New Testament Tools, Studies, and Documents (NTTSD) combines two series, New Testament Tools and Studies (NTTS) and Studies and Documents (SD). The former was founded by Bruce M. Metzger in 1965 and edited by him until 1993, when Bart D. Ehrman joined him as co-editor. The latter series was founded by Kirsopp and Silva Lake in 1935, edited by them until the death of Kirsopp Lake in 1946, then briefly by Silva Lake and Carsten Høeg (1955), followed by Jacob Geerlings (until 1969), by Irving Alan Sparks (until 1993), and finally by Eldon Jay Epp (until 2007).

The new series will promote the publication of primary sources, reference tools, and critical studies that advance the understanding of the New Testament and other early Christian writings and writers into the fourth century. Emphases of the two predecessor series will be retained, including the textual history and transmission of the New Testament and related literature, relevant manuscripts in various languages, methodologies for research in early Christianity. The series will also publish a broader range of studies pertinent to early Christianity and its writings.

Preface

Much of the Old Latin evidence for the New Testament has been newly edited over the last century. The Itala volumes of gospel manuscripts initiated by Adolf Jülicher in 1938 were completed by Walter Matzkow and Kurt Aland, including a second edition for each of the Synoptic Gospels.¹ The Vetus Latina edition which began in 1945, combining the text of all surviving manuscripts with an exhaustive collection of biblical quotations from writers of the first eight Christian centuries, has so far covered the Catholic Epistles (Thiele, 1956–1969), the Pauline Epistles from Ephesians to Hebrews (Frede, 1962–1991), the Apocalypse (Gryson, 2000–2003), John (Burton et al., 2011–) and Mark (Haelewycck, 2013–2018), with work on Acts in progress.² The only New Testament writings not to have benefited from a new edition are the four principal Pauline Epistles: Romans, 1 & 2 Corinthians and Galatians. Projects to edit Romans and 1 Corinthians in the Vetus Latina series were abandoned after the publication of introductory fascicles in the 1990s.³ This means that, notwithstanding the material gathered in the Vetus Latina Database, the standard edition has remained Pierre Sabatier's pioneering work of Old Latin biblical scholarship from 1743, based on a single manuscript in the Pauline Epistles and pre-modern editions of patristic writers.⁴

In 2011, a European Research Council Starting Grant enabled Hugh Houghton to assemble a team at the Institute for Textual Scholarship and Electronic Editing (ITSEE) in the University of Birmingham to investigate the earliest commentaries on Paul as sources for the biblical text (the COMPAUL project). In order to assist with analysis of the numerous early Latin expositions, full electronic transcriptions were produced of the four principal Pauline Epistles in three types of material:

¹ Adolf Jülicher (ed.), Itala. Das Neue Testament in altlateinischer Überlieferung. I. Matthäus-Evangelium, II. Marcus-Evangelium, III. Lucas-Evangelium, IV. Johannes-Evangelium. Berlin: de Gruyter, 1972², 1970², 1976², 1963.

- 1) Manuscripts identified as having an Old Latin affiliation;
- 2) Existing scholarly reconstructions of the Pauline text of individual early Latin commentators;
- 3) Early collections of biblical testimonia.

These were then automatically collated to provide a representative sample of early Latin readings which might be reflected in commentaries and their textual tradition. Although the publication of this data was not part of the original plan for the COMPAUL project, it soon became evident that—until the appearance of the corresponding volumes of the Vetus Latina edition—making this material more widely available would be of service to scholars in a variety of fields.

The majority of the transcriptions were made by Kreinecker and MacLachlan, with Houghton also contributing and taking responsibility for proofreading. After conversion to XML by Smith, these files were published in full online at <http://www.epistulae.org>, along with databases of patristic quotations also prepared by the COMPAUL project. Specific details of contributors and the sources used are given in the header of each electronic transcription. The preparation of the apparatus coincided with a major transition in digital editing software. The preliminary collation of plain text files of 1 Corinthians was the last project in ITSEE to use the COLLATE program,⁵ while early work on Galatians provided one of the first opportunities for trialling the online editing environment developed by Smith, in which the CollateX software developed by Ronald Dekker for the Interedition consortium was deployed.⁶ The present collation is based on the project's final XML transcription files in this Collation Editor within the Workspace for Collaborative Editing. Smith was responsible for processing the transcriptions into the required format and making the initial apparatus available in an interface which enabled Houghton to edit and check the collation. These processes are described in more detail in the Introduction.

Introduction

The Old Latin Tradition of the Pauline Epistles

The evidence for the early Latin text of the Pauline Epistles is relatively sparse. Its history is similar to that of the rest of the Latin New Testament.¹ An initial translation was probably made around the beginning of the third century, as witnessed by the consistent form of text in the biblical quotations of Cyprian. This was then revised in various ways in various places, sometimes with reference to a Greek text, sometimes based on internal criteria of Latin style. Although this may have resulted in a number of different traditions, over the course of the fourth century a single form of text associated with North Italy gradually achieved an ascendancy. A revision of this version at the beginning of the fifth century produced the form of text later accepted as standard in the Latin Vulgate.² It is therefore misleading to divide the Latin tradition of the New Testament into two separate forms, Old Latin and Vulgate. The Vulgate was a revision of an existing Latin text according to a Greek form: the Gospels were the work of Jerome in 382–384, but the reviser of the rest of the New Testament is unknown. There may have been multiple early Latin translations, but the conclusion of editors of both Old and New Testament books in the Vetus Latina editions is that the surviving evidence appears to derive from a single initial version. Although the Latin tradition is best conceived of as a continuum, it is nevertheless a useful shorthand to use Old Latin (or Vetus Latina) as a catch-all designation for non-Vulgate readings, particularly those which are attested in Christian writings before the fifth century.

The reconstruction of the “text-types” of the different stages of the Old Latin tradition, based on scriptural codices and quotations in Christian authors from the first eight centuries, is the goal of the Vetus Latina edition. This is a difficult task. A combination of age and the hegemony of the Vulgate means that few manuscripts survive of the early versions; copies of biblical books made from the fifth century onwards may well be mixed texts combining Old Latin and Vulgate forms. The later form of text may also have affected the transmission of early Christian writings. It is only through the exhaustive collection and analysis of all surviving evidence that the fullest possible picture can be presented. As noted above in the Preface, the material in the present volume was assembled to give an overview of readings in the Latin tradition of the principal Pauline Epistles for the purpose of analysing the biblical text of early commentaries. It is presented here to facilitate further study of the textual history of these writings and to provide a reliable account of the most extensive early Latin evidence, replacing the entries for the selected witnesses in the Vetus Latina Database. In this way, it is hoped that it may also eventually serve as the basis for the full Vetus Latina edition of these four letters, as well as an interim point of reference for Latin sources in editions of the Greek New Testament.

Selection of Witnesses

The selection of manuscripts was made on the basis of the register of Old Latin manuscripts published by the Vetus Latina-Institut and the printed introductory fascicles of the Vetus Latina editions of Romans (Eymann) and 1Corinthians (Fröhlich).³ The section of the register covering the Pauline Epistles comprises fifteen witnesses, with the sigla VL 75–89. Five of these are more or less complete continuous-text codices (VL 75–78, 88), while others are fragmentary (VL 79–80, 82–83, 85–86). Two are connected with commentaries: VL 81 is a partial text of Hebrews in a copy of Pelagius' commentary, while VL 89 transmits all fourteen Pauline Epistles in full as the lemmata in an anonymous fourth-century commentary (see below). VL 84 consists of the biblical text from a list of lections in the opening pages of a Vulgate manuscript, while VL 87 is the remains of a Pauline lectionary. In addition, Eymann and Fröhlich include thirteen further manuscripts from other sections of the Vetus Latina register as witnesses to the Pauline Epistles. These comprise six complete or fragmentary New Testaments (VL 51, 54, 58, 61, 67, 135), five lectionaries (VL 31, 32, 251, 262, 271), leaves from an important codex of the Catholic and Pauline Epistles (VL 64) and a short liturgical text (VL 411). Other manuscripts in the register also contain the Pauline Epistles, such as VL 62 and 65 or the Spanish lectionary tradition represented by VL 56 and 68–73, but these are not included in the lists of Old Latin witnesses by Fröhlich and Eymann as they are considered Vulgate witnesses: they have consequently been left out of this collation. It should also be noted that the inclusion of a witness in the Vetus Latina register is not a guarantee of Old Latin affiliation in all the writings it contains or even within a single text. Of the manuscripts included in the present volume, a number are predominantly Vulgate in the Pauline Epistles, including VL 51, 54, 58, 67, 78, 84, 87, 88 and 251. We have provided these for the sake of completeness, not least as all are cited for the Pauline Epistles in the current Greek New Testament hand editions of Nestle-Aland and the United Bible Societies.⁴

The manuscripts are complemented by early commentary texts and testimonia. Unlike the majority of biblical quotations in Christian authors, both these types of writing derive from scriptural codices: testimonia are collections of passages transcribed from biblical books, sometimes preserving the sequence of the original, while the lemmata preceding the portions of exegesis in a commentary may, unless there is evidence of later interference, be taken to represent the text used by the expositor. There are no fewer than six surviving Latin commentaries on the principal Pauline Epistles composed in the fourth or early fifth century: Marius Victorinus (Galatians), Ambrosiaster (all four epistles), Jerome (Galatians), Augustine (Romans and Galatians), Pelagius (all four epistles) and the anonymous commentary mentioned above (VL 89). The project supplemented Augustine's incomplete commentaries on Romans with the biblical text from his exegetical sermons on this epistle. In addition, two Greek commentaries were translated into Latin in this period: Rufinus of Aquileia produced a Latin version of Origen's commentary on Romans, using an Old Latin text as its biblical lemmata, while the Pauline commentary of Theodore of Mopsuestia—including its biblical text—was rendered into Latin in the circles of Julian of Eclanum, although only the epistles from Galatians onwards are preserved. The sole other original Latin commentary based on an Old Latin text of Paul is the series of brief Complexiones composed by Cassiodorus in the late sixth century. The four collections of testimonia cited in this volume are Ad Quirinum and Ad Fortunatum, both assembled by Cyprian in the third century, the anonymous Speculum or Liber de diuinis scripturis originating in Italy around the year 400, and the Speculum quis ignorat, a late work of Augustine.⁵

Commentaries and testimonia may preserve multiple forms of biblical text as a result of changes introduced in the course of their transmission. While much of this may be due to subconscious alteration by copyists familiar with a different version, on certain occasions this was the result of a deliberate replacement of the quotations by an editor. Both these types of writing are particularly vulnerable to this sort of substitution as they present substantial portions of biblical text in sequence.⁶ Augustine's Speculum quis ignorat is the only work of his corpus in which he extensively cites the text of the Vulgate New Testament outside the Gospels, and it seems that the authorial form of the biblical text was replaced at an early point. Cyprian's testimonia were updated using at least one other Old Latin tradition. The differing recensions of Ambrosiaster's commentary (three in Romans, two in the other epistles) appear to be authorial, but subsequent substitution of the lemmata can be seen in some groupings of manuscripts. The discrepancy between the two principal manuscripts of Pelagius is well known: the ninth-century A (Karlsruhe, Badische Landesbibliothek, Aug. 119) has a biblical text close to the Vulgate, while the fifteenth-century B (Oxford, Balliol College, MS 157) has an Old Latin text similar to VL 61. The former is generally accepted to be authorial. The textual tradition of Jerome's Commentary on Galatians preserves Old Latin forms not adopted in the most recent critical edition.⁷ For this reason, when making transcriptions of the biblical text in these writings, we have also recorded variant readings reported in the critical apparatus which affect the biblical lemmata. Further details of the manuscripts reported for each work are given in the List of Witnesses.

The sources chosen for this volume therefore present most if not all of the surviving Old Latin evidence for the continuous-text tradition of the four principal Pauline Epistles, either in the direct form of a biblical codex or the indirect form of commentaries or testimonia compiled (or revised) from a biblical manuscript. In contrast to the Gospels, but in keeping with other books of the Old and New Testament, the relative lateness of the forms of text transmitted in biblical codices means that the secondary evidence is particularly important for recovering Old Latin versions. It is therefore fortunate that so many early commentaries on the Pauline Epistles have been preserved. As noted above, not all of the sources presented in this volume are consistently Old Latin in their affiliation: we have opted to cite each witness throughout, in order to enable users to see all the available evidence, rather than making judgments about the distribution of distinctive textual forms.

There is undoubtedly further Old Latin material preserved in sources not included in this collation. The COMPAUL project was also responsible for the creation of a database of quotations of these four epistles in Latin authors based on the transcription of the digitised index cards of the Vetus Latina Database. Almost 100,000 full-text quotations are available through the portal at <http://www.epistulae.org/>, which can be searched and ordered by verse. Keyword searches in electronic corpora such as the Library of Latin Texts and Patrologia Latina may identify further references not included in this collection. The importance of prefaces and series of capitula for early Latin biblical traditions should also be recognised. Even so, while the completion of a Vetus Latina edition bringing all this material together remains a future prospect, it is hoped that the present volume and its online counterparts will significantly improve access to and study of the Old Latin evidence for the Pauline Epistles.

Preparation of the Data

Full electronic transcriptions were made of each of the witnesses in plain text using the standards developed by the International Greek New Testament Project and the Verbum Project for work on the Gospel according to John.⁸ This involved the adjustment of a file with the Vulgate version of the epistle to match the text and layout of each manuscript. The orthography was reproduced exactly, along with details of abbreviations, punctuation, and decoration. All corrections were noted, along with alternative readings or glosses. Gaps and unclear text were also recorded. Where possible, new digital images or digitised microfilm were used for each manuscript, with reference to earlier published transcriptions only when necessary. For the commentaries and testimonia, the transcriptions were based on printed editions. We were able to use existing reconstructions of the biblical text of Marius Victorinus (Galatians), Ambrosiaster (all epistles), Rufinus (Romans) and Pelagius (Romans). In all the other cases, we went through a critical edition transcribing the lemmata or extracts as indicated by the editor. The orthography of each edition was preserved, although word and verse division were standardised. Variant readings reported in the critical apparatus which affected the biblical text were recorded in the same way as corrections in manuscripts, with details of sigla for significant witnesses, although minor spelling changes and other obvious errors in the textual tradition were usually ignored. The layout of the text in printed editions was sometimes also transcribed in order to facilitate proofreading.

Each file was proofread against the original source or, in the case of some manuscripts, a set of digital images which had subsequently become available. In the case of Pelagius' commentaries on 1 & 2 Corinthians and Galatians, the text extracted from Souter's edition was compared with digital images of the Karlsruhe and Balliol manuscripts to ensure that the witnesses had been correctly reported.⁹ The proofread files were converted to XML conforming to the TEI P5 guidelines, using scripts developed by Smith.¹⁰ Information about the sources used and the transcribers, as well as a list of subsequent alterations, was recorded in the header of each file. The final transcriptions have been published online at <http://www.epistulae.org/> under a Creative Commons attribution licence in order to facilitate their reuse.

For the collation of the transcriptions, only data pertaining to the biblical text was required. Once the XML had been processed to give the desired information in JSON format, the Collation Editor was used to generate an initial collation of each verse using CollateX as the alignment software. The results were presented in the Collation Editor's web-based interface for further editing. The first stage of this was the removal of purely orthographic variation ("regularisation"). This was undertaken through the creation of global rules, affecting all witnesses throughout that epistle, or local rules restricted to individual witnesses or occurrences. Nonsense readings or partially-extant text were allocated to the corresponding correct form when this could be identified without ambiguity. Each adjustment was recorded, with the appropriate classification to enable the different categories of change to be identified and provide a full history of editorial activity. The second stage involved the adjustment of the alignment of variant readings ("set variants"). This was necessary if the algorithm had not assigned a reading to the appropriate head word. Inconsistencies in word division were also removed and the individual readings were combined based on grammatical principles or their attestation. Where witnesses were only extant for part of the verse, they were marked as absent rather than ⁹ Errors in Souter's apparatus have been indicated as notes in the transcriptions.

Houghton, "The Electronic Scriptorium: Markup for New Testament Manuscripts", in Claire Clivaz, Andrew Gregory and David Hamidovic (edd.), Digital Humanities in Biblical, Early Jewish and Early Christian Studies. omissive in the other units. The reviewing of all the data in this way also identified certain inconsistencies in the transcriptions, which were adjusted and recollated as necessary. At each stage, the collation interface checked that all witnesses were present and that the original sequence of words was preserved, to avoid the introduction of error. Once each verse was marked as approved, the apparatus entry was generated following a template which put the readings and witnesses in a consistent order in a standard plain-text format for publication.

Principles and Layout of the Collation

The aim of this collation is to present the evidence for the text of the Pauline Epistles in the selected witnesses as clearly and economically as possible. Particular attention is paid to variations from the Vulgate, as these are likely to represent earlier, Old Latin, forms of text.¹¹ In order to focus on genuine textual variants, most of the incidental variation has been removed: no abbreviations (including numerals) or capitalisation are reported; orthography has been standardised on the basis of the Stuttgart Vulgate; partially-extant words and nonsense readings have, where the evidence is unambiguous, been allocated to the corresponding form. Wherever a reading includes a regularisation, however, this is indicated by a modification to the witness siglum: italics are used to show that the original reading has one or more orthographic differences, e.g. 67; a siglum enclosed in angled brackets, such as ⟨64⟩, denotes text which is incompletely preserved or only partially legible, yet may be confidently identified with the given reading; a siglum in parentheses, such as (89), indicates that the original form was judged by the editors to be a scribal error for the given reading.¹² It was deemed that presenting the original form for all of these cases would have resulted in overloading the apparatus and made it more difficult for users without a high level of linguistic or palaeographic expertise. Those wishing to check the actual reading of each witness can refer to the transcriptions presented in full at <http://www.epistulae.org/>. The use of e-caudata (e) was treated as a variant for ae or e, but digraphs (including ampersands) were not considered to be orthographic variants.

Outside these general categories, the aim during collation was to adjust as little of the data as possible. Wherever a word is a genuine grammatical form, it has been allowed to stand even if the orthography elsewhere in the manuscript suggests that it is likely to represent a different form. Thus both the future-tense amabit and the perfect-tense amauit are reported as written in the manuscript, regardless of the likely sequence of tenses in a verse or Greek tradition. Clearly erroneous forms such as amauo (for amabo), or amabi (for amaui) have been regularised. Within individual variation units, grammatical inconsistencies such as a plural subject with a singular verb or a masculine noun with a feminine adjective have also been regularised if they are obviously erroneous and represent simple slips or orthographic exchanges. Nevertheless, if there is a possibility that the form could be interpreted grammatically within the whole verse—however implausible the resulting sense—it has been allowed to stand, following the practice of the Novum Testamentum Graecum Editio Critica Maior. Where there is no obvious reading matching a partial or nonsensical form, or the evidence is ambivalent, the original has been preserved. In the case of proper nouns, where there is often extensive orthographical variation, variant forms are only reported if they differ in grammar or derive from a different lexical root.

It should be possible to reconstruct the text of each manuscript from the collation, along with the editorial text of each patristic witness. Given the partial nature of many witnesses (see the Summary of Material below), those present are listed at the beginning of each verse. If a witness is only present for part of a verse, it is listed as lacunose (in the case of continuous-text manuscripts) or absent (for extracts) in other variation units. Glosses or alternative readings are presented on an ad hoc basis (apart from VL 77, where most if not all are part of the text written by the first hand): indications are also given of differences where a verse appears more than once in the same witness. The collation itself is given in the form of a negative apparatus, with the text of the Stuttgart Vulgate as the lemma, in bold, for each variation unit. If no variant readings are given, all witnesses agree with the Vulgate. Witnesses which are not reported in support of a variant reading agree with the Vulgate. If this agreement is the result of regularisation, the sigla are included following the lemma text with the modifications described above. If a first-hand reading is reported for a variant and a correction is not given, the correction is to the Vulgate text. In the case of commentaries and testimonia, the editorial text (^{ed}) is always specified when a variant is present unless it agrees with the Vulgate and has not been regularised. Specific manuscripts of Ambrosiaster are indicated when a variant is peculiar to them (see the List of Witnesses). As no editorial text is available for Pelagius outside Romans, manuscripts A and B are reported throughout the three latter epistles: if only one manuscript is indicated, then the other agrees with the Vulgate; the agreement of the two manuscripts is only explicitly stated when a variant is present elsewhere in the textual tradition and A and B do not match the Vulgate.

The length of variation units has been determined by a combination of attestation and practicality. Grammatical units or phrases are treated as single variants so long as this does not give rise to too many different readings: if the number of resulting readings is more than seven or so, then they are divided into their constituents. The same is also true of transpositions: it is normally possible to present the whole phrase for shorter transpositions, but longer transpositions (particularly with intervening variants) may be reported as omissions and additions to the standard flow of text. Smaller variation units have often been combined in order to reduce the size of the printed volume. For ease of presentation, it was decided that each reading should only be presented once even though the collation software had the option of treating transpositions as overlapping variants in addition to any lexical differences within the phrase. The same sequence of witnesses is used throughout: manuscripts are listed in numerical order and then the other two classes of evidence are listed in chronological order within each type, giving the sequence MAR AMst HI AU PEL RUF THr CAr for the commentaries and TES FOR SPM SPE for the testimonia. Variant readings are given in the order of the first witness in which they are attested. Only manuscripts are cited for the incipit and explicit of each epistle.

Lines of Research

The full analysis of this data has yet to be undertaken.¹³ The oldest textual stream is that found in Cyprian's testimonia (TES and FOR), followed by the adjustments to match differing Old Latin forms as preserved in their manuscript tradition.¹⁴ The lemmata of Marius Victorinus and Ambrosiaster represent an Italian text of the early fourth century. A slightly later version of this is the earliest form attested in biblical codices, found in the fifth-century VL 75, its descendants VL 76 and VL 83, and VL 89. The Pseudo-Augustine Speculum (SPM) stands in a similar position, as does the lemma text provided by Rufinus for his translation of Origen (RUF). Jerome's lemma text of Galatians (HI) has both Old Latin and Vulgate readings: the latter are likely to derive from editorial intervention early in its transmission.¹⁵ Augustine (AU), VL 64, VL 80 and the Old Latin part of VL 88 witness to a separate early branch from the fourth century. The most distinctive other non-Vulgate text is that found in the ninth-century VL 61 and the lemmata of manuscript B of Pelagius (PEL^B), although the date of its origin has not yet been established. The other witnesses, by and large, are Vulgate texts with occasional Old Latin readings.

Two witnesses stand apart from mainstream tradition: the interlinear glosses of VL 77 and the ad hoc translation of the lemmata of Theodore of Mopsuestia (THr). The inclusion of both in the Vetus Latina registers provides sufficient reason to report their readings here, even though they both seem to be one-off productions which had no influence on subsequent tradition (apart, perhaps, from the glosses in VL 78). In fact, the variety of renderings in these two independent versions serves to highlight the overall consistency of the rest of the material, suggesting that the extant Latin texts of the Pauline Epistles also derive from a single initial translation.

Milan, Biblioteca Ambrosiana, T. 27 sup.

Ordo scrutiniorum (a ritual text) including biblical lections. Copied in the eleventh century in North Italy. The original compilation was made at the end of the sixth century.

The only Pauline passages are Romans 10:13–17 and 2 Corinthians 1:19–22. (Although the index in Lambot suggests that there is a reference to 2 Cor. 10:5 in the prologue of the Creed, this is a very loose allusion and not part of a lection.) The liturgical addition of fratres is indicated in the collation.

The transcription reproduces C. Lambot, North Italian Services of the Eleventh Century. Recueil d'ordines du XI^e siècle provenant de la Haute-Italie. Henry Bradshaw Society 67 (London: Henry Bradshaw Society, 1931).

Wolfenbüttel, Herzog-August-Bibliothek, Weißenburg 76

Lectionarium Guelpherbytanus. A Gallican lectionary, probably representing that compiled by Claudianus Mamertus in Vienne in 470–474. Copied in the first half of the sixth century, possibly in Clermont Ferrand. Palimpsested around 700 in Burgundy with Julius Pomerius De uita contemplatiua.

The lections included in this volume are as follows (with current folio number): Romans 8:28–29, 39 (fol. 94); 15:9–13 (fol. 46^r); 1Corinthians 7:25–38 (fol. 90); 15:51–58 (fol. 89); 2Corinthians 5:11–20 (fol. 97); 6:1–10, 14–18, 7:1 (fol. 66^r).

The transcription reproduces Alban Dold, Das älteste Liturgiebuch der lateinischen Kirche. Ein altgallikanisches Lektionar des 5./6. Jhs aus dem Wolfenbütteler Palimpsest-Codex Weissenburgensis 76. Texte und Arbeiten 26 (Beuron: Beuroner Kunstverlag, 1936). The liturgical addition of fratres is indicated in the collation. Images of the manuscript are available at <http://diglib.hab.de/mss/76-weiss/start.htm>.

Stockholm, Kungliga Biblioteket, A. 148

Codex Gigas. A very large manuscript containing a complete Latin Bible with extracts from other authors including Josephus and Isidore. Copied in Bohemia between 1204 and 1227. Written in minuscule script with numerous abbreviations.

Present for all four epistles. The text is predominantly Vulgate.

Transcribed from colour images published online by the Kungliga Biblioteket at <http://www.kb.se/codex-gigas/>.

54

Paris, Bibliothèque nationale de France, lat. 321

Codex Perpinianensis. A Latin New Testament copied in the second half of the twelfth century in Roussillon. Written in minuscule script with numerous abbreviations.

Present for all four epistles. The text is predominantly Vulgate.

Transcribed from digitised monochrome microfilm and proofread against online colour images at <http://gallica.bnf.fr/ark:/12148/btv1b8442902q/>.

58

Orlando FL, The Scriptorium, VK 799

Codex Wernigerodensis. A small-format Latin New Testament copied in Bohemia (possibly Teplá) in the second half of the fourteenth century. Written in minuscule script with numerous abbreviations: some (including certain nomina sacra) are simply represented by a slightly elevated letter, which is sometimes ambiguous. Czech interlinear glosses are present in Romans.

Present for all four epistles. The text is predominantly Vulgate.

Transcribed from new colour digital images made by the COMPAUL project in 2012.

Dublin, Trinity College, TCD MS 52

Liber Ardmachanus; Book of Armagh. A Latin New Testament preceded by texts relating to St Patrick, some written in Old Irish, and followed by Sulpicius Severus Vita Martini. Copied in 807/8 in Ireland. There are two columns per page with some larger marginal initials. Lists are often presented as separate units. Written in Irish minuscule script with common abbreviations and occasional use of Greek characters.

Present for all four epistles. The Old Latin text is very similar to the lemmata in manuscript B of Pelagius (Oxford, Balliol College MS 157).

Transcribed from J. Gwynn, Liber Ardmachanus, The Book of Armagh (Dublin: Hodges Figgis & Co., 1913) and proofread against digitised monochrome microfilm. There are some marginal alternative readings, indicated as 61^{alt}.

Munich, Bayerische Staatsbibliothek, Clm 6436

Munich, Universitätsbibliothek, 4° 928 frg. 1–2

Göttweig, Stiftsbibliothek, s.n.

Fragmenta Frisingensia; Freising Fragments. A copy of the fourteen Pauline Epistles made in the second half of the sixth century, probably in Africa. Written in uncial with very few abbreviations. There are some orthographical variations, such as b for v, and weak final -m, which is sometimes erroneously present. Several replacement leaves and the Catholic Epistles were added in the seventh century.

The following passages are extant: Romans 5:16–6:19 (replacement leaf); 14:10–15:13; 1Corinthians 1:1–3:5; 6:1–7:12; 7:19–26; 13:13–14:5; 14:11–18; 15:14–43; 16:12–24; 2Corinthians 1:1–2:10; 3:17–5:12; 5:14–6:3; 7:10–8:12; 9:10–11:21; 12:14–13:10; Galatians 2:5–4:3; 4:6–5:2; 6:5–18. The Old Latin text is very close to that of Augustine.

The initial transcription was based on D. De Bruyne, Les fragments de Freising (Épîtres de S. Paul et Épîtres catholiques). Collectanea Biblica Latina 5 (Rome: Biblioteca Vaticana, 1921). De Bruyne occasionally reconstructs multiple lines of missing text; although these are included in the electronic transcription, the full collation indicates that such reconstructions should be treated with caution and the manuscript is not cited in variation units where it is completely absent. For 1 and 2Corinthians, the transcription was proofread against digitised monochrome microfilm at <http://daten.digitale-sammlungen.de/0011/bsb00110737/images/index.html>.

León, Archivo Catedralicio, 15

Palimpsestus Legionensis. Remains of a Latin Bible copied in the seventh century, possibly in Toledo. Spanish half-uncial script, with few abbreviations. Palimpsested in the ninth century with Rufinus' translation of the Church History of Eusebius.

The following portions are extant: Romans 11:2–16:6; 2Corinthians 1:1–7:4; 12:18–end; Galatians 1:1–3:29. The text is Vulgate.

The transcription was made from black and white photographs supplied by the Vetus Latina-Institut, on which the undertext had been reconstructed in red.

Paris, Bibliothèque nationale de France, grec 107 and 107A

Codex Claromontanus. Greek–Latin bilingual manuscript of the fourteen Pauline Epistles copied in Southern Italy around the middle of the fifth century. The Greek is on the verso, the Latin on the recto of each opening; each language is set out in short sense lines. The Latin is written in uncial script with few abbreviations: the nomina sacra feature the earlier forms DMS or DOM as well as DNS. There are some orthographic errors and nonsense readings; numerous later corrections are often present in the margin. This manuscript served as the exemplar for VL 76 and VL 83.

Present for all four epistles apart from one missing page which contained the Latin text of 1 Corinthians 14:9–17; certain pages were stolen in the sixteenth century and, on their return, were kept separate and catalogued as grec 107A. Corrections marked with the marginal ‘ro’ sign, which appears to indicate a separate tradition, are indicated by 75^{ro}.

The transcription was made from digitised monochrome microfilm and subsequently checked against colour images published online at <http://gallica.bnf.fr/ark:/12148/btv1b8468311> and <http://gallica.bnf.fr/ark:/12148/btv1b10515443k>.

St. Petersburg, National Library of Russia, F.v. XX

Codex Sangermanensis. Greek–Latin bilingual manuscript of the fourteen Pauline Epistles, copied in the ninth century. Uncial; two columns per page (Greek on the left, Latin on the right).

Present for all four epistles apart from lacunae comprising Romans 8:21–33 and 11:15–25. This manuscript was copied from VL 75, incorporating most of the corrections (although a couple are treated as marginal glosses): the text of 1 Corinthians 14:9–17, missing from the exemplar, was supplied from another Old Latin source.

Transcribed from digitised monochrome microfilm in the New Testament Virtual Manuscript Room at <http://ntvmr.uni-muenster.de/manuscript-workspace/?docID=20319>.

Dresden, Sächsische Landesbibliothek, A. 145b

Codex Boernerianus. Greek–Latin bilingual manuscript of thirteen Pauline Epistles, copied in St Gall in the second half of the ninth century. There is one column on each page; the interlinear Latin version is written in insular minuscule script above each Greek word and is often abbreviated. For certain Greek words multiple Latin renderings are offered, separated by the symbol for uel (ѣ).

Although at least one Latin biblical manuscript was used as a source, many of the forms have been adjusted to match the grammar of the Greek below and stand apart from the rest of Latin tradition. There are also omissions or duplications where the copyist had difficulty matching the two languages.

The manuscript is complete, but gaps have been left corresponding to the following verses: Romans 1:1b–5a, 2:16b–25a, 8:1b, 16:16b; 1 Corinthians 3:8–16a and 6:7–14. A marginal note at 1 Cor. 3:8 confirms that this text was absent from the Greek exemplar: the copyist clearly estimated the amount of space missing based on a Latin witness and intended to provide it later for both traditions (cf. the narrower line spacing at 6:2, where missing text may have been provided). There is also a gap of six lines after Romans 14:23, suggesting that the doxology of Romans 16:25–27, which is not included in its normal sequence, was present in Latin at this point (cf. Romans 14:24 in this collation).

Transcribed from online colour images at <http://digital.slub-dresden.de/id274591448>. Reference was also made to the facsimile edition, Der Codex Boernerianus der Briefe des Apostels Paulus mit einem Vorwort von Dr. Alexander Reichardt (Leipzig: Karl W. Hiersemann, 1909), as this was produced before the manuscript suffered extensive water damage in 1945.

Cambridge, Trinity College, B.17.1

Codex Augiensis. Greek-Latin bilingual manuscript of fourteen Pauline Epistles (Hebrews in Latin only). Copied in Reichenau in the second half of the ninth century. The Greek in the inner column of each page derives from the same source as VL 77, with the same gaps at 2 Corinthians 3:8–16a and 6:7–14 and no doxology at Romans 16:25–27. The Latin, based on a different source, is present throughout, written in Caroline minuscule script in the outer column of each page. In addition, occasional Latin glosses are written above words in the Greek column: these often differ from the text of the Latin column and are marked as 78^{gl}. There are numerous minor copying errors and gaps left for initial letters which were never provided.

The manuscript is lacunose in Romans 1:1–3:19. The text largely matches the Vulgate.

The initial transcription followed F.H. Scrivener, An Exact Transcript of the Codex Augiensis (Cambridge: Deighton Bell, 1859), but was then proofread against new colour digital images in the Reichenau–St. Gall virtual library at <http://www.stgallplan.org/stgallmss/viewItem.do?ark=p21198-zz0027scpz>.

79

Wolfenbüttel, Herzog-August-Bibliothek, Weißenburg 64, foll. 255–256, 277, 280.

Codex Carolinus. Two bifolia from a Latin-Gothic bilingual manuscript of Romans. Written in uncial in North Italy at the end of the fifth century; the Gothic is in the left column and the Latin in the right. The manuscript was palimpsested before the middle of the eighth century with Isidore's Etymologies.

The surviving text is as follows: Romans 11:33–12:5; 12:17–13:5; 14:9–20; 15:3–13.

The initial transcription was based on Alban Dold, "Die Provenienz der altlateinischen Römerbrieftexte in den gothisch-lateinischen Fragmenten des Codex Carolinus von Wolfenbüttel" in Georg Leyh (ed.), Aus der Welt des Buches. Zentralblatt für Bibliothekswesen, Beiheft 75 (Leipzig: Otto Harrassowitz, 1950), pp. 13–29. It was proofread against new online colour images at <http://digilib.hab.de/mss/64-weiss/start.htm>.

Heidelberg, Universitätsbibliothek, 1334

A portion of a leaf of Romans written in uncial in the seventh century, probably in Italy.

It contains Romans 5:14–17; 5:19–20; 6:1–2, with a text similar to VL 64.

The transcription reproduces R. Sillib, "Ein Bruchstück der Augustinischen Bibel." Zeitschrift für die neutestamentliche Wissenschaft 7 (1906) 82–86.

Marburg, Hessisches Staatsarchiv, Best. 147

Codex Waldeccensis (pars secunda). A fragment from a Greek-Latin bilingual manuscript of the Pauline Epistles copied in the tenth century, possibly in Corvey.

The only passage in this collation is 2 Corinthians 11:33–12:14. The exemplar for the manuscript was VL 75.

The transcription was made from digitised monochrome microfilm in the New Testament Virtual Manuscript Room at <http://ntvmr.uni-muenster.de/manuscript-workspace/?docID=20320>.

Vatican City, Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana, Reg. lat. 9, foll. 2–3.

A list of lections quoting Pauline verses on the first two folia of a Vulgate manuscript of the Pauline Epistles, copied in North Italy in the middle of the eighth century.

The beginning of each extract is given as a few words from each verse. The liturgical addition of fratres is indicated in the collation. The manuscript cites parts of the following verses: Romans 1:13; 6:3; 6:12; 8:3; 8:28; 10:8; 11:13; 13:12; 15:8; 1 Corinthians 1:26; 2:10; 3:1; 3:16; 5:6; 7:25; 8:4; 9:7; 9:24; 10:1; 11:23; 12:1; 14:4; 15:1; 2 Corinthians 1:3; 4:6; 6:2; 6:12; 7:4; 9:6; 10:15; 11:19; Galatians 2:9; 3:11; 3:27; 4:1; 4:12; 6:7. The text is Vulgate with occasional Old Latin readings.

The transcription was made from black and white images and follows A. Dold, Die im Codex Vat. Reg. lat. 9 vorgeheftete Liste paulinischer Lesungen für die Meßfeier. Texte und Arbeiten 35 (Beuron: Beuroner Kunstverlag, 1944). Colour images are available at http://digi.vatlib.it/view/MSS_Reg.lat.9.

Monza, Biblioteca Capitolare, i-2/9

Remnants of the latter part of a two-volume Latin Bible copied in the second half of the ninth century in North Italy (Monza or around Milan); Italian minuscule script.

The following verses are present: Romans 1:1–10:2; 10:6; 12:13–16; 13:8–10; 14:8–10; 14:23 (followed by 16:24–25, treated here as 14:23–24); 15:11–16:24; 1 Corinthians 1:1–5. The text is Old Latin, but the manuscript features some doublets.

The transcription reproduces H.J. Frede, Altlateinische Paulus-Handschriften. Aus der Geschichte der lateinischen Bibel 4 (Freiburg im Breisgau: Herder, 1964). Frede's identification of corrector hands has been followed, with the sigla 86^C, 86^{C2} and 86^{C3}. The manuscript has deteriorated significantly due to mould.

Sélestat, Bibliothèque Humaniste, 1B

Eight leaves from a Pauline lectionary copied in the second half of the eighth century, probably in Italy, in late uncial script. The liturgical indications and initial capitals are in red ink. Certain pages have been palimpsested.

The following passages are present: Romans 11:30–36; 12:1–16; 1 Corinthians 10:17–31; 2 Corinthians 6:2–10; 6:12–18; 10:7–14; Galatians 3:24–4:7. The liturgical addition of fratres is indicated in the collation. The text is Vulgate, with numerous errors of orthography.

The initial transcription was made from black and white photographs supplied by the Vetus Latina-Institut, and proofread against online colour images from http://bhnumerique.ville-selestat.fr/client/fr_FR/search/asset/4895.

Basle, Universitätsbibliothek, B.I.6

Part of a Latin Bible copied in the ninth or tenth century in western Germany in Caroline minuscule script. There are a few alternative readings added by the first hand in the margins, preceded by the indication al(ii) and indicated by 88^{alt.}

Present for all the Pauline Epistles. The text is Vulgate throughout, apart from folio 21 (2 Corinthians 7:3–10:18), which has an Old Latin affiliation similar to VL 64 and Augustine. The manuscript has been corrected in many places, and the original readings often correspond to Old Latin forms.

Transcribed from digitised monochrome microfilm.

Budapest, National Széchényi Library, Cod. Lat. 1

Biblical lemmata from an anonymous Latin commentary on the fourteen Pauline Epistles (AN Paul). Copied around 800 in Saint-Amand. The biblical text is indicated by diplai alongside each line. This witness is treated as a biblical manuscript because the compiler appears to have integrated commentary text from the margins of a codex of the epistles into a single continuous text, thus producing alternating sections of lemmata (some of which are lengthy) and exegesis. The commentary appears to have been composed in Rome at the end of the fourth century.

Present for all the Pauline Epistles, although a few phrases have been omitted (often through eyeskip). There are frequent errors of case, mostly involving final -m. The text is very similar to VL 75.

Transcribed from colour digital images. A transcription of the commentary text is available at <http://www.epistulae.org/>; Frede's edition expands the text of the commentary with reference to other sources.

Milan, Biblioteca Ambrosiana, E. 26 inf.

The Bobbio Bible. A two-volume Bible with the biblical books ordered according to the Roman Liturgy. Copied in North Italy in the second quarter of the ninth century in Caroline minuscule script.

Present for all the Pauline Epistles, but only cited in this collation for Romans and Galatians. The text is generally Vulgate, apart from the last two chapters of Romans. The manuscript has been corrected in many places, and the initial readings often appear to match Old Latin forms.

Transcribed from the original in Milan in February 2016: limitations of time meant that only Romans and Galatians could be transcribed in full. 1Corinthians 1 and 2 Corinthians 1–4 were examined for Old Latin characteristics, but their text was largely Vulgate and they have not been included in the present collation.

Paris, Bibliothèque nationale de France, latin 9427

Lectionarium Luxoviense (the Luxeuil Lectionary). A Gallican Lectionary written in Luxeuil minuscule script around the year 700.

The following readings are present: Romans 6:3–11; 7:24–8:4; 8:15–27; 10:15–17; 15:17–29; 1 Corinthians 1:26–31; 3:9–17; 7:25–40; 9:7–12; 9:7–15; 10:1–13; 10:14–31; 15:1–19; 15:1–22; 15:12–28; 15:31–45; 15:47–58; 15:51–58; 2 Corinthians 6:2–15; Galatians 5:13–6:2; 6:7–14. Overlapping readings do not always present an identical text: variants are marked as 251¹, 251² and even 251³ as necessary. The liturgical addition of fratres is indicated in the collation. The text is Vulgate.

The transcriptions were initially based on P. Salmon, Le lectionnaire de Luxeuil. Collectanea Biblica Latina 7 (Rome: Biblioteca Vaticana, 1944), and proofread against colour digital images of the manuscript from <http://gallica.bnf.fr/ark:/12148/btv1b84516388>.

Toledo, Catedral, Biblioteca del Cabildo, 35-5

Liber misticus. A lectionary copied in Toledo in the thirteenth century in Visigothic minuscule script, following the tradition of the Mozarabic Missal.

The following lections are present: Romans 6:1–11; 1 Corinthians 5:6–6:11, 11:20–34; Galatians 1:3–12. The text is largely Vulgate and the orthography characteristic of Spanish witnesses, although there are Old Latin readings in 1 Corinthians not reported by Fröhlich.

Transcribed from digitised monochrome microfilm supplied by the Hill Museum and Manuscript Library, Saint John's Abbey and University, Collegeville, Minnesota.

Toledo, Catedral, Biblioteca del Cabildo, 35-6

Liber misticus. A lectionary copied in Toledo around 1000 in Visigothic minuscule script, following the tradition of the Mozarabic Missal.

The following lections are present: Romans 8:22–27; 1 Corinthians 3:1–2 and 7, 4:9–15, 9:7–17; 2 Corinthians 4:5–5:1 (erroneously entitled 1 Corinthians). The text is largely Vulgate and the orthography characteristic of Spanish witnesses. Again, there are Old Latin readings in 1 Corinthians not reported by Fröhlich.

Transcribed from digitised monochrome microfilm supplied by the Hill Museum and Manuscript Library, Saint John's Abbey and University, Collegeville, Minnesota.

London, British Library, MS Add. 30851

A liturgical manuscript copied in Spain (probably Silos) in the tenth or eleventh century in Visigothic minuscule script.

It contains a brief lection made up of 1 Corinthians 16:13–14 and 2 Corinthians 13:11.

Transcribed from the original in London in October 2014. The text is identical to that given by Fröhlich, and so the further manuscripts with this lection (VL 414 and 415) have not been included in the collation.

B Commentaries (in Chronological Order)

MAR

The biblical text from Marius Victorinus' Commentary on Galatians (MAR Gal in the Vetus Latina Repertorium) as reconstructed in S.A. Cooper, Marius Victorinus' Commentary on Galatians (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2005), pp. 366–369. The commentary was composed at some point after 363.

The commentary of Victorinus is lacunose in the following verses: Galatians 3:8b; 3:10b–19; 5:17b–6:1. In addition, Cooper relies on the commentary to reconstruct parts of Galatians 2:8–9; 4:14; 4:25; 5:17.

No variant readings are given in this reconstruction, as the textual tradition of Marius Victorinus is both very late and slender.¹

AMst

The biblical text used for the Pauline commentary of Ambrosiaster, composed in Italy between 366 and 384, as reconstructed in H.J. Vogels, Das Corpus Paulinum des Ambrosiaster. Bonner biblische Beiträge 13 (Bonn: Hanstein, 1957).

Vogels includes an apparatus of variant readings from 16 manuscripts and 2 editions, sometimes using different sigla to those adopted for the critical edition of the whole text. Certain witnesses have a consistently different biblical text (which is independent of the authorial recensions of this work). These are:

AMst^A (Amiens, Bibliothèque municipale, 87) in Romans, 1& 2Corinthians;

AMst^D (Ghent, University Library, 455) in 1 & 2Corinthians;²

AMst^W (Vienna, ÖNB, lat. 743) in Romans;

AMst^Z (Florence, BML, Ashb. 60) in Galatians.

Where a reading is only attested in these manuscripts, they are cited by siglum; otherwise the indication AMst^{var} is used for any combination of witnesses. In addition, the 1579 Roman edition, based on a manuscript now lost, often has a very distinctive biblical text (sometimes shared with the Maurist edition printed in Paris in 1690): where a reading is only attested in the Roman edition (or in both these editions), this is indicated with the siglum AMst^R. In a few places, Vogels' apparatus is not completely transparent: it is not clear whether duplicate words in a witness are a scribal or editorial error.

HI

The biblical text of Jerome's Commentary on Galatians (HI Gal), extracted from the lemmata in Giacomo Raspanti (ed.), Commentarii in Epistulam Pauli Apostoli ad Galatas. Corpus Christianorum series latina 77A (Turnhout: Brepols, 2006). Variant readings, indicated as HI^{var}, may be alternative readings in the manuscript tradition of the lemmata, the body of the commentary, or the manuscript tradition of the commentary. Some of these are Old Latin in affiliation and have a claim to be original: see H.A.G. Houghton, "The Biblical Text of Jerome's Commentary on Galatians" JTS ns 65.1 (2014) 1–24. The commentary was composed in 386.

AU

The biblical text in the lemmata of Augustine's Expositio Quarundam Propositionum ex Epistola ad Romanos (AU Rm), Epistolae ad Romanos Inchoata Expositio (AU Rm in) and Epistolae ad Galatas Expositio (AU Gal) as extracted from J. Divjak (ed.), Sancti Aureli Augustini Opera IV.1. Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum 84. (Vienna: Hölder-Pichler-Tempsky, 1971). All three works were composed in 394/5. The Inchoata Expositio only covers Romans 1:1–7. The Expositio of Romans treats the following verses, with a handful of others quoted out of sequence: Romans 1:4, 11, 18, 21, 24, 28–29, 32; 2:1, 5, 15, 29; 3:20, 31; 4:2, 4, 5, 15, 17, 20; 5:3, 13–20; 6:1–2, 6, 14; 7:2, 8–11, 13–15, 19–20, 23–25; 8:1, 3–4, 7, 10–11, 15–16, 19–23, 26–30, 35, 38–39; 9:5, 11–22, 24–25, 27; 10:1, 8–10, 19; 11:1, 11; 12:20, 13:1, 3–5, 8–11, 14; 14:1–6, 22; 15:8–9, 16; 16:17–18. The commentary on Galatians provides the whole epistle with the exception of a few part-verses and some gaps at the end end of Galatians 4. In addition, a sequence of sermons on Romans (AU s 151–156, especially the expository AU s 153–156) provides a continuous text of Romans 7:5 to 8:17, which has been extracted from G. Partoens (ed.), Sancti Aurelii Augustini. Sermones in Epistolas Apostolicas I. Corpus Christianorum, series latina 41Ba (Turnhout: Brepols, 2008). The principal text given for Romans under the siglum AU is that of AU Rm. The only verse shared with AU Rm in is Romans 1:4, which is identical in both works. Where the lemma text in sermons 153–156 differs from AU Rm, it is noted as AU^s. The siglum AU^{var} indicates variation in the textual tradition of Augustine or differences between the lemmata and other quotations.

AN Paul

This commentary dates from the late fourth century. Its biblical text is reported as a separate manuscript, VL 89 (see above).

RUF

The biblical text from the Latin translation of Origen's Commentary on Romans by Rufinus of Aquileia (RUF Rm), as reconstructed in Caroline Hammond Bammel, Der Römerbrieftext des Rufin und seine Origenes-Übersetzung. Aus der Geschichte der lateinischen Bibel 10 (Freiburg im Breisgau: Herder, 1985), pp. 503–537. This reconstruction has a double apparatus of variant readings: many of those in the tradition of Rufinus are nonsense or orthographical variants and have been discounted, but genuine alternatives are marked as RUF^{var}; the lower apparatus of variants in Ambrosiaster's text, supplied by Frede, has been ignored.

Rufinus translated the commentary in 405/6, and provided the lemmata directly from a Latin biblical codex. Where the reconstructed text differs from the lemmata in Hammond Bammel's subsequent edition of the whole commentary (Der Römerbriefkommentar des Origenes. Aus der Geschichte der lateinischen Bibel 16, 33, 34 [Freiburg im Breisgau: Herder, 1990–1998]), the alternative reading is indicated as RUF^{ed2}. It may be that some of these are typographical errors.

PEL

The biblical text in the lemmata of the Pauline commentary of Pelagius, composed in Rome between 406 and 410. There are two principal witnesses to this:

PEL^A (Karlsruhe, Badische Landesbibliothek, Aug. 119)

PEL^B (Oxford, Balliol College, MS 157).

The biblical text of PEL^A is similar to the Vulgate and believed to be closer to that of the author than PEL^B, whose lemmata have apparently been substituted with a text close to VL 61. There is an early fragment covering Romans 7:10–14, but its biblical text is not distinctive, and its variants have been included as PEL^{var} with the rest of the manuscript tradition.

The reconstruction of the text of Romans is supplied from Theodore de Bruyn, Pelagius' Commentary on St Paul's Epistle to the Romans (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1993) pp. 168–193. For this Epistle, we follow De Bruyn's editorial text (indicated by PEL^{ed}), with variants supplied from his apparatus: PEL^A and PEL^B are always identified when they differ from the reconstruction. For the three other epistles we used Alexander Souter (ed.), Pelagius' Expositions of Thirteen Epistles of St Paul. Texts & Studies 9.2 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1926).³ Because of the complexity of this edition, with many readings in square brackets, we reconstructed the complete text of PEL^A and PEL^B (identifying which of them corresponded to Souter's editorial text of the lemma), with variant readings from the apparatus. The transcription was then proofread against colour digital images of both manuscripts. Where both manuscripts agree, the siglum PEL is used. If Souter's editorial text relies on a variant rather than manuscripts A and B, this is marked as PEL^{var(ed)}; reconstructions in his editorial text with no manuscript support are marked as PEL^{ed}.

There is a large lacuna in PEL^B from 1Cor. 11:28–15:3, while PEL^A omits many verses from 1Cor. 16.

THr

The biblical text in the lemmata of the Latin translation of Theodore of Mopsuestia's Commentary on Galatians (THr Gal), probably made in Italy in the early fifth century. The text has been extracted from the edition of H.B. Swete (ed.), Theodori Episcopi Mopsuesteni in Epistolas B. Pauli Commentarii (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1880). Swete is of the opinion that the lemmata are a direct translation from the Greek and therefore stand apart from the rest of Latin tradition. Variant readings are identified as TH^{var}. Swete's edition only relies on two manuscripts: several additional manuscripts of Theodore's commentary have subsequently been identified (see AMst^D above), but reference has not been made to these.

CAr

The biblical text in the lemmata of Cassiodorus' Complexiones (CAr cpl), composed in Italy around the year 580. This is a brief commentary on the Epistles and Acts, dealing with selected passages preceded by lemmata. The text has been extracted from Roger Gryson (ed.), Cassiodori Senatoris Complexiones Epistularum et Actuum Apostolorum. Corpus Christianorum series latina 98B (Turnhout: Brepols, 2016), in which the lemmata are italicised: other biblical references are not sufficiently verbatim to be easily extracted.

The following verses are quoted, normally in part: Romans 1:1–3, 8, 18, 24; 2:1; 14; 3:1, 27; 5:1, 18; 6:3, 15; 7:1, 12, 25; 8:15, 24, 31; 9:1, 14, 22, 30; 10:5; 11:1, 13, 25, 33, 36; 12:4; 13:1, 6, 7; 14:1, 5, 7, 12; 15:4, 17; 16:1; 1Corinthians 1:1, 4, 14, 31; 2:1; 3:1, 16; 4:9; 5:1; 6:1, 7:1, 12, 25; 8:1; 9:1, 16; 10:1, 14, 26; 11:1, 16, 27; 12:4; 13:1; 14:2, 13, 26; 15:1, 21, 39; 2Corinthians 1:1, 3, 12, 23; 2:12; 3:7; 4:3, 16; 5:11; 6:2; 7:1, 12; 8:9, 22; 9:10; 10:7; 11:1; 12:1, 14; 13:7; Galatians 1:1, 6; 2:6, 14; 3:1, 24; 4:19; 5:10, 14; 6:1, 8.

The work is transmitted in a single early manuscript, often erroneous and with non-standard orthography: variant readings indicate where this witness has a difference from the editorial text which is a possible alternative reading.

C Testimonia (in Chronological Order)

TES

Ad Quirinum (CY te). Three books of biblical testimonia compiled by Cyprian of Carthage in 248 or 250. The scriptural citations were conformed to differing Latin texts in the early transmission of the work, with the result that no fewer than five strands are represented in the textual tradition. The text has been taken from R. Weber (ed.), Cyprianus. Opera I. Corpus Christianorum series latina 3 (Turnhout; Brepols, 1972), along with variant readings from his critical apparatus.

The following verses are cited: Romans 1:25–26; 2:1; 2:3–6; 2:12–13; 3:8; 3:23–24; 5:2–5; 8:16–18; 8:24–25; 8:35–37; 9:3–5; 9:25–26; 11:20–21; 11:33–36; 12:14; 12:17; 12:19; 12:21; 13:3; 13:7–8; 14:4; 14:17; 1Corinthians 1:10; 1:17–24; 3:1–3; 3:16–20; 4:7; 4:20; 5:7–8; 6:1–2; 6:7–11; 6:15–20; 7:1–7; 7:10–11; 7:29–34; 7:39–40; 8:2; 8:8; 9:24–25; 10:1; 10:12–13; 10:22–23; 11:3; 11:19; 11:27; 11:33–34; 13:2–8; 13:12; 14:34–35; 15:33; 15:36; 15:41–44; 15:47–49; 15:53–55; 2Corinthians 3:14–16; 5:10 (twice); 6:14; 8:12–

15; 9:6–7, 9:12; 12:7–9; Galatians 1:10; 3:6–9; 4:4; 5:14–15, 17, 19–24; 6:1–2; 6:14. The text is Old Latin. Significant variants are recorded as TES^{var}, although Vulgate readings which characterise two later manuscripts (E and F) have not been included. Certain verses are quoted more than once, but in each case the editorial text is identical.

FOR

Ad Fortunatum (CY Fo). One book of biblical testimonia assembled by Cyprian of Carthage in 252/3. As with Ad Quirinum, the scriptural citations were conformed to differing Latin texts in the early transmission of the work. The text has been taken from R. Weber (ed.), Cyprianus. Opera I. Corpus Christianorum series latina 3 (Turnhout; Brepols, 1972), along with variant readings from his critical apparatus, which are reported as FOR^{var}.

The following verses are cited: Romans 5:2–5; 8:16–18, 35–37; 12:1–2; 1 Corinthians 6:19–20; 9:24–25; 11:3; 2 Corinthians 5:15; 12:2. The text is Old Latin.

Liber de diuinis scripturis (PS-AU spe). A collection of biblical testimonia assembled in Italy at the beginning of the fifth century and pseudonymously attributed to Augustine. Although arranged by topic, the extensive scriptural quotations have sometimes been treated as a biblical manuscript (with the name Speculum and/or the siglum m). This Speculum should not be confused with the later Augustinian Speculum (see SPE below). Initially, the biblical text was taken from the reordered version provided by J. Belsheim (ed.), Fragmenta Noui Testamenti in translatione Latina antehieronymiana ex libro qui uocatur Speculum (Oslo [Christiania]: A.W. Brøggers, 1899). However, this is omissional, includes several typographical errors and is only based on a single manuscript, so the transcription was thoroughly revised based on the critical edition of F. Weihrich (ed.), Sancti Aureli Augustini Opera III.1. Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum 12 (Vienna: Geroldus, 1889). It is Weihrich's editorial text which is cited, along with variant readings recorded in his critical apparatus.

The following verses are included: Romans 1:22–26; 2:1–3; 2:13; 2:16; 5:3–5; 5:8–10; 5:19; 6:3–13; 6:17–18; 7:25; 8:1–2; 8:9–11; 8:14; 8:31–32; 8:35–36; 9:5; 11:33–36; 12:1–2; 12:10; 12:13–21; 13:1–8; 13:10; 13:13–14; 14:1; 14:16–21; 15:1–7; 15:13–14; 15:18–19; 15:26–27; 16:17–20; 1 Corinthians 1:20; 1:23–24; 1:26–29; 2:7–8; 2:10–15; 3:3; 3:16–17; 3:18–20; 4:5; 5:6–8; 6:9–11; 6:15–20; 7:10–11; 7:25–26; 7:29–34; 7:38; 8:4–5; 8:6; 9:25–27; 10:19–21; 10:31; 12:3–11; 12:31; 13:1–8; 13:13; 14:1; 14:12; 14:26; 15:20–24; 15:33–46; 15:51–53; 16:13–14; 2 Corinthians 1:2–3; 1:21–22; 2:5–11; 3:17–18; 4:1–4; 4:8–11; 5:1–5; 7:9–10; 8:21; 9:5–7; 10:3–5; 10:7; 11:12–15; 13:13; Galatians 3:3; 3:19–20; 4:4–5; 4:6; 4:8–12; 6:7–10.

The affiliation is Old Latin. Occasionally, second-position connectives seem to have been omitted for contextual reasons or replaced by inquit. Certain phrases have perhaps been left out as irrelevant or overlooked due to eyeskip; when verses are quoted more than once, differences in the editorial text are marked as SPM^{ed} and SPM^{ed2}.

SPE

Speculum quis ignorat (AU spe). A selection of verses from the Latin Bible arranged by book, believed to have been made by Augustine in 427/8. Unlike Augustine's other quotations of the New Testament outside the Gospels these largely correspond to the Vulgate, probably because of a revision early in the work's transmission. The text is taken from F. Weihrich (ed.), Sancti Aureli Augustini Opera III.1. Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum 12 (Vienna: Geroldus, 1889).

The following verses are quoted: Romans 1:16–32; 2:1–10; 2:13; 2:21–24; 5:1–5; 6:12–13; 6:19; 8:12–14; 8:17; 8:25; 8:28; 8:35–39; 10:10–13; 11:20–22; 12:1–21; 13:1–14; 14:1–25; 15:1–7; 15:26–27; 15:30; 16:17–19; 1Corinthians 1:10–13; 1:30–31; 3:3–4; 3:16–19; 4:5–7; 4:11–14; 5:1–13; 6:1–10; 6:15–20; 7:1–40; 8:1–4; 8:7–13; 9:4–27; 10:1; 10:5–14; 10:20–33; 11:1; 11:4–5; 11:17–22; 11:27–34; 12:24–31; 13:1–8; 13:13; 14:1; 14:12; 14:20; 14:26; 14:34–36; 15:33–34; 15:58; 16:1–10; 16:13–14; 2Corinthians 1:12; 2:5–11; 4:1; 4:2; 4:5; 4:7–13; 4:16–18; 6:1–10; 6:13–18; 7:8–11; 8:1–21; 9:1–15; 10:17–18; 11:23–30; 12:9–10; 12:14–15; 12:20–21; 13:7; 13:11; Galatians 1:10; 5:6; 5:13–6:10.

Conventions

The lemma is the editorial text of the Stuttgart Vulgate, fifth edition (2007).

Where the verse division of the Stuttgart Vulgate differs from the Greek text of Nestle-Aland, the latter has been adopted. This affects the following verses: Romans 5:8–9; 16:10–11; 1 Corinthians 3:4–5; 6:9–10; 7:33–34; 9:20–21; 15:26–27; 15:44–45; 2 Corinthians 6:8–9; 8:14–15; Galatians 4:31–5:1; 5:22–23; 6:7–8.

The following conventions are used:

Bold text Editorial text of the Stuttgart Vulgate.

Siglum in italics, e.g. 6¹ A witness with a different orthographic form of this reading.

Siglum in angled brackets, e.g. ⟨64⟩ A witness only partially extant supporting this reading.

Siglum in parentheses, e.g. (89) A witness with an erroneous form of this reading.

om. Omission of the entire variation unit.

abs. Absence of the variation unit (normally for extracts which only present part of the verse).

lac. Witness is lacunose for the entire variation unit (but present elsewhere in the verse).

[1–2] A lacuna or illegible section of 1–2 characters.

[abc] Text supplied to complete a lacuna.

[...] A lacuna of unspecified length.

abc Unclear text

+ Text added after the variation unit; if the manuscript is not previously cited for a variant, then it agrees with the lemma up to this point.

± A variation unit absent from the base text (e.g. before the first lemma in the verse, or a place with multiple additions).

† See comment in footnote.

Following a siglum:

* The first hand reading of a manuscript when there is a later correction.

c A correction to a first hand reading in a manuscript; c² or c³ for later correctors.

C*	A correction by the first hand in a manuscript.
gl, alt	A gloss or alternative reading, often added in the margin (not used for 77).
ed	The editorial text of a secondary source when a variant is reported (also ^{ed2}).
var	A variant reading reported in the critical apparatus of a secondary source.
1,2,3	Variants when a verse is cited more than once in the same witness.
ro	A correction marked as 'ro' in VL 75.
AMst ^{A,D,R,W,Z}	Variants in specified witnesses of Ambrosiaster.
PEL ^{A, B}	Variants in the two principal manuscripts of Pelagius.
