem designantibus, nequaquam solere significare tempus, sed paulominus adiungitur verbo minuisti. Non enim hic agitur rectene verterit Latinus interpres, sed quid Graeca vox βραχύ τι declareret. Quis enim Latinus

116–117 quod ... dignitatis See appendix IV, ll. 199–209. Cf. n. ll. 106–108.

118 vermem Ps. 21, 7.

121–122 negat ... Paulum caelestis See appendix IV, ll. 223–227.

123 addit I.e., Lefèvre.

123–124 addit ... aequalitatis See appendix IV, ll. 240–241. For Erasmus' reaction to this phrase of Lefèvre, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1163–1205.

128–129 ratiocinatur ... posse See appendix IV, ll. 238–239. For Erasmus' opinion about this, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1151–1162.

131 vermen ... plebis Ps. 21, 7.

133–134 quaestionem ... diminutus See appendix IV, ll. 246–247.

136 me ... aduersarium See appendix IV, ll. 248–
249. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., l. 342 and n.

137 meum ... Iudeorum See appendix IV,
ll. 247–249: ... non negem Christum Dominum multum abiectum et diminutum Iudeorum opinione et aduersarii sermone ... See further the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 960–962; ll.
1000–1007; ll. 1076–1079 and ll. 1325–1332.

138–139 periculum ... haererem See appendix IV, ll. 248–250.

141–142 negat ... me See appendix IV, ll. 252–254.
Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 969–983.

145–148 Cum ... notam See appendix IV,
ll. 253–254. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap.,
ll. 1333–1342.

150–152 ait ... angelorum See appendix IV,
ll. 254–255.

154–155 sic ... humiliatus See appendix IV,
ll. 257–258.

160 proponit de martyribus See appendix IV,
ll. 264–268. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap.,
ll. 936–959.

163–164 negat ... angeli See appendix IV,
ll. 284–286.

167–169 fortiter ... habere See appendix IV,
ll. 293–308. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap.,
ll. 1578–1612.

171–172 adhuc ... peccator Ps. 36, 10.

172–173 Fiant ... pauci Ps. 108, 8.

173 cum ... eius Ps. 2, 13.

177–179 docet ... minuisti See appendix IV,
ll. 308–311.

vñquam dixit ‘paulominus’ pro ‘paululum’? Quod magis sonat ‘propemodum’. Quod si βραχύ τι Graecis ad tempus pertinet, non vertendum erat ‘paulominus’ aut ‘paululum’, sed ‘paulisper’. Neque quicquam vetat ita loqui, ‘paulisper auxisti rem meam’, ‘paulisper deiectus fuisti’.

185 Vigesimo septimo, conatur et Graecorum autoritate probare βραχύ τι non posse ad tempus referri, quod Eustathius, Homeri interpres, de talentis loquens βραχύ τι dixerit, non tempus indicans sed magnitudinem aut aestimationem. Primum plus tribuendum arbitror Athanasio, Chrysostomo, Origeni, viris vsque ad eloquentiae miraculum Graece peritis, quam Eustathio, alienorum commentariorum rhapsodo. Ad haec qui consequitur: ‘Eustathius βραχύ τι accommodauit ad magnitudinem, igitur non potest ad temporis modum pertinere?’ Vt quoniam ‘breuem fustum’ dicimus, non liceat dicere ‘breue tempus’.

195 Vigesimo octavo, quod docet si quis tempus volet significare, dicendum esse ἐπ’ ὀλίγον aut μικρόν, quod posterius est apud Ioannem, haec non significant tempus nisi quia subauditur χρόνον, ‘asinum’ significatura si subauditatur ὥνον, quemadmodum vsu venit et in βραχεῖ, cum dicimus ἐν βραχεῖ, id est ‘breui’, nimirum tempore.

200 Vigesimo nono, docet si interpretes Septuaginta tempus intelligi voluissent, dicturos fuisse ἡλάττωσας αὐτὸν ταχὺ παρ’ ἀγγέλους, idque ita Latine vertendum fuisse ‘minuisti eum cito ab angelis’. Verum quis ita loquitur ‘cito vixit’ pro ‘non diu vixit’, licet ‘cito mortuus est’ apte dicatur qui non diu vixerit, ‘Christus cito exaltatus fuit’, quia non diu fuit humiliatus.

205 Tricesimo, Vulgarium et Athanasium duos facit, cum commentarii in epistolas Pauli, qui circunferuntur versi a quodam priore Sanctae Balbinae, Vulgarii sint, non Athanasii. Quod protinus deprehendet qui Graeca contulerit.

210 Tricesimo primo, cum Faber asseueret hanc lectionem esse impiam atque adeo haereticam, si quis contendat tueri, paulisper imminutus ab angelis, tamen Chrysostomum ac caeteros orthodoxos omnes non aliter excusat, quam quod decepti per Septuaginta, qui verterint ab angelis, putarint sic esse apud Hebraeos ac difficultate loci constricti huc configurerint vt βραχύ τι ad temporis modum detorquerent, sed falso. Mallem illum de tantis ecclesiae columnis paulo ciuilis fuisse locutum, praesertim cum nemo sit omnium qui non cum illis sentiat, ipse denique Hieronymus, sicut ante docuimus, idque in opere non suspecto, cum commentarii quos habemus in Psalmos aut non sint Hieronymi aut certe multis 215 locis contaminati sint alienis emblematis. Vt omittam quod tot saeculis magno consensu sic legit, sic cantat, sic docet ecclesia, quae vt labi possit alicubi, certe sensum haereticum non amplectetur tot aetatibus.

220 Tricesimo secundo, quae adducit ex euangelio de dignitate Christi, contra me non faciunt, qui sic illi tribuo pro tempore assumptam humilitatem, vt dignitati non derogem. Vno, inquit, Patre minor dicitur. Verum, sed eidem Patri fuit aequalis. Ita secundum aliquid inferior fuit angelis, non simpliciter inferior.

Tricesimo tertio, multis verbis docere nititur hominem vnitum Diuinitati hoc ipso sic exaltatum fuisse super omnia, vt paulum esset imminutus a Deo. Atqui quod Faber hic vocat exaltationem, Paulus vocat exinanitionem. Et addit formam

²²⁵ serui accipiens, quod ipse quoque Faber superius interpretatur humanam natu-
ram. Certe Faber inaequalitatem ponit in Christo secundum quiddam, quae si sumitur iuxta comparationem diuinæ naturae et humanae, quomodo secundum haec dici potest paulum diminutus?

²³⁰ Tricesimo quarto, expatiatur in campum late patentem multa colligens de excellentia Christi, quibus adeo nihil detraho vt ad illius dignitatem mihi ieunc parceque dicta videantur. Sed vt ante demonstratum est, haec non officiunt iis quae de eiusdem humilitate sunt dicta iuxta naturam assumptam.

²³⁵ Tricesimo quinto, quando Faber vsque adeo mordicus tenet Christum non nisi paululum fuisse imminutum a Deo, vel illud expediat quo sensu Paulus dicat eundem exinanisse se. An exinanire significat paululum quiddam diminui, quod nobis pene sonat, in nihilum redigere? Perinde quasi dicas: ‘exanimauit homi-nem’ et interpreteris, ‘id est leuiter commouit’.

^{185–187} conatur ... aestimationem See appendix IV, ll. 333–337, and cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1486–1502.

^{193–194} docet ... Ioannem See appendix IV, ll. 338–342.

^{198–200} docet ... angelis See appendix IV, ll. 342–349. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1524–1531.

^{203–205} Vulgarium ... Athanasii See appendix IV, ll. 350–353. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1364–1365.

²⁰⁴ quodam ... Balbinae This prior is Christophorus Porsena, who translated Theophylact's commentary on Rom. in 1469. The translation was published in Rome in 1477. The edition mentions the name of the translator as follows: “F. Christophorus de persona [sic] Romanus, Prior Sancte Balbinae de Urbe, ...” See K. Staab, Die Pauluskatenen nach den handschriftlichen Quellen untersucht, Rome, 1926, p. 233, and H.J. de Jonge in ASD IX, 2, p. 131, n. l. 437 and p. 193, n. l. 493.

²⁰⁴ sint The first edition (1518) reads sunt. According to Reeve, all later editions have sint here. Cf. l. 212 cum memo sit, and ll. 213–214 cum ... sint.

^{206–211} cum ... falso See appendix IV, ll. 333–359. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1294–1301.

²¹¹ columnis Cf. Gal. 2, 9.

^{212–213} ipse ... suspecto Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 537–541: Imo nec ipse Hieronymus, cuius unius autoritate niteris, cum alias fre-quenter, tum quartum edisserens caput epistolae ad Galatas, dubitat hanc sequi lectionem ita scribens: quod autem ait: sicut angelum, sicut Christum Iesum suscepisti me et angelo Christum ostendit esse maiorem quem secundum dispensationem corporis minorem psalmista cantauerat dicens: minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis.

^{213–215} cum ... emblematis Erasmus also expressed his doubts about the authorship of the Comm. in Ps. in his edition of Jerome's work, vol. I, fol. 75v° (Allen, Ep. 778, n. l. 184). The authenticity of the Comm. in Ps. has repeatedly been contested over the years; see P. Antin in his introduction to the Comm. in Ps. of Jerome (CCSL 72, Turnhout, 1959), pp. 165–166. The authenticity of Jerome's Comm. in Gal., however, has not been questioned. Cf. O. Bardenhewer, Geschichte der altkirchlichen Literatur III, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1912, pp. 620 and 625. In the editions of the Annot. in N.T. from 1527 onward, on Hebr. 2,7, after Hieronymus (see appendix III, l. 9), Erasmus added: “... aut si quis alias fuit ...”, LB VI, 985 D. Cf. Ep. 778, from Erasmus to William Budaeus, Louvain, 22 February 1518, ll. 183–186 and the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., l. 824 and n.

²¹⁶ cantat See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap. n.ll. 488–489.

²¹⁸ quae ... Christi See Lefèvre's disputatio, appendix IV, ll. 359–371. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 797–821.

^{222–223} multis ... Deo See appendix IV, ll. 390–394. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1895–1898.

²²⁴ exinanitionem I.e., in Phil. 2, 7.

²²⁴ addit I.e., Paulus.

^{224–225} formam serui accipiens Phil. 2, 7.

^{225–226} quod ... naturam See appendix IV, ll. 237–244.

^{229–230} expatiatur ... Christi See appendix IV, ll. 394–453.

^{233–234} Faber ... Deo In his disputatio, passim, see, e.g., appendix IV, ll. 391–394.

Tricesimo sexto, non satis amice patrocinatur Aquinatus, qui Graece Hebraiceque ignarus, secutus sit aliorum errorem. Atqui si Christus nullo modo fuit angelis inferior, manifesta blasphemia est illum angelis facere inferiorem. Id certe vel citra linguarum peritiam sentire poterat Thomas, vir non omnino stupidus.

240 Tricesimo septimo, quoniam Faber omnem culpam reiicit in interpretem, sic argumentabar, si Lucas est interpres huius epistolae, hunc non oportet reum agere. Id, inquit, non recipimus, cum omnes sentiant incerto autore translatam. 245 Imo quisquis est cuius extat argumentum in hanc epistolam, testatur Lucam plusquam interpretem huius epistolae fuisse, qui memor sensus et ordinis post obitum Pauli, ex sua memoria Graece illam descripscerit. Non asseuerat, inquis, sed testatur ita multos sensisse. Quod si prorsus incertus est interpres, ut fateris, quomodo tu certo negas esse Lucam?

250 Tricesimo octavo, iam adiicit in fine: caeterum non oportet autoritatem scribentis, quicunque is fuerit, sed veritatem facere victoriam. Id si verum est, quomodo Faber vnam vnius Hieronymi annotationem secutus de re tanta tam constanter pronunciat? Deinde, quid si Lucas sit autor, nam id assumpsi, non erit huic aliquid deferendum?

255 Tricesimonono, fatetur ‘Eloim’ Hebraeis polysemum esse et respondere duabus vocibus Latinis, ‘Deus’ et ‘dii’. Verum est quod fatetur et negari non potest. Cae- terum hoc adiiciendum erat quod constat Eloim non solum sonare ‘deos’, verum etiam ‘primates’, ‘iudices’, denique et ‘angelos’.

260 Quadragesimo, hoc ait interesse quod ‘Eloim’, quoties absque pluralitatis nota ponitur, ‘Deum’ sonat, atque ita semper transtulerunt Septuaginta, rursum quoties ‘deos’ sonat, additur ‘col’, pluralitatis nota. Id nihil opus est aliunde petitis argumentis refellere, cum ipse sermo φευδόμενος seipsum refellat. In hoc psalmo non additur ‘col’ et tamen non verterunt ‘Deum’. Rursum Exodi vigesimo secundo, diiis non detrahes, non apponitur ‘col’ et tamen verterunt deos.

265 Quadragesimo primo, flagellat interpretem huius epistolae, qui in psalmo non verterit Eloim ‘a Deo’, cum idem fecerint Septuaginta, quibus magis conueniebat hoc imputari.

270 Quadragesimo secundo, Adrianus Matthaeus, homo mea sententia non vulga- riter exercitatus in suis literis, ait hoc interesse inter ‘Eloim’ et ‘malachim’, quod angeli quoque, quoties de dignitate agitur quod assistunt deo, ‘eloim’ vocantur, vbi de functione, hoc est cum aliquo mittuntur, ‘malachim’ vocantur. At hic dignitatis fit collatio.

275 Quadragesimotertio, eleuat paraphrasin Chaldaeorum, quae iuxta Septuaginta translationem pro eloim habet malachim, id est angelos. Cui ego in hac sane parte puto nonnihil tribuendum, praesertim cum consentiat cum autoritate Septua- ginta, quam fere sequuntur et apostoli.

Quadragesimoquarto, ut censor seuerus obiurgat me et amentiae accusat, qui scripserim quod Hieronymus non videatur admodum probasse hunc psalmum proprie tribui Christo, sic detorquens quasi proprie dixerim ‘vere’, cum Latine, ut opinor, dixerim ‘proprie’ tribui, quod ita tribuitur, ut in aliud neminem competitat.

Per multa sunt in Psalmis, quae nobis cum Christo sunt communia. Nihil igitur in his meis verbis quod tam acriter debuit incessi.

Quadragesimo quinto, procul reiicit meam conjecturam, quod collegerim ideo videri non admodum probari Hieronymo haec proprie tribui Christo, quod scripserit: hunc locum Apostolus in epistola ad Hebreos super Christo interpretatur.
Fateor grauem autorem Paulum, sed primum incertum an is huius epistolae sit autor. Deinde fatetur Hieronymus hunc scripturas aliquando ad victoriam detorquere. Postremo non video quomodo possit totus hic psalmus Christo accommodari.
Solemus autem in autorem reiicere, si quando ipsi fidem dictorum praestare 238–239 non ... errorem See appendix IV, ll. 459–470. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 409–419.

243 argumentabar I.e., in the Nou. Instr., see appendix III, ll. 41–42.

244 Id ... translatam See appendix IV, ll. 478–480.

245–247 Imo ... descripserit See for this argu-mentum, the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. l. 1625.

250–251 caeterum ... victoriam See appendix IV, ll. 481–483. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1638–1645.

255–256 fatetur ... dii See appendix IV, ll. 488–489. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1646–1661.

259–261 hoc ... nota See appendix IV, ll. 489–494. Erasmus also sneers at these grammatical remarks of Lefèvre in his Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1691–1701.

264 dii non deraħħes Ex. 22, 28.

265–267 flagellat ... imputari See appendix IV, ll. 495–501.

268 Adrianus Matthaeus Matthaeus Adrianus, a baptized Jew of Spanish origin, was called to Louvain in the autumn of 1517 to be the first professor of Hebrew in the newly founded Collegium Trilingue. Erasmus thought highly of his knowledge of Hebrew and appears to have been the driving force behind Adrianus' appointment (Epp. 686, 687, 689–691, 699). He was pleased to announce the appointment (formalized in February 1518) to his friends in France, England, Germany and Spain (Epp. 707, 721, 722, 731, 777, 794). I. Guenther and P.G. Bietenholz in: Contemporaries I, pp. 9–10. Matthaeus Adrianus is said to have written a Hebrew grammar, entitled Introductio in Hebraicam linguam and published in 1501, 1508 and 1512 in Venice by Aldus Manutius and in 1518 and 1520 in Basel by Froben (see Contemporaries I, p. 9 and H. de Vocht, History of the Foundation and the Rise of the Collegium Trilingue Lovaniense 1517–1550, I, Louvain, 1951, p. 242). A.A. Renouard (Annali delle edizioni Aldine, Bologna, 1953, p. 31) mentions that in 1501 Aldi Manutius Rudimenta grammatices Latinae ... Introductio per brevis ad Hebraicam linguam was published. The same short Hebrew grammar was incorporated in grammars printed by Aldus Manutius in 1508 and 1512 (see A.A. Renouard, op. cit., pp. 52 and 58). Whether the Introductio per brevis ad Hebraicam Linguam contained in these editions is really by Matthaeus Adrianus is questionable, but the information attributed to Adrianus and mentioned by Erasmus in ll. 268–271, is not to be found in this Introductio anyhow. J. Prijs, Die Basler Hebräischen Drücke (1492–1866), Olten and Freiburg i.Br., 1964, pp. 17–18, mentions an Introductio utilissima Hebraice discere cupientibus. This book includes a reprint of the above mentioned grammar as well as three Christian prayers translated into Hebrew by Matthaeus Adrianus. Consequently this book does not contain Matthaeus Adrianus' view as to the difference of meaning between Eloim and malachim either. This probably did not stem from a book at all. In 1518, when Erasmus wrote the Summa, both Erasmus and Matthaeus Adrianus were in Louvain. Erasmus can easily have consulted Adrianus there and obtained the suggestion recorded in ll. 268–271 in the form of personal communication.

273–274 eleuat ... angelos See appendix IV, ll. 502–506.

277–279 obiurgat ... vere See appendix IV, ll. 507–517. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1802–1817.

278–279 scripserim ... Christo I.e., in Erasmus' note at Hebr. 2, 7 in the Nou. Instr.; see appendix III, ll. 53–55 and n. ll. 54–55.

283–285 procul ... interpretatur See appendix IV, ll. 509–517.

287–288 fatetur ... detorquere Cf. Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1714–1722 and nn.

290 nolumus. Verum id quoniam paucis annotari non potest, ex apologia qui volet, reliqua petat. Neque hic quicquam affirmo, tantum aio videri.

Quadragesimo sexto, quod Christus in euangelio citat versiculum ex hoc psalmo, ex ore infantium et lactentium perfecisti laudem, non arguit necessario psalmum hunc proprie in Christum competere, imo sententia potest esse generalis, quam adducit.

295 Quadragesimo septimo, stultitiam impingit, qui scripserim vsque adeo dubitatum de autore huius epistolae vt sero recepta sit a Romanis, cum hoc ad rem propositam nihil attineat. Certe hactenus pertinebat vt si Pauli non est, minus nos eius vrgeat autoritas.

300 Quadragesimo octauo, negat constare, quod hanc Rhomani sero receperint. Neque mihi constaret, nisi Hieronymus hoc literis prodidisset, testans sua aetate Apocalypsim non fuisse receptam a Graecis, epistolam ad Hebraeos a Latinis. Nam hanc Graeci libentius receperunt in odium Arianorum. Comperiet hoc non esse meum somnium qui legerit epistolam ad Dardanum de terra reprobmissionis, 305 vbi fatetur a Latinis non fuisse receptam cum maxime vellet esse receptam. Legat eiusdem commentarios in Esaiae caput sextum, rursus eiusdem in caput octauum clarius etiam, rursus in Matthaei caput XXVI.

Quadragesimo nono, arguit eam fuisse receptam a Romanis iam olim, quod haec translatio praecesserit tempora Hieronymi. Vt hoc donemus esse verum, 310 tamen hinc nihil aliud confici potest quam hanc epistolam translatam fuisse ante tempora Hieronymi. Neque enim statim quod translatum est, receptum est.

Quinquagesimo, existimat euidentissimum esse argumentum, epistolam hanc fuisse receptam a Rhomanis quod Hieronymus vtatur eius testimonio aduersus Iouinianum. Si ideo fuit recepta, quod huius vtitur testimonio, receptus fuit et 315 Pythagoras, cuius aduersus eundem vtitur testimonio.

Quinquagesimo primo, suauiter irridet argumentationem meam, vt minime dialecticam: ‘sero fuit recepta quia in hanc nihil commentatus est Ambrosius’, quasi consequatur pari ratione: ‘in quemcunque librum non scripsit commentarios Ambrosius, eum sero fuisse receptum a Rhomana ecclesia’. Ac vere praedicat 320 hoc enthymema non vnis dignum Anticyris, si quis ad eum colligat modum. At ego in re coniecturali synathroesmo sum vsus. Primum quod sero recepta sit, teste Hieronymo, deinde quod quaedam in ea citentur ex Hebraeorum voluminibus, quae illic non reperiantur. Addo in cumulum coniecturarum quod Ambrosius cum in caeteras omnes scripserit, in hanc vnam non scripserit. Erant 325 et aliae coniecturae, quas hic velut aliud agens non putauit recensendas. Nec est necesse vt ex singulis coniecturis nascatur certa conclusio. Satis est si ex multis congestis argumentis confletur probabilis suspicio.

Quinquagesimo secundo, existimat argumentum irrefutabile, ‘hanc epistolam fuisse receptam quod Ambrosius ac Hieronymus in libellis suis vtantur illius testimonio’. Id argumento est sic fuisse receptam, vt iam tum a multis legeretur veluti Pauli, non autem fuisse receptam autoritate publica velut partem scripturae canonicae, de qua non liceret dubitare.

Quinquagesimo tertio, iam ad argumentum quod adducit ex Dionysio, qui in libris De diuinis nominibus adducat huius epistolae testimonium, respondeo quoniam incertus est ille Dionysius, fieri posse ut aliquanto posterior fuerit Ambrosio.

Quinquagesimo quarto, fortiter asseuerat nullos vnquam de hac epistola dubitasse, praeter Ebionitas, Marcionitas et horum similes haereticos. Quod si doceo Hieronymum et Augustinum de hac epistola dubitasse sicut mox et in calce huius epistolae docebimus, ex regula Fabri consequetur eos esse haereticos, qui nobis certe sunt orthodoxi nec dubito quin et ipsi Fabro.

Quinquagesimo quinto, ait Hieronymum cum ait illuc quaedam citari quae non compareant apud Hebraeos, haereticorum recitare calumnias, non suam sententiam. Quid senserit Hieronymus de hac epistola, mihi non satis liquet, nam is vafer est et in hac fuit opinione ut non protinus euulgandum sit quod apud te senseris, quando Christus turbis per parabolas locutus est, solis discipulis aperiens regni mysterium. Quod si apud Hebraeos ea reperiuntur, cur Hieronymus non indicat?

290 apologia See the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1802–1861.

292–295 quod ... adducit See appendix IV, ll. 518–522.

296–298 stultitiam ... attineat See appendix IV, ll. 523–532.

300–327 negat ... suspicio Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2108–2164.

300 negat ... receperint See appendix IV, ll. 533–534. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1911–1923.

301–303 Hieronymus ... Arianorum See the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1911–1923 and ll. 1993–2012 and nn.

304–305 epistolam ... receptam See the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1997–2007 and n.

306 eiusdem ... sextum Hier., Comm. in Is. III, vi, 9.10, CCSL 73, ed. M. Adriaen, Turnhout, 1963, p. 92, ll. 47–49.

rursus ... octauum Hier., Comm. in Is. III, viii, 16. 17–18, p. 118, ll. 18–20.

307 clarius ... XXVI See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2022–2023 and n.

308–309 arguit ... Hieronymi See appendix IV, ll. 533–535. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2156–2164.

312–314 existimat ... Iouinianum See appendix IV, ll. 535–538.

316–319 irridet ... ecclesia' See appendix IV, ll. 538–547. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1836–1988 and ll. 2107–2164.

320 enthymema See Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., l. 1568 and n.

non ... Anticyris “deserving more than one Anticyra”, i.e., completely mad. Cf. appendix IV, l. 547 and n., and the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., n. ll. 1920–1921. Otto 117.

321 synathroesmo Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., l. 2132.

328–330 existimat ... testimonio See appendix IV, ll. 548–556. For Erasmus' reaction on this argument, see the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2059–2099.

333–334 argumentum ... testimonium See appendix IV, l. 557.

337–338 asseuerat ... haereticos See appendix IV, ll. 558–564. Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 2013–2015.

342–344 ait ... sententiam See appendix IV, ll. 564–566.

347–348 Quod ... indicat In his disputatio, Lefèvre had contended that the reason why certain heretics had rejected Hebr. was that it contained O.T. quotations of passages which did not occur in the Hebrew O.T. text (appendix IV, ll. 558–572). Lefèvre had emphasized that this was an argument brought forward by heretics, and was not accepted by Jerome himself, who only mentioned it without approval. Erasmus, however, now suggests that Jerome must have subscribed to the heretics' argument, since otherwise he had shown that the O.T. passages in Hebr. the heretics claimed to be missing in the Hebrew O.T., did in fact occur there.

Quinquagesimo sexto, in calce concludit de hac non esse dubitandum, quan-doquidem sacrosanctae synodi et canones eam approbarunt. De synodorum 350 approbatione mihi non constat, nunc certe constat receptam. Quo animo recepta sit, mihi nondum constat, an vt Pauli, an vt cui debeatur par autoritas cum caeteris. Quibusunque legibus recepta est, eam accipio, tantum illud dicam, Apocalysis si non fuissest in canonem recepta, nihilominus consistere potuisse fidem 355 christianam. Porro si sacrosancta synodus approbauit epistolam ad Hebraeos, cur audet Faber in ea locum taxare velut impium et Christo indignum? Nisi forte synodo fuit exemplar emendatum et mox ab approbatione repente totius orbis Graeci pariter ac Latini codices omnes deprauati sunt, adeo vt a nemine sciri potuerit quid ea synodus legisset.

360 Quinquagesimoseptimo, quidquid est incommodi aut offendiculi, id in inter-pretem reiicit, sed meo iudicio parum pudenter in tanto Graecorum ac Latino-rum codicum consensu, praesertim cum nemo veterum hoc lemmate sit vsus, tamen incertum sit an Lucas sit interpres. Verum hac de re nihil contendo, tan-tum tribus verbis admoneo lectorem quo illi cogitandi quaerendique materiam 365 suppeditem, quod quidem maxime conueniebat huic argumento quo profitemur annotationes, non definitiones.

Summa rerum capita paucis annotauimus fastidioso lectori. Qui volet rem ple-nius cognoscere, legat apologiam nostram qua Fabro respondemus. Imperitiae crimen facile agnoscam, impietatis in Christum nec debeo, nec possum agnos-370 cedere. Cui soli fateor omnem deberi gloriam, longe maiorem quam omnis humana praedicatio queat illi tribuere. Nec est contumelia quod illi tribuimus humilita-tem, cuius crucem, cuius flagra reuerenter adoramus etiam, cuius ignominia nostra est gloria. Atque vtinam Faber dum suam tuetur sententiam, non impetisset 375 simplicem ac syncerum amicum tot dictis odiosissimis, quod illo viro dignum erat, etiamsi quid illi fuissest aduersatus. Et tamen quod ad contumeliam attinet, facile vel negligo, vel amicitiae condono, vel homini denique ignosco. Praesertim cum quicquid hic criminis aut erroris impingit, sit mihi cum probatissimis ecclesiae doctoribus, imo cum publico totius ecclesiae iudicio commune. Caeterum 349–350 concludit ... approbarunt See appendix IV, ll. 571–572.

see ASD IX, 1, p. 49 with nn. 193–195; Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 304–305 with n. 1. 426.

351–353 Quo ... caeteris Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1956–1966.

372–373 cuius ... gloria Cf. Hil., Trin., 2, 25, CSSL 62, ed. P. Smulders, Turnhout, 1979, p. 61, ll. 16–17: Humilitas eius nostra nobil- itas est, contumelia eius honor noster est.

355–356 Porro ... indignum Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1967–1988.

374–375 quod ... aduersatus “this (i.e., not attacking Erasmus with so many hateful words) would have befitted the man, even if I had opposed him to a certain extent.”

356–359 Nisi ... legisset Cf. the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1982–1986.

363 tamen ... interpres Cf. Erasmus’ note on Hebr. 2, 7 of 1516 (appendix III, ll. 39–42) and the Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap., ll. 1632–1645.

366 annotationes, non definitiones For Erasmus’ view on the genre of annotationes he wrote, 380 non opinor tantum esse tribuendum amico, vt in illius gratiam haberi velis blasphemus et impius in Christum, vbi non sis. Et hanc tamen calumniam sic a me depuli, vt, quoad licuit, non laeserim amici famam, vt nemini dubium esse possit quin necessitatis fuerit quod me defendi, Christiani pudoris quod a talione abstinui.

FINIS

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

GENERAL ABBREVIATIONS

add.	addidit, addiderunt
alt.	alterum
cf.	confer
Comm.	Commentarius, -ii
crit. app.	critical apparatus
ed(d).	edited by
ed. pr.	editio princeps
e.g.	exempli gratia, for instance
Enarr.	Enarrationes
Ep(p).	Epistola(e) (referring to Erasmus' letters only)
epist.	epistola(e)
et al.	et alii
Expos.	Expositio
f ^o	folio(s)
h.l.	hoc loco
Hom.	Homiliae
ibid.	ibidem
id.	idem
i.e.	id est
in marg.	in margine
intr.	introduction
l(l).	line(s)
loc. cit.	leco citato
Ms(s).	manuscript(s)
n(n).	note(s)
n(n). l(l).	note(s) to line(s)
N.T.	New Testament
op. cit.	opere citato
O.T.	Old Testament
p(p).	pagina(e), page(s)
ps.	pseudo
r ^o	recto
sc.	scilicet
s.d.	sine dato
Serm.	Sermo(nes) s.l.	sine loco
s.v.	sub voce
t.	tomus
tert.	tertium
Tract.	Tractatus
viz	videlicet , namely
v ^o	verso
vol(s)	volume(s)

CLASSICAL AND PATRISTIC AUTHORS

Ambr.	Ambrosius
Apul.	Apuleius

Aristoph.	Aristophanes
Equ.	Equites
Aristot.	Aristoteles
An. post.	Analytica posteriora
An. pr.	Analytica priora
Cael.	De caelo
Cat.	Categoriae
Eth. Eud.	Ethica Eudemia
Eth. Nic.	Ethica Nicomachea
Metaph.	Metaphysica
Phys.	Physica
Pol.	Politica
Rhet.	Rhetorica
Top.	Topica
Arnob.	Arnobius
Athan.	Athanasius
Aug.	Aurelius Augustinus
Civ.	De ciuitate Dei
Conf.	Confessiones
Contra Acad.	Contra Academicos
Doct. chr.	De doctrina christiana
Trin.	De Trinitate
Bernardus	Bernardus Clareuallensis
Boeth.	Boethius
Chrys.	Iohannes Chrysostomus
Cic.	Cicero
Arch.	Pro Archia poeta
Att.	Epistulae ad Atticum
Balb.	Pro L. Balbo
Brut.	Brutus
Caec.	Pro A. Caecina
Cael.	Pro M. Caelio
Carm.	Carminum fragmenta
Catil.	In Catilinam
Cato	Cato maior de senectute
De or.	De oratore
Div.	De diuinatione
Dom.	De domo sua
Fam.	Epistulae ad familiares
Fat.	De fato
Fin.	De finibus
Flacc.	Pro L. Valerio Flacco
Font.	Pro M. Fonteio
Inv.	De inuentione
Lael.	Laelius de amicitia
Leg.	De legibus
Mil.	Pro T. Annio Milone
Mur.	Pro L. Murena
Nat.	De natura deorum
Off.	De officiis
Or.	Orator
Part. or.	Partitiones oratoriae
Phil.	In M. Antonium oratio Philippica
Pis.	In L. Pisonem
Prov.	De prouinciis consularibus
Q. Rosc.	Pro Q. Roscio Comoedo
Quinct.	Pro Quintcio

Rep.	De re publica
Sest.	Pro P. Sestio
Sull.	Pro P. Sulla
Tim.	Timaeus
Iop.	Topica
Tull.	Pro M. Tullio
Tusc.	Tusculanae disputationes
Clem. Al.	Clemens Alexandrinus
Strom.	Stromateis
Curt.	Q. Curtius Rufus
Cypr.	Cyprianus
Democr.	Democritus
Demosth.	Demosthenes
Diog. Laert.	Diogenes Laertius
Epict.	Epictetus
Eus.	Eusebius
H.E.	Historia Ecclesiastica
Eust.	Eustathius
Hdt.	Herodotus
Hes.	Hesiodus
Erg.	"Eργα καὶ ἡμέραι
Theog.	Theogonia
Hier.	Hieronymus
Adv. Iov.	Aduersus Iouinianum
Adv. Ruf.	Aduersus Rufinum
Brev. in Ps.	Breuiarium in Ps.
Comm. in Ps.	Commentarioli in Psalmos
De vir. ill.	De viris illustribus
Quaest. Hebr.	Quaestiones Hebraicae in Genesim
Hil.	Hilarius
Trin.	De Trinitate
Hom.	Homerus
Hymn. Hom.	Hymni Homerici
Il.	Ilias
Od.	Odyssea
Hor.	Horatius
Ars	Ars poetica
Carm.	Carmina
Carm. saec.	Carmen saeculare
Epod.	Epodi
Iren.	Irenaeus
Haer.	Aduersus haereses
Isocr.	Isocrates
Iust.	Iustinus
Iuv.	Iuuenalis
Liv.	Liuius
Lucan.	Lucanus
Lucian.	Lucianus
Am.	Amores
Bacch.	Bacchus
Char.	Charidemus
Conuiv.	Conuiuum
De sacr.	De sacrificiis
Dial. mort.	Dialogi mortuorum
Epigr.	Epigrammata
Eun.	Eunuchus
Fug.	Fugitiui

Herc.	Hercules
Herm.	Hermotimus
Martial.	Martialis
Orig.	Origenes
Contra Cels.	Contra Celsum
Ov.	Ouidius
Am.	Amores
Fast.	Fasti
Nux (Ps. Ov.)	Nux elegia
Trist.	Tristia
Pherecr.	Pherecrates
Plato	Plato
Rep.	De re publica
Plaut.	Plautus
Capt.	Captiui
Aul.	Aulularia
Cist.	Cistellaria
Men.	Menaechmi
Plin.	Plinius maior
Nat. Hist.	Naturalis historia
Plut.	Plutarchus
Mar.	Vita Marii
Quint.	Quintilianus
Inst.	Institutio oratoria
Sall.	Sallustius
Iug.	Bellum Iugurthinum
Sen.	Seneca (minor)
Dial.	Dialogi
Suet.	Suetonius
Ner.	Nero
Tib.	Tibullus
Ter.	Terentius
Andr.	Andria
Heaut.	Heautontimorumenos
Phorm.	Phormio
Ad.	Adelphoe
Hec.	Hecyra
Stob.	Stobaeus
Tib.	Tibullus
Varro	Varro
Ling. lat.	De Lingua latina

BIBLE

Vetus Testamentum

Gn.	Genesis
Ex.	Exodus
Lu.	Leuiticus
Nu.	Numeri
Dt.	Deuteronomium
Is.	Iosua
Iudic.	Iudices
Rth.	Ruth
1,2 Sm.	1,2 Samuel
1,2 Reg.	1,2 Reges
1,2 Chr.	1,2 Chronicci

Esr.	Esra
Neh.	Nehemia
Esth.	Esther
Iob	Iob
Ps.	Psalmi
Prv.	Proverbia
Eccl.	Ecclesiastes
Ct.	Canticum Canticorum
Is.	Isaias
Ir.	Ieremias
Thr.	Threni Ieremiae
Ez.	Ezechiel
Dn.	Daniel
Hos.	Hoseas
Ioel	Ioel
Am.	Amos
Ob.	Obadiah
Ion.	Ionas
Mch.	Michaeas
Nah.	Nahum
Hab.	Habacuc
Zph.	Zephania
Hgg.	Haggaeus
Zch.	Zacharias
Ml.	Malachias
Idth.	Judith
Sap.	Sapientia Salomonis
Tob.	Tobias
Sir.	Iesus Sirach
Bar.	Baruch
1,2,3,4 Mcc.	1,2,3,4 Macchabaei

LXX	Septuaginta
------------	--------------------

Nouum Testamentum

Mt.	Matthaeus
Mc.	Marcus
Lc.	Lucas
Ioh.	Iohannes
Act.	Acta Apostolorum
Rom.	Ad Romanos
1,2 Cor.	1,2 Ad Corinthios
Gal.	Ad Galatas
Eph.	Ad Ephesios
Phil.	Ad Philippenses
Col.	Ad Colosenses
1,2 Thess.	1,2 Ad Thessalonicenses
1,2 Tim.	1,2 Ad Timotheum
Tit.	Ad Titum
Phm.	Ad Philemonem
Hebr.	Ad Hebraeos
Iac.	Iacobi Epistola
1,2 Petr.	Petri Epistola 1,2
1,2,3 Ioh.	Iohannis Epistola 1,2,3
Iud.	Iudae Epistola
Ap. Ioh.	Apocalypsis Iohannis

ERASMUS

Adag.	Adagiorum chiliades
Annot. in Nou. Test.	Annotationes in Nouum Testamentum
Apolog. ad Fabr. Stap.	Apologia ad Iacobum Fabrum Stapulensem
Apolog. adv. Iac. Lop. Stun.	Apologia respondens ad ea quae Iac. Lop. Stunica taxauerat in prima duntaxat Noui Testamenti aeditione
Apolog. adv. monach. hisp.	Apologia aduersus monachos quosdam hispanos
Apolog. adv. rhaps. Alb. Pii	Apologia aduersus rhapsodias Alberti Pii
Apolog. de In princ. erat sermo	Apologia de In principio erat sermo
Apolog. de loco Omnes resurg.	Apologia de loco Omnes quidem resurregeremus
Apologia	Apologia
Apophth.	Apophthegmata
Coll.	Colloquia
Conc. de puerो Iesu	Concio de puerо Iesu
Declarat. ad cens. Lutet.	Declarationes ad censuras Lutetiae vulgaris
De conscr. ep.	De consribendis epistolis
Disputatiunc.	Disputatiuncula de tedio, pauore, tristitia Iesu
Enarrat. in Ps.	Enarrationes in Psalmos
Enchir.	Enchiridion militis christiani
Explan. symboli	Explanatio symboli
Hyperasp.	Hyperaspistes
Inst. hom. christ.	Institutum hominis christiani
Methodus	Methododus
Moria	Moriae encomium
Nov. Instr.	Nouum Instrumentum
Paraccl.	Paraclesis
Paraphr. in Eleg. Laur. Vallae	Paraphrasis in Elegantias Laurentii Vallae
Querela	Querela Pacis
Ratio	Ratio verae theologiae
Spongia	Spongia aduersus aspergines Hutteni

LEFEVRE

disputatio	Lefèvre's long annotation of Hebr. 2,7 in the second edition of his [S. Pauli epistolae XIV] containing his attack on Erasmus. [S. Pauli epistolae XIV ex Vulgata, adiecta intelligentia ex Graeco, cum commentariis], Paris, 1512 ¹ , 1516/7 ² , 1517 ³ .
S. Pauli epistolae XIV

OTHER SOURCES, REFERENCE WORKS AND LITERATURE

Allen	Desiderius Erasmus, Opus Epistolarum , ed. P.S. Allen, Oxford, 1906–1958.
ASD	Desiderius Erasmus, Opera omnia , Amsterdam, 1969–.
BAS	Desiderius Erasmus, Omnia opera , Basel, 1540, 9 vols.
BB	Bibliotheca Belgica. Bibliographie générale des Pays-Bas , edd. F. Vander Haeghen and M.-Th. Lenger, Brussels, 1979, 2 vols.
BE Rép.	F. Vander Haeghen, Bibliotheca Erasmiana, répertoire des œuvres d'Erasme , Gand, 1893 (reprint Nieuwkoop, 1961 and 1972).
CCSL	Corpus Christianorum. Series Latina , Turnhout, 1954–.
Contemporaries	Contemporaries of Erasmus. A Biographical Register of the Renaissance and Reformation , edd. P.G. Bietenholz and Th.B. Deutscher, Toronto, 1985–1987, 3 vols.
CS	Critici Sacri , ed. J. Pearson et al., Amsterdam, 1698 ³ .
CSEL	Corpus Scriptorum ecclesiasticorum Latinorum , Vienna, 1866–.

- CWE Collected Works of Erasmus, Toronto, 1969–.
- DSAM Dictionnaire de spiritualité, ascétique et mystique, Paris, 1932–.
- DTC Dictionnaire de théologie catholique (edd. A. Vacant et al.), Paris, 1903–.
- Ep(p). Desiderius Erasmus, Opus Epistolarum, ed. P.S. Allen, Oxford, 1906–1958.
- GCS Die griechischen christlichen Schriftsteller der ersten drei Jahrhunderte, Leipzig, 1897–1941, Berlin, 1954–.
- GW Gesamtkatalog der Wiegendrucke, Leipzig, 1925–.
- Holborn H. Holborn and A. Holborn, edd., Des. Erasmus Roterodamus. Ausgewählte Werke: Enchiridion militis christiani; In Novum Testamentum praefationes: Paraclesis, Methodus, Apologia; Ratio seu Methodus compendio perueniendi ad veram theologiam, Munich, 1933; reprint 1964.
- Hoven, Lexique R. Hoven, Lexique de la prose latine de la Renaissance, Leiden, 1994.
- Hughes, Lefèvre P.E. Hughes, Lefèvre, Pioneer of Ecclesiastical Renewal in France, Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1984.
- Huizinga J. Huizinga, Erasmus, Haarlem, 1924; Rotterdam, 1988⁹.
- Husner F. Husner, Die Bibliothek des Erasmus in: Gedenkschrift zum 400. Todesstag des Erasmus von Rotterdam, Basel, 1936, pp. 228–259; Versandliste, ibid., pp. 238–244.
- Kleine Pauly K. Ziegler, W. Sontheimer and H. Gärtner, edd., Der kleine Pauly. Lexikon der Antike, Stuttgart, 1964–1975, 5 vols.
- Lampe G.W.H. Lampe, A Patristic Greek Lexicon, Oxford, 1968.
- Lausberg H. Lausberg, Handbuch der literarischen Rhetorik, Munich, 1960, 2 vols.
- LB Desiderius Erasmus, Opera Omnia, ed. J. Clericus, Leiden, 1703–1706, 10 vols.
- Leutsch-Schneidewin E.L. Leutsch, F.G. Scheidewin, Corpus paroemiographorum Graecorum, Göttingen, 1839–1851, 2 vols.
- Lewis-Short Ch.T. Lewis, Ch.S. Short, A Latin Dictionary, Oxford, 1879.
- Liddell-Scott H.G. Liddell, R. Scott, A Greek-English Lexicon. New edition by H.S. Jones and R. McKenzie, Oxford, 1968.
- LThK Lexikon für Theologie und Kirche, edd. M. Buchberger, J. Höfer, K. Rahner, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1957–1965, 11 vols.
- Migne PG J.-P. Migne, Patrologiae cursus completus, series Graeca, Paris, 1857–1866, 162 vols.
- Migne PL J.-P. Migne, Patrologiae cursus completus, series Latina, Paris, 1844–1864, 221 vols.
- NK W. Nijhoff, M.E. Kronenberg, Nederlandse bibliographie van 1500 tot 1540, 's-Gravenhage, 1923–1971, 3 vols.
- ODCC Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church, F.L. Cross, E.A. Livingstone, Oxford, 1977².
- Otto A. Otto, Die Sprichwörter und sprichwörtlichen Redensarten der Römer, Leipzig, 1890, reprint Hildesheim, 1988 (quoted according to Otto's numbers).
- Oxf. Lat. Dict. Oxford Latin Dictionary, Oxford, 1968–1982.
- Rice, Prefatory Epistles E.F. Rice, Jr., The Prefatory Epistles of Jacques Lefèvre d'Étaples and Related Texts, London/New York, 1972.
- SC Sources chrétiennes, Paris, 1942–.
- Thes. Graec. ling. Thesaurus Graecae linguae ab Henrico Stephano constructus, edd. C.B. Hase et al., Paris, 1831–1865.
- ThLL Thesaurus Linguae Latinae, Leipzig, 1900–.
- TRE Theologische Realenzyklopädie, Berlin/New York, 1977–.
- Vander Haeghen F. Vander Haeghen, Bibliotheca Erasmiana. Répertoire des œuvres d'Erasme, Gand, 1893; reprint Nieuwkoop, 1972.

Wettstein	J.J. Wetstenius, ed., Nouum Testamentum Graecum , Amsterdam, 1751–1752, 2 vols.
Wordsworth-White	Nouum Testamentum Domini nostri Iesu Christi Latine secundum editionem sancti Hieronymi, ad codicum manuscriptorum fidem recensuit I. Wordsworth, H.I. White, H.F.D. Sparks, et al., I Euangelia, Oxford, 1889–1898; II, Epistulae Paulinae, Oxford, 1913–1941; III Acta Apostolorum, Epistulae Canonicae, Apocalypsis Iohannis, 1954.

JOURNALS

ARG	Archiv für Reformationsgeschichte
BHR	Bibliothèque d'Humanisme et Renaissance
CH	Church History
HZ	Historische Zeitschrift
JHI	Journal of the History of Ideas
JTS	The Journal of Theological Studies
NAK	Nederlands Archief voor Kerkgeschiedenis
RQ	Renaissance Quarterly
Vig. christ.	Vigiliae christiana
ZKG	Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte

INDEX NOMINVM

This index includes names occurring in the Latin texts of the Apologia and the appendices. Some names of very frequent occurrence, such as Erasmus, Lefèvre, Jerome, Augustine, and those of the authors of the books of the Bible are not included, except in the case of a few noteworthy occurrences.

- | | |
|--|---|
| Abraham, 160, 208, 218, 223
Academici, 146
Adam, 127, 213, 230
Adrianus Matthaeus, 234
Aeschines, 94
Agamemnon, 174
Alexander Magnus, 90
Ambrosius, 92, 104, 108, 112, 116, 120, 121, 126, 134, 153, 154, 156, 162, 169, 170, 176, 178, 184, 204, 222, 223, 228, 236, 237
Anticyra, 144, 162, 170, 222, 236
Apuleius, 148
Arabicus, 102, 208
Aratus, 156, 172
Ariani, III, 134, 236
Aristarchus, 146, 148
Aristoteles, 120, 122, 128, 132, 142, 170, 172
Arius, 135
Armeniacus, 102
Arnobius, 158
Ate, 174
Athanasius, 136, 139, 140, 146, 149, 217, 220, 223, 232

Badius, 144
Balaam, 148
Balarro, 174
Balbina, 232
Barnabas, 164
Basilea, 88, 102, 178
Beda, 150
Beroaldus, 144
Boethius, 170, 172
Budaeus, 88

Cardinalis Senogallensis, 178
Chaldaeus, 94, 104, 204, 221, 234
Cham, 120
Chrysostomus, 100, 104, 136, 139, 140, 146, 149, 153, 180, 204, 217, 220, 223, 232
Cicero, 144, 170
Cyprianus, 116, 170, 176, 180

Damascenus, 134
Dauid Quinchi, 216 | Demosthenes, 94
Dionysius Areopagita, 94, 212
Donatistae, 180

Ebionitae, 165, 168, 223, 237
Epimenides, 156, 172
Eusebius, 150
Eustathius, 144, 146, 216, 232

Frobenius, 90

Gothicus, 102
Gregorius, 112, 176

Hesiodus, 82, 90
Hilarius, 100, 104, 108, 112, 113, 122, 131, 134, 143
Hispania, 80
Homerus, 144, 174, 196, 216, 232
Horatius, 174
Hybernicus, 102

Iustinianus, Augustinus, 208

Laodicense, 166
Louanium, 80, 196
Lucas, 146, 150, 164, 166, 168, 204, 220, 234, 238
Lutetia, 86
Lysippus, 90

Magdalena, 130, 212, 229
Marcion, 128
Marcionitae, 165, 168, 237
Marcus, 128
Maria, 130, 180, 212, 229
Martialis, 178
Momus, 177
Musae, 176

Nazareni, 172
Nepotianus, 110
Nicodemus, 198, 209
Nicolaus Cusa, 178
Nilus, 190
Noe, 120 |
|--|---|

- Noetiani, 200
Nomentanus, 174
- Origenes, 156, 166, 168, 232
Ouidius, 122
- Peripatetici, 122
Petrus Lombardus, 109, 152, 178
Pico, 178
Plautus, 138
Pythagoras, 236
- Quintilianus, 170
Quintus Curtius, 144
- Reuchlin, Capnion, 178, 204
Rhodos, 86
Rogatiani, 180
- Ruffinus, 178
- Sabelliani, 200
Scotidae, 182
Seneca, 166
Socrates, 122
Stephanus Poncherius, 88, 116
Stoici, 122
Suetonius, 148
Sueucus, 102
- Terentius, 144, 170, 190
Theophylactus (Vulgarius), 100, 104, 136, 140, 146, 204, 217, 232
- Thomas Aquinas, 98, 100, 110, 148, 149, 176, 203, 204, 207, 208, 220, 226, 234
- Valla, Laurentius, 184